Roving High Pressure Cell Calls Weird Weather Signals

By ROWLAND EVANS, JR.

WASHINGTON, March 13 — (AP).— A roving "high-pressure cell," a thousand miles out in the Pacific Ocean, called the weird weather signals this winter.

And, says Jerome Namias, the United States Weather Bureau's extended forecast chief, by a sort of chain-reaction, this strong upper air pressure system controlled the so-called "Bermuda high" off the mid-Atlantic coast.

The Bermuda high was one of the two principal reasons for the record-hot January in many parts of the continent's east half.

The other was the unusual strength of the prevailing westerly winds in the upper altitudes (10,000 to 30,000 feet).

These winds, moving across Northern United States and Southern Canada, east of the Rockies, at speeds up to 100 miles an hour acted as a barrier to the polar air of the Arctic regions. Until mid-February they blocked off all but a few seepages of winter air in the east, but there was nothing to keep cold air from flooding the continent west of the Rockies.

Gets Around

Last December, Namias says, the "high-pressure cell" 20,000 feet over the Pacific Ocean lay just about half way between San Francisco and Honolulu. A month later it had moved north to a point on a direct line between Seattle and Tokyo.

In the middle of February it was still farther north, just above the tip of the Aleutians. And at the beginning of this month it was away up in the North Behring Sea, midway between Alaska and Siberia.

As the Pacific high moved up to the Bering Sea it forced the icy air above the polar cap into the Gulf of Alaska.

This produced extreme storminess which, moving south down the Alaska coast and east along the U.S.-Canadian border, tore great gaps in the swift westerly winds. Through these gaps shafts of cold air probed at will, bringing much of the east its first real winter weather.

Withdraws Support

Meanwhile, the Bermuda high languished. It had been strong all through January and into February, pouring masses of warm gulf coast air all over the east. But movement of the Pacific high into the Bering Sea withdrew much of the support the Bermuda high needed to remain strong.

Namias explains that when the Pacific high is somewhere off California's coast, a balance is established between it and the Bermuda high. Movement of one affects the stability of the other.

Namias says that March probably will prove to be a colder month than February along much of the Atlantic coast-line.

Substance Is Subject Of Lesson Sermon

"Substance was the subject of the Lesson Sermon which was read in all churches of Christ, Scientist throughout the world including First Church in Peterborough on Sunday.

The Golden Text was: "I know that whatsoever God doeth, it shall be for ever: nothing can be put to it, nor anything taken from it." (Ecclesiastes 3:14)

Selections from the Bible included the following from 2nd. Corinthians 4 15—18: "For all things are for your sakes, that the abundant grace might through the thanksgiving of many redound to the glory of God. For which cause we faint not: but though our outward man perish, yet the inward man is renewed day by day.

For our light affliction, which is but for a moment, worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory: while we look not at the things which are seen: but at the things which are not seen: for the things which are seen are temporal: but the things which are not seen are eternal."

Correlative citations from the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" included the following. "Question—What is substance? Answer— Substance is that which is eternal and incapable of discord and decay."

GUAY TO HANG FOR WIFE'S MURDER

Bancroft Tip Nabs Bogus Bill Suspects

Alert Garage Owner Spots Counterfeit; Pair Held By Police

Acting on a tip from an alert Bancroft service station operator, Forest Hill police arrested two Toronto men late Monday and charged them with passing counterfeit $10 bills.

Being brought back to Bancroft for trial are Kenneth Barker, 20, and John Bowers, 21. Two other men, one unidentified, were with the arrested pair when they allegedly proferred the bogus bills for payment.

The hot tip was the result of George Davey of Bancroft, owner and operator of a garage service station, having written the license number on a $10 bill handed him late Saturday after gasoline had been purchased.

Provincial Police say the men also passed a bogus bill at Haultain and are investigating to see if other people in the district have been victimized.

The Toronto men were arrested by Sgt. Hather and Const. Williams of Forest Hill on Eglinton Ave. W., near Oakwood Ave. They were taken to the police station and a search of their car revealed a quantity of counterfeit bills.

Passed On Saturday

All counterfeit money was passed on Saturday. The quartet pulled into Tranter's Grocery Store on Cedar Lake, near Haultain between 3 and 4 p.m. They offered a $10 bill in return for 70 cents worth of gas.

The proprietor, Herb Tranter was suspicious of their actions and also of the bill. He notified Provincial Constable Bert Howden of Apsley Monday morning. Constable Howden identified the money as bogus and is investigating to see if any other of the bills were passed in the district.

Mr. Davey reported to Provincial Police at Bancroft that the four had passed counterfeit bills in Bancroft Saturday night. He laid his complaint early Monday morning.

Other Victims

Other Bancroft business people known to have received bogus bills are Miss B. Haase, who operates a drug store, and C. A. Eddy,

Throw Cold Water On Wolf Attack Yarns

Forestry Experts Deny Wolves Attacked Two People Recently

TIMAGAMI, March 14—(CP)—Two forestry experts today came up with a dose of cold water on recent stories of attacks by wolves on two persons. They said the stories couldn't be proved, and thereby bolstered the long contention that wolves will not attack humans.

The old saying of Jim Curran editor of the Sault Ste. Marie Star that "any man that says he has been bt by a wolf is a liar," looked considerably shaken for a time. One recent report was that a young lumber worker was attacked by two wolves a few miles south of Timagimi and his clothes was torn before he was rescued. Another report in the last few days said that the frail mother of two children was attacked by wolves five miles north of McKerrow near Sudbury.

Burly Paul Hoffman, chief forest ranger in this town 50 miles north of North Bay, said the report of the attack on the lumber worker "was so unusual we investigated at once. We discovered that the unfortunate young man who was supposed to have been attacked was subject to fits. He had one of these seizures on the trail.

Just A Story

"A number of workers came upon him in a dishevelled condition just after he had recovered. Somehow the story started that he had been attacked by wolves."

The other report was discounted by Charles Bibby, chief game overseer of the Sudbury district. This story was that a woman, weighing only 100 pounds, had fought off wolf attacks with a sleigh on which she had been hauling groceries.

Bibby said "It's a thousand-to-one that the animals were dogs." He pointed out the incident occurred in darkness, making it difficult to identify the animals, and that if a determined wolf actually attacked a woman of light weight the results would be pretty serious.

Bibby declared flatly: "There hasn't been an authenticated case yet where wolves have attacked a human."

Will Install 313,000 Phones In 3 Yrs.

OTTAWA, March 14 (CP) — Bell Telephone Company of Canada expects to install 313,000 new phones in Ontario and Quebec during the next three years.

Arnold J. Groleau, general facilities superintendent, told the Board of Transport Commissioners Monday that this year alone the company will put in 123,000 phones.

An engineer with Bell since 1928, Mr. Groleau testified as the Board continued to hear the company's application for a rate boost averaging about 20 per cent.

At the end of last year, there had been 88,117 persons waiting for phones in the two central provinces served by Bell. That compared with 70,070 on the waiting list in April, 1946, the lowest number since the war, and 102,282 at August, 1947, the highest in the company's history.

Outlines Plans

Under questioning by Bell lawyer J. W. Pickup of Toronto, Mr. Groleau said that in 1951 the company hopes to put in 100,000 new phones and 90,000 in 1952.

Along with those waiting for new telephone service, there was a large backlog of subscribers waiting for a higher grade of service, such as a change from a two-party line to an individual line. At the end of 1949, Mr. Groleau said, there were 107,615 persons waiting for this regrading.

He emphasized that as far as possible Bell fills all requests on a first-come-first-serve basis.

Leopard Escapes Zoo

armed with rifles today hunted for a half-grown leopard escaped from the Auckland zoo.

Visitors were hurriedly cleared from the zoo and the gates locked.

A search among trees in the grounds showed no trace of the leopard. The authorities thought it might have travelled some distance from the zoo.

The animal was brought with its mate from Singapore only a few days ago. It was last seen safely locked in its enclosure, and zoo officials cannot explain how it got out.

MAY RE-MOUNT RCMP

OTTAWA, March 14 — (CP) — Commissioner S. T. Wood of the RCMP said today he would consider re-mounting the Mounties who patrol Parliament Hill in summer if the proposal is made to him officially.

Labor Government Wins Second Test By 25 Votes

LONDON, March 14—(AP)—The Labor government, victorious in two crucial policy tests, mobilized its slim majority in the House of Commons today to beat down a third Conservative attack on Labor spending policies. By rounding up every available Labor member, including some from sick-beds, Prime Minister Attlee's government Monday night won a 25-vote majority against a Tory motion criticizing its housing record. The vote was 314 to 289.

The first test came last week, only a few days after the newly-elected Labor government, with its majority in the House of Commons whittled to only six seats, began its second term. That vote showed a Labor victory of only 14 votes against Conservative leader, Winston Churchill's attacks on the government's program to nationalize the steel and iron industry.

Churchill's demands for three votes of confidence within a week were interpreted by observers as harassing tactics to keep the Labor government under pressure.

Liberals Split

The Liberals, who hold only nine seats in Commons, were responsible for the slight gain in the government's majority Monday night. On the first vote last week, all the Liberals voted with the Conservatives. Monday night six Liberals voted with the government on the housing issue.

Tonight's test comes in a Conservative motion saying the Commons "deplores the failure of the Chancellor of the Exchequer to enforce his own instructions to government departments not to overspend so extensively their estimates for the current year."

Sir Stafford Cripps, Britain's austere budget chief, has promised to answer the Tory accusation in debate preceding the votments are asking for extra appropriations amounting to £148,402,365 ($480,074,331.)

The vote on housing Monday following a bitter debate in which Conservatives hacked away at Health Minister Aneurin Bevan, who has charge of the housing program. They claimed the program had been a flop and declared that had building been put into the hands of private enterprise more homes would have gone up.

Arrest 20 Reds In German Clash

HANOVER, Germany, March 14 (AP)—Twenty Communist demonstrators were arrested today after an hour-long clash between police and a crowd of nearly 1,000 Communists.

The melee started when the crowd, including Communist youth members and several women, gathered to prevent a British officer from entering the plant of the outlawed Communist newspaper Volksstimme.

The Communists gathered in front of the printing plant shortly after a British high court sentenced two of the paper's eight editors to prison terms of a year and 18 months respectively for publishing stories endangering security of the western allies.

Two of the editors had been acquitted and four will be retried at a later date. The British officer went to the plant with a court order authorizing him to impound the property.

When the officer, Col. Walter Witham, found the crowd had blocked all entrances to the building he called for police aid to force his way through. About 50 police answered the summons, but were unable to break through. Motists. Eyewitnesses said they did not use their weapons.

The newspaper and its editors had been accused by British authorities of publishing appeals to Germans to rise up against the dismantling of German war plants.

Jurors Take 17 Minutes Get Verdict

Judge Praises Jury For Diligent Work; Jeweler Dies June 23

QUEBEC, March 14—(CP)—J. Albert Guay today was sentenced to be hanged June 23 for the murder of his wife, a slaying which the Crown described as a "diabolical" crime because the 32-year-old jeweler caused an air disaster which killed 22 others.

A Criminal Assizes jury brought in a verdict of "guilty" after deliberating 17 minutes.

The case was handed to the jury at 1.10 p.m., EST, by Chief Judge Albert Sevigny who wept as he finished his charge. The verdict was returned at 1.27 p.m.

Guay took the verdict stolidly with head hung. He murmured "no" when the judge asked him if he had anything to say before sentence was pronounced.

The judge told the jury it was the best and most diligent he had seen in 22 years on the bench. He praised the 12 French-speaking men for "a good verdict."

Filled With Emotion

He was so filled with emotion when pronouncing sentence he could hardly speak.

Before pronouncing sentence Judge Sevigny told Guay that for "hatred of his wife" and passion for Marie-Ange Robitaille he had perpetrated a diabolical, infamous crime" which had failed.

Marie Ange-Robitaille is the 19-year-old Quebec waitress with whom Guay had an affair. The Crown alleged that her love was one of the motives for the slaying of Mrs. Guay. The Crown contended the other motive was the proceeds of a $10,000 insurance policy Guay had taken out on the life of Mrs. Guay shortly before she embarked on the fatal flight.

The verdict was announced by the 33-year-old foreman, Paul Pouliot, a forestry engineer. During the trial he had risen on many occasions to question witnesses himself.

Right To Live

Judge Sevigny told the jury near the end of his charge:

"The law of God and of her country gave Mrs. Albert Guay the right to live. Nothing escapes the law of God you have to ful-beginning of his charge that "is not sufficient that a jury believe an accused is probably guilty."

The 68-year-old judge, who opened his charge to the jury at 10:10 a.m., EST, said jurors "must be convinced of his guilt. A man cannot be convicted on suspicion."

Ontario Gets Land

WINNIPEG, March 14 — (CP)—Manitoba will lose 275 acres of swampy wooded land to Ontario through a boundary survey to Hudson Bay. After 71 years the boundary line has finally been drawn and will be marked with concrete blocks this summer. The point on the shore of Hudson Bay where the Manitoba - Ontario boundary should end was fixed astronomically in 1929. The surveyors' line ended only 16 feet west of the approximate point.

Ready To Extend Rent Control Till April '51

OTTAWA, March 14 (CP) — Justice Minister Garson gave notice today that he is ready to introduce in the Commons a measure to extend rent controls at least until April 30, 1951.

He placed on the order paper a resolution for introduction of a bill to amend the continuation of the transitional measures act of 1947 to provide for the extension.

The action follows a decision by the Supreme Court of Canada that Federal rent controls are valid and that it is up to Parliament to decide when they should end.

There already have been a number of relaxations of the war-born rent controls since the end of hostilities, but thousands of Canadian homes still are subject to rental ceilings based on the transitional measures act.

Seek To Change Taxes On Sport

TORONTO, March 14—(CP)—A question that has baffled sports experts for many years was discussed in the Ontario Legislature Monday when an amendment to the Athletic Control Act came up for second reading.

The subject was brought up by Robert Thornberry, CCF member for Hamilton Centre, who noted the amendment contained no provision for taxing athletic events which are "supposedly amateur but actually professional."

The sports Mr. Thornberry referred to were boxing, hockey and football—in which he said the tax on the admission price to professional promotions but amateurs are exempted.

Premier Leslie Frost admitted it was difficult to say where amateur sport ended and professionalism began.

Suggests Barter Deals With Non-Dollar Lands To Solve Trade Problems

Mayhew Sees Solution In Exchange of Goods Rather Than In Currency; Outlines Special Corporation To Make Plans

OTTAWA, March 14—(CP)—Fisheries Minister Mayhew indicated in the Commons Monday he believes at least a partial solution to Canada's trade problems may be found through barter deals with non-dollar countries. Stressing that he was speaking as a private member and not as a Cabinet minister, Mr. Mayhew suggested that a national export-import corporation be established to barter mixed Canadian merchandise for mixed imports from non-dollar countries.

It was clear, he said during continued debate on the Speech from the Throne, that a solution to Canada's trading problems could not be found "either by attaching ourselves to the dollar or the sterling-currency areas." The problem was one of an exchange of commodities rather than a financial one.

Canada's export position was unique. Generally, she had developed sufficient balances with overseas countries to pay for her dollar deficit with the United States. The problem was the same but it had changed in character in recent years.

Have Overseas Markets

Overseas markets still continued for certain raw materials, such as wheat, flour, tobacco, fish, cheese, eggs and bacon, and for manufactured goods, such as automotive, textiles, rubber, machinery and chemicals.

In primary commodities, overseas restrictions would produce export surpluses for this country while in the manufacturing field the market restrictions would show themselves in unemployment. The need was to find ways of disposing export surpluses to non-dollar areas and finding acceptable imports for them.

This job might be done by a national export-import corporation. It could be made up of a large group of manufacturers and wholesalers and the government to provide both the management and the finance to operate bilateral deals and to overcome the lack of facilities racing any single corporation.

First operations should be with countries that now take few Canadian goods. The Canadian merchandise bartered could include capital equipment as well as foodstuffs or raw materials.

Mr. Mayhew said that the na-

Purge Hinted As Czech Official Resigns

PRAGUE, March 14 (CP) — Foreign Minister Vlado Clementis of Czechoslovakia has resigned. Deputy Minister Viliam Siroky has been named as his successor.

The official announcement today gave no reason for the resignation of Clementis, a Communist journalist and lawyer who succeeded the late Jan Masaryk as Foreign Minister in March, 1948.

(The resignation came on the heels of reports that a wholesale purge is imminent in the ranks of the Czech Communist party on charges of Titoism. It gave rise to speculation that Clementis would be brought to trial on charges that he had not been faithful to the brand of Communism demanded by Russia as opposed to the "independent" Communism of Premier Tito of Yugoslavia.)

The official Czech news agency said that Clementis' resignation had been accepted by President Klement Gottwald on the recommendation of Premier Antonin Zapotocky. Gottwald was premier two years ago when he appointed Clementis.

An official communique said that Clementis had personally handed Zapotocky his resignation and Zapotocky had recommended that President Klement Gottwald accept it.

The communique said that the premier at the same time recommended to the president that Siroky be put in charge of the foreign ministry and that the president had accepted this recommendation.

Rumors that Clementis had fallen into disfavor with the Com-

tions Assembly meeting in Lake Success as leader of the Czech delegation.

Loot Strong Box

HAMILTON, March 14 — (CP)—Using heavy sledge hammers and an iron bar, safe crackers banged open a strong box Monday night in the yard office of the Gillies-Guy Coal Company, and escaped with a sum of money that may amount to $2,000. After forcing the front door leading to the office they turned the safe over on its side and used a crowbar to open it.

Mayor Charges Funds Misused

WHITBY, March 14 (CP) — Mayor Henry Jermyn Monday night accused the 1949 Public Utilities Commission of "incompetent" management of $92,000 in debenture funds.

He spoke at a special meeting of council and commission which heard Robert Langford, the commission's 1950 chairman, assert that of the $92,000 raised for construction of a filtration plant, intake pipe and waterworks extension only $49,000 was used on the jobs. Mr. Langford said part of the remainder was used for operating expenses, including salaries, and part to retire a $6,500 bank deficit.

Odds Against Texas Killer

Gun-toting Posse Hunts Hand-cuffed Fugitive

MARFA, Tex., March 14. (AP). —The hunt for the killer of a Texas sheriff today had all the elements of a wild west thriller —a hand-cuffed fugitive afoot in a rugged mountain chain, pursued by an armed posse on horseback.

The shooting early Sunday of Sheriff O. W. (Blackie) Morrow, 43, on a lonely mountain road flipped back the pages of time to the days of the old west.

Texas Ranger Gully Cowsert rode into Marfa Monday night and said a mounted posse had tracked the unidentified killer of Morrow 15 miles through rugged mountains, but lost his trail near the Mexican border.

Riders patrolled the Rio Grande through the night to prevent the killer from slipping into Mexico —if he hasn't done so.

Morrow was shot and left dying early Sunday on a lonely road The sheriff managed to get into his car and drive a mile before he died.

The husky, six-foot sheriff apparently had stopped to make an arrest. His pistol and handcuffs were missing, so he might have been shot with his own gun.

The trackers could tell the hunted was handcuffed from the way his hands dug into the ground when he fell among rocks and cactus.

Canada Facing Greater Responsibilites

Pearson Sees Second Half of Century Sacrificing Some Sovereignty, But Not Dangerous

OTTAWA, March 14 — (CP) — External Affairs Minister Pearson foresees greater international responsibilities for Canada in the second half of the century.

This, he told The Canadian Press, will involve some sacrifice of sovereignty to help achieve world security and harmony.

But if such acceptances of responsibilities and surrenders of sovereignty contribute to real interational unity, "they will increase the measure of our freedom rather than limit it."

Mr. Pearson dictated guarded replies to a number of questions seeking his views on Canada's international role in the second half of the 20th century.

The questions and his replies:

Where can Canada reasonably hope to find herself as an international entity at the end of the century?

More Responsibilities

Canada's position as a free, united and independent state amongst the community of nations has been firmly established and is everywhere recognized.

In the process of reaching maturity as a nation and as its strength and stature increased, Canada has been obliged to accept increasing responsibilities in international affairs.

It is possible that during the second half of the century these responsibilities will increase.

The North American continent has assumed a position of leadership in the world, and whether we like it or not, Canadians must share the burden of this leadership; always, of course, within the measure of our capacities.

If international security is to be achieved through universal cooperative action, Canada, with other countries, will be called upon to participate in the operations of the machinery of international government as it is gradually developed.

Drawn Together

Conversely, and pending such universal co-operation, we may expect to find ourselves drawn into closer but more limited association with friendly and like-minded states for the purposes of mutual protection.

In either event, the independence and unity which Canada has won for itself will, if these qualities are to be maintained, carry with them growing responsibilities.

What sacrifice of sovereignty seems most likely to become essential in the next 50 years?

The liberty of the individual in his own community depends upon the willingness of every citizen to accept limitations upon his freedom of action in the common interest and for his own protection.

In a well-ordered state like our own, this sacrifice of freedom is made according to rules that are drawn up and put into effect by democratic means.

Use Same Plan

Our freedom as a nation would be strengthened and fulfilled by a similar development.

We are therefore fully prepared to enter into agreements with other states to strengthen security and peace by the establishment of international procedures of government.

Any international agreement which increases the ability of our people, in company with the people of other nations, to live in peace and freedom will be welcome.

In this way we may expect to build up an international community in which the nations voluntarily accept limitations on their sovereignty. We need not expect, however, that this process will be sudden or dramatic.

In a sense, every international agreement into which we enter, even though it does do more than prescribe rules for the conduct of international trade or the distribution of broadcasting channels, is a limitation upon our sovereignty.

In a peaceful world we may expect an increasing number of these limitations, each within some particular area of international administration.

Cover Wide Field

These agreements may refer to matters as routine as the way in which ship channels should be marked, or they may affect as large a matter as our right to manufacture atomic energy.

If, however, they contribute to the development of national security and a real international unity, they will increase the measure of our freedom, ratther than limit it.

Is it possible for a country so large and sparsely settled to grow into an independent, self-sufficient power alongside and so closely allied with the United States?

Canada's growing self-reliance and self-sufficiency have not been hindered by the fact that she has as neighbor the world's strongest power.

MPP's Have Chance To Use Fire Training

TORONTO, March 14 (CP) — Shortly after Ontario government employees and members of the legislature took part in the first fire drill of the current session, a small fire broke out today in the room where Private Bills Committee was in session.

Members noticed smoke rising from behind a radiator and threw pitchers of drinking water on it. Within a few minutes a gold-braided fire warden armed with an extinguisher, arrived and finished the job.

It was believed a member lit some paper behind the radiator with a carelessly tossed cigaret butt

Starved To Further Career

Child Actress Says Parents Withheld Food

HOLLYWOOD, March 14 (AP) —Lora Lee Michel, nine-year-old child movie actress, ran away from her foster parents' home Monday night and authorities said she reiterated a complaint that she was being starved so that she could play little girl roles.

The sheriff's office reported that the girl, fled in her pyjamas shortly after Mrs. Lorraine Michel, 55, her foster mother, had left her saying her bedtime prayers.

She was found by the Rev. Elford Sundstrum, pastor of United Brethren Church, in nearby Burbank The minister told police that Lora Lee arrived at his house in a taxicab. He quoted her as saying:

"I had to get away. I couldn't stand it any longer."

The minister then told police the child said she was hungry and had lost 10 pounds in the last month.

At a custody hearing Feb. 8, a judge had advised the Michels to take the girl out of the movies so that she might enjoy a normal childhood.

A custody fight started last Jan. 12 when Lora Lee was removed from the Michel home by authorities. The child had complained that her foster parents made her diet so that she could play $100-a-day movie roles. An officer said then that the child weighed only 45 pounds and complained she was hungry all the time

Nixon Opposes Legalizing Civil Marriages

TORONTO, March 14 (CP). — Harry Nixon of Brant, former Liberal Premier of Ontario, still remembers his church wedding of 37 years ago as "pretty impressive." In the Legislature on Monday he described the proposal to allow civil marriages in Ontario as "a radical suggestion."

Mr. Nixon and W. J. Grummett (CCF-Cochrane South) were the only members to oppose the new Marriage Act which would permit judges and magistrates to perform marriages. E. B. Jolliffe, the Provincial CCF Opposition Leader, was in favor of the measure.

W. H. Temple (CCF-Toronto High Park) suggested the Bill should include provisions for compulsory pre-marriage blood tests.

Following adjournment of the Marriage Act debate H. L. Waters (CCF-Toronto Bracondale) resumed Throne-Speech debate, calling on the government to give municipalities a lead in slum clearance. The Throne-Speech debate will be continued today by M. Phillips (PC-Grey North).

Moves Ambendment

Mr. Nixon moved an amendment to express disapproval of civil marriage, and Speaker M C. Davies withheld decision on validity of the amendment.

Clergy apparently are in favor of civil marriages, said Mr. Nixon. "However, I have never seen an individual who objected to having a prayer said and a bless-

Have 36 Youngsters Under Quarantine

LONDON, Ont., March 14 (CP) —It's tough to have chickenpox in a family of 36.

Since three weeks before Christmas, a quarantine order has been in effect for one of the biggest families in the city — the Toronto Alway Hall Home for Children.

Matron Edith Henery agreed with sympathizers it is hard to get rid of chickenpox in a family the size of the one in her care. Before one child recovers, another gets the disease.

Right now there are only three cases of chickenpox at the home, which is operated by the Children's Aid Society. There never have been more than five or six cases at once.

However, one case is enough for health officials to hang the quarantine sign.

Charges Salaries Paid To Specialists Scandal

TORONTO, March 14—(CP)—George Hodgson, a labor representative on the Community Chest Welfare Council's survey committee, charged Monday night that salaries paid to United States survey specialists "were scandalous."

Mr. Hodgson, who represented the Toronto and Lake Shore Labor Council (CCL-CIO) on the committee, told the Labor Council that the United States experts were paid as high as $350 a week plus $70 in living expenses, for an eight-week council survey.

"It is high time we knew what was being done with the money workers are contributing to welfare work when these people are getting such high salaries," he said.

Mr. Hodgson listed the names of 10 United States personnel and said their combined salaries totalled $8,277, including 10 per cent for American exchange.

Unions Seeking To Enlist All Unorganized

Efforts to organize the non-trade union workers of Peterborough are forging ahead. And both the left and right wing elements in the city are involved.

A. E. Johnston, CCL organizer, announced that two small groups —Dominion Store employees and Brewers' Warehouse employees— have been certified by the OLRB as bona fide CCL unions. About 30 employees with Dominion Stores are members of the Wholesale, Retail and Department Store Workers (CIO-CCL), and the brewery unionists are affiliated to the Soft Drink and Distillery Workers (CIO-CCL).

The latter are having a meeting this week to elect their officers. Neither of the bargaining agents has yet received its local number from the parent organization, but this is a formality.

Renews Attempts

John Rowley, UE organizer, said today that Local 527 UE is renewing its attempts to bring the production workers of the Western Clock Co. and those of De Laval into the UE orbit. Leaflets have been handed out to the employees but as yet there have been no membership meetings.

Union efforts to crack these two plants have previously failed. There are some 350 production workers at De Laval, Mr. Rowley estimates, and 700 at Westclox.

A third large plant, Outboard Marine Co., has an independent union. Previously both the left-wing UE and the right-wing Steelworkers tried to become the bargaining agent, but failed. Recently, however, there have been indications that some right-wing elements in the plant would like to affiliate with the CCL.

The IUE has been mentioned in this connection. And recently the Outboard workers were addressed by three top CCL and IUE officials.

Beverage Room Workers

Mr. Johnston told the Examiner today that the latest group to want organization are the 80-100 beverage room employees in the eight city hotels. These include waiters, tapmen and part-time workers.

"Some of these men get a very small wage," Mr. Johnston stated. "The scale ranges from $25-$35 a week. "In some cases the weekly wage includes an allowance for two meals a day; if the man is absent from work he is still charged for the meals. And the stipulated amount for meals is included on his income tax."

The waiters would be members of the composite Wholesale, Retail and Department Store Workers Union. They are understood to have drawn up an organizational committee after a meeting with Mr. Johnston Sunday night. The CCL official also hopes to bring some 135 truck drivers in town into the appropriate CCL union sometime in the near future.

The performance was under the direction of W. Platt, with Mrs. Platt at the piano, Mrs. R. Campney at the organ, and Harry Anderson violin.

The Rev. F. R. Vanderburgh told a short version of the story intermittently with the music of the choir. The choir entered the church, processional singing "All Hail the power of Jesus' Name," and at the end of the service left in recessional singing ""Now the Day is Over."

The choral part of the service comprised five anthems, solos by Joan Dooley and Lorraine Thompson, a duet in the anthem "The Fair Far Fields of Eden" by Marie Vanderburgh and Elaine Graham. Joan and Elaine Graham, Beverley and Shirley Bennett sang "The Guiding Light" and with Edith Thompson, Earl Agnew, Bruce Melville, and Philip Chevalier, the four formed an octette for "The Torch of Brotherhood." A quintette composed of Joan, Lorraine and Edith Thompson, Betty Post, and Eleanor Scott sang "In the Shadow of the Cross."

New velvet drapes had been placed on the railing in front of the choir loft and on the new extension on either side for the service. They were a gift from the Women's Association.

Chemist Testifies MacKinnon Drunk

SYDNEY, N.S., March 14 (CP) —A chemist's report said today the alcoholic content of Joseph MacKinnon's stomach indicated an "advanced state of intoxication" the day the 63-year-old registrar of voters was run down by a car in a dark alley. Dan Jack MacLean, former mayor of Sydney, is on trial for his murder.

The report, prepared by Dr. E G. Young, Dalhousie Univesity biochemist, was introduced at the trial of the 58-year-old former mayor. Dr. Young was not present at the trial.

The report was introduced at the second day of MacLean's trial in a packed court room before Chief Justice J. L. Ilsley and a Nova Scotia Supreme Court jury.

MacLean was re-elected for his fourth term as mayor of this Cape Breton Island industrial city just 1 2days before MacKinnon's body was found lying in an alley in the south-end of the city.

Give Public Chance Talk At Inquiry

WINDSOR, Ont., March 14 (CP) —Magistrate Angus W. MacMillan chairman of the Windsor Police Commission, told reporters today that the commission is going "to invite anyone who has knowledge of acts of (police) laxity to come forward" to the public inquiry beginning Thursday.

The inquiry was ordered Monday by the three-man commission to investigate "allegations of corruption recently made against our police officers."

The inquiry will be held in the county court house at 2 p.m. EST. The three commission members are Magistrate MacMillan, Mayor Arthur J. Reaume and County Judge Albert J. Gordon.

Special outside attorney for the hearing is A. Douglass Bell, crown attorney of Chatham.

The "allegations of corruption" as contained in the commission statement spring from a written judgment of County Magistrate J. A. Hanrahan which hinted at police laxity in cleaning up the city's illegal liquor venders.

The magistrate rendered judgment last week in sentencing Josep Assef to the maximum of six months in jail on conviction of keeping liquor for sale.

Police testimony was that Assef's illegal liquor businesses covered 5,400 individual sales in the 90-day period prior to Dec. 31, 1949, and that each sale profited him $1.

Have New Cold Culprit Find Books Carriers

LONDON, March 14 (AP) — The magazine Medical Press today whipped out a new culprit as a carrier of the common cold—books.

"Next to the pocket handkerchief," it said, "the book which we happen to be reading during the early stages of a cold is probably the most heavily-infected object in our environment.

"The book, in fact, deserves to be regarded as much more of a menace, for whereas our handkerchiefs in the course of laundering are usually boiled, any process of disinfection applied to a book will usually end in its destruction."

Calls Doukhobor Lawlessness "Insurrection"

By The Canadian Press

The British Columbia Legislature was told by Attorney-General Gordon B. Wismer Monday that Doukhobor lawlessness in the Kootenays is a form of civil insurrection.

He said the Federal government was responsible for bringing the sect to Canada and should help in solution of the problem. After several visits to Ottawa the Federal authorities had appointed Col. F. J. Meade, retired assistant commissioner of the RCMP to confer with John Shiras, then commissioner of provincial police and they had drawn up a plan which must be submitted to Ottawa first.

The Alberta Legislature head Premier Manning declared that when the Dominion-Provincial tax agreement expires Alberta may ask the Federal government to return the tax fields unless the province "gets considerably more in return."

Mr. Manning said that Alberta expects to get $16,087,000 during 1950-51 from rental of the income tax, corporation tax and succession duties fields to the federal government.

Gets Second Reading

The Saskatchewan Legislature gave second reading to a bill amending the Jury Act, permitting women to serve on juries on a voluntary basis.

The Ontario Legislature debated second reading of the bill amending the Marriage Act to give judges and magistrates the power to perform civil marriages.

The Quebec Legislature today opens a heavy week, with departmental estimates due today and the budget to be brought down on Thursday by Treasurer Gagnon. About half of the legislative program for the year has already been adopted.

The Prince Edward Island Legislature saw tabling of a report showing operation by a Crown company of a vessel to promote trade with Newfoundland last year brought $500,000 worth of new business to merchants in Charlottetown.

The PEI budget will be introduced at a night sitting in Charlottetown tonight.

Premier Smallwood told the Newfoundland Legislature that the government will ask the Federal Board of Transport Commissioners for "a more comprehensive and conclusive" judgment regarding freight rates. This method replaces a proposed appeal to the Federal government.

Husband Beats Up Wife In Front of Police Station

OSHAWA, March 14 (CP) — Arrested while beating his wife within sight of the police station here, Earl Churchill, 29, of Fairleigh Ave., was fined $25 and costs or one month and was placed on recognizance for one year with $100 bond. He pleaded guilty to assault.

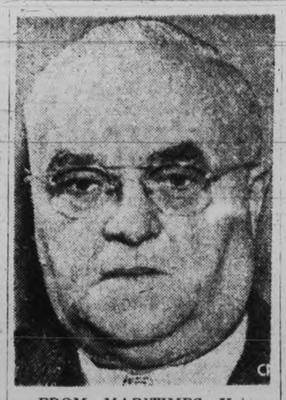
Mrs. Churchill told court her husband was trying to get his pay from her purse. "He tore my fur coat, loosened two teeth, scratched my leg and blinded one of my eyes temporarily," she testified.

The woman said they had a few beers together in a hotel and some liquor at a friend's home.

"I figure I can handle the money better," Mrs. Churchill explained, "because when he has it he goes to a bootlegger." She said there were marks on her fingers where he "bit them to the bone on a previous occasion."

Sgt. Frank Fawbert said he watched the couple from the door of the police station before making the arrest.

"He slapped her to the sidewalk then picked her up and slapped her down again," he said. "They were far from drunk, but the woman was dazed and bleeding at the nose."



"Payday is no cause for a celebration like that," Magistrate Frank Ebbs told accused.

"Sometimes he's crazy with drink," Mrs. Churchill said "and then he goes so religious it's silly."

The bench suggested it would be a good idea if they both went religious.

Steals 3 Coats Hanging In Hotel

COBOURG, March 14.—(ENS)—Pleading guilty to theft of three overcoats from a local hotel on Saturday night, Ronald Smith of Port Hope, was placed on suspended sentence when he appeared before Magistrate R. B. Baxter Monday. The magistrate stipulated that the terms of the bond for good beaviour included an order that Smith abstain from liquor for the period of one year.

Constable E. Butler testified he received a call to a hotel at 11.30 p.m. Saturday because an overcoat had been stolen. During the ensuing investigation it was learned that three coats had been taken, the owners being S. Merrell, L. Coughlin and J. Coldwell.

Smith was arrested and one of the overcoats was found hidden in the hotel and the other two were in the back of a truck.

Smith told the court he had been drinking all day and didn't know why he took the overcoats.

"After this, stay away from liquor," said the magistrate.

Harold Strong of Port Hope, was charged with being drunk, constables E. Butler and H. Pearse saying that they interviewed him during the overcoat investigation and found him under the influence of liquor. The magistrate imposed a fine of $10 and costs.

Two Months For Drunk

Ralph Lees, second offender, was fined $50 and costs or two months on a charge of being drunk on Saturday night. Chief W. J. Carey said the situation had been going on and on and the police were sick and tired of seeing him hanging around the street corners. Lees took the two months.

Roy Lane, charged with illegal possession, was fined $100 and costs or three months. He took the jail term. When police arrested him on Saturday night he had a mickey of rye in his possession which had not been obtained on his permit.

A charge of theft against Harold Sherwin of Peterborough, was adjourned until Friday and bail was set at $1,500. He is alleged to have stolen a two-man power saw from H. Oliver of Percy township.

Mother And Son HeldResponsible

ST. CHRYSOSTOME, Que., March 14 — (CP). — A six-man coroner's jury Monday night took only five minutes to find the wife and teen-aged son of Arthur Sutton criminally responsible for the 48-year-old farmer's death on Saturday night.

The stocky Covey Hill, Que., resident died at his home less than an hour after the eldest of his three children allegedly shot him in the thigh with a 30-30-calibre rifle following a family quarrel. Covey Hill is about 40 miles south of Montreal.

Fourteen-year-old Gordon Sutton testified at the inquest that his father came home from a trip to a neighboring village and started an argument with his mother.

The youth then related how Earl went to his parent's room armed with a rifle and told his father he "would shoot him in the legs" if he did not leave his mother alone.

Mrs. Sutton told the packed courtroom that she had "nothing but trouble" with her husband for the last 15 years.

Liquor And The Jury System

On March 3 a Peterborough jury brought in a decision of Not Guilty in the case of a man who was on trial for manslaughter. In his remarks to the jury on their verdict the judge made it clear that he was surprised and by no means pleased by their decision. On March 1 another Peterborough jury found guilty a man who was charged with attempted rape, and he received a sentence of six years, in addition to the eleven months which he has already spent in prison. At first sight it may not appear that there is any connection between these two cases, but we think that when they are considered together they throw some light on the operation of our jury system, and suggest that it is in need of reform.

• • •

In the manslaughter case it appeared in evidence that the accused man had been drinking before he fired the shot which killed a woman in the next room. It appears that in a number of recent cases of manslaughter the fact that the accused person has been drinking has been accepted as extenuating evidence; indeed, the idea is gaining widespread acceptance that if a man kills while he is drunk his guilt is markedly less than if he killed through negligence when sober. Many people, we feel, will agree with us that no such belief is justified, and it will be a bad thing for this country if it should gain the acceptance of an unwritten law.

• • •

In support of our statement that this belief is gaining a hold in the courts we draw attention to the judgement given in Port Arthur, on March 7, in the case of a bushworker who beat an old man to death. The judge (Mr. Justice Smily) before passing sentence of three years in the penitentiary, told the accused that consideration had to be given to the fact that he was apparently too drunk to know what he was doing when he committed his crime. Canadian Press quotes the judge as saying: "Possibly your chief offence is in allowing yourself to get into that condition; it is a serious matter to drink to the extent of becoming intoxicated, since one's acts in that condition frequently have serious consequences". Later the judge said: "It could well have been that if LaFlamme had drunk less liquor and ... country where liquor is permitted to all citizens under circumstances of considerable freedom, there is an obligation on the part of all citizens to use it discreetly. It may not be in a man's power to refrain from dangerous acts when he is drunk, but no one obliges him to get drunk and he does so from his own choice.

• • •

A jury cannot, however, be considered irresponsible when it makes decisions on a principle which has also been given considerable weight by a judge. A jury, in a manslaughter trial, is in a difficult position and is moved by a humane desire to give the accused man the benefit of the doubt if that is possible. And there may also lurk in the minds of many jurymen a feeling that they might, at some time, misconduct themselves when under the influence of liquor, and they would wish to be treated as considerately as possible. But very few jurymen ever think that they might stand in the court accused of attempted rape, and their mercy in such cases is not called upon so clearly.

• • •

It is a strange state of justice, however, if a man who is accused of attempted rape, and who may be of unsound mind, receives less generous treatment than a man of sound mind who is accused of manslaughter after drinking.

• • •

Is there a solution to this problem? We think that there are two possible solutions. One is to amend the law so that all cases of manslaughter are tried before a judge alone, reserving jury trials for murder. Another is to kill, absolutely and forever, the notion which has grown up that drunkenness constitutes a particularly effective extentuating circumstance in such cases. Perhaps a combination of the two remedies would be more effective than either employed by itself.

• • •

This newspaper has for many years strongly defended the liquor system in force in Ontario. If anything would induce us to change that policy it would be a widespread acceptance in the courts of the belief that a drunken man is granted a degree of irresponsibility which is not given to the insane.

Kashmir Tinder-Box

Although Kashmir appears on the surface to be peaceful—a good harvest, no fighting for several months, the ordinary Kashmiris tranquilly going about daily tasks—underneath that surface is an imbroglio of racial and religious passion, national hatreds and economic stress which could cause a violent outbreak of war between India and Pakistan, and involve the world.

The conflict began with the partition of the Indian sub-continent in August, 1947. The Indian princes were theoretically free to accede to whichever Dominion they wished. It was assumed that Kashmir would join Pakistan since four-fifths of the population are Moslems, and the state is geographically and economically connected with Pakistan. However, the Maharajah, Sir Hari Singh, is a Hindu. He decided in the autumn of 1947 to accede to India. This led to revolt. Sir Hari Singh appealed for help to India, which sent in troops. So the war began.

At the request of India, the United Nations established a Commission to investigate the dispute on the spot. After a year of destruction and slaughter and the flight of half a million Moslems from India-occupied territory to Pakistan, the Commission persuaded both sides to accept a cease-fire in January, 1949. The cease-fire line then marked out (shown in our Bip Pares map on this page) put the southern part of Kashmir nominally in the hands of Sheik Abdullah, a Moslem who favours the Indian National Congress. This section includes more than half of Kashmir, all its most fertile lands (including the lovely vale of Kashmir) and two-thirds of the whole population. The area north of the cease-fire line is held by the Azad Free Government, which is pro-Pakistan. This Government is now the focal point of the entire dispute.

India insists that before she recalls any of her troops and before a plebiscite, that all the Azad Free Government forces must be disbanded, and the administrative and military control of the north be given to India. Pakistan and the Azad Government reject these demands.

The Security Council of U.N. has so far evaded any expression of opinion on the rights and wrongs of the whole dispute and it is now impossible for it to make any decision which will not be considered a judgement for one side and against the other. The cease fire is themselves on military expenditures (more than half the national budgets). If a shooting war starts again, Pakistan might be lead to seek help from Russia, and the U.S.S.R. is strategically placed to give it, in dangerous measure. It is to the western world's interest as well as Asia's that the Kashmir dispute be settled. Earlier attempts at mediating an agreement, such as General McNaughton's in behalf of the Security Council, have failed. This year's hearings of the Council, begun at the end of February, give no promise of better success.

NOTE AND COMMENT

We have always believed that the pen was mightier than the sword but we confess to some slight worry about its power over the hydrogen bomb.

In Wyoming the mummified remains of a man 14 inches tall have been found. A pity this race died out, for they would have provided ideal passengers for the back seats of modern cars.

Canada, we learn, has coal enough to last for 3,000 years. And the longer we depend on American coal, and put up with the nuisance of American mine strikes, the longer our own supply will last.

Mrs. Dorothy Pamela O'Grady, recently released from a British jail after serving a nine year sentence for espionage, says that her original confession was a hoax—"a huge joke". Quite a joke, if she still thinks it funny after nine years of uninterrupted enjoyment.

Paris Spring—1950

By JEAN BOTROT

MOTOR coaches reappear in Paris with the swallows in the first fine days of spring. We hardly ever see the swallows—but the buses—we see nothing else!

With some crossroads in the boulevards as their starting-point, moving singly or sometimes in closely-packed lines like Hannibal's elephants, they may be divided into two categories: the long-distance coaches which travel hundreds of miles to tackle the Alps, the Pyrenees or to follow the broad highways that skirt the sea; or the "merry-go-round" coaches which turn in Paris like animals in a vast cage.

Theirs is a first-class program. The engines are in perfect running order. The vehicles are flawless, Pullman car style within and painted with a high class gloss in cream or blue without. The guides have passed difficult examinations in languages and archaeology. The tourists are amazed at their stores of information and the great vistas they offer from the Arch of Triumph to the terrace of Montmartre.

But will they know Paris?

KNOWING Paris is not a question of pocket-book but of time, of forethought and of method.

Lenotre, who was a great specialist in the art of historical anecdote, took delight in telling the story of a discerning Pope who never failed to ask visitors who came to take leave of him, how long they had remained in Rome. If they replied a few days, the Pope would say "Adieu". If they replied several months, the Pope would say "Au revoir". The sovereign pontiff considered that the former had not stayed long enough in the Eternal City to fall under its spell.

One might reason in the same way about Paris. But how many tourists realize that they can learn some of the secrets that have made the eternal charm of Paris—even in a few days? Indeed, how many Parisians have sufficient leisure—or initiative to get acquainted with their town? A few painters, writers whose profession calls them to contemplate — and the occasional stranger with imagination and enterprise—these are the true lovers of Paris!

Whoever tries ambitiously to impress the picture of all the beautiful things in Paris on his mind, runs the risk of retaining only a series of superficial images, comparable to a series of poor picture post-cards. This is not the way to do it.

DEPENDING upon the time at one's disposal, it is possible to select some unforgetable pictures.

For instance, the finest memory one can keep of Notre Dame cathedral is that of a quarter of an hour spent alone, contemplating its marvellous 13th century rose windows or gazing up from one of the quays of the Seine at the apse which stands out as one of the most magnificent creations in stone that the mind of man has ever conceived.

Or stop in front of the Opera. What do you look for? There is to be seen there Carpeaux's admirable group "dance" which is one of the loveliest memories one can carry away. A good book of reproductions will serve to familiarize you with the rest.

Or visit the Place de la Concorde just at sunset and see the last rays blazing down the full-length of the Champs-Elysees through the Arc-de-Triomphe! Return at night when the fountains are playing and take another look up the avenue acknowledged as the most beautiful in the world.

THUS each individual can introduce the essential active element into the enforced passivity of conducted tours. It is all very well to follow the guide. But his explanations need not be retained word for word. I once saw a group of people following a guide through the Louvre. The guide spoke rapidly, pausing before one picture and then another ... in the group ... does one's shopping in the middle of the city along the beautiful "Boulevard of Nasturtiums", ... tour is to ... one wants to see particularly—and then return alone later with time to contemplate and enjoy. These personal experiences are the ones that go home with you — and remain warm and bright in your memory.

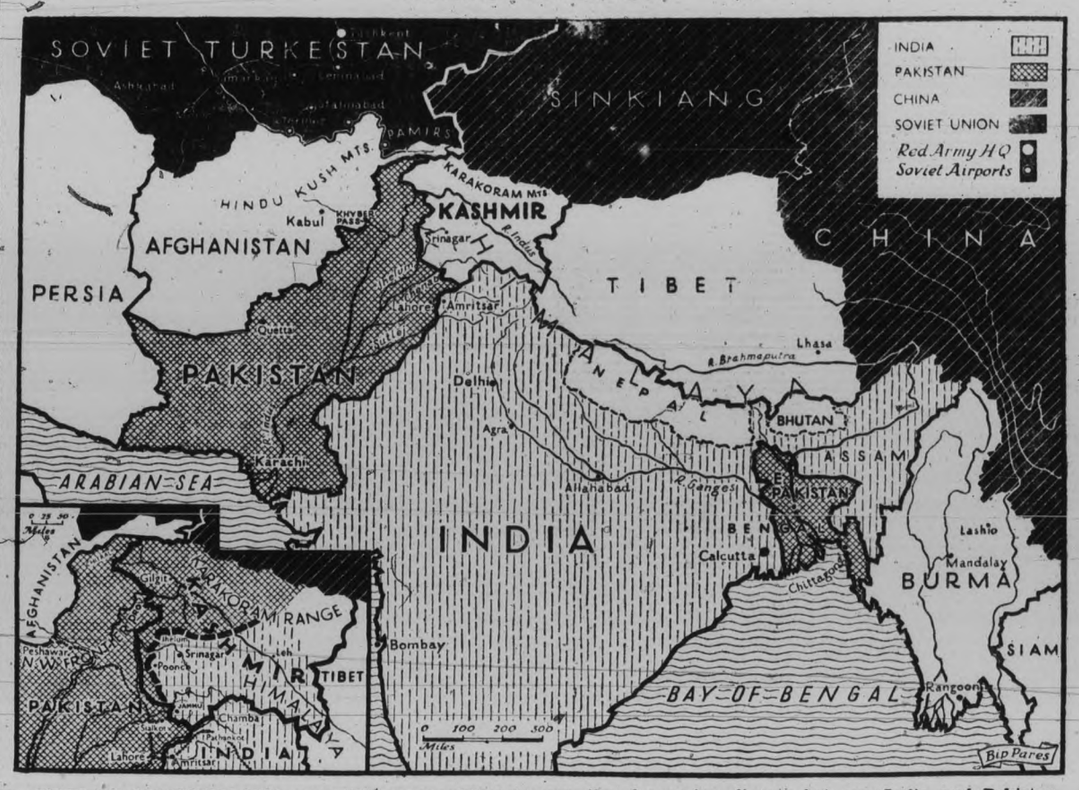
PARIS is not only famous monuments — Paris is also a series of villages with various customs and occupations whose inhabitants are no less interesting to look at than the Madeleine or Sacre-Coeur. Secondly, because villages have riches to offer "the little-known treasures of Paris" these old houses, castles, cloisters, towers, gates, windmills, fountains and statues, have been described in a splendid volume by Rene Heron de Villefosse.

The other day I saw the album of a visitor from across the Atlantic. In two weeks, the previous year, he had collected a series of interesting pictures in little known corners of Paris—a collection unique in charm and oddity.



Just to take a few examples of some of the "different" things one can do: what about a visit to the cemetery Pere La Chaise? There, in the early morning one may enjoy a walk—and incidentally visit the tombs of Saira Bernhardt, of Chopin, of Oscar Wilde or even the celebrated tomb of Abelard and Heloise, famed for the most beautiful love story in history. Indeed, nearby may be seen loitering a romantic young couple or a disconsolate girl who has placed a tiny bouquet of fresh violets on the tomb as a tribute to an imperishable love.

And across the street are two restaurants famous for their sardonic names: "La Famille" and "On est mieux ici qu'en face" (One is better here than across the street).

IN the Latin quarter may be found many narrow twisted streets that recall the student days of six hundred years of students. In the Little "Rue des Anglais" a colony of English students were established in the 13th century. Around the corner is the "Chat-qui-peche" (Street of the Fishing Cat). Across the Seine near the Palais Royale is to be found the street of "Good Children" and one ... it is just a hint to keep his eyes open even h... the most casual walk through Paris. The observation of plaques at street corners and on buildings; the sign above a door or the name of a street may be very rewarding. For every step taken in our city cuts across the footsteps of poets and artists, revolutionists and kings. These things can't be seen from the bus. That is why I recommend that you walk, if you really want to see Paris.

THE KASHMIR DISPUTE

WITH ALL SOUTHERN ASIA now within range of Soviet bases, the sharpening dispute between India and Pakistan over the possession of Kashmir has acquired worldwide importance. A reopening of hostilities would invite Russian intervention on the side of Pakistan and would endanger world peace. Positions taken up by each side since the January 1949 cease-fire effected by the U.N. Commission are shown by a broken line in the inset map above.

Letters To The Editor

CALLS MACDUFF'S LETTER PIFFLE

Sir: In reply to "MacDuff", may I say that I am very glad my recent letter afforded him "no little amusement"! After all since the Scots are a thrifty race, where could he get cheaper "amusement" for the price of that particular copy of your esteemed paper?

However, to get down to cases. Being a native of Scotland, one can hardly blame him for sticking up for his own country. Incidentally, I might add for his own information that I am a native of England and have not as yet had the pleasure of residing in the other.

Of course, I presume one should never judge a country by an isolated incident, but when I landed in Scotland at 4.30 a.m. GMT, I was ushered into a restaurant to partake of cold tea and cold toast. Perish the thought! Perhaps I am biased, as I like my tea and toast—HOT.

I am very much afraid that MacDuff has missed the boat, in his comments re the English queuing up for thirty minutes at a time for bacon, etc.

May I repeat a portion from my previous letter, "To the English patience is a virtue, etc." If he had read the comment on page 9, col. 6 in Monday evening's edition of the Examiner, he would have read the following: "One of the crew came in and told us to break up the game and go to the diner. We did and we sat there for thirty-five minutes before anybody came near us to get our order". Enough said!

On the other hand I am not quite so sure that the same 'meat, bread and other staples' all come from Scotland.

My mother is registered for rationing purposes at 'Sainsbury's' and I took the opportunity of looking over the produce for sale. There was bacon and eggs from Canada and Denmark, butter from Australia and New Zealand.

The only thing Scotch that I saw in the shops was in bottles of 33/4 per bottle and 17/5 per half bottle, unless you can count the herrings which originate in the North Sea.

The main reason the Scots queue up for foodstuffs, is the same as the English; because they too are at present under the same Labour Government and subject to rationing regulations which cause queuing up.

Now I should like to take a sharp divergence of opinion with MacDuff's statement, that "he has never heard of any Canadian veteran who would dream of comparing English with Scots' hospitality". This is a lot of piffle! If MacDuff will take the trouble to make a survey of veterans' opinions he may revise his opinions.

Mind you, I will admit, many Canadians enjoyed Scots' hospitality, but just as many if not more enjoyed the English brand.

Finally, I am not stating that English hospitality is superior to the Scots' as MacDuff is doing.

My letter states, "I may say that the English people in general are just as hospitable as the Scots". I trust I make myself clear?

Yours faithfully,
GERALD TULLY.

DEFICIT AND HOSITAL DOLLARS

Sir: Please permit me space to congratulate the author of the Thursday letter in your newspaper, re: Heavy Hospital Deficit.

That taxpayer said, and I quote:

"Those who know anything at all about running a business, know they would not be in business very long if they had a deficit at the end of each month and year."

Let us take that statement literally.... Suppose we take for instance, a person running a tourist lodge; say in Haliburton or North ... may be a wet ... And that tourist lodge owner isn't feeding his guests on soup, either; no sir, he feeds high. The best cuts of meat; and his guests are not usually invalids; they have healthy appetites. Could that lodge owner operate twelve months out of twelve—why he'd likely become independent and employ a staff to manage the business for him; that is until it went in the red! And it sure as guns would, if it were managed as lax as our Hospital seems to be.

When a patient enters the Nicholls (Civic) Hospital, they pay extra for X-rays; they pay extra for special nurses; they pay extra for the doctor; they also pay extra for certain medicines.... And, if they need a shot of liquor, they pay a bootleg price for it!

A patient don't as a rule eat like a healthy tourist—and when said patient starts in on T-bone steaks they are usually on the way out.

For the sake of argument, let us say a hospital has a hundred beds, at five dollars per day; each bed in demand seven days a week .... One hundred beds at five dollars totals five hundred dollars per day.... Seven days a week ... of three thousand ... hundred.

I am also inclined to think, that one or two women on the committee for purchasing of supplies might help....or a person with hotel experience who would be empowered to check on waste, or shrinkage, and plug the hole in the bag; because there is a hole in the bag somewhere.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor.
ANOTHER TAXPAYER.

A BRITISH OPINION

PIPE THE SKIMMERS! — Here is the latest thing in headgear displayed by the Indians who live in Chibougamau, a gold-and-copper mining area now opening in Quebec. They are said to be patterned after a streetcar conductor's hat brought into the area by an Indian who once drove a tram in Hartford, Conn. The bigger the brim, the better the hat.

Discover 'Chibougamau Hat' Latest Note In Men's Styles

By ALAN RANDAL

CHIBOUGAMAU, Que, March 14 (CP) — This remote spot in north central Quebec is the last place for a new men's style note but it's here—the "Chibougamau hat."

The hope is that the fad doesn't spread and at this writing there seems little chance of that. If all men dolled up in a Chibougamau hat, the girls would die laughing at them.

The hat currently is the [illegible] head-gear of the Tete de Boule and Cree Indians who live near the mining shanties of Chibougamau and is a cross between a street car conductor's headgear and a college mortar-board.

Just how the fashion reached here is hard to say but H. E. (Tiny) Corbett, mining engineer and bush pilot, has a theory. He tells how some years back an Indian from Chibougamau got the itchy foot and went south. He landed in Hartford, Conn., and worked there 15 years as a tram conductor before the feet became itchy again. Then he came back to Chibougamau, lying astride north central Quebec and some 250 miles northeast of Rouyn, Que.

Creates Stir

It is wild country with little trace of civilization and a man who came into this land with a street car conductor's hat on could figure on creating quite a stir. He said.

In any event street car conductors' hats, or their likeness, became quite a thing for the Indians. They had their squaws make them out of blue serge or black felt and eventually competition sprang up among the wearers.

Who has the best hat? Well, it's all in the way you look at things, but the best hat among these primitive people seems to be that with the widest crown. So over the years the general contour of the street car conductor's hat has remained but the top—"landing surface" if you would call it that—has grown to tremendous proportions.

The hats must be practical, of course. [illegible] where winter [illegible]atures reach 50-odd degrees below zero, ear flaps are necessary. So the squaws build these in. Then there is the head band and a peak to shade the eyes. The only limitation on the flat top is the amount of cloth available and how big a circle of willow rod can be found to make it stand out stiff for a wingspread up to 14 inches or so.

Rotary Members Give Talks On Occupations

Classification talks were the feature of the weekly Rotary Club meeting in the Empress Hotel Monday. Six out of nine notified members, Jack Sackville, Thomas Taylor, Robert Allen, Frank Montgomery, Rob Roy and Max Comstock gave five-minute speeches on their chosen professions. All were introduced by Burritt Smitheram and thanked by William Hamilton.

Mr. Sackville traced the history of fine insurance from the Babylonian age to the 17th century in England, to the Continent, and then to the New World. Briefly he told of the problems on its origination.

Explaining that venetian blinds are nothing new, Mr. Taylor said that reeds were first used in Egypt with the idea spreading to Europe and to England. John Webster, an Englishman, brought the principle of venetian blinds to America. In Peterborough the first Canadian venetian blind company was formed by Rotarian charter member Claude Rogers. He said that the blinds are now 90 per cent Canadian manufacture and 10 per cent English.

Mr. Allen chose to speak on a small part of his classification, industrial diamonds. He defined diamonds, explaining the difference between ornamental and industrial, referred to their uses, discovery, mining, and how the industry is controlled. Some interesting facts were: that diamonds are consumed under 5,000 degrees temperature and 90 per cent of them are mined now in South Africa.

Mr. Montgomery explained the first method of cooling products by ice and salt used in Peterborough 45 years ago. He told the members of the importance of storage for food preservation. He dealt briefly with cold storage and frozen foods.

Portrait photography is part of each and every phase of the modern world, said Mr. Roy. He told briefly of the first photo taken in 1840 and defined the qualities a portrait photographer must have. He analyzed portrait photograph into four classifications: children, women, men and group portraits.

The history of the Comstock furniture and undertaking establishment was traced by Mr. Comstock. Col. Thomas Poole started the first store and parlor in the city in 1830. In 1852 the first of the Comstocks joined the business which they bought in 1873. He sketched the events of the store since then.

Nickel Earnings At 32 Million

SUDBURY, March 14 (CP) — International Nickel Company of Canada, Ltd., and subsidiaries had net earnings for the year ended Dec. 31 of $32,252,314, equivalent after preferred dividends, to $2.08 a share on the common stock.

This is after all charges—depreciation, depletion, taxes. It compares with $39,108,404 or $2.55 a common share in 1948 and $33,503,466, or $2.16 a common share, in 1947. All accounts are expressed in United States dollars.

In their statement to shareholders Robert C. Stanley, chairman of the board, and John F. Thompson, president, said that during the year there were unusual fluctuations in demand for nickel products.

"These were caused by inventory adjustments by the consuming industries, work stoppages in the steel mills and uncertainties in the business outlook in the United States.

Costs Still Climbing

"Costs of labor, supplies and services continued to move upward."

The report states that recovery of the latter part of the year has continued into 1950. However:

"Our company's business is so dependent on general industrial activity and political developments in the various countries which we serve that to forecast the company's future for 1950 would imply an attempt to predict the trend of world affairs."

Current assets at year-end were $160,311,913 and current liabilities $22,898,057, indicating working capital at $137,413,856 This is a reduction in working capital of $14,111,828, due to changes following currency devaluation, in the United States dollar value of certain Canadian and British assets and liabilities, and to certain capital expenditure requirements.

Capital expenditures in 1949 were $18,553,851, compared with $14,080,479 in 1948, and are estimated at $22,000,000 for 1950.

Common dividends of $29,156,338 or $2 a share, were paid, the same as in the two preceding years. Preferred dividends were $1,933,899. Provision for taxes based on income was $17,975,014 compared with $20,157,931 in 1948.

Net sales of $182,806,452 compared with $197,021,736. Ore mined was 9,984,891 short tons, compared with 10,866,862. Proven ore reserves at year-end were 251,805,000 short tons, compared with 246,177,000 for 1948 and 221,843,000 for 1947. Nickel-Copper content was 7,630,000 short tons, compared with 1948's 7,503,000 and 1947's 7,171,000.

Legion Rubs Out Kingston To Capture Group Honors

Spotting Kingston Nylons a 2-0 lead here last night, the local Legionnaires showed their old fight to drive back hard and take a 6-2 triumph before about 2,400 fans. It was the fourth win for Legion in the best-of-seven OHA senior "B" group finals, giving them the series in six games and rubbing out the Kingston squad for this season. Legion, 1949 senior "B" provincial champions, will probably meet the Markham-Stouffville winner in the first playdown round.

Bill Crowley and Joe Rochetta paced the Peterborough attack, each being in on three goals in a fine showing, while Bob Parnell, Freddy Mortimer and Toodie Greenlaw were in on a pair apiece, and Ross Nicholls shone in goal. Walt Gerow and Patterson scored the Nylons' only markers, and Udall was brilliant in the Kingston cage.

WINNING COACH—A big grin adorned the pan of Coach Jim Ellis after that 6-2 Legion win over Kingston last night, giving the Legionnaires the senior "B" group title. Former coach of the Petes, it is the first year for Jim at the Legion helm.

A Hot Pace

The large crowd saw another swell playoff scrap, both teams hitting a hot pace throughout, and play being quite even for about half the fray. Legionnaires then began pulling away, though Nylons never quit tryin, till the final gong. The score was 1-0 for Kingston in the first and they had a brief 2-0 lead in the second, but the middle chukker ended with Legion in front by a 4-2 score, and they added a pair in the third Each side drew five penalties in a well-handled game, which was 15 minutes late starting owing to the tardy arrival of the officials

Short a couple of their spare forwards, the Nylons looked good till well out in the game, and they made Nicholls hop in the home goal. He was particularly good when pressed in the first frame His defence stood up stoutly throughout, and the forwards beat back hard to help out, every man working his ad off in the speedy going. Bert Hill looked good going either way, and Godfrey again wa ssolid tn defence The Gerow - Partis - Catlin line worked overtime and proved dangerous every minute, though held to one goal by tenacious checking. Murphy played a lot of defence, too, for the gallant losers who were not disgraced in this game.

Some Penalties

...strong drew an early pen... ...holding and Montgomery went later for high-sticking, followed a bit after by Parnell for hooking and then Burns for interference. Shy two players, Legion fought off the surging Nylons till Plumb went off for holding. Legion were still short a man when Gerow scored in close with Partis and Catlin aiding as they ganged up on Nicholls' doorstep. Play was hot and even at the end of the stanza.

Patterson scored No. 2 for Kingston early in the second on a quick breakaway as Legion were all up the ice, Nicholls coming out a shade too late to block the bootheel. The Ellis outfit got peeved then and started to fly in there. Crowey scoring the first with a slap shot at Rochetta's in-close pass, and Parnell netting another shortly on a passout, with Greenlaw and F. Mortimer aiding. They went in front 3-2 when Rochetta took Crowley's long forward on a partial breakaway and went in close to pick the short side of the cage. Plumb returned from a roughing penalty to see Hill snare another right in there. Coombs and Stewart getting assists as the heat ended 4-2.

Put It On Ice

Hawkins and Montgomery were gated in the third for roughing, and later Patterson got it for interference. followed then by Doug Mortimer for tripping. Catlin was close on a breakaway as Legion kept a little margin on play, Crowley flipping home Rochetta's passout to make it 5-2. It was still hot up and down but Legion kept fighting in close and Greenlaw made it 6-2 from Parnell and F. Mortimer just before the final gong sounded.

Kingston: Goal, Udall; defence, Patterson and Murphy; centre, Partis; wings, Catlin and Gerow; alternates, Graves, Plumb, Armstrong, Joyce, Harrison and Hawkins.

Legion: Goal, Nicholls; defence, Burns and Godfrey; centre, Rochetta; wings, Crowley and Vitarelli; alternates, Parnell, F. Mortimer, Greenlaw, Hill, Stewart, Coombs, D. Mortimer and Montgomery.

Referees: P. Patterson and G. Scott of Toronto.

3 Detroit Men On Top Rungs Scoring Ladder

MONTREAL, March 14 (CP)—Detroit Red Wings seem to be a sure bet to capture the National Hockey League scoring title this season.

Montreal's Bill Durnan continues to lead the netminders in the Vezina Trophy race. Mike Rodden of Kingston writes: "Gordon (Duke) Keats, the best of all stickhandlers, Jerry Coughlin, Bill Tobin, Archie Briden, Monty Montgomery and Tommy Thompson were slated to play for Peterborough in 1916 before the OHA executive intervened. Keats and Briden were then claimed by the Toronto pros, though they were members of the 228th Battalion which was represented in the major pro league. In 1915, Keats, Tobin, Briden and Coughlin played for Haileybury seniors in the Temiscaming League, while Thompson and Montgomery were aligned with New Liskeard in the same loop. Coughlin, incidentally, was a native of Peterborough and a brilliant rover under the seven-man system. His son has played for Peterborough in recent years."

Hockey Hall Of Fame

James Sutherland, also of Kingston, sends us a pamphlet on Hockey's Hall of Fame. Players listed are: Howie Morenz, George Vezina, Frank McGee, Hobart Baker (USA amateur), Charles Gardiner, Harvey Pulford, Eddie Gerard, Hod Stewart, Tom Phillips, Dit Clapper, Lester Patrick, Cyclone Taylor, OBE, Eddie Shore, Aurele Joliet, Frank Nighbor, Russel Bowie (mateur), Art Ross, and Donnie Bain (amateur). Mr. Sutherland had much to do with getting this hockey hall started. We sat with him in the press box last senior "B" game there and found the old gentleman quite a keen (and at times noisy, sir!) puck fan.

'Fare thee well, for we must leave thee," that's what the Legionnaires were humming last night, but not until after the second period. Nossuh, it was much too close for comfort till well out in the second when Legion took a lead o'er Kingston and rolled home on it. Eliminating the gallant Nylons four games to two—this by a 6-2 score—and collaring their senior "B" group crown. A fine, fast fray, clean throughout and well-handled. The Nylons fought hard and made Legionnaires show their famous late drive and fight-from-behind spirit to earn the duke. The winners were down 2-0 when they got mad enough to really tear in there. A crowd of about 2,400, we're told, the arena management turning many away for safety reasons.

Some Of The Champs

If there were four prizes for the pick of the group champs last eve, we'd have named Joe Rochetta, Bill Crowley, Bert Hill and Ross Nicholls. With several more not far behind them. The whole team worked like troopers, and the same might be said for the losers. Johnny Godfrey is always a tower of strength out there on defence, and his blue-line buddies are almost equally effective. Udall looked swell in goal for the visitors, despite the six he had to fish out from behind. Gerow, Partis and Catlin certainly did their part and gave Ross a jumpy evening. A nice one to win for the Ellis outfit. They may meet the Markham-Stouffville winner in the first playdown round within a week.

Annual open meeting of the men's City Softball League is at 7.30 tonight in the "Y" to elect officers, etc. Those interested should attend. OASA bulletin No. 4 reminds clubs to shoot in nominations and amendments shortly for the annual convention at Owen Sound over the Good Friday week-end. Delegates are asked to send in names right away to Secretary Frank Feaver at 526 Maple Ave., Hamilton, so that hotel reservations may be made. Any league or association of two or more teams may affiliate directly with the OASA, or single teams in centres under 5,000 population. Applications for one entry from places larger than 5,000 must be given special consideration by the provincial body.

Peewee Puckists Go At Norwood

NORWOOD, March 14 (ENS)—Bruins defeated the Leafs 4-1 in the semi-final game of the peewee series in the Arena before a fair crowd.

Hannon sparked the attack counting three, and Danny Smith one. Harry Parker, diminutive right winger set up a nice shot for Hannon. B. Cassidy scored for the Leafs, Carl Burtt getting the assist. Keith Bedore turned in a good performance in his first game as goal tender. Line-up:

Bruins — Goal, Billy Mullan; defence, Johnnie Ferguson, Leslie Gordon centre, Mauriel Hannon; wings, G. Millett, Roger McManus; alternates: Danny Smith, Paul McNeely, W. Ranson, H. Scott, N. Telford, H. Parker, T. Tolley, B. Carbrey, E. Colby.

Leafs—Goal, K. Bedore; defence, Carl Burtt, J. Redden, centre, V. Mullan; wings, B. Cassidy, J. Leeper alternates: Mervin Millett, W. Smith, Bob Tedford, B. Bondy, M. Redden.

Referee, Jack Robson; Linesman, Fred Waldon.

In the second game the teams were more evenly balanced. A final decision gave the game to Hawks 1-0, against the Red Wings. A shot on goal was stopped by star goalie Elwood Begg, who held the puck waiting for the referee's whistle which was slow; as soon as he heard it, he relaxed, and Rusaw pushed the puck in. There was quite an argument, but the goal was allowed. This happened in the first few minutes of play.

Gordon Kavanagh received the only penalty in the game. No score and no penalties in the second and third. The boys tried hard to score, with lots of close checking and strong defensive work.

Mainland did not appear as effective as in previous games; Rooney, Fredericks, Van Volkenburg, Bill Colby and H. Scott were outstanding and for the Hawks; Rusaw, Miles, Brown, Lockhead and Goalie L. Hie were the stars for the other side. Line-up:

Hawks—Goal, L. Hie; defence, R. Millett, B. Miles centre, D. Rusaw; wings, Bruce Mullan, D. Lockhead; alternates: C. Brown, Don Cassidy, D. Sanders, J. Glennie, G. Golloher, P. Hinds.

Red Wings—Goal, Elwood Begg, defence, C. Fredericks, Gordon Kavanagh; centre, C. Mainland; wings, F. Rooney, Van Volkenburgs; alternates: B. Colby, H. Scott, W. Ranson, F. Morgan, B. Hanivan, D. McManus.

Referee, Jack Robson; Linesman, Fred Waldon.

The final game will be played one night this week. Hawks vs. Bruins.

THEY PLAYED HOCKEY, TOO!—Royal Military College outscored West Point 6-4 in their annual hockey game but the high point of the week-end's doings came later with the formal dance. Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

The Canadian junior five-pin bowling championships will be held in Toronto April 8 to 15, it was announced Monday.

Competition is open to boys and girls who were under 14 at Jan. 1.

The championships, sanctioned by the Canadian Bowling Association, will be bowled in two sections—one for boys and one for girls. Trophies will be awarded the winner and runner-up of both sections.

Entries have been received so far from Ottawa, Peterborough, Hamilton and Toronto. The tournament is under the auspices of the East York Bowling Association.

Officials said the dates were chosen to coincide with school holidays during the Easter season.

Eight division winners will compete in today's final play in the Colts elimination curling bonspiel at the Granite Club in Toronto.

Held annually for curlers who have participated in the game for seven years or less, 15 rinks were entered in this year's competition for two trophies, the Harvey J. Sims Trophy and the Albert E. Duke Consolation Award.

Division winners: Oscar Bigford, Brockville; J. B. Nash, London; Stan Cleverley, Orillia; Dr. J. E. Trelford, Toronto; L. Langdon, Oshawa; G. Thompson, Brampton, Dr. C. T. Mason, Hamilton, and Ted Nowak, Kitchener.

President Azarie Choquet of the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association said Monday at Montreal that Tommy Manastersky and Eddie Bush have been suspended for three games as a result of a stick-swinging fracas at Sherbrooke, Que., last week.

Manastersky of the Montreal Royals and Bush of the Sherbrooke Saints were given match-misconduct penalties for their part in the battle in the opening game of a best-of-seven Quebec Senior Hockey League semi-final playoff.

At London, Ont., Herman A. Kompass, 82, who has been prominent in district lawn bowling and baseball circles, died at his home Monday night. He was among those who laid the groundwork for Ontario lawn bowling champions, and in 1919 he was one of the organizers of a London entry in the old Michigan-Ontario Professional Baseball League.

Edgar Laprade, centre and sparkplug of the New York Rangers, will return to the National Hockey League wars Wednesday night against Boston Bruins, the club announced Monday. Laprade has missed eight of the Rangers' last nine games due to leg injuries and a groin injury.

At Philadelphia Jersey Joe Walcott, the 36-year-old, Camden, N. J., heavyweight who never seems to grow old, Monday night knocked out Baltimore's Johnny Shkor in 1:34 of the first round. Walcott weighed 197, Shkor 216 for the scheduled 10 rounder.

Jean Richard, 132, of Montreal Monday night jabbed his way to a 10-round split decision over Young Junior, 131, of Springfield, Mass., in a closely fought main event bout at Quebec.

At Vero Beach, Branch Rickey, Dodger president, Monday expressed grave concern over the condition of Carl Furillo.

Rickey is disturbed over what he believes to be a recurrence of the groin injury to the ace outfielder which handicapped Furillo late in the 1949 season and in the world series.

Has New Gadget To Call Strikes

VERO BEACH, Fla., March 14 (AP)—Branch Rickey, president of the Brooklyn Baseball Club, has come up with a new mechanical gadget to call balls and strikes.

The machine, which was to have its initial test here today is called a "cross-eyed electronic umpire" and is alleged to "call 'em closer than any normally endowed arbiter."

It was developed after nearly a year of research and experiment by the General Electric Company at Syracuse, N. Y.

Rickey explained that the gadget is not intended "now or ever" to replace manual umpiring in actual games. It is, he said, designed for training and experimental use.

The "electronic umpire" is a system of lenses, mirrors, electric eyes and other electronic equipment which lights a lamp when a ball is pitched through the "strike" zone. The lamp won't light if the pitch is a ball.

All the items are concealed in two main pieces of equipment — A thin metal box about four feet long, 21 inches wide and 1½ inches—deep—upon which home plate is located. A cabinet containing the velocity recording and strike indicating equipment can be located anywhere up to 25 feet from the plate.

The equipment can be adjusted to the height of any player.

Dutchmen Trip Marlboros In Grilling 3-2 Victory

By The Canadian Press

Victories just don't come any tighter or mean more than Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen's 3-2 victory over Toronto Marlboros last night.

Trailing the powerful Toronto aggregation 3-0 in the best-of seven series for the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A championship and down 1-0 after two periods of gruelling, wide-open play, Punch Scherer's charges roared back with fire in their eyes and rapped home three third-frame goals to grab the heartbreaking margin.

The Toronto club played with three juniors in the line-up, Danny Lewicki and Larry Regan, of the eliminated Junior A Marlboros, started the game and then in the first period Duke Goaltender Pat Boehmer suffered a dislocated shoulder during a goal-mouth scramble. Junior Goaltender Don Lockhart was called on to fill the breach.

Played To Hilt

The smooth Marlboros played it to the hilt in the opening stanza and were rewarded with the only marker, Chuck Blair doing the honors.

The second period produced no scoring and oddly enough the bitter rivals played it without penalties.

Ted Grasser started the Kitchener-Waterloo stretch drive at 3.20 of the third and Billy Flick followed to give the homesters a short-lived 2-1 lead. Regan evened it up. A long shot by Mickey Roth bounced the clubs right into the fifth game. The shot caromed off Lockhart's pads into the corner of the net.

Marlboros have another chance to end it all Wednesday night when the finalists continue their battle at Waterloo.

Peies Gain Edge

NORWOOD, Man., (ENS)—One of the best games this season was played in the Arena Saturday evening, Petes versus TVL All-Stars. If Petes came down with the idea of whitewashing the TVLers, they had their minds changed, having to work right through. Although they had a three-goal margin at the end of the game to win 7-4, the local boys gave Edgar plenty to do. Laverne also turned in a fine show. The line-up:

Petes — Goal, Edgar; defence, Miller and McMaster; centre, Legrow; wings, Mortimer, Collins; alternates, Turner, Wyatt, Floyd, Desjardins, Reid, Griffen, Donoghue.

TVL—Goal, Laverne; defence, Fennell and Hamilton; centre, Blake; wings, Herrington and Hayes; alternates, B. Payne, Rogers, Webb, G. Payne, Smith and Wilson.

Referee—C. Puffer. Linesman—H. Morrison.

The summary:

First Period
Norwood—Brown (Hamilton) 3:20
Petes—Wyatt (Turner) 4.05
Petes—Turner (Wyatt) 15:17
Petes—Griffen (Legrow) 15:30
Petes—Desjardins (Griffen Collins) 17:15
Penalties—McMaster, Hamilton 2, Legrow, Wyatt, Blake, Desjardins.

Second Period
Norwood—Fennell (Brown) 6:20
Norwood—Webb (Brown) 6:49
Penalties—McMaster, Legrow.

Third Period
Petes—McMaster 2:37
Norwood—Brown 8:05
Petes—Wyatt (Turner) 12:51
Petes—Collins 15:55
Penalties—Legrow, Smith.

Sees Controlled Prices Needed For Growers

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., March 14 — (CP) — Veterans growing fruits and vegetables on small holdings must be prepared to become part of an organization moving toward controlled prices and production, M. M. Robinson, secretary of the Ontario Fruit and Vegetable Growers' Association, said Monday.

Prices were coming down, costs going up and tariff protection will likely decrease until free trade existed in such produce, he told a conference of Veterans' Land Act officials. He said farmers would eventually lose the right to grade and pack their own products and would deliver them to co-operative packers, as in British Columbia.

Dr. R. O. Bobbey, of the Ontario Advisory Committee on Herbicides, said a reeent survey of farmers' seeding drills showed about half the samples rejected for weed seeds. He said the eradication of weeds by use of chemicals was virtually impossible as long as farmers persisted in sowing them.

Plan Meeting To Assist Backward Lands

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER.

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., March 13 (CP)—The point-four pot is coming to a boil in the United Nations and the United States Congress.

Those backing plans for technical and economic aid to backward countries hope it will get under way by summer. But it is up to the U. S. Congress to set it in motion by making funds available.

The U. N. has tentative plans for a meeting of all interested U. N. members at the end of this month to decide what contribution each will make for the program. The plan grew out of point four of President Truman's inaugural address which called for economic development of underdeveloped areas, and the example of a limited U. N. scheme of technical assistance.

The U. N. conference on finances is expected to be postponed until late in April, however, when Congressional legislation will probably make some $35,000,000 available for the plan.

Plans Linked

The U. S. and U. N. plans are inextricably linked with part of the U. S. appropriations expected to be spent through the U. N.

While U. N. officials are not forecasting any definite amount, it is believed a total of between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000 will be forthcoming from all U. N. members including the U. S., whose share will likely be more than half the total.

Canada has backed the principles of technical aid in U. N. meetings and is expected to make the largest part of her contributions in experts and equipment. The Dominion already is taking part through the U. N.'s own program of technical assistance started last year with an appropriation of $277,000 which was boosted to $676,000 this year.

Technical assistance is only a part of the over-all aim expressed in the U. N. to boost economic development of backward areas.

Behind the U. N. program are scores of reports by exports, such as surveys of methods of boosting investments, of improving transportation and communication, of raising health standards, of training workers, and of expanding agricultural production.

Few people would want civil marriages, he said, and it was "scarcely necessary to pass such dangerous legislation for so few." There was a tendency to "ape the United States" where civil marriages were accepted "very casually."

Not even Speaker Davies, a Church of England clergyman with his "beautiful Welsh voice," could make the words of a civil marriage ceremony impressive said Mr. Nixon.

Magistrates and judges were not enthusiastic about the additional duties to be imposed on them. Provincial Secretary Welsh remarked that there is nothing to prevent them from accepting a "tip," although the $10 fee must be remitted to the Provincial Treasurer.

Affects Family Life

Mr. Grummett said civil marriage threatened "the breaking-down" of family life. Marriage in a church had "the status of a covenant," and few marriages solemnized in church went "on the rocks."

He said members should "think very solemnly before we destroy something in our home life we may regret."

Mr. Jolliffe said civil marriage was the right of the minority who could not conscientiously take part in a religious ceremony. It was also the right of the clergy to refuse to marry persons to whom the ceremony was a "sham."

The CCF Leader defended separation of church and state and opposed "any measure which will tend to make clergymen the mere functionaries of the state."

He suggested, however, that the three-day waiting period between issuance of the licence and the wedding might be lengthened.

tional export-import board might be used "experimentally as an additional means of meeting the 'surplus-unemployment' problem."

Must Hit Basic Trouble

"If the subject is not approached in some such way, there is a danger that the various boards handling surpluses will operate independently on a give-way basis and that the various local unemployment problems will also be tackled by relief, public works or other means that will alleviate, but now remove, the basic difficulty."

J. A. Charlton (PC-Brant-Wentworth), another of the speakers in the debate, said Agriculture Minister Gardiner had bungled farm policies. There was too much reliance on the assistance received by the European recovery program of the United States. Large amounts were spent in Canada for Canadian products. He wondered what would happen when no more funds were available after March, 1952.

He urged establishment of a cheese processing and packaging plant in the United Kingdom to help boost sales of Canadian cheddar cheese.

Mr. Charlton said the government should reward Canada's farmers for the low wartime prices for their products. They should now be assured of stabilized markets.

Strange Statement

Mr. Charlton referred to a speech in which Mr. Gardiner had said he would have to advise farmers to buy where they could sell—in Canada. That was a strange statement from the member of a government committed to freer trade. It must have made odd reading for Mr. Gardiner's supporters in western Canada.

As a result of the lower prices in the new contracts with the United Kingdom, farm income would decrease between 200,000,000 and $250,000,000 this year.

He said Mr. Gardiner had stated there were only little surpluses of butter, cheese, and honey. He overlooked surpluses of white beans, apples and the like.

J. H. Harrison (L-Meadow Lake) said no country had been as generous to the UK as had Canada. He felt the UK could make a little effort to face her problems realistically.

It was all very well for the Progressive Conservative party to suggest a commonwealth trade conference, but Canada then would face the problem of what to do with the sterling that she would have to accept for commonwealth sales.

Spunky British Yachtsmen To Relive Dunkerque Scene

LONDON, March 14 (AP). — The spunky British yachtsmen and Sunday Sailors who helped rescue the British Expeditionary Force from Dunkerque beaches in 1940 are to make the trip again.

It's a sentimental journey commemorating the great armada of little ships which streamed from England to the French shore 10 years ago to aid the hard-pressed Royal Navy. Bombed and strafed, the amateur sailors plied from beach to ship embarking the exhausted British and Allied troops driven to the coast by the Nazi blitzkrieg.

Many civilians died with the soldiers they tried to save. German fighters riddled their tiny vessels with machine-gun fire. Some launches sank under the weight of the troops jammed on board.

The tentative date for the commemorative trip is June 4. A committee under Capt. William H. Coombs, London barrister and master mariner, was appointed to make arrangements.

Said Coombs: "We have been in touch with the Mayor of Dunkerque and are assured of a great welcome there." Memorial service will be held either in Dunkerque or on the beaches."

Fewer risks will be taken this time. Warned the Ministry of Transport: "During the 1940 evacuation we could have little regard for the seaworthiness of the ships which went to the rescue."

"But in 1950 practical seamen should make sure that only suitable craft make the trip. We can't count on the calm weather we had in 1940."

The Canadian Family owes much to . . . Ukraine

A Tribute from Calvert to Canadians of Ukrainian Descent

CANADA OWES MUCH of its strength, vitality and the rich quality of its democracy to the blending of racial and cultural heritages from many lands.

No one appreciates more the true significance of the words freedom and democracy than those who have suffered oppression.

Although Ukrainians have felt the heel of the oppressor for six hundred years they have never lost their love of freedom. The first Ukrainians came to Canada in 1892 and were followed by a steady stream of these hardy and resourceful people until today there are over 300,000 in Canada.

Comprising Ruthenians and Galicians, they are enthusiastic choristers and embroidery experts. The younger generation is producing writers, doctors, lawyers, teachers and legislators contributing much to the progress of the great Canadian Family.

In 1622 Calvert, head of the famous Calvert family, founded one of Canada's first colonies in Newfoundland. Guilty Pair Get Reform Terms Lunch Break-in Reformatory terms of six months definite and five months indefinite were handed out to Evelyn C. Collins, 23, of 587 Gilmour St., and Adolph Caravaggio, 22, of 495 Albert St., who both pleaded guilty to charges of breaking, entry and theft at the Parkway Lunch at McDonnel St. and Park St. in police court today.

Detective Sergeant W. A. Clarke testified the pair were arrested Monday morning before noon, and more than $328 stolen money recovered, less than 10 hours after the theft had been made.

He said when the break-in was reported to the police, Constable Donald S. Mackay went to the restaurant. Seeing how the break-in had been committed, he suspected Miss Collins, a small attractive brunette who was working as a waitress in the restaurant.

Under Observation

He kept her under observation until the detective arrived. Her nervous behaviour while he was in the restaurant made him even more suspicious.

Detective Sergeant Clarke said the girl confessed to using her key to go into the restaurant and let Caravaggio in the back way. He picked up the money in a bag hidden in the back room.

Caravaggio gave his partner $20 and kept the rest for himself. A cheque for $30 in the bag was burned.

Caravaggio was arrested and he told police where they could find the money hidden in the eaves of a shed at his home.

Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw said neither had a previous criminal record, but Miss Collins had been mixed up in a previous affair of much the same nature, but no charges had been laid.

'City Hall Manners' Stresses More Courtesy To The Public

By HARRY THEOBALD

City Clerk Outram might further the cause of amenity by mailing a copy of his booklet on City Hall Manners to Controller Turdif of Ottawa who has just recently inspired a courtesy course throughout all branches of the civic administration in the Capital.

The Examiner published a few weeks ago a digest of the main section of Mr. Outram's review of the benefits which have been provided by the city council in the last few years for the employees of the municipality.

This handbook entitled "Aid To Security" reviews such matters of welfare as retirement pensions, group insurance, accumulated sick leave, vacations with pay, workmen's compensation, all reflecting the readiness of the ratepayer's representatives to establish for their permanent staff the agreeable measures of appreciation of efficient service which have been broadly adopted in industry.

Mr. Outram devoted the last four pages of his booklet to simple advice, somewhat Chesterfieldian, on the felicitous effects of friendliness in public relations.

This appears to have been a gratuitous essay by the City Clerk, but its propriety gains reinforcement from the action of the Ottawa Board of Control in adopting the Turdif recommendation.

Says the Ottawa Journal in a news column: "In a few weeks every city employee from the latest joined pick-and-shovel man to the most senior department head will be issued an official booklet from the corporation stressing more courtesy and better public relations."

Overtones to the Outram ideal may be imagined in the merry melody of "Keep Your Sunny Side Up", and of course all welcome mats are to be dusted and brightened freshly every morning.

The Examiner hesitated at quoting previously anything from this intramural message, sanctioned by [illegible] employees as [illegible]. But, we feel [illegible] men in daily touch with the public tend to forget that it is the public who is the real boss—we are only instruments of the public will."

This reference to the new deal in complaisance in public communications and contacts need not evoke more than passing mention of the subheads of the Outram message.

So, let it be accepted that this is only a gentle reminder such as: "Courtesy is a balm. It removes frictions which waste energy, and it cools tempers. It is easy to possess. It is simply kindly consideration in our behaviour to others. It is invaluable in all human relationships. Use it always.

"Try looking at questions from the viewpoint of the person on the other side of the counter or the visitor's side of the resk. If a ratepayer is irritated, impatient

McCabe Bros. Played Carsons

The funeral of George Carson in Ottawa Saturday recalled to Jack McCabe an excursion of the Peterborough lacrosse team to the Capital before the turn of the century when the return fare was $1.25.

"The low rate was largely the result of competition between the CPR and GTR," Mr. McCabe said. "Each railway offered free tickets to the players. Half of them then travelled on one railway, and the other members of the team went on the other road. A lot of fans took in the trip at that attractive rate."

Mr. McCabe confirmed the Ottawa tributes to the ability of George Carson and his brother Hugh, published at the weekend. "They were a famous pair of brothers playing on the same team. They had learned the game in Meaford and went to Ottawa first with the Ottawa Lacrosse Club and later with the Capitals. They were big shifty defense men, good stickhandlers and had a lot of endurance. The trip I recall was in 1896. The Ottawa team beat us something like seven to three."

Jack McCabe and his brother Jim played on the Peterborough team. They were youths at that time, and as another pair of brothers on the one team had quite a wide reputation in their own right.

BELLEVILLE, March 14 —(CP)—Delay of possibly 12 months in the construction of a proposed new 12-room public school here was seen today by the Board of Education following refusal of city council to ratify a debenture issue of $293,000 to cover cost of construction.

Council Monday night voted against issuing the debentures on the ground that the Board of Education had awarded the construction contract to the second lowest tenderer. The contract was awarded to the St. Lawrence Contracting Company of Belleville at $242,915, which was $23,841 higher than the lowest tender submitted by the H. J. McFarland Construction Company of Picton

Alfred Barber Acting Head Labor Council

Alfred Barber, former president of the Allied Labor Council, Monday night was elected acting president of the new Peterborough and District Labor Council.

(The Peterborough and District Labor Council, claiming 4,000 workers, is chartered to the Canadian Congress of Labor while the Allied Labor Council admits CCL, TLC, and independent unions to affiliate. This makes two labor bodies in the city.)

Twenty-two delegates were present at the inaugural meeting, representing all but one of the 12 affiliated locals. All officers were elected on a temporary basis. The next meeting will be April 10, but it is not expected there will be a permanent executive until May.

Mr. Barber has been president of the ALC for the past two years. Recently he resigned his post after his local, Local 210 United Packinghouse Workers (CIO-CCL), voted to secede from the Labor Council. He is also president of Local 210.

List of Officers

Following is the complete executive: President, Mr. Barber; vice-president, William Whibbs, Local 524 IUE; secretary, Lorne Bebee, Local 293 UPWA (Quaker Oats); secretary-treasurer, Dave Hatherly, IUE Office Workers (CGE); floor guard, William E. Thomas, Local 210 UPWA; and three trustees, Robert Wilson, Local 822, United Textile Workers (Brinton-Peterborough Carpet); William Gunn, Local 293, and Ed. Humphreys, Local 434 UPWA (Ovaltine).

IUE delegates introduced a motion asking for the support of the complete CCL Labor Council in their endeavor to oust the UE as the certified bargaining agent for the more than 3,000 production workers at CGE. It passed unanimously.

Until Mr. Barber was elected the meeting was chaired by A. E. Johnston, director of the Textile Workers, who has been in charge of local CCL organization since Fred Hannah left.

The meeting was held in the CCL office, 168½ Charlotte Street.

Sap Not Running In Sugar Bush

Farmers with maple trees on their property are getting ready for the first task which comes with the first signs of life out of doors after the long winter. Many have walked over the fields to the maple bush during the past week in search of a hint as to when the sap can be expected to start running.

It won't be yet awhile they say because the thermometer still does not stay above the freezing mark more than a few hours.

It looks as though this will be a good season, a farmer at Warsaw said today. There is still plenty of snow on the ground and when temperatures rise the sap should flow freely.

A Westwood farmer said today he hopes to be able to start the week of March 21, the first day of spring. A less optimistic farmer near Warsaw thinks the first week in April is probably the earliest he can start.

It's impossible to tell until the time comes, is the comment of all farmers and the best that can be done is to make a guess.

Prices are expected to remain much the same as last year. One maple syrup producer is already taking orders in Peterborough at $4.60 for syrup and 60 cents a pound for sugar.

Six-Day Lawless Spree Results In Sentence 30 Months In Penitentiary

Still professing his innocence, William John Robinson, 23, Toronto, was sentenced to two years and six months in penitentiary when Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC, found him guilty on a charge of breaking, entry and theft of a car in police court today. His partner, Russell Davis, 19, of Warsaw, who pleaded guilty to two identical charges and six other charges as well, was sentenced a week ago to 18 months definite and six months indefinite.

Four other charges against Robinson of stealing cars and breaking and entering and theft from cottages were withdrawn by Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw.

Robinson had just been released from penitentiary Nov. 29 after serving a three year term on convictions for car theft and breaking, entry and theft. Robinson's record stretches back to 1942.

Lawless Spree

According to the evidence and Davis' confession, the pair went on a lawless spree from Jan. 24 to Jan. 29 when they were picked up on the Buckhorn road by Provincial Constable Edward Patterson.

After hearing the evidence a week ago, Magistrate Philp reserved judgment to consider it. The evidence described six days of breaking into cottages near Buckhorn and then a trip to Toronto and back via Port Perry, most of the way in stolen cars. On the way back a school in Manvers township was broken into and a radio stolen.

Asked by the magistrate if he had anything to say, Robinson stated he had merely met Davis on the Buckhorn road the night he was picked up by the police after Davis alone had been on his law breaking escapage.

He said he figured he had no chance when his record was considered.

Other large amounts were: $32.65 to Joseph McGuire; $26.60 to John MacCallum (he also received a second award of $10); $22 to Jack Heffernan. Awards of $5 went to David Traynor and William Merritt while two $3 awards went to W. K. Meagher and one each to Wallace Lowes and Eldon Todd.

Suburban Smith Fire Brigade Plans Decided

Plans for organizing and equipping a fire brigade in the Smith suburb of Peterborough were advanced at a meeting of the township council Monday night.

The council agreed to apply to the Ontario Municipal Board for authority to purchase a pumper the price of which is $13,500, but the actual cost to the suburban community would be reduced to $8,775 by the 35% subsidy to be received from the provincial government.

The government will also contribute 25% of the maintenance cost. Council appoints a chief of the brigade and his recommendations are to be made through the council.

These are essential preliminary steps which have now reached the stage of agreement between the council and the interested residents on the northern boundary of the city. The meeting Monday night was entirely harmonious, and the ratepayers expressed their appreciation of the helpful action of the council in a vote of thanks.

Bridgenorth Pumper

Arrangements being made by and for these suburban residents are quite separate from the Bridgenorth - Chemong Park people, also in Smith township. At a meeting held several days ago at Bridgenorth those ratepayers voted unanimously in favour of having a pumper to serve that area.

What's Right

On several occasions you have receive no thanks for some little courtesy extended a woman you do not know, such as holding a door for her.

WRONG WAY: Decide that if women don't appreciate such courtesies, you won't bother with them.

RIGHT WAY: Realize that while some women don't show appreciation for being treated with courtesy, most women still appreciate little considerations.

Toronto Museum Director Urges Wider Use, Interest

Mr. Gerard Brett, director of the Royal Ontario Museum, Toronto, aroused latent interests in the collections there displayed when he spoke to the University Women's Club here Monday evening, in the YWCA Green Room. He impressed the fact that the museum "exists for everybody" and it is his earnest desire that it be used by everybody.

Chief users at present, other than the Sunday afternoon visitors, are school classes and groups of industrial designers. The latter go to study the antiquities for line and type and then create "modern' 'designs and Mr. Brett is anxious to see this service extended. "Main idea behind museum displays is to spread knowledge" he said.

Difficult to combat is the people's attitude of "passive acceptance" he finds. Living under a constant barrage of day-to-day advertising and political propaganda it seems they have little time to interest themselves in natural history and art. In a test at the Chicago Museum it was found that visitors gazed for an average of 17 seconds on each display.

To Preserve Heritage

Articles are very carefully selected for their interest value, but in order to have them looked at it has become necessary to "generally kill the pill of knowledge with a show of lighting and labels," he said sadly. Mr. Brett described the museum as a "defense mechanism" against loss of a valuable heritage.

Mr. Brett, who came from London, England, two years ago to take his present position, says the Toronto museum is one of the "larger" museum buildings of the world with his departments on four floors. It houses the far east Chinese collection which is rightly famous all over the world, and a small Japanese collection including some prints of value. The textile department is creating interest throughout the moth damage or rust of century-old pieces. The chief cataloguer's aim is to make it difficult to lose any piece, whether it be given, loaned or purchased by the museum, and Mr. Brett assured his listeners, "articles are never knowingly disposed of without permission of the owner." The chief carpenter sees to the making of display cases so that there can be no loss by theft and there has not been in the Toronto building to the best of knowledge.

The museum staff is not allowed to value any article, he explained, and it never makes a commitment without seeing the object. A board decides on all purchases or the acceptance of gifts or loans.

Girls of Grade 13 in the Collegiate and St. Peter's High School, who are planning higher education next year, were guests at the meeting.

Mrs. R. H. McClellan introduced the speaker and he was thanked by Mrs. D. R. McGregor. Mrs. J. E. Watters, first vice president, presided.

MINED RICHES

From 1891 to 1949 Ontario mines have produced more than $4,000,000,000 worth of mineral products.

There are 33 staff [illegible] which he divides into the "curating group", people on staff of the six departments, and the "technical group". Chief man in the latter is the "preparator" who attends to care, maintenance and repair of all articles. His ingenuity is often taxed to deal with emergencies such as breakage.

GETS GOOD ADVICE

After I was married, my grandmother said, "Everyone's giving you lots of advice, but they may not have told you how to keep a man's shirt sparkling white. All that is needed is a swish of Reckitt's Blue in the rinse—and that goes for all white clothes. Reckitt's Blue prevents clothes turning yellow—gives a snowy white wash every time without using anything that may damage fabric." Trust Granny to give me advice worth remembering.

McKENNEY Answers Your CANASTA Questions

Some of my readers want to know what to do with red treys dealt to them. The most important rule to remember is to wait your turn before putting down any of these bonus cards.

Q—We have a rule at our club that before the play starts, all players in the game put down their red treys in turn, and draw a card from the stock pile to replace them. We have been told that this procedure is wrong. Will you kindly correct us if we are wrong?

A—You are wrong. Red treys may be put down on the table only by the player whose turn it is to play. He must place his red trey on the table and immediately replace it with a card from the stock pile. If he has two red treys, he puts them both down and takes two cards from the stock pile to replace them.

If one of the cards he draws from the stock pile is a red trey, he puts this down on the table also and draws another card for it. After he has completed laying down and replacing all his red treys, the player then has a choice of making his regular draw from the sock pile, or of taking the discard pile if he can.

Any of the other players who has a red trey must keep it in his hand until it becomes his turn to play. However, if a player goes out before you have had a chance to play your red trey, it does not count 500 points against you. It counts only 100 points against you in this case.

Q—There is only one card in the discard pile. It is a black trey, which has been discarded by the player ahead of me. I have 2 black treys in my hand. Can I use these to pick up the single black trey in the discard pile if I can go out?

A—No. You can never take the discard pile if the top card is a black trey. This applies also to jokers and deuces. You cannot pick up the discard pile if the top card is a joker or deuce, even though you have two jokers or two deuces in your hand.

Q—We needed 90 points for our initial meld. By mistake I melded 2 kings and a joker, which only came to 70 points. I did not have enough to make a sufficient meld, so I was forced to discard one of the cards I had laid down. I discarded a king.

The next time around I discarded the other king. Then at my partner's turn, he melded 4 queens and used my joker to make 90 points. Our opponents said we could not do that. Were we wrong?

A—Yes, you were wrong. While penalty cards must be left face up on the table, they are the same as if they were still in your hand, and therefore they cannot be used by your partner.

If your partner had made an initial meld of 90 points by putting down, let us say, 4 queens and a joker from his own hand, then at your turn to play you would be allowed to add your joker to his meld. But if he could not make the required meld from his hand, you would be forced to discard your joker at your next turn.

Q—Is my partner allowed to call my attention to the fact that I have discarded a card that could have been used on one of our melds?

A—Yes, he may call your attention to it—but it is too late to do anything about it. Once you have discarded, your play is completed and you cannot take it back.

Girl Can Find Only Misery In Love for Married Man

DEAR MISS DIX: Do you think it is really possible for a single girl to be in love with a married man? I am just acquainted with a man in a business way but the more I see of him, the more I want to. Being in constant touch with him every day I find myself falling more deeply in love. I believe this feeling is mutual, as I have heard from other people that he feels this way about me. He has asked me to have dinner with him several times, but up to the present I have declined. But it is very hard to refuse when I would love so much to be in his company. What shall I do

PUZZLED GIRL

Dorothy Dix

ANSWER: It is not only possible for a single girl to fall in love with a married man. It is a catastrophe that happens every day. There is nothing about the mariage ceremony that lessens a man's attractions, or that keeps a woman's foolish heart from setting itself upon him.

Oh, it is easy enough for a girl to fall in love with a married man, but it is almost always disastrous to her. Not once in a thousand times does it bring her anything but sorrow and scandal and blasted hopes and disillusion, and in the thousandth case, when the married man divorces his wife and marries her, her happiness comes to her tainted with the memory of another woman's tears, of a wrecked home and orphaned children.

Would Amuse Himself

In the great majority of cases in which a married man makes love to a girl he does it simply to amuse himself. He has no thought of divorcing his wife, of breaking up his home, or giving up his children, and, most of all, he has no intention of being involved in a scandal that will do him no good either socially or financially.

However it happens, the girl who falls in love with a married man brings misery on herself because she has to suffer the fiercest jealousy that a woman ever knows—that of having the man she loves belong to another woman. Another woman bearing his name, standing at his side on all public occasions, spending the money that she perhaps helps him earn. And she knows the bitterness of the hope deferred that makes the heart sick in waiting, waiting for some miracle that never happens to bring her love to a happy fruition.

Often a girl falls in love with a married man without knowing that is doing it and the revelation comes too late to avert the tragedy, but any young woman with a grain of sense in her head who finds herself slipping and beginning to think of her boss as a lover instead of an employer should throw up her job and flee from him as she would from the greatest danger that could possibly menace her. It is her only salvation.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 35. Have been married ten years. No children. My wife is fine in every way. Good-looking, attractive, talented, a wonderful pal and I have the highest respect for her. But I am in love with another woman. I fought against this love so hard that I became a nervous physical wreck. When I was at the end I gave in, and I never knew such happiness was possible as I have experienced with her. That was three years ago. My sweetheart feels toward me as I do toward her. Life to each of us without the other is unthinkable. What must I do? I want to do the honorable thing, but hesitate to hurt my wife who has always been loyal to me.

E. K. H.

ANSWER: The only honorable thing to do is to go to your wife and tell her how you feel about her and the other woman, and ask her to give you a divorce. In leading the double life that you are now you are making everybody concerned miserable and achieving no good to any one.

Many men and women meet with these disasters. They are not philanderers. They have a high sense of honor and duty toward the good men and women to whom they are married. They honestly thought they were in love when they married and they meant to be faithful to their marriage vows. Then suddenly some woman or some man comes upon the scene and they find out for the first time what love really means.

It is even possible for a man or woman, who sacrifices himself or herself for an unloved mate, to make that mate happy by going on with a marriage out of which everything has gone that makes for happiness in marriage? I think not, and I think that most men and women who know that their wives and husbands have come to love some one else refuse to hold them against their wills. There is no comfort in having the corpse of a dead love around the house.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: My brother, aged 9, intelligent and a fine little fellow in every other way, has been taking money out of his brother's purse. My mother never gives him a penny and when he earns any money she takes it away from him. Do you think that his not having any spending money is making him a thief? What can I do?

DESPERATE

ANSWER: Undoubtedly the child steals in order to get a little spending money. Why don't you give him a little allowance so that he may not be so tempted beyond his power of resistance? But keep on trying to instill the principles of honesty in him.

Edmund O'Brien Would Like Change In Films

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, March 14 (AP). (AP).—Edmond O'Brien, who is getting to be Hollywood's No. 1 Cops-and-Robbers man, wants to get away from crime.

The actor has done a dozen pictures recently and all but two have been on crime themes. Sometimes he's the robber and sometimes he's the cop, as in his present film, "Prowl Car."

O'Brien can't figure out why he got typed in the roles. But he added that they haven't done much with his relations with the law. But he tells of being stopped for a traffic ticket on his way to work one day.

"I'll let you go if you'll tell me how you did those flying scenes in 'Fighter Squadron'," said the cop, mentioning one of O'Brien's non-crime pictures.

Notes 'n' Stuff

Shelly Winters emphasizes that she has no wedding plans. Reports that she was engaged to baseball pitcher Gene Bearden were "unfortunate" she told me. The extent of their "romance" was posing for a magazine layout and being out to dinner with others in the "Winchester 73" during the Tucson locations.

Dennis Day, who waited six years for a good movie role, is acting in "I'll Get By." "It's pretty hard to do pictures and two air shows, too," he says.

Dana Andrews works days in "Where The Sidewalk Ends" and nights on "Edge of Doom." The latter is being partly remade because the treatment was considered too grim for present audiences.

Capsule Review

"The Outriders" (MGM) is a crackerjack Western. There is soldom a dull moment in this action-filled frontier drama. It also contains some of the best scenery displayed in recent months on the screen. The story is rather complex, but is made convincing as played by Joel McCrea, Arlene Dahl, Barry Sullivan and James Whitmore.

Bride Honored At Whist Party

HAVELOCK, March 14—(ENS)—The home of Mrs. Robert Sayers was the scene of a delightful court-whist party recently when the members of the Young Women's Association of Knox Presbyterian Church assembled to honor one of their members, Miss Jacqueline Sanders whose marriage took place on Saturday to William D. Wight of Trent River.

During the evening the bride-elect was presented with a pair of corn flower crystal vases with Miss Essie McQuigge reading the address and Mrs. Sayers making the presentation. The guest of honor also received a bride's book made by Mrs. Fred Bennett. Prize winners in the court whist were Mrs. William Copp and Mrs. Grenville Rutherford with the consolation award going to Miss M. Sexsmith.

Lunch was served by Mrs. Sawyers, assisted by Mesdames H. Youmans, T. Sanders, T. Watson, Fred Rutherford, G. Sisco.

Others present were Mesdames G. Kennedy, F. McKenzie, H. A. McNeely, James Scott, C. Scott, Isaac Anderson and B. Curtis.

What's Right

A MARRIED woman is identifying herself over the telephone when making a business call.

WRONG WAY: "This is Grace Jones."

NO CONSTIPATION IN 20 YEARS

"I have been eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN for 20 years, and during this time have never needed a laxative. I am regular and feel fit—owe it to ALL-BRAN." Albert Lalonde, 5489 Orléans St., Montreal 36. This is just one of many unsolicited letters from ALL-BRAN "regulars." Are you miserable with constipation due to lack of bulk in the diet? Then try this daily: Eat an ounce of crisp, toasty Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, drink plenty of water. If not completely satisfied after 10 days, return empty carton to Kellogg's, London, Ont. Annexation Bill Turned Down

TORONTO, March 14 (CP). — A Bill that would have allowed the city of Welland to annex part of adjacent Crowland Township was turned down today by the Private Bills Committee of the Ontario Legislature.

Members of the committee said they felt that annexation of suburban municipalities was a controversial issue on the Toronto district and other sections of the province and the two parties concerned with the Bill should have a year to "cool off."

Counsel for Crowland Township argued that the city's attempt to annex part of the township was an "assessment grab." He said the township was offered "'an ideal industrial area" as an alternative to the heavily-assessed area the city wanted.

The Ontario Municipal Board last fall handed down an order that the city be allowed to annex an area of 90 acres. A petition signed by Crowland residents protested the order and under the terms of the Municipal Act the city must now have a private Bill confirming the Board's decision.

Counsel for the city said the area Welland wanted to take over consisted of only 24 per cent of the township assessment, but included a population of 4,500 more than 40 per cent of the township population.

Wartime Houses Face Rent Rise

ST. CATHARINES, March 14.—(CP)—Tenants of wartime houses in St. Catharines may soon be paying $2 more rent per month for small homes and $2.50 more per month for large homes if the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation accedes to the request made by city council in a special resolution Monday night.

Purpose of the increased rents is to help even up the score with other taxpayers who, since 1943, have been paying 50 per cent of the taxes of these tenants in addition to their own.

Since an agreement with the city was signed in 1943, the housing company has been paying the city annually, in lieu of taxes, $48 on a small house and $54 on a large house. With 512 small homes and 216 large ones of this type, [illegible] would give [illegible] [illegible] tax rate of 51.95.

Three Cars Tangle Park Beyond Romaine

Three cars were involved in an accident doing some damage to two of the cars Monday night on Park St. south of Romaine St.

William A. Roberts, Norwood, was driving north on Park St. where he met in collision with a car pulling out from the east curb driven by Harold Medland, River Road.

Roberts car caromed off the Medland vehicle and skidded across the street striking a car owned by Garfield Everson, 147 London St., parked on the west side of the street.

The Medland car suffered no damage, but the right rear fender of the Roberts car and the rear left fender of the Everson car were dented.

Traffic Officer Claire J. McGillen investigated.

Held Prisoner Asks $50,000

TRENTON, NJ, March 14 (AP) —A man whom the courts ruled was a prisoner rather than a patient in the state mental [illegible] tions for 20 years has asked New Jersey to pay him $50,000 to $60,000.

Raymond Reid, 63, of Trenton, through his lawyer Harry Green, apepaled Monday night to the Legislature's Claims Committee to compensate him for his "illegal confinement."

Reid was freed September, 1947 by then Vice-Chancellor Wilfred H. Jayne who ruled that he was not a paranoic suffering from delusions of persecution anr grandeur. Jayne said Reid was sane and added, "the persecution of which he complains is not the delusion but the actuality that he is deprived of his liberty."

The judge also denied that religiously-inclined Reid tried to prove in his writings that Christ was a female. Reid held rather that while a male in fresh, Christ was the embodiment of virtues of men and women alike, Jayne said.

or unreasonable—maybe he has a cause.

May Become Friend

Try to understand his point of view and you will find the removal of his difficulty much easier. From a possible knocker he may become a friend to the City Hall. A pleasant smile is an invitation to friendliness. Let us be sympathetic and helpful to every fellow employee, but particularly to the one who has just joined the staff. He may be as green and bewildered as we were once. Extend him the helping hand."

That is the "all one happy family theme".

Another topic is "On Keeping Cool", further one—"A Soft Answer".

"Citizens on entering the City Hall," says Mr. Outram, "will ask you questions quite outside your own department. No one person can be expected to know all the answers to all the queries asked of him. So, when you refer a citizen to another department be sure he knows it is not "a brush-off". Take time to say: "I want to get you the correct information. I am sure if you will come with me to Mr. Blank's office, we can find the answer to your question." Etc.

"Little words that count: please; thank you; I'm sorry; excuse me. All such little words of courtesy do a big job in building goodwill. Let us all use them generously.

That sounds altogether like the book Controller Turdiff has in mind for the Capital. And what an atmosphere of goodwill and good manners it will impart to Peterborough's new city hall.

From here on, in the meantime, now that this discursion in decorum has been brought into publicity via Ottawa and its later initiative, John Ratepayer is going to be all set for something approaching perfection in his greeting at the city hall. Any lapse or defection and that Outram book may be opened at the chapter and verse of geniality and suavity and read to the offender.

Apparently this refinement in public relations reaches out to the front line of the men making sewers, laying sidewalks, driving trucks, collecting garbage. They are presumably expected to realize more practically and literally [illegible] that they are to be [illegible] Chief Thompson's men as exceptions to the bright rule, at least in some of the necessarily harsher phases of their occupation.

As for the Utilities crews they are probably to be left to their own devices, but if they were all like "Al Spencley! But, Mr. Spencley is a modest fellow, although it may be said of him at this late date that he missed his vocation or was born too soon—before this comparatively new field of public relations was discovered and expanded, and bright chaps with or without a semester or two in psychology began writing best sellers about it.

Mr. Spencley was just a natural. With more favoring chance of time and other circumstance he could have written a book for Dale Carnegie.

Building Goodwill

Mr. Outram extends his advice briefly along a prudent tangent.

"A safe rule is never let yourself be drawn into talking politics with any ratepayer. Let's stick to building goodwill in our own department and not meddle in politics, where we can easily get into trouble."

There is a short paragraph counselling against making promises unless their fulfillment is reasonably certain. "Nothing shakes a citizen's confidence in the city service so completely or earns ill-will than a rashly made promise that is not kept."

A final word pertains to telephone conversation to which the same convention of consideration of the citizen is recommended.

Here is a little book for the irate or indignant citizen to tuck away into his memory. Chances are he may never think of it again here or in Ottawa or elsewhere, for this upsurge of courtesy seems to be broad and is bound to be emulated in other places, hastening the municipal Utopia or millennium.

Any way, it looks like a fairly long stride toward that bigger and better place to live in.

OTTAWA'S FLASH—Twenty-one-year-old Don Scott McEwan, of Ottawa, has been playing an outstanding role on the University of Michigan's track team this winter. In February the Michigan sophomores set a world record for the indoor cinder-track two miles of nine minutes, 6.9 seconds. Then on March 11 McEwan won the mile race at the Illinois Tech Relays as well as running as anchor man on the Michigan team which won the 2½-mile medley race.

Mr. Craik told Mr. Sallman's history in religious art. Though Sallman began his work when 14 years old it was not until he was 31, in 1940, that he painted his most outstanding picture, "The Head of Christ." This was 16 years after the original sketch was published.

Ont. Government To Supervise Medical Plans

TORONTO, March 14 — (CP) — Government supervision of non-profit, prepaid hospital and medicine plans is provided in a bill given first reading Monday in the Ontario legislature.

The bill, introduced by Attorney-General Porter, provides for registration and supervision of hospital and medical service organizations by the Ontario Department of Insurance.

A charter, required under the Companies Act, may not be issued one of these organizations without approval of the superintendent of insurance. The organization must also be registered under the prescribed act. Application for registration must include the prescribed fee, a copy of every contract or proposed contract with a hospital, or doctor, a certified copy of rates and details of the benefits the association would furnish.

The superindent must satisfy himself the contracts are fair and that the organization has enough working capital. The superintendent may cancel registrations but there is a right of appeal to the Supreme Court of Ontario. The superintendent may also inspect books and records.

Council Demands Inspector Act

OWEN SOUND, March 14 (CP) —City Council Monday night instructed sanitary inspector Keith Montgomery to proceed immediately with a campaign to eliminate "unsatisfactory conditions" created by the 234 outhouses in the city.

The sanitary inspector was also instructed to correct unsanitary conditions caused by septic tanks in the districts not served by sewers. It is estimated that 2,000 of the city's 17,000 people live in premises served by either outdoor toilets or septic tanks.

Inspector Montgomery precipitated the furore over unsanitary sewage disposal practices in an address to an adult education class. He advocated immediate construction of a sewage disposal plant in the city's harbor area. At present raw, untreated sewage is poured from 20 outlets into two rivers flowing through the city's business and residential districts.

Council said Monday night that the idea of a sewage disposal plant was out of the question without Dominion or Provincial grants. The cost of such a plant with necessary sewer linkage was estimated at $4,000,000 and would require an extra tax levy of 22½ mills for 20 years.

ODDFELLOWS AND FRIENDS WELCOME

Three Key Aides Charged Red Supporters

WASHINGTON, March 14 — (AP)—Senator Joseph McCarthy (R., Wis.) Monday attacked three key State Department aides as having shown Communist sympathies and demanded investigation of a navy civilian scientist he described as working on "topmost defense secrets."

McCarthy also said that State Secretary Acheson is trying to "shift the blame" in defending the alleged "loyalty suspect" cases, which the Senator has been airing on Capitol Hill.

"This is all being cleverly loaded on to the shoulders of a harmless and likeable young man by the name of John Peurifoy, deputy undersecretary of state" McCarthy said.

"I hope the secretary will have enough guts to stand up and say: 'This is my baby,' and take the blame for it. I suggest that Mr. Acheson stand up like a man."

Peurifoy has acted as the State Department's chief spokesman in countering McCarthy's allegations that the department is honeycombed with Communists and "fellow travellers."

Partial Evidence

Once again, as partial evidence to substantiate his charges, McCarthy offered newspaper clippings, magazine articles and books, plus statements that some of those he named were sponsors of Communist-front organizations.

Testifying under oath at a crowded hearing before a Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee, McCarthy cited the following persons as having displayed Communist sympathies:

1. Haldore Hanson, 37, head of the State Department technical staff for President Truman's proposed "Four Point" program to help underdeveloped countries. Hanson is a former Associated Press reporter.

2. Owen J. Lattimore, 49, a State Department consultant on Far East affairs, now director of the Walter Hines Page School of International Relations, Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, Md. A Harvard graduate, Lattimore served as political adviser to Gen. Chiang Kai-shek in 1941-42 and was a deputy director of the United States Office of War Information from 1942 to 1944.

3. Mrs. Esther Caukin Brunauer, 48, a $9,706-a-year official on the State Department's United Nations staff.

McCarthy said he wants an inquiry covering Stephen Brunauer, husband of Mrs. Brunauer, a navy commander during the war and employed now in the explosives research division of the navy bureau of ordnance.

Cabinet Won't Order Rail Boost Delayed

OTTAWA, March 14 (CP) — With a group of provincial governments getting ready to appeal to cabinet against the latest freight rate increase, Transport Minister Chevrier Monday told the Commons he did not think the Cabinet should order the increase postponed.

The Minister was answering a question from Hazel Argue (CCF Assiniboia), who wanted to know if the Cabinet would order deferring of the 7.4 per cent hoist awarded the railways March 1 and of any further increases that the Board of Transport Commissioners might grant as the result of a railway appeal against the size of that increase.

The March 1 award is due to go into effect March 23. On top of it, the railways have appealed to the board for another 3.4 per cent. They contend that body erred legally by finding a deficieney in rail revenues and failing to cover it with the 7.4 per cent boost.

Few Threats Seen To Canada's Chances

LONDON, March 14 (CP) — Britain, Sweden and Switzerland drew first blood in the world hockey tournament which opened here Monday. But there appears to be little to threaten Canada's chances of copping the crown which the Czechs refused to defend.

Jimmy Graham, coach of Edmonton Mercurys, shook his greying head, saying, "I haven't seen anything yet to stop us."

In Monday's opening games Britain blanked France 9-0; Sweden outplayed the United States 8-3; and Switzerland rolled up a basketball score against Belgium, 24-3.

With the Czechs out of the tournament as a result of a last-minute decision at cabinet level in the Communist-dominated country, the Swedes appear to have the best chance to put up a fight against favored Canada for the championship. They trimmed a travel-weary, but still remarkably unimpressive, United States squad with considerable ease in a rough game.

Fox was outstanding for the winners, having two goals, while singles were garnered by H. Fox, Evans, Stephenson, Morrissey, Brown and Little. Goalie Ash shone for the losers, the snipers being Roberts, McDougall, McFadden and Stewart.

There was no bantam PMHA playoff at Civic Arena last night, games listed for tomorrow being: Optimist bantams vs. St. Peter's at 5.30, and Trojan midgets vs. Southend at 6.30. Plan Campaign To Sell More To U.S. Buyers

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

The phrase "total diplomacy" is the latest addition to the "cold war" vocabulary in the United States.

Its purpose is not new at all but an expansion of the ideas behind such things as the European recovery program and other emergency measures by which the Western world has been sustained amid its post-war difficulties.

Sam Dawson, of the Associated Press, says the campaign, by government officials and a number of associations of business men, goes all the way from talk of underground factories and population shifts to an advertising campaign to get more foreign goods into American stores.

He says the drive will, of course, meet opposition in many quarters, both political and industrial; some will say it is laying the ground for "just another give-away program"; others that American business and labor will be hurt by cheap imports.

To Buy More

Of particular interest to Canadians will be the effort to get Americans to buy more goods from other countries; partly because that is something we need to do ourselves; and partly because we are among those who want to sell more to the United States.

In this connection the Advertising Council—an non-profit group sponsoring public advertising — has announced it will study plans for a country-wide advertising campaign to educate Americans on world economic problems. The council chairman says:

"All things being equal, the more we can exchange goods with other countries the better for all of us"—surely an encouraging expression to hear from the U.S.

The U.S. National Association of Manufacturers is starting the ball rolling with a series of meetings in major cities with the subject: "How to bring our foreign trade into a sound relationship of balanced imports and exports without burden to the American taxpayer."

Of another part of "total diplomacy" Dawson says:

"As a first step in making investments abroad attractive to American capital the Treasury has ruled that Americans doing business abroad can postpone paying federal income taxes on earnings they can't convert into dollars.

City Fathers In Dublin Give Newlyweds Break

By MICHAEL O'MARA

DUBLIN, March 14—(CP)—Newly-weds are getting a break from Dublin's city fathers. They'll have preferential treatment in the allotment of 200 houses at suburban Ballyfermot. Applicants for the new homes must furnish proof that they were married between January, 1945, and December, 1949. Weekly rents will range in proportion to the tenants' wages, between 12s. 6d. ($1.95) and £1. 8s. 6d. ($4.40).

Housing is still scarce in the Republic of Ireland's capital, but an increased rate of building is helping to ease the situation.

More than 1,400 dwellings were completed last year, compared to 500 in 1948. At the year-end, 2,998 houses were in progress, compared with 2,442 a year before.

More Work Needed

"Our only real hope of reducing Irish emigration lies in providing more openings in industry," Daniel Morrisey, Minister for Industry and Commerce, said at a Dublin dinner recently.

The country's proportion of working population engaged in industry was, perhaps, the lowest in Europe — less than 20 per cent, compared with 40 per cent in The Netherlands and 33 per cent in France.

It had been calculated that so far as the Irish market alone was concerned, the volume of manufactured and processed goods which could have been made at home but which were imported in 1948, would have kept 45,000 Irish workers employed.

That Irish industrial products could find market abroad was proved by the £2,000,000 ($6,200,000) increase in exports in 1948 as compared with 1947. The Government was giving "very active attention" to developing the export of manufactured goods.

Morrisey aired his often-repeated suggestion that Ireland was an ideal country for foreign capital to invest in industry. Labor and power were cheap and "risks of military, political, social or economic upheavals do not exist."

Police Shocked At Orgies Of Teen-Agers

ZANESVILLE, O., March 14 — (AP)—Authorities were shocked today by stories of sex orgies involving at least 20 young people —most of them 'teen-agers.

A country-wide investigation of drinking and illicit sex relations was ordered by assistant prosecutor Christy Dunn.

Robert Snelling, captain of detectives who is conducting the investigation which has resulted in jailing of the youngsters; today revealed this bit of questioning of a 15-year-old girl.

"How many men were you out with that night?" he asked the girl.

"Oh, five," she replied.

"Wasn't that a lot?" the detective asked.

"No," she answered. "I was out with 24 the night before."

As police questioned the youngsters, some of whom have records for juvenile delinquency, they made plans to close in on a man they were told rented out his shack for parties—in return for a bottle of wine. They said the man lives alone near Zanesville and has no occupation.

Nine Youths Jailed

Thus far nine youths ranging in ages from 15 to 20 years have been sentenced to jail for from 10 to 60 days. All pleaded guilty to contributing to the delinquency of minor girls.

Police still are holding six other boys. One 15-year-old boy was released to his parents.

Four girls are in custody, and authorities planned to swear out warrants for other youths today.

A local restaurant—described as a "hot dog stand" where no liquor is sold, was said by police to be the meeting place for couples before sex offences which took place in alleys, automobiles, and elsewhere throughout the county.

Of the three other girls still being questioned, one is 18 years of age and the married mother of a 14-month-old child. Another is 17 and the third is 18.

Asks Ottawa Help Pay Dredging River

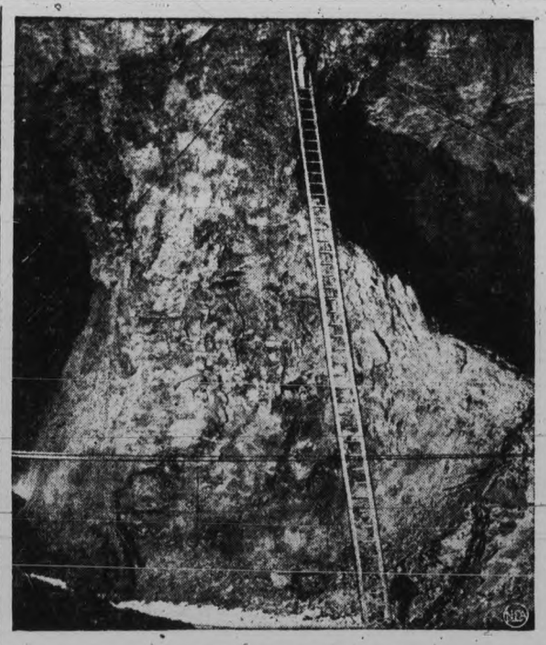
OTTAWA, March 14 (CP)—J. O. Gour (L-Russell) Monday night in the Commons urged the Federal government to participate in dredging and other work necessary to prevent the South Nation River from flooding.

Speaking in the throne-speech debate, Mr. Gour said the Ontario government has drafted a good plan, which if carried out would cost about $2,000,000. This money would have to be spent by the Federal and Ontario governments.

Since most of the work would be done in rural areas, municipalities would not be in a position to contribute, although they would benefit.

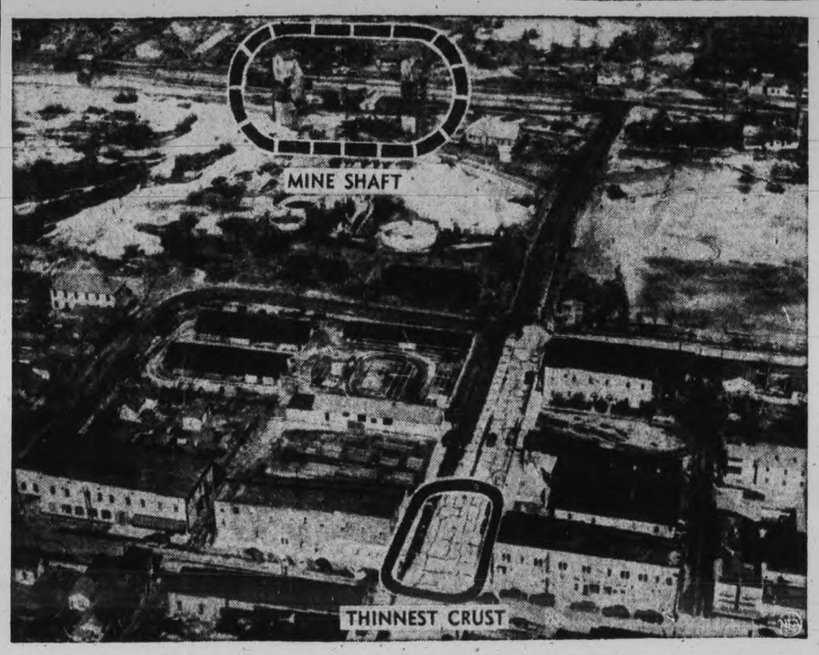
The work on the river would provide great benefits for 12 Ontario municipalities — Matilda, Mountain, Winchester, Edwardsburg, Augusta, Finch, Cambridge, Plantagenet, Alfred, Plantagenet North, Chesterville and Casselman.

The work would prevent the river from flooding its banks in the spring and after heavy storms.



Pleased With Profit

He said also farmers in his constituency were pleased with the net profit they realized on their products last year, but they found the cost of things they needed too high.



If prices were brought down, farmers would be able to buy more. Production would have to be increased to meet this demand and stores and factories would have to hire more people. This would relieve unemployment.

Mr. Gour said Canada had plenty of ability and could reduce production costs so that this country could compete in any market. It was true Canada had done more for the United Kingdom than any other country. But when it came to matters of trade it was only natural that the UK should turn to the market selling at the lowest prices.

Two Men Baked In Oven At 180 Degrees, Live To Tell Policemen

Detectives Told 5 Men Carried Out Torture In Unwarranted Grudge Fight; Beaten Before Tossed Into Giant Oven

MONTREAL, March 15—(CP)—A 43-year-old father of seven children charged today he was beaten up, painted red and then roasted in the nude by five men who stuffed him into a bake oven. Charles Edouard Roy swore out warrants Tuesday for the arrest of five persons who allegedly beat and tortured him Monday. Det.-Capt. Bill Fitzpatrick, Chief of Montreal's Homicide Squad, said four persons had been arrested and a fifth is sought.

Displaying a black eye and walking with a limp, Roy said he had been beaten, covered with red metallic paint after his clothes had been removed, and then tossed into a 180-degrees 10-by-six-foot bake oven.

He said he was kept captive there for eight minutes.

Roy said he was lured to a St. James Street building and tortured by five mployees of the concern which operates in the building. The attack, he added, was carried out by the five on orders of their boss who had accused Roy of interfering with the boss's home life.

"There is no truth to that accusation," said Roy.

Roy's brother, Alphonse, is employed by the company in whose quarters the attack allegedly occurred.

Same Treatment

Roy told police, and Alphonse confirmed this, that he too was placed in the meat chamber but he had not been as badly beaten up as Roy.

Alphonse told police, and Roy confirmed that he had been forced to enter the oven in the nude and the intense heat knocked him unconscious. When he regained consciousness he was lying half in and half out of the heat room.

Detectives told The Canadian Press that Roy had been subjected to a medical examination which proved "beyond a doubt" that he had been subjected to severe abuse.

He told police that he had been accused of making telephone calls which were aimed at creating a rift between one of his attackers and the latter's wife. He denied knowledge of any such calls.

SEYMOUR FARMER, 81, WAS BEATEN AND ROBBED of $1,000 at the back door of his farm home eight miles east of Campbellford on Tuesday night. Attack Elderly Man Outside House, Rifle His Pockets

CAMPBELLFORD, March 15—(ENS)—An 81-year-old Seymour township farmer, known to carry large sums of money with him, was beaten into unconsciousness Tuesday night by two men and robbed of more than $1,000.

The two unidentified assailants accosted George Stollery at the rear door of his isolated farm home, eight miles east of Campbellford on the Stirling Road. They dragged him out of the house, frisked him of his money as he lay bleeding in a snowbank and then searched his house.

Mr. Stollery managed to stagger a quarter of a mile—part of the way through three-foot snowdrifts—to the home of his nephew, Edgar Stollery. Here he was given medical attention by Dr. W. W. Baker of Campbellford and police were notified.

Mr. Stollery's condition is regarded as serious and he has a possible broken nose and facial cuts and bruises. Later today he was taken to Belleville hospital to be X-rayed and to have the full extent of his head injuries determined.

Steel Controls To Be Ended On March 31

OTTAWA, March 15 (CP). — Trade Minister Howe today announced that Federal steel controls will come to an end March 31.

Mr. Howe said in a statement that Steel Controller D. A. Jones will resign his post and return to private industry.

Termination of steel controls results from the Trade Department estimate that the world shortage in steel which became critical in 1946 now is at an end.

"The steel situation now is substantially improved," Mr. Howe said, "and while work stoppages in the United States are having a temporary adverse effect on the Canadian steel situation, the future position is considered satisfactory."

Praises Job

Mr. Howe complimented Mr. Jones piloting of Canadian industry through a difficult period, "during which he displayed both capacity and ingenuity."

"It is largely through his efforts that the Canadian steel situation has been brought to a position which no longer requires government control," Mr. Howe said.

Mr. Jones, a native of Hamilton was on loan to the government by the Steel Company of Canada. He became deputy steel controller in February, 1949, and steel controller two months later.

Laborites Beat Third Crisis By 19 Votes

LONDON, March 15 (AP) — The Labor Government Tuesday night beat a third Conservative attempt in the House of Commons to upset the Socialist regime. The Tories unsuccessfully attacked Labor spending policies.

The motion of censure by opposition leader Winston Churchill was defeated 308 to 289, giving Labor a winning margin of 19.

The Conservative attack was indirectly aimed at Labor's handling of the country's vast health scheme, leaders of which had asked for extra appropriations over the amounts of their 1949-1950 budget.

But before the vote was taken Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, told the House of Commons a halt would be called to expansion of the National Health Service. He also warned other departments to adhere to their budgets.

Various government departments had asked for an extra

"Taking his car away from an offender is a very great penalty and one which in many cases will be more effective than jailing," he said.

Hush-hush Defence Parley

OTTAWA, March 15—(CP)—The most hush-hush defence conference Ottawa has known since the war opened today, underlining the fact that Canada has quietly and largely in secret stepped into the front rank of Allied studies of bacteriological or germ warfare. The second scientific conference sponsored by the Defence Department's Research Board, was launched under such stringent secrecy precautions that no one would say where it was being held. The chairman, Dr. O. M. Solandt, is Director-General of Defence Research and one of Canada's four Chiefs of Staff.

In attendance were Canadian, American and British scientists, experts in radar, in germ, gas, Arctic, psychological and other forms of warfare.

The subjects under discussion for the next three days are of a high level secrecy classification, even more so than at the first conference last year.

Public relations officers of the defence department were told not another line about the conference will be made public beyond an announcement of the meeting made two days ago.

There were plans for a press conference to explain why such secrecy must prevail, but these were abandoned.

Scientific papers to be delivered by Canadian scientists will does in the germ the chemical warfare al station near Suffield, Alta., is shared with Britain and the United States on an exchange basis. This conference is one method of such an exchange.

Drunk Driving Penalties To Be Doubled In Ontario

TORONTO, March 15—(CP)—Penalties for drunken driving in Ontario will be stiffened under an amendment to the Ontario Highway Traffic Act introduced Tuesday in the Legislature. The present act provides that a person convicted of driving while intoxicated may have his vehicle impounded and his licence suspended for three months for the first offence, six for the second and 12 for the third. These suspension periods will be doubled under the amendment if the offence results in an accident in which anyone is injured or property damaged.

Mr. Doucett, highways minister, explained it was his belief that the withdrawal of driving privileges and immobilization of the vehicle would act as a greater deterrent than the jail sentences provided in the Criminal Code.

Grocer Uncovers Cheque Racket

STAYNER, March 15 (CP) — A tip from a suspicious grocer, Walter Clemence, led to the arrest Tuesday of two men and seizure of machines for making out cheques.

Frank Greeley, 35, and Kenneth Johnston, 45, were charged with forgery and held in custody at a date-stamping gadget and a telephone books, police said.

It also contained more than $25,000 in cheques already made out, stamped and signed for numerous southern Ontario business firms, police said. Most were for $35 or $45.

The cheque-books in the bag, police said, are for banks in Guelph, Galt, Kingston, Cornwall, Montreal, Barrie, Brockville and Belleville.

Sunday Sports Bill Ready By Thursday

TORONTO, March 15—(CP)—Legislation legalizing commercial Sunday sport in Ontario, after a vote by municipalities concerned, is in the final stages of drafting and may be introduced in the Legislature Thursday, it was learned Tuesday.

The draft as it now stands is reported to permit municipalities to determine by a majority vote whether they want games on Sunday. Voting would be restricted to those on municipal lists.

Other reported provisions of the draft:

1. If a majority favors Sunday sport it will be up to the municipal council to decide what games will be permitted.

2. Hours at which games may be played are stated, the period suggested being between 1:30 p.m. and 6 p.m.

3. All events will be banned at which there is legalized gambling. This would rule out such sports as horse-racing.

No Co-operation Tribe Decides

SEROWE, Bechunanaland, Mar. 15—(Reuters)—The Bamangwato Tribe—protesting against the British Government's decision to exile its chief-designate, Seretse Khama, for five years—today started its "non co-operation" policy.

They refused to distribute a government statement.

The tribe already had decided to pay no more taxes.

Today the district commissioner's office prepared mimeographed copies of the statement in parliament by Patrick Gordon-Walk-

The players were returning from Unionville to Toronto, a few miles south, when the accident occurred. Driver of the car, James Forrester, 15, suffered severe concussion and abrasions. Sir Stafford, defending the government, hinted that the health service might even be cut in the future. He said: "We must bring expenditure on health into its proper proportion with food subsidies, education and all the other matters that vitally concern the safety and happiness of our people."

Labor approached this third test of power with a greater show of confidence, having weathered two other parliamentary attacks within six days. Defeat on any one of the three challenges would have forced the government to resign.

Military Agreement Hinders News Stories

OTTAWA, March 15 — (CP) — Naval and defence department spokesmen said Tuesday night that a Canadian-United States agreement covering joint military exercise may prevent daily news coverage of the largest post-war naval manoeuvres which started Monday in the Caribbean.

(In Washington it was disclosed that commanders of U.S. units and the press officers covering the joint Canadian-British-American exercises were reminded of the agreement in instructions labelled "restricted.")

The agreement, signed in 1947, provides that no press releases will be issued by either country on joint exercises without prior clearance by both participants.

Spokesmen here said they did not believe special arrangements had been made to expedite news coverage of the Caribbean manoeuvres such as were used successfully during "Sweetbriar" in Alaska and the Yukon.

Welsh Crash So Sudden Passengers Never Knew It

ST. ATAN, Wales, March 15—(AP)—The tense dramatic story of history's worst air disaster was told in simple words today by two of the three survivors.

The two, able to walk away from the crash of the Tudor V airliner which killed 80 persons Sunday, said the accident came so suddenly they still were bracing themselves for the shock after it was all over.

The other passengers "never knew what happened," one said.

They were interviewed today at the R.A.F. station hospital here, where the third survivor still is on the danger list.

The two who were able to talk were Gwyn Anthony, 26-year-old school teacher, and his brother-in-law, Handel Rogers, 33. Both are former R.A.F. men.

"We were coming in for a normal landing and the air hostess told us to prepare to land," Anthony said. "We were sitting in the tail of the machine and we had gone there because we thought we would get a better view. All the passengers were quiet, strapped to their seats and there had been no singing or anything of that sort because they were tired after their trip.

"Some of them were picking out landmarks and were very happy to think they were arriving home safely.

"Everything was going along very smoothly when suddenly the plane took a steep upward climb. As a former member of the R.A.F. I instictively felt something was wrong and I braced myself against the seat."

"Almost immediately I saw earth and metal flying all around and I waited for a further crash, but I found we had already come to earth.

Ching Invites Reuther Discuss UAW Strike

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP) —Federal Mediator Cyrus S. Ching invited Labor leader Walter Reuther today to discuss the Automobile Works ' strike at the Chrysler Corporation. The bid indicated mounting government concern over the long deadlock.

The strike began Jan. 25 over the union's demand for a 10-cent hourly allocation a worker to cover $100 monthly pensions or a wage increase. The company refused to earmark any pension amount for each employee, and the 90,000 production workers walked out.

Reuther, here for congressional testimony on social security as president of the United Auomobile Workers' Union (CIO), was expected to meet with Ching sometime during the day.

There have been indications since the Chrysler strike began, those close to the negotiations report, that Reuther may boost his demands as time for the opening of his contract with General Motors nears. That agreement expires May 29.

21 Homeless In Ottawa Fire

OTTAWA, March 15 (CP)—A five-hour two-alarm fire partially gutted a combined business-apartment block in mid-town Ottawa early today sending two firemen to hospital and leaving 21 persons homeless.

Damage was unofficially estimated at between $175,000 and $200,000 in the blaze which began in a restaurant basement and ate its way through apartments on two upper storeys, finally collapsing part of the roof.

Taken to hospital were firemen Clint Avery and George Aldrich. Both were struck by a shower of falling bricks at the rear of Locanada Grill where two cleaners discovered the blaze at 4 a.m. and gave the alarm. Neither fireman was seriously hurt.

Early morning traffic along Bank Street was disrupted by the blaze at the corner of Laurier Avenue as police cars and fire apparatus went to the scene. Police routed sleeping apartment-dwellers from their beds and all left the building without trouble but with little time to throw more than a coat over their night attire.

The first horse drawn was Rowland Roy a 50-to-1 shot in the Grand National. Sweepstakes observers estimated that almost half of the 13 tickets drawn on Rowland Roy were sold in the United States.

Starlet 9, Reverses Story Not Starved Tells Judge

HOLLYWOOD, March 15 (AP) —Runaway Lora Lee Michel, $100-a-day child actress, has reversed her stories of being starved to keep thin for movie roles, says Juvenile Judge A. A. Scott.

"She is a precocious, emotional child who could get a lot of people into trouble," Judge Scott said said Tuesday night after a long interview with the nine-year-old child.

He said she told him she had never been beaten or starved by her foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Michel, and that they had been wonderful to her.

Monday night the youngster left the Michel's apartment and, clad only in pyjamas, took a cab to the home of Rev. Alfred Sundstrum in nearby Burbank.

He said she told him "I had to get away, I couldn't stand it any longer."

The girl had stayed with the minister during last month's custody battle. The Michels were awarded care of the child over the objections of her natural mother, Mrs. Lena Brunson, of Nederland, Tex., who had relinquished her several years ago.

Judge Scott said the girl told him that scratches on her legs were inflicted accidentally during the filming of a movie and not from mistreatment. Although she earlier had claimed she had lost 10 pounds, he said, the scales showed she had gained four pounds since her last visit to Juvenile Hall a month ago.

Poland Withdraws From World Bank

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP) —Poland today withdrew from the world bank with an angry charge that the 48-country institution is under the thumb of the United States and "its imperialist policy." It also pulled out of the international monetary fund.

In a communication to the bank the Communist-dominated Polish government cited the refusal of the bank to grant it a $200,000,000 loan. It said the reason was Poland's rejection of "the so-called Marshall Plan which had as its aim the subordination of Europe to the United States and the rebuilding of the war potential of Germany."

Camille Gutt, managing director of the international monetary fund, announced Poland's withdrawal from membership in it. He did not make public the letter of resignation but presumably it was along the same tenor as that given the bank.

The bank announced the Polish letter had been referred to its board of directors and that a reply would be made "in due course."

Foreign Trade Profit Hits January Low

OTTAWA, March 15 (CP) — Canada's drive for a large share of the United States market showed marked success in January, but tightening markets in other parts of the world forced her monthly foreign-trade profit to the lowest point since the war.

In the first month of the year Canada sold $223,800,000 worth of goods on foreign markets and sharply trimmed her buying from other countries to $211,900,000 for a profit of $11,800,000.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics said Tuesday in a survey of foreign trade that the January profit was $3,400,000 below the $15,200,000 trade surplus for the same month in 1949, and far below the whopping $104,200,000 balance in 1945.

Despite the overall profit decline, Canadians sold $113,000,000 worth of goods to the U.S. in January—the highest peacetime figure for that month and a marked increase from the $117,300,000 figure for January, 1949.

Pare Imports

At the same time they pared their U.S. imports from $164,800,000 a year ago to $154,500,000. Most of the decline reflected smaller purchases of U.S. capital goods.

Canada sold less and bought more from the United Kingdom than the year before. Imports from the U.K. rose from $25,400,000 a year ago to $26,100,000, while exports slid to $48,900,000, down $7,000,000.

The $22,800,000 surplus in trade with the U.K. more than eliminated a deficit of $21,500,000 with the U.S.

In a separate statement, the bureau reported that Canada exported $15,800,000 worth of gold in January, the highest export for that month in peacetime history.

Rev. C. G. Boyd Heads Presbytery

The Rev. C. G. Boyd, minister of St. Paul's Church, Peterborough, was Tuesday elected Moderator of the Peterborough Presbytery. He succeeds the Rev. Newton Reid of Colborne.

The meeting was held in St. Paul's Church. Commissioners to the General Assembly to be held in Montreal in June will be the Rev. Walter Patterson, Millbrook, and the Rev. E. N. McKay of Cobourg. Lay delegates are C. Spence, Colborne, and James Dutton, Peterborough.

A two-day congress will precede the Assembly, scheduled for June 7, to celebrate the 75th anniversary of the Presbyterian Church in Canada in its present form.

The Presbytery moderated a call to the Rev. F. R. Meredith to the charge of Bowmanville and Newtonville.

Next meeting of the Presbytery will be at St. Andrew's, Cobourg, on June 20.

Industrial Stocks In Strong Demand

TORONTO, March 15 (CP) — Industrial stocks were in strong demand on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Gains ranging from fractions to a full point were chalked up by a wide list of market leaders to pull the industrial list into new high ground. Volume for the first three hours was 512,000 shares.

Papers led industrials higher with Great Lakes, Powell River Minnesot and Ontario selling at new highs. Utilities, foods, refining oils and liquors were also higher.

Base metals scored a handful of good gains. Consolidated Smelters, Noranda were ahead fractions. International Nickel slipped in early trading but recovered at the half-way mark.

Macassa Mines re-entered the gold spotlight. Other Kirkland Lake district stocks also brightened.

Gains ranged up to 10 cents in a few key western oils.

Car Argues With Truck Car Comes Out Loser

About $150 damage was done to the front of a car driven by Archie R. Johnstone, Toronto, which collided with a truck driven by T. Lloyd Endicott, 76 Aylmer St., at George and Lansdowne Sts. today.

Constable Robert Menzies reported that Johnstone was driving south on George St. Johnstone said he put on his brakes to stop at Lansdowne St., but skidded on the slippery street.

He met in collision with the truck, making a left turn from going east on Lansdowne St. No appreciable damage was done to the truck, but the left front fender, grill, headlight and radiator of the Johnstone truck were all damaged.

Police Officers Called For Inquiry

WINDSOR, March 15 (CP) — Both city police and Ontario Provincial Police officers are to be among the 12 or more witnesses called tomorrow to appear before the Windsor police commission's public inquiry into "allegations of corruption" in the police department, it was learned today.

Only three actual summons could be confirmed today. They went to County Magistrate J. A. Hanrahan, Police Chief Claude Renaud and Deputy Chief W. H. Neale.

Most law-enforcement officers and police officials remained mum today as reporters besieged them for further details.

One report that County Judge Albert J. Gordon may resign his post on the three-man police commission is reported by the Windsor Star. The paper quotes the judge as saying "I have nothing to say except that I'll be on Charge Laxity

The enquiry was called after laxity in Windsor police activity was charged last week in a written judgment by Magistrate Hanrahan during a bootleg case.

Officials of the Windsor Police Association refused comment today on their emergency meeting called Tuesday night.

The Star says, however, it has learned that the meeting was told by its executive that the Mayor urged the association "to endorse a resolution denouncing allegations of laxity in law enforcement in the city."

The Star says the association meeting voted down the proposal by a 74-12 majority.

is of the opinion the savage beating of the elderly man was carried out by bare fists alone.

The attackers are believed to be local men because they knew of his reputation as a wealthy bachelor farmer who kept "thousands of dollars" on his person. After pummelling Mr. Stollery into insensibility they rifled his pockets and found the money jammed into two billfolds.

Nothing Inside Shirt

By reputation Mr. Stollery keeps further sums sewn inside his shirt and that was one of the first places his attackers looked. All the money, however, was in the two billfolds.

Leaving him lying in the snow the two men then entered the farmhouse to obtain further loot. They took nothing but cut the telephone cord so Mr. Stollery could not phone for help.

Although his memory of the whole incident is still hazy the 81-year-old man retains some clear impressions of what happened.

He told police he answered a knock at the door at about 8 p.m. and when he opened it he was "jumped."

"I don't believe I know you fellows," he said by way of greeting but the thugs were not in a conversational mood and after pulling him clear of his backdoor began their systematic beating.

Didn't Have Chance

"I guess I should have fought a little harder but they were on me before I knew what was happening," was his stoical comment.

In the excitement attack Mr. Stollery thought there were three men but tracks in the snow clearly showed two men entering the front drive of his property and two men leaving.

The elderly man lives alone on his property, a quarter of a mile from his nearest neighbour, his nephew Edgar. His house is also more than 200 yards in from the Stirling road. A bachelor, he has lived there for the past 24 years but he no longer actively farms

Ford Company, Union Plan To Meet Again

WINDSOR, March 15—(CP)— Further meetings between Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. and Local 200, United Automobile Workers (CIO) over their deadlocked pensions dispute, are still a possibility, it was learned Tuesday. It now is expected the company and union will meet again tomorrow or Thursday.

The dispute has been deadlocked since last November over the union's demands for $100-a-month company-paid retirement pensions for its 11,000 Ford auto workers. A recent Ontario conciliation board recommended by a two-thirds majority acceptance of the company's counter offer of $55 a month. The decision is not binding on either party.

"However," he added, the "motor league holds no brief for drunk drivers and is anxious to see them taken off our roads."

The Legislature heard MacKinnon Phillips (PC-Grey North) advocate a federal-provincial-municipal contributory hospital care plan, free to indigent patients.

Indigent patients are the responsibility of the State and he three levels of government should pay the contributions of these persons to non-profit contributory hospital plans such as the Blue Cross, Mr. Phillips said.

Mr. Phillips spoke in the Throne-speech debate. Other speakers were J. C. Brown (Lib., Waterloo North), J. L. Easton (CCF, Hamilton Wentworth) and William Murdoch (PC, Essex South).

Advance Opening

Premier Frost said he hopes to end the Throne-speech debate by Friday. For the rest of the week the House opening will be advanced an hour to 2 p.m. in an attempt to avoid night sittings.

Mr. Brown suggested establishment of a provincial board of police commissioners which would screen all applications for positions on the Ontario Provi... staff. Yvonne Rose[illegible]

Ernest Keays of the Belleville detachment of the OPP, who said fellow officers were guilty of maladministration. The investigation of the constable's charges had cost the province more than $12,500.

He said the government might have taken the opportunity of the Throne speech to forecast amendments to the Charitable Gifts Act, removing retroactive clauses. The act was an issue in the recent by-election in Leeds but H. A. Reynolds, successful Progressive Conservative candidate, had been elected there "despite, not because of, the Charitable Gifts Act."

The bill requires charitable foundations such as the Atkinson Foundation, owners of the Toronto Daily Star and the Star Weekly, to dispose of all but 10 per cent of their interest in any business.

Mr. Easton said Japanese dress shirts were being sold in Toronto and Montreal for $1.19. This unfair competition was possible benese workers, some of whom made only 35 cents a day, he said. The imports "sound the death knell of the shirt industry in Canada."

Mr. Murdoch asked for marketing schemes for all agricultural products.

Ask North Shore Route

TORONTO, March 15 (CP) — The Trades and Labor Congress today asked the Ontario Government to designate number 17 Highway around the north shore of Lake Superior as part of Ontario's section of the trans-Canada Highway route. The request was included in a brief presented today to Premier Frost and his cabinet recommending changes in the proposed new labor code and other legislation.

Family Fights Bequest Left To Nurse

TORONTO, March 15 (CP)—A Hamilton salesman's widow and her four daughters today contested in Surrogate Court the validity of the bequest of a secret $16,000 Toronto estate to a blonde nurse who lived part time with the salesman for 18 years.

Mrs. Anne Jane Reynolds, 62, told Judge Shea she had "no suspicion" her late husband maintained a separate Toronto home from 1931 to 1949.

She said she was unaware her husband had lived another life with former Edmonton nurse Irene Mary MacDonald. It was not until after Reynolds' death his family found out about Miss MacDonald.

Miss MacDonald, 43, is asking Surrogate Court to declare valid the separate will Reynolds left her when he died last year. In it, Reynolds left Miss MacDonald bonds, bank accounts and mink furs that accumulated here during the 18 years.

"I was always a happily married woman," Mrs. Reynolds testified. "I waited on him hand and foot . . . there was never any change in our family relationship."

Miss MacDonald, a registered nurse and graduate of Edmonton General Hospital, said she left her parents' home in 1931 to come to Toronto and "live a part of every week-end with Reynolds."

Basketball Hoopers Tie In Final Shots

Chum Gillespie and Gord Burns tied in the finals of the basketball foul shooting Tuesday night at the YMCA. Both the Marine basketball players flipped in 45 out of 50 shots to lead five entrants. Gillespie had the longest run of perfect throws with 17 while Burns had 12 in a row. The final champion will be decided at a future Outboard Marine basketball game.

Darrell Ackford of the PCVS seniors placed third with 43 good shots while Ab Stewart of the Marines had 40 and Neil Thompson of the collegiate seniors 38. All these players were finalists in the two preliminary throwing nights.

Donald Griffin, top freshman athlete at Queen's University this year, won the trophy last year with 46 out of 50. Other winners were Gordie Burns with 45 in 1948 and Bill Edger with 40 in 1947.

ONE MINUTE NEWS ABOUT JOHNS-MANVILLE

WARSHIP SAILS WITHOUT POWDER

During the war, a big aircraft carrier was at sea when an alarming discovery was made. A vitally needed material was missing! The ship put back and waited while a rush supply was delivered by air.

What was this material that a carrier couldn't do without? It was a special grade of Johns-Manville Celite—a vital powder to filter oil from the water that supplies a ship's boilers.

Johns-Manville research has made a really valuable product. You'll find it in writing paper, auto polish and DDT . . . as a filter aid for penicillin and sulfa, and as a high temperature insulation for industry. For details on how Celite can be used in your industry, write Johns-Manville, 199 Bay St., Toronto.

J. ALBERT GUAY was sentenced to be hanged June 23 for the murder of his wife, a slaying which the Crown described as a "diabolical" crime because the 32-year-old jeweler caused an air disaster which killed 22 others.

Death Penalty To Be Asked

MOSCIUSKO, Miss., March 15 —(AP)—The State of Mississippi, which rarely has executed a white man for killing a Negro, planned to seek the death penalty today for 25-year-old Windol Whitt.

Whitt and two other men are charged with murder in the massacre of three children Jan. 8 in the home of Negro tenant farmer Thomas Harris.

Whitt goes to trial today and the other two defendants follow in consecutive weeks. They are Leon Turner, 38, and Malcolm Whitt, 27, brother of Windol.

District Attorney Henry Rodgers said the death penalty —execution in the electric chair — would be asked in each case.

Rodgers described the shooting of Ruby Nell Harris, 4, and of Frankie Thurman, 12, and Mary Bunside, 8, as a vengeance slaying. The prosecutor said the three white men believed the Negro family turned them in on complaints of burglary and attempt to rape Harris' wife.

Gallinger Leaves For Phillies' Camp

KITCHENER, March 15 (CP)— Don Gallinger, playing manager of the Waterloo Tigers senior baseball team for the last two seasons, announced today he will leave March 29 for Seafor, Pa., to attend Philadelphia Phillies training camp.

Gallinger said he will try for an outfield berth and if he is offered a contract will probably turn professional, but only if he can join a club in "A" classification of the Phillies farm chain.

Gallinger was offered a contract to play "A" ball in 1945 after he worked out two weeks at Boston with both the Braves of the National League and the Red Sox of the American League.

He rejected the offer at that time in preference for a hockey career with Boston Bruins. He now is under suspension by the NHL over gambling charges.

Defence Group Turned Down By Commons

OTTAWA, March 15—(CP). — The Commons, after witnessing a noisy, heated verbal battle between George Drew, Progressive Conservative Leader, and Defence Minister Claxton, Tuesday night voted against establishment of a Defence Committee.

By a vote of 106 to 51, members rejected a Progressive Conservative motion calling for the establishment of a committee to examine Canada's defence establishment and expenditures. But the vote, which saw the Progressive Conservative, CCF and Social Credit Parties line up in opposition against the government, came as an anti-climax.

The fireworks started after Mr. Claxton challenged a charge by Mr. Drew that the Defence Minister had deliberately attempted to mislead the House on defence matters.

Angry interjections were tossed back and forth across the floor while Speaker Ross Macdonald shouted for order. At the height of the disturbance, Trade Minister Howe reached over and extended a hand to keep the Defence Minister in his seat.

Misleading Statement

Mr. Drew said Mr. Claxton had misled Canadians by saying during a recent Western tour that Canada soon would have the highest proportion of jet planes in the world.

Jumping to his feet, Mr. Claxton shouted he had said no such thing. He challenged Mr. Drew to produce the "exact report."

Mr. Drew began reading an

2 RAF Bombers Crash, 9 Killed

LONDON, March 15—(AP)— Two RAF four-engined bombers crashed within an hour early today, killing at least 11 men.

The planes were Lincoln bombers, modernized version of the wartime Lancasters and now the standard RAF bombing ships.

The first crash occurred about 1:30 a.m. local time when a plane returning from a training flight overshot the runway at Hemswell RAF station. Five crew members were killed and the sixth was injured.

The second crash came almost an hour later as another Lincoln bomber struck a Welsh mountainside in the darkness. The plane crashed about 2,000 feet up on the slopes of Carnedd Llewelyn, 3,484-foot peak near Snowdon, Wales.

RAF rescue squads recovered four bodies from the wreckage in Wales by noon today. They continued searching for more possible victims.

Million Dollar Fire Razes Crumlin Hangar, Radar Set

LONDON, Ont., March 15—(CP)—A spectacular fire that destroyed an RCAF hangar at near-by Crumlin Tuesday night, with a mobile radar station, other radar equipment and 15 motor vehicles caused damage estimated unofficially at more than $1,000,000.

The wartime hangar of steel and wood construction was occupied by No. 9420 Squadron of the RCAF permanent force.

No aircraft were in the burned building. Another near-by hangar housing several planes of No. 420 City of London Fighter Squadron (reserve) and another mobile radar convoy was saved because a strong southwest wind whipped flames away from it toward the open airport.

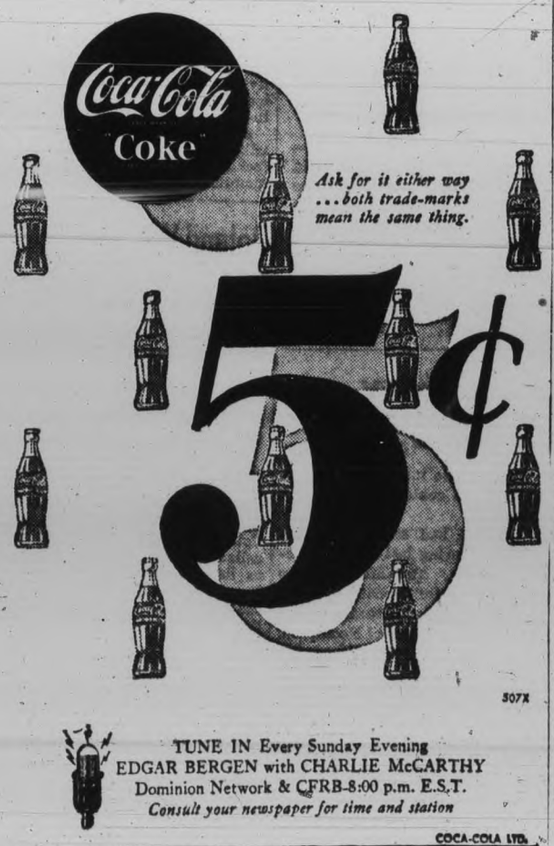
Seen For Miles

The blaze, six miles east of London, was visible for miles, and was fought by air force fire crews, assisted by two trucks and crews from the London Fire Department. LAC Ross McComb was overcome by smoke while helping to control the fire but was revived by an inhalator squad.

Cause of the blaze was not determined immediately. City Fire Chief R. C. McRonald, said it might have started in electric wiring.

An RCAF spokesman said the major loss was in the burning of radar equipment which he valued at about $750,000. He said the hangar itself had cost more than $250,000 when it was built in war years.

Couldn't Save Equipment



Sqdn.-Ldr. George Lee, who took over command of RCAF district headquarters here recently, said it was impossible to save any equipment when the first alarm was given.

The airport has an independent water supply, and air force officials said supplies were adequate to handle the fire if it could have been brought under control.

The radar equipment was contained in eight trucks. Also destroyed were a passenger bus, two other trucks, two cars and smaller vehicles and an $11,000 road grader owned by the Department of Transport.

Fred Reid, a civilian employed by the air force, drove a large bulldozer out of the flaming hangar before the roof collapsed. It was the only thing saved.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 15, 1950

Ending With A Bang

There were 462 reported motor vehicle accidents in Peterborough county last year, an increase of 62 from 1948. Neighbouring counties did not fare comparatively better: Hastings had 553 as compared with 508 in 1948, Northumberland 261 (250 in the preceding year), Durham 276 (161), Victoria 193 (154) and even thinly-populated Haliburton had 79 accidents, an increase of 38 from 1948. This segment of the province was typical of the situation generally in Ontario. The total number of accidents increased by 25 per cent to 34,472 in the year 1949, where 725 persons were killed, 12,126 suffered personal injuries, and damage to property occurred in 21,621 accidents. The record is not pretty.

* * *

Despite all the safety campaigns, the slogans, the vigilance of the police, the number of traffic accidents on our high ways and streets is steadily increasing. It is little comfort to reason that there are more people than ever in the province to be involved, more cars than ever on our roads, more drivers than ever.

* * *

A stricter method of licensing drivers and vehicles would help reduce the accident rate. Greater care in driving when the weather and surfaces are poor might be mitigating, as would greater caution at indicated danger-spots—the tops of hills, curves, intersections. Our highways are very well marked; drivers need only heed the signs more strictly.

* * *

But 1949's record is consistent with those of other years in this: most accidents occur to normal drivers in cars of normal condition and in normal weather. About half the drivers involved in accidents were between the ages of 25 and 40. Only 433 were intoxicated, 299 extremely fatigued; the other 54,774 were "normal". More than 40,000 of the involved drivers had driven five years or over. Of the 34,472 reported accidents, 23,498 happened when the weather was clear. Must we deduce from this record of normality that last year's number of accidents was normal, and that normally Ontario must expect to have more and more accidents? That is the logic of the matter, but here is a situation where logic must be confounded by facts. The number of accidents is too great, they are too costly in life, limb and property. Constant vigilance, care, and even police supervision are necessary so that streets and highways will not be the menace they are now. The only other remedy is to ban automobiles, which, at this stage of our culture, would not meet with general approval.

Is The British Government Bowing To Racial Discrimination?

A complex situation has grown up around the marriage of Seretse Khama, chief of the Bamagwato (a tribe of cattlemen in Bechuanaland in Africa) and Ruth Williams, a 24 year old English girl. First of all Seretse's uncle, the Regent of the tribe, objected to the marriage and would not accept Ruth Williams as Queen; the tribesmen, however, voted almost to a man in her favour, and the Regent backed down. But then it became clear that the neighbouring states of Southern Rhodesia, South Africa, and Southwest Africa, were affronted by the marriage of a white woman to a black man. In these districts the white population keeps the black population in a state of severe subjection. Their reasons for doing so are, so far as can be discovered, economic; the black population supplies plenty of cheap labour. But the argument of these districts is that if the black population were given a greater degree of freedom, it would be infected by Communist notions, might get arms from Russia, and might rise against the whites. The existence of a white queen, they say, would encourage the blacks to insurrection, even though that white queen were far away.

The British Colonial Office has shown what looks like lamentable weakness in dealing with this situation. Indeed, they have resorted to unworthy trickery. Seretse was summoned to England to discuss his situation with officials there, and then was told that he could not go back to Africa until the issue was settled—which may be in about five years. There are several fancy explanations for this conduct, but it looks very much as though the British Government were knuckling under to race prejudice in the southern African districts.

This is directly contrary to British Colonial policy in the past which has always asserted that white men and black men are equal before the law. It is a sad fact that in the self-governing parts of Africa, this is not so. The black people are—to put it as mildly as possible—second-class citizens.

The white people in South Africa are badly frightened by the blacks, who greatly outnumber them. Their fear is justified, for they have treated the blacks very badly. The education of Negroes is feared, for education brings the desire for liberty; the marriage of a black man and a white woman is unthinkable, for it supports the idea that there is no unbridgeable gulf between the two. In giving way to the prejudice of the illiberal South African states the British Colonial Office rejects the principles of decency which made British colonial development the best and fairest that the world has ever known.

The situation in South Africa is not one which we in North America can brush off as no concern of ours. If the white people there fear Communism among the Negroes it is because they have not tried to show the Negroes a better way of life. Communism feeds on oppression and injustice. The British Government shows sorry weakness in pandering to the oppression and injustice which exists in South Africa in this case of Seretse and his English wife.

The King In Tartan

The King, it is reported, now wears a dinner jacket made of a tartan cloth upon occasion. We are glad to hear it. Men need colour in their clothes, and this is particularly the case when they are dressed for parties, dinners, dances and other jollifications.

In spite of the royal example we expect that the usual dowdy black dinner clothes will be seen for many years to come. Men have, for the time being, lost all sense of appropriateness and style in dress. Since the end of the First Great War men have been content to dress like scarecrows; some scarecrows are seedy and others wear costly, if dull, materials. But all are scarecrows. Of genuine style, of flair, of individual taste, there is no sign.

Why do men always wear black in the evening? They have done so for about 120 years. It is often said that the fashion was set by Beau Brummel, but this is untrue. Brummel wore dark evening coats—blues and greens—but not black. He did not wish to be mistaken for a man in mourning.

An explanation which we have recently seen is that the fashion began with a novel by Bulwer Lytton, called Pelham, in which a lady says to her son: "Apropos of the complexion, I did not like that blue coat you wore when I saw you last; you look best in black, which is a very great compliment, for people must be very distinguished in appearance to do so". This appeared in 1828, and it is said that the rage for black evening coats began immediately afterward.

Perhaps it is not too late to say that though some people may look distinguished in black, many do not, and they would be wise to follow the King's lead and get themselves something more colourful.

Village Pump Parliament

Canada is now an intermediate world power. Judging from the Commons debates on external affairs and the slack attendance of members on them, our parliamentarians, no more than a majority of their constituents, seem to realize the significance and responsibilities of Canada's international position. The amount of debating time given to international political affairs is small and the members yawn through it. Some who ask questions or contribute to the ministerial statement do so with the insouciant lack of thought and information of a schoolchild.

The village pump is still the liveliest subject. So be it. But let our parliamentarians and their constituents not forget that village pumps need priming by other than party hand-outs. For instance, without the priming of our foreign trade the agricultural and industrial stream could dry up. And if no attention is given to international affairs, some day the villagers may wake to find the pump shattered by a force from a far corner of the world.

It is complained that our foreign policy is too narrowly in the hands of the East Block (the Prime Minister's and Minister for External Affairs' offices.) If Parliament feels it should have a more direct voice in that policy it must first show that it is really concerned, and is qualified to discuss it.

From The Critic's Notebook

THE REAL CHARLOTTE, by E. O. Somerville and Martin Ross (World's Classics, Oxford).

THIS remarkable novel was first published in1894, and has been out of print for some decades; it has now been republished on India paper in one of the pleasant and handy little volumes of the World's Classics, my favourite among the reprint libraries. "The Real Charlotte" is the first novel of those two admirable Irish collaborators who became famous as authors of "Experience of An Irish R.M."

Because it is a first novel it shows certain faults of construction; it is plain, for instance, that the writers have never quite made up their minds whether the book is to be a picture of a particular phase of Irish country life, or a study of the character of Charlotte Mullen. But like many books which are muddled in construction, it is rich in detail, and if it is not a perfectly constructed novel it is an uncommonly absorbing one.

The story has two strong elements which vie for the position of dominance. The first is the revelation of the character of Charlotte Mullen, a middle-aged Irishwoman of powerful intellect who, to gain her own ends, spies, cheats and murders without ever being fully conscious of what she is doing. The Charlotte the world sees is a somewhat laughable character; the real Charlotte is a villainess who might put the murderous Machiavel to school. The second strand of the story is the revelation of the character of Francie Fitzpatrick, a Dublin flirt who is thrust into the society of her social betters and there behaves herself in such a thoroughly second-rate fashion that she ruins her life. Francie's tragic weakness is that she really prefers what is second-rate, and because she is in many ways a charming and likeable girl her dilemma is one into which the reader can enter with considerable sympathy.

This is an admirable old novel which has been brought to life again. It is a fascinating study of snobbery, and of a type of life which has now vanished from the earth. But the people in it are wonderfully alive, and the framework in which they move is not so strange that we cannot recognize in it many elements of our own society. I recommend this strongly to readers who want something out of the common run, and who are weary of modern novelties. R.D.

THE TRAGIC INNOCENTS by Rene Barjavel (Hamish Hamilton).

THE title of this book obviously refers to the people who buy it. It is a tale of unrelieved sordidness and nobody in it remains 'innocent' for more than two pages. The story is laid in France during the last war and covers the life of a young man, Jean Tarendol, from his school days during which he falls in love with a student teacher at the adjacent girls' school, until her death, brought about by a miscarriage, a year or two after their first meeting. Misery heaps on misery throughout the book and everybody who lays any claim to being a 'chief character' dies a gory death, with the exception of Jean Tarendol himself. Slum life in France, as elsewhere, is naturally very depressing but it seems hard to believe that all the inhabitants of slums are as utterly degraded, and useless, as depicted here. If the book were written for the purpose of reform then it doubtless would prove to be very useful propaganda but as it is sold as a novel, and therefore for entertainment and relaxation, it does not, in my opinion, serve its purpose. I should say that reading "The Tragic Innocents" would be a waste of an evening that might be much better spent perusing "Esquire". S.S.T.

DRAYNEFLEETE REVEALED, by Osbert Lancaster (Murray).

THIS is a brilliantly amusing book, but not one which will appeal to every Canadian reader. It is a satire upon the local histories and guide-books which abound in England, and it touches off their follies and their elaborate disingenuousness with the greatest skill and cogency. But to people who are unacquainted with the originals which "Draynefleete Revealed" satirizes, it will not convey very much, unless they are capable of deducing what is being mocked from the mockery itself.

Canada needs an Osbert Lancaster. He is a man who sees the humour and the grotesqueness of architecture, of furniture and of town-planning. His drawings of Draynefleete as it has appeared at various periods of history are brilliant pieces of social satire. His revelations of what continuous "improvement" can do to a community are at once dreadful and hilarious. We need such a man here to show us our limestone buildings with fake-marble shopfronts imposed upon them; our "residential sections" with their riots of Canadian Tudor, Canadian Queen Anne, and their variations upon that Portuguese invention, the verandah; and our vast hotels in C.P.R. Baronial style. We have no such architectural satirist as yet. We can, however, enjoy what Osbert Lancaster is doing elsewhere. C.F.

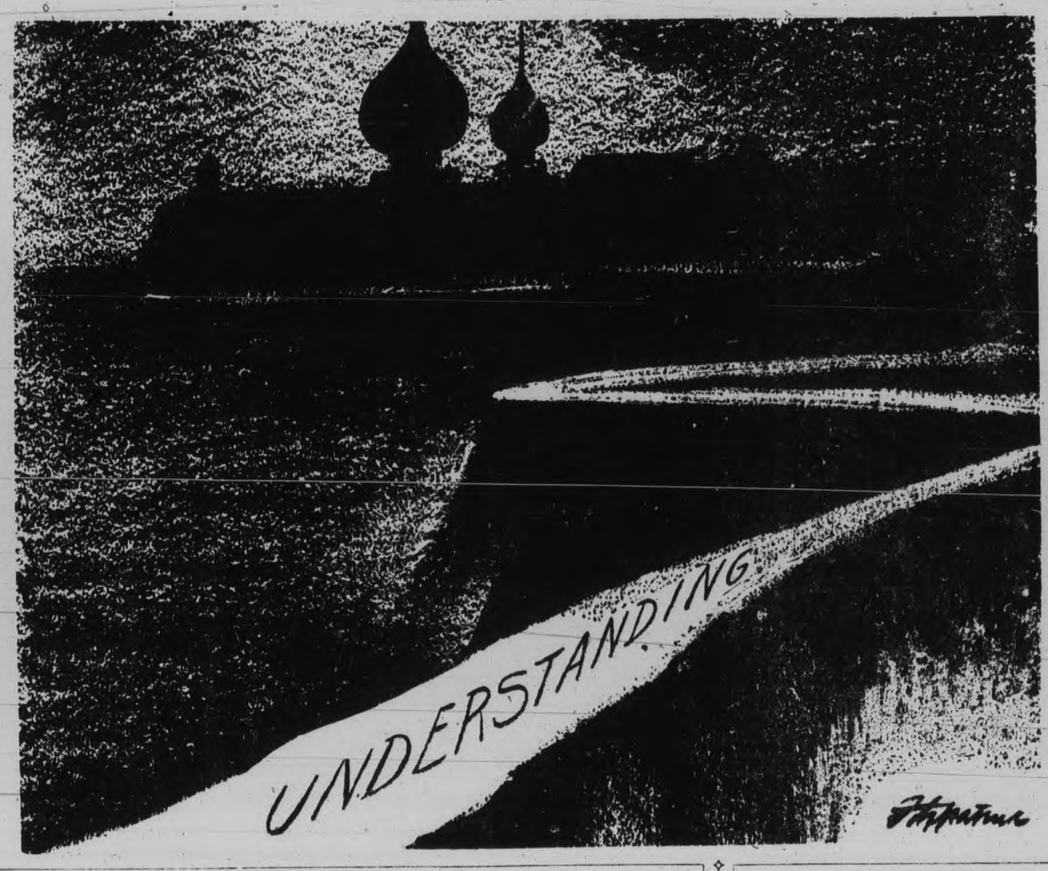
DEMOS THE EMPEROR, by Osbert Sitwell (Macmillan).



THIS poem has the subtitle "A Secular Oratorio". In it, in a series of poems, some of which are divided into choruses and recitatives, the writer makes clear his disgust with the modern world. Certainly, as Sir Osbert presents it, it is disgusting — a materialist, rancorous dirty world in which the rich have been pillaged to benefit the poor, without any very powerful improvement being achieved in the lot of the poor. It is not a political poem. It is, rather, an expression of the disgust which many poets feel with life if they live well into middle age. Nor is it a mean or contemptible disgust; it is large in extent and it is expressed in large terms.

If you like to keep abreast of what is going on in modern verse you cannot to miss this work. O.B.C.

Maugham's First Film Script

Somerset Maugham, at 76, has written his first film script. This is for "The Verger", one of his three short stories comprising "Trio", a successor to the popular "Quartet". The other stories are "Mr. Know All" and "The Sanatorium".

A BRITISH OPINION

Letters To The Editor

WHAT ARE THE FACTS ABOUT CITY SPENDING?

Sir: The City Council tell us that they have put in a lot of time in striking the tax rate, but they don't tell us anything about where the money is going. They could also compare it with estimates for other years.

I consider that the taxpayers are entitled to know more about how their money is going to be spent. We know the tax rate is up four mills, but what are the appropriations? What are the expected receipts, what is the Board of Works going to spend, the Parks Committee and so on. The public is entitled to some real and definite information. How much money is required to carry on the municipal government for 1950?

At election time we hear a great deal about the voting interest of the people, and so on. If you want them to be interested you have to give them all the facts so that they are an informed people and know what is going on. Just telling us the rate is 49½ mills is a mighty lean statement of fact about our spending. The people have the right to know and the Council should see to it that the information is supplied like a board of directors informing their shareholders.

We know very well that the Council doesn't handle all the money, but there is a large sum left, and I with others would like to see some of the facts and details printed, such as receipts and expenditures, the usual statement. There were the estimates of the Fire Department which I read, but that is about all I have seen. It is all right for the Council to think they have put in a lot of time on the job, but it isn't finished until they have told the taxpayers what they are doing.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor,

FRED TUGGEY.

CRITICIZES LAKEFIELD TRAILER CAMP

Sir: Two years ago I had the opportunity of spending a few days in the vicinity of Peterborough during my annual vacation and I was thinking of coming back through there again this year.

I have a cabin trailer and when I was there two years ago I stayed at the trailer camp at Lakefield. I enjoyed the location but I did find two or three things which could stand a lot of improvement and I was just wondering whether or not the camp was any different than it was at that time.

Incidentally, I made it a point to go through Peterborough and up through the Kawartha Lakes district as a result of having met Pete McGillen, who was then your City Editor, at the Cleveland Sportsmen's Show. Pete sold me on the area and so I decided to look it over on the first opportunity to do so.

The camp site out at Lakefield is ideal from a standpoint of location but the camp also has its drawbacks. First of all, the policy then appeared to be a minimum charge on the basis of a week's stay and I must say it is not very encouraging to come back again if you know that you have to pay for a whole week in the camp although you may desire to only spend a couple of days in that particular spot.

I also noticed that instead of having the whole camp area opened up most of the people were jammed in at one end, yet there was plenty of space which could have been made available with very little clearing necessary. Although Hydro was available in the camp, apparently no effort had been made to have modern sanitary conveniences. Instead, there were ordinary outdoor privies and they were not clean by any stretch of the imagination. In addition it was necessary to pump drinking water by hand and carry it some distance. Without too much cost, with Hydro available for power, it would be possible to have modern toilets as well as running water available.

Another great improvement would be outdoor community kitchens as they have in trailer and camping parks in the Muskoka district.

I also noticed that in many parts of the camp, poison ivy was running away without any apparent effort to control or destroy it. In my opinion, the poison ivy is a menace particularly for anyone with small children who do not recognize it or realize what it is until it is too late.

Sincerely yours,

OTTO H. KING.

ATTITUDE OF A TRUE DOG LOVER

Sir: In the March 9 issue of your valued paper under heading "Hotchpotch Before Council" is included an article re raising tax on female dogs; this should have been submitted for publication as raising tax on "unspayed female dogs"—furthermore, it was not mentioned or suggested at the meeting that "there is a flaw in the present bylaw re a fixed date for the controlling of dogs"—this would be most impractical in view of Peterborough's northern situation when winter months outlast those of more southern cities.

Various criticisms are received by members of "The Humane Society" re the long months the dogs are controlled. As taxpayers, those complaining feel the time is too long. The majority of the executive sympathize with these owners — of course, if every dog owner would keep his dog on his own property there would be no need of this bylaw. A true dog-lover does not want or allow his dog to be out of his sight. We know of dogs that are wandering hither and yon all day and every day—that is one reason Inspector Dunford has to put in such long hours unnecessarily and why so many injured dogs have to be mercifully electrocuted.

Incidentally, Peterborough's Humane Society is exceedingly fortunate in having an electrical disposal chamber, which was made and donated by Mr. Morley Powell, copied from one imported at great expense by the Ottawa Humane Society.

Thank you, Mr. Editor, for your courtesy in giving your valuable space for this letter.

'SAINT PATRICK'S LIFE'

Now Patrick is the patron saint
Of Ireland, we all know;
But Patrick never was a saint,
Nor Irish born, oh no.

That is, a saint was never made,
Or canonized by Rome;
Of Irish birth no claim is laid
For England was his home.

And yet he is the patron saint
Of Ireland, em'rald isle;
Of that there is not one complaint,
He makes the Irish smile.

Northamptonshire, near Daventry,
Was born in three sev'n three;
Became a Bishop, Armagh See,
And died in four six three.

When but a youth was carried off,
To land on Ireland's shore;
To tend the cattle he did scoff,
But turned to God once more.

He then escaped to Southern France,
And trained there 'till a priest;
Then back to Ireland he did glance,
He heard their call at least.

A Missionary he would be,
And tend these other sheep;
He'd build a church, and school, thought he,
The tender lambs he'd keep.

He built some monasteries too,
To train men for the task;
To teach and preach, be loyal, true
To Christ, that's all he'd ask.

A Bishop was Saint Patrick made,
One day by Pope at Rome;
His work for Christ he'd never trade,
Now Ireland was his home.

And so good Patrick lived and died,
Christ was his life, truth, way;
All Irish keep Saint Patrick's tide,
March seventeen's the day!

POULTRY RAISER'S QUESTION

Sir: Read in the papers last week that the price of food has advanced to consumers, beef, lamb, eggs etc.

Eggs! We sold eggs today for from twenty-two to thirty-two, average of around twenty-six. We received two dollars back after groceries were deducted—bread, cereal, fruit, shortening etc., all carried on one arm —from a sale of thirty-five dozen. For our labour (of love?) there was nothing, little for feed. Of course the girls had been a little reckless, ordered a can of salmon, fifty cents, and a can of pineapple, forty-five. Had we had taken the eggs to market and, 'begged' for buyers we might of received more, had we sold them.

Now I ask you, since you wished the business angle on us (and the income tax) should we continue this loss or not? Should we buy chickens—which by the way are the 'same price' as last year—nice business—(and feed is higher) or should we give up the ghost? Remember feed is scarce — due to drought last year, our granaries are low, so is the hay mow, and the straw stack is gone, spring and grass and harvest in the dim future.

You—the people—believe it or not, are at the mercy of God.

SIMPLE SIMON.

LOCAL PAINTERS

Sir: Great plans are being formulated by various societies and organizations, in regard to their donation to the new Civic Hospital. It has been rumoured that the Women's Art Association is planning to purchase a beautiful painting by a famous Canadian painter. May I suggest, if it is not too late, that a contest be held, allowing entries only from Peterborough County residents, the winner to accept the prize money in return for his or her painting. Also, that if none are suitable, the winner would receive only the honour.

Painters sometimes find themselves in a rut without a noble purpose in view and surely with Hamer and his contemporaries we could produce from our own midst, a picture of lasting, local beauty, giving a familiar touch, and a ray of hope to those who wait out the long minutes and hours of a loved one's critical illness.

Yours truly,

INTERESTED.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Now the serpent was more subtil than any beast of the field which the Lord God had made. And he said unto the woman, Yea, hath God said, Ye shall not eat of every tree of the garden? And the woman said unto the serpent, We may eat of the fruit of the trees of the garden: but of the fruit of the tree which is in the midst of the garden, God hath said, Ye shall not eat of it, neither shall ye touch it, lest ye die.

And the serpent said unto the woman, Ye shall not surely die: for God doth know that in the day ye eat thereof, then your eyes shall be opened, and ye shall be as gods, knowing good and evil.

And when the woman saw that the tree was good for food, and that it was pleasant to the eyes, and a tree to be desired to make one wise, she took of the fruit thereof, and did eat, and gave also unto her husband with her; and he did eat. (Gen. 3: 1-6.)

Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world. If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him. For all that is in the world, the lust of the flesh, and the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life, is not of the Father, but is of the world. And the world passeth away, and the lust thereof: but he that doeth the will of God abideth for ever. (1 John 2: 15-17.)

Israel Gives Moslems A Full Voice

TEL AVIV, March 15 (AP) — The Israeli government is giving the Moslems living in this little Jewish state a full voice in running their own affairs.

Courts, schools, community councils and settlements are being operated by and for the 120,000 people who constitute the Moslem community.

Four Moslem tribunals are functioning in Nazareth, Acre, Haifa and Majdal. A fifth soon is to be opened in the Jaffa sector of Tel Aviv.

Special Moslem committees are co-operating with the ministry of religious affairs in providing care for orphans, the aged, religious libraries and Mosques Moslems enjoy all the legal privileges of an Israeli citizen.

Appoint 60 Officials

During the last six months about 60 Moslem officials have been appointed by the government, bringing the total to 150. Sheikh Taher E-Tabari recently was named Israel's first Kadi (disfrict judge) for civil and religious matters. The post is next in line to the highest religious one of Mufti.

Religious services now are held in more than 70 Mosques in Israel. Arabic is being taught in 77 schools.

The government recently published registration and receipt books, printed in Hebrew and Arabic, to be used by Moslem officials in carrying out wedding ceremonies.

The government, too, has appropriated large funds for the development of Moslem farms and villages.

A special committee, headed by Prof. L. A. Mayer of the Hebrew university, Jerusalem, now is studying the status of Moslem monuments scattered over Israel. The group hopes to work out plans for the preservation of these sites.

Suggests Senate Investigate CBC

OTTAWA, March 15 (CP) — Investigation of CBC operations by the Senate alone, rather than by a joint committee of the Senate and Commons, Tuesday night was suggested in the Upper Chamber by Senator Wishart Robertson, government leader.

Replying to Senator Thomas Reid (L-British Columbia), he said he had no objection to examination of the CBC by a joint committee, but felt too few Senators would be able to participate.

Revenue Minister McCann already has announced in the Commons that the government proposes to establish a radio committee during the current session to study the CBC as well as other radio and television activities in Canada.

In the brief 60-minute sitting, Senator Robertson announced the appointment of Senator A. K. Hugessen (L-Quebec) as deputy house leader. Senator Hugessen succeeds the late Senator A. B. Copp.

Senator A. W. Roebuck (L-Ontario) gave notice that he will introduce a resolution seeking the appointment of a special Senate committee on human rights and fundamental freedoms. A similar resolution was proposed at the last session.

Give Second Reading To Insurance Bill

OTTAWA, March 15 (CP) — A bill to extend the life of the Limit Holders' Mutual Insurance Company Tuesday night was given second reading—approval in principle—in the Senate.

However, Senator John T. Haig, Progressive Conservative leader, said that while he has no objection to the bill, it should go before the private members' committee for study before finally approved.

The bill was sponsored by Senator P. H. Bouffard (L-Quebec). The company, he explained, has been in existence for two years.

Composed of owners of timber limits, it was organized to protect them financially against fire and other hazards which could destroy holdings.

Where's Yvonne?

QUEBEC, March 15— (CP). — City Hall mail clerks Tuesday were in a dilemma. Who is "Miss Yvonne?" Two letters have been received from a lonely Indo-China outpost addressed to "Miss Yvonne, Officer of the Mayor, Quebec, Canada." The letters will stay at the Mayor's office until some girl by the name of Yvonne claims them.

BRANTFORD, March 15 (CP). —An Assize Court Grand Jury reported to Chief Justice J. C. McRuer Tuesday that immediate steps would be taken to remedy living and safety conditions at the Mohawk Institute, a boarding school for Indian children on this city's outskirts. The school with its 153 children is overcrowded, the jury said.

Car Fraud Deal Brings 3-Year Term

PORT COLBORNE, March 15 (CP)—John Stark, 35, of Crowland township Tuesday was sentenced to three years in penitentiary by Magistrate H. D. Hallett of St. Catharines after pleading guilty to a charge of fraud.

Stark was arrested in Toronto recently for Port Colborne police. He was charged with fraud in the purchase of an automobile from Nick Tanaszi of Port Colborne, Feb. 23, by means of a worthless cheque for $850, made out under an assumed name.

County Crown Attorney T. P. Forestell, KC, told the court that Stark later sold Tanaszi's car, receiving another as trade-in, and had been involved in some subsequent intricate financial deals with subsequent cars. He presented the criminal record of the accused which revealed Stark had served terms since 1937 in cases involving common assault, theft, breaking and entering, illegal possession of firearms, and false pretences.

Other semi-classic will be sextette from Lucia and the Rigoletto quartette operatic groups will be the solos and duets from the following artists: Jeanne Winslow, Margaret Horsnell, Marjory McNeill, Gwen Kilborne, Walter Dawson, Dionne Hurtubise, Ian Clark and Bernard Hogg.

BENT SKIS: "How can you get the bend back in skis? Mine will be straight next year if I don't get some curve back in them. Please help me! Gosh, I can't afford a new pair. I'm a nonskier and have to care my skis."
You keep on the way you're going and you'll end up being Prime Minister. To get the bend back in those skis take them to Margeson's Sport Goods at 79 Victoria Street. Oil is heated back into the ski fips. Skis are then put in press for re-bending. Process takes three days, costs $2.50 for both tips.

SPITZ POMERANIAN: "At what temperature is it safe to leave my little Spitz Pom dog out in the yard all day? There is a dog house in the yard; the opening is covered with a sack. I work all day and my dog is ruining everything in the house. How can I teach her not to jump on me when I get home?"
Says Dr. Secord, your little dog should not be taken out in the cold if she has been accustomed to a heated house. If your Spitz stays outside consistently, has straw in her kennel and a covering over the door, then she can be left outside. But not "in one day and out the next" business.
Dog trainers say the smartest way to teach a dog not to jump is to quietly and firmly step on her foot every time she disobeys the command "down".

STILL CURLING

The oldest curling club in existence is the Dudingston Curling Society, organized in Edinburgh Jan. 7, 1795.

DR. LEN HALL, above, who has taken on the job of trying to beat Whipper Watson in the feature match at the Brock this Thursday. Although he has not lost a bout to date the Whip is by far the toughest opponent the Doc has taken on. Hall knows all the tricks, is rough but also a good scientific grappler when he needs to be. Watson's ability is well known to the fans and they figure the California pharmacist is in for a drubbing. Two newcomers to these parts will be on the card, the handsome Roy McClarity meets up with Hi Lee in the semi-final and Ali the Turk takes on Tiger Tasker in the opener. Both McClarity and the Turk are topnotch matmen.

HOCKEY SCORING RECORD —Edmonton Flyers are leading contenders again this year for the Allan Cup they won in 1947-48 season. One of the Flyers is 21-year-old Colin Kilburn, who set a goal-scoring record in winning the point-getting title this season in the Western Canada Senior Hockey League. The scrappy left winger in his second year in senior ranks collected 51 goals and 29 assists. Kilburn, who had a try-out last fall with Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, was voted the league's most valuable player in a poll of sports writers. In the previous year he won the circuit's award as the outstanding rookie.

Favor Mercurys To Take Crown

LONDON, March 15 (CP) — Edmonton Mercurys, hot favorites to win the world hockey tournament, face lowly Belgium at Wembley rink tonight in a game expected to clinch for Canada a spot in the final round-robin among the six top teams.

Fresh from an easy 13-2 victory over Switzerland—24-3 conquerors of Belgium Monday — Canada appears a cinch to top their three-team preliminary group and roll undefeated into the final series.

London bookmakers tightened the odds to 5 to 2 on the Mercurys to carry back world honors to the Dominion.

With Czechoslovakia, the 1949 winners, absent, the teams most likely to accompany the Mercurys into the final round are Switzerland, Britain, Norway, Sweden and either the United States or the Netherlands.

On form, Canada appears to be several goals better than all except Sweden, and the Swedes would have to spring the surprise of the season to stop the red-hot Edmonton speedsters.

The Canadians skated rings around the Swiss at Harringay Arena Tuesday night, showing superiority in every department.

Cricket Club Returns G. Monkman

Gordon Monkman was returned as president of the Peterborough-Whitaker Cricket Club at the annual meeting last evening in the Chamber of Commerce. A. H. Radford continues as secretary with Archie Hamilton appointed treasurer for the year. The meeting was well attended.

Some discussion took place with regard to forming a second team here as there are a number of players available. This matter will be gone into more fully again. Meantime, the club has big plans for the season, a high-light being the visit of the touring Bermuda team to Peterborough on Aug. 9. It is touring Eastern Canada and part of the States.

The club last season from here won the Rawlinson division of the Toronto and District Cricket Council, and will this summer move up into the stronger Godin division, where competition should be quite keen. Mr. Monkman, a member of the Ontario Cricket Association, expects the sport to grow in popularity, as it is being taken up in more and more Canadian centres, with inter-provincial matches being arranged. Further plans for the Peterborough club will be announced again.

Here And There In Sports . . .

At Aylmer, operation "knife-and-fork was completed Tuesday night as the drive for funds for the proposed East Elgin Memorial Centre got under way.

Fifty-two Aylmer and district men paid $100 each for turkey dinners donated and served by men and women of Trinity Anglican Church.

Brainchild of Clifford Lamb, chairman of the building committee, the dinner brought in $5,200 as the first cash toward the $125,000 objective for an arena and community centre.

Robert McEwan, finance chairman, announced that the Aylmer Kinsmen's Club promised $10,000 and the Aylmer Optimist Club $2,500. Three men had pledged $500 each, they are Dr. John Colquhoun, Angus Hughes and Mr. McEwan, all of Aylmer.

Aylmer's RCAF station was represented at the dinner by Cpl. George Herron, appearing for its commanding officer, Wing Commander Gerald Weber. Station funds paid for the corporal's $100 meal.

The injury jinx, which has plagued Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen through the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A playoffs, has paid a visit to the rival Toronto Marlboro camp.

With the fifth game of the best-of-seven championship series on tap at Kitchener for tonight and Marlboros leading three games to one, word has been received that starry Pat Boehmer, leading goaltender in the loop during the regular season, will not see action. Boehmer suffered a dislocated shoulder during a goal-mouth scramble in Monday night's contest which the Dutchmen won 3-2.

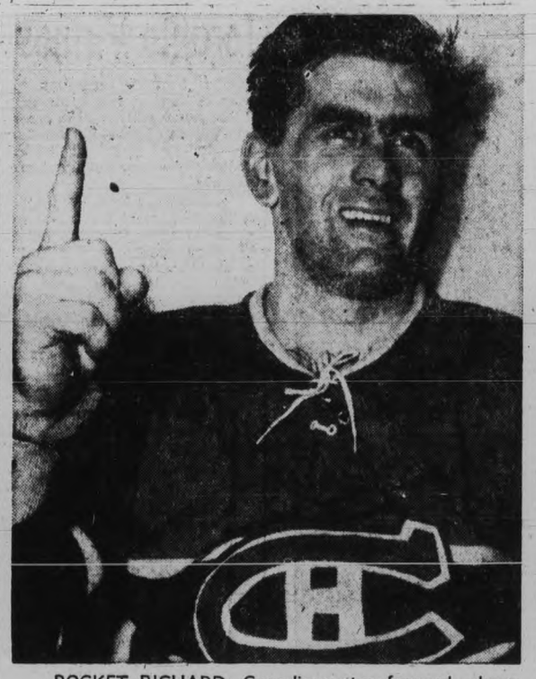
Kitchener-Waterloo, faced with elimination, have Bobby Bauer on the sidelines after a first-game injury and coach Punch Scherer said Tuesday night that team captain and star defenceman Jack Schewchuk will sit it out. He suffered a gashed foot in last Sunday's practice.

At Sydney, Alex Birukow, 23-year-old Fort William centre with Sydney Millionaires, Tuesday night was awarded the Cape Breton Senior Hockey League's "Lady Byng" Trophy.

Birukow edged Jake Wade, of Peterborough, and Don Menzies, Lethbridge, Alta., in the voting. Wade played with Glace Bay and Menzies, with North Sydney Victorias was the league's top goal-geter during the schedule. Millionaires won the league crown Tuesday night, eliminating Miners.

Awarding of the President's Cup Speedboat Racing Trophy to Horace E. Dodge, of Detroit, has been declared invalid.

Arthur L. Bobrick, chairman of the Inboard Racing Commission of the American Power Boat Association, said Tuesday at Los Angeles that the 14-man commission had ruled the 1949 race on the Potomac "no contest" because only one heat was run because of rough water.



Even psychologists boot one now and then, Dr. David M. Tracy of New York said Tuesday at Burbank, Cal.

Dr. Tracy is working with St. Louis Browns at their spring training base. He said his error came in a mass hypnotism class Monday night.

"Has any pitcher a sore arm?" he asked. Up stepped Les Stone, one of the club's rookies. "I have," said Stone.

Without asking any more questions, Dr. Tracy worked on Stone's right arm. Later he asked Stone how the arm felt.

ROCKET RICHARD, Canadiens star forward, above, scored two goals and drew another assist over the week-end to bring his total number of points to 56, 12 points behind the league leading Ted Lindsay, of Detroit. Richard leads the goal getting department with 36 to his credit.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

The decks were cleared last e'en in the "Y" for the men's City Softball League, even though there is still a goodish amount of snow on the ground. They decided to organize early and be ready when, and if, spring arrives. Going thrice weekly again in twin bills under the arcs in the Bowl o'Ashburnham. Paid the city $450 last year in rental, and those lights should soon be paid for, and still strictly city property, showing how a council can encourage sports and still keep out of the red by intelligent promotion. Looks like four strong slubs in this loop once more, but entries won't be called for till right after Easter.

Pat Calladine was persuaded to stand for prexy again, with Bob Batley in as vice-president, Bert Bailey returned as secretary, and Ted Naish replacing Dave Leether as treasurer. The latter felt he had done his share since 1929 and rated a rest, so the meeting promptly voted him a life membership, the first in this league. And he certainly deserves it. Going to the OASA annual at Owen Sound on Good Friday, along with Bert Bailey, who is a member of the provincial body, will be Pat Calladine, Bob Batley and George Dormer. In future, players stick to the clubs they sign with, barring a direct appeal to the executive—which no longer has team representati ves on it—and no changes will be considered after July 1. In other words, no packing of clubs just before playoffs. A good move.

Those Bees Are Buzzing

Oshawa Bees are sizzling because they didn't get the third game at home of their OHA junior "B" best-of-five finals. Each team had won at home, but the Motor City arena was let to Markham for tonight in a senior "B" playoff with Stouffville. So, the Bees were told to play their third game in Peterborough this Friday, with the IOOF-ers then going back to Oshawa on Saturday. This should be a fine chance for Bun Kingdon's young hustlers to grab off a lead in the series here Friday, giving them the old psychological edge—a big word, huh?—and they'll sure try to make the most of it. Fans should keep Friday eve free for this one.

* * * * * *

There was nothing much wrong with the goaltending chore turned in by Ross Nicholls of Legion here the other night. Just two goals got by him, and he had lots of work to do ere Kingston bowed out. Coming back from Kingston after the previous game, Coach Jim Ellis was kidding Ross, remarking: "You're slipping, fellow, letting Nylons score five on you in the last two games." But Ross, who has a certain dry wit, got a laugh when he replied: "Well, skipper, I'm not supposed to be as good a goalie as Udall, but he let 14 by him in the last two games!" Yes, and six more in the final here. Nicholls is a first-rate senior "B" net-minder.

* * * * * *

Every Player Helps Out

But it's teamwork as a whole that makes Legion a potent pack in playdowns. Ross gets a lot of aid from defencemen like Johnny Godfrey, Al Burns—a rugged bouncer and a good blocker—Doug Mortimer and Keith Montgomery. The first line of Joe Rochetta, Bill Crowley and Dootch Vitarelli get back fast, too, to help out. Nor is there much to choose between the line of Bob Parnell, Freddy Mortimer and Toodie Greenlaw on the one hand, and Bert Hill (a guy who usually gets the faceoff draw), Sixty Coombs and Reg Stewart. A good two-way team with speed to burn and that old never-say-die fighting spirit.

* * * * * *

Dit Clapper is off to play hockey tonight. Yes, sir, he's taking part in an exhibition game at Renfrew this eve with a bunch of old pro NHL-ers against an amateur team. Idea is to raise funds there for some purpose or other. Lionel Conacher will also line up with the oldtime professional aces, as will Frank Nighbor, Duke Keats, Punch Broadbent, Cy Denneney, Bill Cowley, Bucko McDonald and some more. We imagine the veterans of many a stirring National League campaign will be longing for the old rocking chair ere the finish. But wouldn't it be a fine club to ice when these guys were in their prime?

Pat Calladine President Men's Circuit

Pat Calladine was returned as president of the City Softball League for the fifth year at the annual meeting held last night in the YMCA. He reiterated his statement of last fall that he was not anxious for the job again and would like to see someone else take it over, but he was returned by acclamation at the well-attended gathering.

Dave Leether, retiring as treasurer—and with continuous service in the various offices since since 1929, — was voted the first league life membership, and he will continue to have a voice at all loop meetings. Ted Naish will be the new treasurer, with Bert Bailey returned as secretary, and Bob Batley the vice-president. The executive committee, denuded of team representation on a vote, will consist of: George Dormer, Fred Scates, Percy Harrison, Fred Griffin and Jack Playford. Mayor Max Swanston is honorary president, with Ray Tanner honorary vice-president.

Attend Meeting

Appointed to attend the OASA convention were: Pat Calladine, George Dormer and Bob Batley. The OASA member from here, Bert Bailey, will go as an association member. The convention is in Owen Sound the Good Friday weekend. Another league meeting for team entries and general business will be held right after this.

One amendment to the constitution passed was to the effect that players signed must remain with that club all season, except where a player's appeal to the executive is upheld, and that no transfer applications will be considered after July 1. It was also decided that teams should not be represented on the executive, though all appeals will be considered from the teams. The executive committee was enlarged from three to five.

To clear up arguments, it was pointed out again that the Wm Taylor Trophy is for the city champions—last year Cosmos won out — while the Geo. Dorme Trophy is for the team finishing the schedule in first place, the Uniteds doing this last year. The league will apply again for use of lights at the Bowl—where they paid $450 last year in rental — on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday nights. The leagues will likely consist of four strong squads.

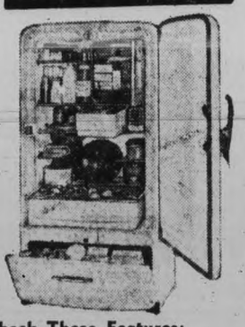
Asphodel Victors

HASTINGS, March 15 (ENS)—Asphodel defeated Hastings 8-5 in a fast clean game and now lead 2-0 in their series. Hastings showed plenty of power in the first period, and led 2-0 at the 20-minute mark on goals by Reg Scriver and Brooks. In the second period Asphodel came back strong, outscoring the Hastings squad 4-1.

Bob Scriver tied the score at 4.50 of the third period, but H. Lynch put Asphodel in front 15 seconds later and they were never in doubt after that.

Bob Scriver, Brooks and Stevens stood out for Hastings, while H. Fife, P. Fife and Thomas were best for Asphodel. West in goal was a standout.

Referee, J. Fairman; linesman, J. Morrow.



Hastings—Goal, J. Scriver; defence, R. Scriver, M. Richardson; centre, Stevens; wings, Brooks and B. Scriver; alternates, K. Scriver, J. Slesser and Lemaire.

Asphodel—Goal, A. West; defence, H. Fife, A. Wilson; centre, P. Fife; wings, L. Thomas, D. Wilson; alternates, H. Lynch, R. Lynch, H. Richardson.

Marmora Gets TVL Title Over Frankford

FRANKFORD, March 15.—Marmora Millionaires, captured their third straight Trent Valley Hockey League championship when they humbled the homesters, 10-4, to take the best-in-five series, three games to one. The winners led 2-0 at the end of the first period and increased their lead to 7-1 at the end of the middle session with each team tallying three times in the final 20 minutes.

McInroy paced the winners with four goals while Lavender with three goals and an assist and K. Trumble with two goals and an assist were next best. Stewart accounted for the other Marmora goals. Cooke, Mitts, Rankin and Courtney each tallied once for the homesters.

Frankford—Goal, Davis; defence, Farmer, Schmidt; centre, Cooke; wings, Cole, Mitts; alternates, Rankin, McKee, Courtney, Hood, Bastedo.

URGES MEDICAL

W. L. Houck (L., Niagara Falls) urged Tuesday at Toronto that all boxers be given medical examinations before entering the ring in Ontario. Mr. Houck made the suggestion as a legislature committee approved minor amendments of the Athletics Act. Attorney-General Porter said he would check on existing regulations regarding medical examinations.

Sports Officials See Tax Curbing Smaller Towns

TORONTO, March 15 (CP).—Sports executives today saw a threat to small-town amateur sports in a Provincial Government suggestion that Ontario's amusement tax may be extended to cover such activities.

The suggestion came Monday from Premier Frost, who told the Legislature that the system of taxing sport may be revised to include so-called amateur contests. At present a 20 per cent amusement tax is collected only on professional events.

He made the comment after Robert Thornberry, CCF member for Hamilton Centre, said the dividing line between amateurism and professionalism in boxing, hockey and football is so thin it barely exists.

Sports leaders promptly raised objections. George Dudley, secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association said most community hockey clubs are run primarily to provide their towns with good teams rather than to make money.

"We all know that some amateur hockey players get money," he said, "but in my view that does not mean that admissions to amateur hockey games should be taxed."

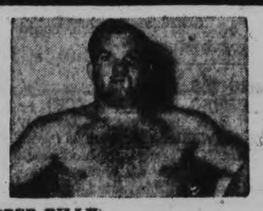
Would Bar Hockey

Extension of the tax would make league hockey impossible in many small towns, said George Panter, secretary of the Ontario Hockey Association. Most small-town hockey teams now operate at a loss.

Harold Bailey, Ontario Rugby Football Union president, said such a tax might make it difficult for some ORFU clubs to carry on.

Campbellford Boys Reach Ontario Final

CAMPBELLFORD, March 15—(ENS)—The Rotary Club is solidly behind the local bantam hockeyists, who open their OMHA "C"" finals against Elmira here this Friday. The Campbellford Cloth Co. also has offered to supply free programs for the game and to be responsible for sale of about a quarter of the tickets for this playoff game.



It has been reported that the trip to South River cost the team a little more than $100 in the semi-finals, this amount being partly covered by donations from club members and others. It is hoped that at least 1,000 fans see Friday's game here. The Rotary Club sent thanks to the Lions Club of South River for aid in billeting the boys and in entertainment.

Teams Calling In Reserves Bolster Cripples In NHL

By JACK GRAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Hockey's major league moguls are scouting the backwoods these days looking for reserve strength for the coming National Hockey League playoffs and the stab at the Stanley Cup.

They need the new blood to take the strain off injury-worn veterans returning to the hockey wars and also to save their shock troops for the crucial battles ahead.

Conn Smythe, managing director of Toronto Maple Leafs, is scheduled to sit in on the Pittsburgh Hornets' Americal Hockey League tilt tonight against the Barons at Cleveland. Hornets are a Leaf farm club, but the new blood will have to await playoff disposition of the Hornets, currently holding third place by a slim point in the AHL Western Division.

Manager Frank Selke of Montreal Canadiens left for Timmins Monday night. Hockey circles say he is scouting junior playoffs between Sault S[illegible]ie and Porcupine

Free-For-Rli

Such goings-on are understandable. With only a week and a half left of the league's first 70-game schedule, the shuffle for the last three play-off spots (Detroit Red Wings have virtually clinched first place) is developing into a free-for-all.

The clubs' anxiety regarding the last three places is explained by the fact it means extra money besides the chance at the Cup. Thus the second-place club gets an extra $500 a player, the third-place outfit $350, and the fourth $150.

Bruins suffered a blow Tuesday night when they were forced to order big Ed Sandford, their prize 21-year-old forward, to quit playing for the rest of the season because of a severed tendon

Rangers will have their sparkplug, Edgar Laprade, back in action. Laprade, who missed eight of the Blueshirts' last nine games because of a knee injury, could not return at a better time. The Rangers played like minor leaguers whole absorbing defeats in their last two games.

Canadiens will have Elmer Lach back in action for their joust with Detroit. He missed one game with a sore elbow. But star goalie Bill Durnan is still on the sick list with a head injury. He has missed five games but is expected back in action on Thursday night when Montreal has a return bout here with the Wings.

Sanicki Ready For Big Things

CLEARWATER, Fla., March 15 (AP)—Eddie Sanicki, Philadelphia Phillies' rookie outfielder up from Toronto, may make Branch Rickey wish he'd taken the stubby power hitter into the Brooklyn Dodgers' fold.

Sanicki is the guy who came up to the Phillies at the tail-end of the 1949 season, went to bat 13 times and blasted out three hits —all homers.

His first batting appearance in the majors, in fact, produced a four-base blow.

In 1946 after serving three years in the United States navy, Sanicki talked terms with the Dodgers. He asked Rickey to pay him $2,500 to sign.

Rickey refused and Sanicki accepted an offer of $2,000 to sign with the Phils. He went to Wilmington for two seasons and in 1948 moved up to Toronto in the International League.

Eddie hit 33 homers and batted in 104 runs with Toronto. That display of power brought him a chance with the parent club, the Phillies.

Both Phils' manager Eddie Sawyer and owner Bob Carpenter, Jr., think Sanicki definitely is ready for the big time now.

Handled Radium Rule Boy Not Affected

OTTAWA, March 15 (CP) — The 12-year-old boy who played with a batch of dangerous radium-filled needles last week was virtually given a clean bill of health Tuesday by city heath officer Dr. J. J. Day.

Andre Lamirande has been kept under close scrunity by city health officials since last week when he found 20 radium needles taken from the National Research Council.

Dr. Day said the boy "just possibly could have suffered a very small superficial radium skin burn," but there was no danger whatsoever of any other effects. However, for safety, he recommended the boy to bekept under observation at the Ottawa Civic Hospital.

There are two small marks on the boy's thumb but Dr. Day said one of them was merely a cut in the healing stage. The other was a small callosity, and there was only a slight possibility that it was a radium burn.

The needles, stolen March 5, were recovered last Thursday scattered near Andre's lowertown district home. The boy said he had found them in the NRC grounds.

Police are continuing investigations into theft of the needles and other equipment from the storehouse. They believed the break-in was the work of juveniles and said no valuable research equipment is missing. Only articles still not recovered, police said, are a pair of forceps and a hypodermic syringe.

TIMMY MAKES FIRST SALE—Ten-year-old "Timmy" who represents Ontario's 11,000 crippled children in this year's Easter Seal campaign, sells his first stamps. Timmy's customer is seven-year-old Sharron Edey, a pupil of the "Sunshine Class" at Bordon school in Ottawa. Sharron bought the first stamps with a cheque for $50 contributed by the pupils of her school. Timmy's full name is Harvey Bellman and he comes from Willowdale, Ont.

Union Losing Its Grip On Music In U.S.

NEW YORK, March 15. (AP)—Two anti-trust judgments against "ASCAP" — The American Society of Composers and Authors and Publishers—have limited its music licensing practices and forced changes in its organizational set-up.

The decrees were signed in Federal Court Tuesday, with ASCAP agreing to terms drawn by the anti-trust division of the United States Justice Department.

Ascap, functioning as a pool of music writers and publishers, grants performing rights and collects royalties for almost all the copyrighted music in the US.

(Canada apparently will not be affected by the US action. In Toronto, W. S. Low, general manager of the Composers, Authors and Publishers Association of Canada, Limited, said he could not comment fully until he studied the decrees but that his "understanding is that inasfar as Canada is concerned, we are not involved in any way with the result of such a judgment."

(Low noted that Canadian monopoly laws do not apply to copyright as the US Anti-Trust Laws.)

Have Wide Effect

The US decrees will have a wide effect on both foreign and domestic music business, but mostly in a financial way.

The main provisions of the decrees will do this:

1. Force ASCAP to cut all ties with international organizations that might lead to a monopoly of foreign music in the US.
2. Make ASCAP end all arrangements giving it sole control of a foreign country's music, or which require similar foreign societies to deal with ASCAP.
3. Require ASCAP to offer movie producers and television stations a single license to cover all performances of music in a film or telecast.
4. Prevent ASCAP from suing movie exhibitors (theatre owners) for royalties.
5. Give any commercial user of music who question's ASCAP's royalty rates a court review of them.
6. Allow any of ASCAP's 2,500 members to licence his music independently or to resign from the society at any time.

Montreal Coal Up

MONTREAL, March 15—(CP)—Dealers announced today that Montrealers will soon be paying more for coal. On anthraclite, a hike of 90 cents a ton is forecast for all hard coal reaching the city by the latter part of next week. The price of soft coal is expected to rise 25-40 cents a ton. Higher Canadian freight rate charges and increased royalty payments to United States miners were given as reasons.

Expert Young Technicians Give Vital Trial Evidence

QUEBEC, March 15 (CP) — Young technicians, with up-to-date scientific knowledge at their finger-tips, provided vital links in the chain of circumstantial evidence that convicted J. Albert Guay, small-time jeweller, of plotting and bringing about an air disaster to get rid of his wife.

During the 14-day trial which concluded Tuesday with a death sentence June 23 for the 32-year-old Quebecer, crown authorities paraded 80 witnesses before the jury of 12 men.

Many of them, humble people from lower town Quebec City—the backyard of Guay's youth and his adult stamping ground—told of his married life with pretty Rita Guay and his tempestuous two-year love affair with young waitress Marie-Ange Robitaille.

They described the impact on his wife's mother and sisters of the Sept. 9 air tragedy in which 26-year-old Rita Guay died with 22 others aboard a Canadian Pacific Airlines plane bound for Sept-Iles, down the north shore of the St. Lawrence river.

Many Technicians

Prosecutor Noel Dorion also put in the witness box technicians able to declare to a jury that a scrap of aluminum bent this way or that meant that CF-CUA, the plane it came from, did not fail mechanically.

Frank Francis of Vancouver, 25-year-old chief of engineering services for Canadian Pacific Airlines, told the jury through an interpreter translating his words into French, that without doubt a luggage compartment explosion brought CF-CUA down on the mountainside.

David Tennant, 34-year-old assistant director of engineering for Trans-Canada Airlines, was another who ticked off the possible sources of explosion connected with the operation of a DC-3 plane such as CF-CUA.

These possible explosion sources were high octane fuel supply, high-pressure hydraulic system, batteries accidentally overcharging, alcohol de-icing supply and a fire-extinguishing tank with comparatively high pressure in it.

As did Francis and a third engineer, Frank Roussea, a young aeronautical consultant, Tennant flatly discarded the idea of a fatal blast due to any of these causes.

Used Pictures

They supported their statements with discussions about the condition of pieces of wreckage brought to the courtroom, an elaborate series of photographs taken at the wreck scene and a blue-print showing the exact spot on the Sault au Cochon mountain where every piece of wreckage was found.

The crown also called on three experts on explosions—Prof. Lucien Gravel of Laval University, 25-year-old Bernard Peclet of Provincial Medico-Legal Laboratories in Montreal, and Peclet's superior, veteran police analyst Franchere Pepin.

Gravel said it was a dynamite explosion in the luggage compartment that blew parts of the plane's left side away.

Scientific Tests

Peclet showed the jury photographic results of tests with a spectrograph revealing traces of exploded dynamite and the dust of metal from a smashed alarm clock and a dry-cell battery.

Two metal slivers, not much bigger than pins, found in shreds of clothing blown from the plane into a tree-top, were shown to the jury by Peclet.

He declared examination of the two bits of zinc were definite clues to the size, voltage and make of the dry-cell battery that set off the dynamite in the luggage compartment.

It took the crown two weeks to bring all its 80 witnesses before the jury as their testimony piled up into a heavy weight of evidence against Guay, he seemed to grow weary of it.

He wept when Dr. Jean-Marie Roussel, another medico-legal expert, listed in detail all the injuries suffered by Mrs. Guay in the plane wreck.

The jury was absent from the courtroom Tuesday only 17 minutes from the time Judge Albert Sevigny concluded his three-hour address until they returned with their guilty verdict.

Make Pinball Raid

BELLEVILLE, March 15. — Nine pinball machine operators were charged with keeping common gaming houses as the result of investigations by the Ontario Provincial Police anti-gambling squad here Monday. They will appear in court March 24. Police charge the machine operators paid off customers in cash for accumulated free games.

Lift Oleo Ban

CHARLOTTETOWN, March 15—(CP)—A bill will be introduced during the current session of the Prince Edward Island Legislature to lift the ban on the sale and manufacture of margarine in the province, Agriculture Minister Cleveland Baker said Tuesday night. Quebec and PEI currently are the only two provinces in which margarine is banned.

No Speeding On Tractor

SASKATOON, March 15—(CP)—L. B. Thompson, Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Act director, said Tuesday "there should be a law" prohibiting farmers from driving tractors faster than 3.5 miles an hour while tilling soil. Addressing the annual convention of the Saskatchewan Association of Rural Municipalities, he said a high speed is "one of the major factors contributing to pulverization of the soil."

Robert E. McBrien Again Heads Deaf

TORONTO, March 15 (CP) — Robert E. McBrien of Peterborough has been re-elected president of the Canadian Association of the Deaf, it was announced Tuesday night. Howard J. Lloyd of Peterborough was elected vice-president. The association's annual meeting endorsed projects to provide special facilities for deaf high school students aiming at college careers. It pledged assistance in a campaign for re-opening of a residential school for deaf children in Manitoba.

TCA Gets Stops In Florida In Deal With United States

OTTAWA, March 15 (CP) — Reciprocal agreements between Canada and the United States will permit Canadian planes to stop at Tampa and St. Petersburg, Fla., en route to Trinidad and Orient-bound U. S. planes will stop at Edmonton it was announced Tuesday.

A Washington announcement said the Civil Aeronautics Board had granted permission for the Florida stops by TCA craft flying from Toronto and Montreal to Port of Spain, Trinidad. Transport Minister Chevrier, who was delighted with the arrangement, said this action would expedite the United States' application to stage an air route from the Western U. S. to the Orient, using Edmonton as a stop-over.

The U. S. board felt that diversion of travel business to the Canadian line would not be large, and would likely be mostly travellers who are citizens of Canada.

Likely Granted

Mr. Chevrier said he believed a further TCA application to open a route between Montreal and New York in competition with Colonial Air Lines would be granted in due course. The situation had been eased with Colonial's withdrawal of opposition to the application, which it had previously felt would mean a big cut in operational revenue.

The two countries decided in talks last year to continue implementation of a bilateral air agreement only under reciprocal arrangements.

Service on the Toronto-Florida link will start on April 2, when the five and a half hour non-stop flights will be inaugurated. It is the first direct transportation service between Canada and the Southern United States. The new service will also bring direct air connections between the west coast of Florida and the Caribbean islands of Jamaica and the Bahamas.

Two flights weekly are scheduled between Montreal, Toronto, Tampa, St. Petersburg, Nassau and return.

Television Puts The Boss Right Beside Employee

By FORBES RHUDE.
Canadian Press Business Editor.

Does the office inter-com or telephone give you an uneasy feeling that the boss is always right beside you? Or do you feel a little nervous when he makes a tour of office or plant?

Well, prepare to be more uneasy and more nervous. Pretty soon he can come at you without warning, not only with biting or booming voice, but with gestures and grimaces—all at the flick of a switch. Worse than that, he can be looking over your shoulder without you even knowing it.

The answer is, of course, television. For that little package of light and movement has only started to unveil its wonders.

There can be television hook-ups that would put the boss right on your desk or, if he didn't want to get that personal about it, a central screen by which he can speak to a group; this especially for large offices and plants, or those in another centre than head office.

Take a Peek

Or there can be the reverse, where he looks down the line without himself being seen and see just what's happening in any corner of the premises.

Branch factory groups, salesmen in various cities, or stockholders throughout the country can be gathered together, with all hands both seeing and hearing all that goes on. It might replace sales conventions to a degree or bring in those unable to attend the central get-together. Demonstrations can be given to scattered dealers.

The possibilities are virtually limitless and by no means visionary, for some of these things are being offered for sale in the United States right now. But perhaps you will prefer to play with the H-bomb?

WITH THE BOY SCOUTS

BY DON GRANT

The next Ontario Rover Scout Moot will be held in the Peterborough district the Ontario Rover Round Table decided at the March meeting in Hamilton. The invitation to hold the moot in this area was extended by Peter Dominik, assistant district commissioner, on behalf of the Peterborough Boy Scout Association. Upon the suggestion of the local representatives the Blue Mountain area near the American Nephaline Mines was chosen as a site for the event.

For a number of years the Ontario Rovers have asked for a rugged place to hold their annual weekend camp, still remembering the camp at Bald Lake in 1937. Most of the delegates believed this site would afford all the opportunities for such a week-end.

Rovers camp will come from all over Ontario and invitations have been given to Quebec and United States Rovers. An expected 350 Rovers will go through the program of strenuous and rugged activities.

All arrangements for these moots are made by a group of men from over Ontario, Rover leaders and others under the direction of Harold Taylor of Delhi, Ontario, Provincial Commissioner for Rovers, who will soon receive Scouting's highest award, the Silver Acorn for leadership.

Rover Round Tables are held monthly in Bronte at the home of Provincial Commissioner W. J. Tisdale or in the Hamilton Boy Scout Association headquarters.

As the result of the last Round Table a new policy was recommended to higher authorities, to lower the Rover Scout age from 17½ years to 16 years. They felt that the lowering of the Rover age was one solution to the problem of losing boys 15 to 16 years old from Scouting.

Here in Peterborough there is only one Rover Scout Crew, the 5th All Saints Church Crew. Arrangements are now under way to form new crews, St. John's Church crew (once one of the top Rover Scout Crews in Ontario) and the Knights of Columbus. A rumor has it that crews may be formed at Trinity United and St. Luke's Anglican. If these materialize Scouting will once again be on the upgrade in the city. Through Rover Scouts the leadership problem will be solved.

Long Service Medal

The Rev. W. E. Kibblewhite of All Saints Anglican Church was given a surprise at the monthly 5th Rover Crew breakfast as he was presented with the long service medal for Scouting. Commissioner George Groombridge made the presentation.

One of Peterborough's most active minister-workers in Scouting, Mr. Kibblewhite entered Scouting as a Cub in Saskatchewan. With the pack there three years he spent his Scouting years with the 17th Winnipeg Troop the thence to the Winnipeg D Rover Crew for four years. As a cubmaster Rev. Mr. Kibblewhite has led the Church of the Messiah Pack in Toronto, the First Agincourt Pack, the First Collingwood Pack and the 5th All Saints Pack. His years in Scouting now total 22.

All Saints Cubs

After Akela was welcomed by the Grand Howl last Tuesday in the All Saints' pack's jungle clearing Gerald Fry was given his seconder stripe in the Honor six under Gar White. After a short instruction period the pack held a knot relay which was won by Keith Satchford's Red Six. Red Flower was held to close the meeting.

All Saints Group Committee

Last Tuesday the All Saints Group committee held their meeting with the cub, Scout and Rover Scout representatives present. Following the general business plans were started for the annual Father and Son Banquet to be held soon. A combined church parade will be held March 19.

The Ladies Auxilary under Mrs. James Morley held their monthly meeting Tuesday. They held a short discussion on the Scouting problems.

St. Lukes's Scouts

The 2nd Armour Scouts of St. Lukes Church held their weekly Friday night. After the opening practices of Scouting the troop held an out-door-relay, won by the Beavers, and a game of elimination knotting, won by Fred Johnson for the Wolves. Scoutmaster Henry Nokes gave a short talk on the details of the Troop's trip to Toronto March 25 to the Sportsmen's Show and the hockey game. The date of the summer camp was set for July 3 to 13.

Scouting Around

Kitchener—A safety course for Boy Scout will be given at the district headquarters beginning March 23. Scouts qualifying will receive the Safetyman's Badge and the group earning the most badges will receive a shield presented annually by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Toronto—The Scouts campaign to reach $125,000 required to meet the needs of the Boy Scouts in the city and a $33,000 house purchased in 1949 was half realized last week. Only one-third of the possible contributors have been contacted.

Windsor—St. Rose De Lima Church 18th Boy Scout group committee staged its fourth annual exhibition of boxing-wrestling last week at the church. Two wrestling bouts and five boxing bouts were held with Bill Stemmler, former professional boxer, refereeing. The group benefitted from the program.

Hamilton—The South Central Ontario Leaders Conference will be held in Hamilton Saturday at the Royal Connaught Hotel. Sessions will be held for Cub leaders Scout leaders, group committe ladies auxiliaries and members of local associations.

London, England—Four Rover Scouts from London have started their first lap of a hike around the world, expected to take three to five years. The Rovers, Peter Williams 21, Tom Hodgson 21 George Grainger 21 and Cryil Wyncoll 20, plan to work their cross-channel passage on a French onion boat. By odd jobs they plan to pass through France, Belgium Holland, West Germany, Norway Sweden, Switzerland, Italy, Malta, Egypt, South Africa, Australia, New Zealand, U.S.A. and Canada.

Oshawa—Major General Daniel C. Spry, D.S.O., C.B.E., wartime commander of the 3rd Canadian Division and now Executive Commissioner for Scouting in Canada attended Scout functions in Oshawa over the weekend. One of the functions was held to honor Executive Commissioner Leonard Knight who is leaving Oshawa.

TORONTO, March 15 (CP) — Highways Minister Doucett has received a resolution from the Ontario Provincial Chapter of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire asking him not to remove the Crown from the 1951 automobile licence plates. The resolution says removal of the crown could be interpreted as an indication of a weakening of British commonwealth ties, the IODE said.

89% Of Union Rejects Award

SARNIA, March 15 (CP) — Eighty-nine per cent of the 712 union employees of the Polymer Corporation voted Tuesday night to reject the recent award of a conciliation board which granted them only partial wage demands, it was reported by Louis Jerome, president of Local 14, United Chemical Workers (CIO).

He said the union bargaining committee had been authorized to meet Polymer officials again on Thursday to discuss the issues.

The $50,000,000 chemical rubber plant is operated by a Crown company and employs about 1,000 persons.

A shutdown would affect a large power plant which supplies 60-cycle power to the Westminster conversion station near London under contract with the Hydro-Electric Power Commission.

The union had asked an across-the-board increase of 10 cents an hour, and the board decided on 5.45 per cent which would raise the pay of laborers and utility men about six cents, and top operators and group leaders seven cents.

editorial which he said appeared in the Calgary Herald on the subject, but Mr. Claxton again called for production of the actual report. At this point the minister and Mr. Drew were both trying to make themselves heard at the same time.

Mr. Claxton appealed to the Speaker and called for a withdrawal of the statement that he had misled the House. Mr. Drew declined to withdraw.

Speaker Macdonald said he would not ask for a withdrawal as long as Mr. Drew was not saying that the minister had attempted to mislead the House deliberately.

The clash occurred after more than a half-dozen Opposition members had supported the defence-committee motion, sponsored by Maj.-Gen. G. B. Pearkes, VC (PC-Nanaimo), a veteran of the two World Wars.

In Amendment Form

The motion was in the form of an amendment to a government proposal that the House go into Committee of Supply to study estimates of various departments.

In rejecting the requests for a committee for about the fourth session in succession, Mr. Claxton said he believed he could say without fear of contradiction that "never in peace-time history has this House been given more information about defence matters."

He said that at the opening of the last session of Parliament, when the estimates were brought down, he tabled a White Paper on defence and made an extensive statement. There was ample opportunity for the Opposition members to ask questions, but they did not.

It was perfectly clear, he said, that the Opposition wanted a committee to deal with defence matters which would have the same character and same power as a committee of the Senate of the United States Congress.

Defeat Kind of Government

If a Canadian committee had anything like the powers of the US Senate Committee that would "defeat our kind of government."

The Cabinet constituted a committee of Parliament responsible to the King's advisors.

Mr. Drew said that when the minister suggested the establishment of a defence committee would represent a breach of the Canadian constitution he was making a "most blatant evasion." If it was unconstitutional for parliament to have a committee on defence then all other parliamentary committees were unconstitutional.

Mr. Drew said the government was asking for a total of $619,000,000 for defence expenditures. It was "most unfortunate" that the minister should 'so underestimate the intelligence of the people of Canada and the House of Commons" as to suggest that the chamber, by ordinary procedure, could tell how the money was to be spent.

Mr. Drew and Mr. Claxton clashed on the question of whether UK chiefs of staff appeared before a British committee on defence. Mr. Claxton said they had not. Mr. Drew said the chief of staff of the ministry of defence and the director of planning had appeared.

Have No Confidence

"That," said Mr. Drew, "is the kind of thing that makes it utterly impossible for members of this House to have any confidence in the minister."

Mr. Claxton touched only lightly on various defence questions raised during the debate. He said he hopes to make a comprehensive statement Friday if his estimates are called for discussion.

He disclosed that 1950-51 expenditures for the navy are 22 per cent higher than those for the current year. Most of the money would be spent in providing the navy with ships capable of coping with any submarine on the seas.

He stated that unemployment had not caused a large influx of men into the armed forces. He told of improvements planned for the RCAF in the way of new jet fighters and said the government had decided against the purchasing of a new type of air transport from the U.S. because it felt Canada could not afford the aircraft at this time.

In moving his motion, Gen. Pearkes said that public "concern and anxiety" about Canadian defence extends into the ranks of senior officials of the forces themselves.

Radical Change In Policy

There had been a "radical" change in naval policy and "in naval quarters there is much questioning as to whether our navy is following the right lines at the present time." He asked for information on the type of ships Canada planned to keep pace with submarine developments.

It was questionable whether balance had been achieved between the army and the RCAF. The recent Sweetbriar had indicated that Canada lacked sufficient transport planes to carry a battalion.

Senior officers were concerned over whether money is being saved on the RCAF "at the expense of safety."

All forces, he said, were "far below necessary standards of equipment that would be necessary to fight an Arctic war.

Mr. McIlraith entered the debate briefly to deny a newspaper (Montreal Gazette) report that Liberal members had met with officials of the Crown-owned Canadian Commercial Corporation to discuss the placing of defence contracts on a patronage basis.

He said he had convened a study club of Liberal members of the Commons. They met regularly and discussed subjects connected with the organization of the Trade Department, such as emergency import controls, organization and the economic research and development branch.

No Patronage

Last week, the subject matter was the Canadian Commercial Corporation. He invited the Corporation's managing director, W. D. Low, to address the group. There was "no discussion whatever on that occasion about patronage."

H. O. White (PC, Middlesex East), a first world war veteran, said the price Canada is prepared to pay for peace should not be an open door for careless spending by the government. Care should be taken to see that every dollar was well spent.

Mr. Claxton said that Mr. White had described the government's experience with Vampire aircraft as a "dismal failure." Mr. Claxton said this was not so. The Vampires had done a magnificent job during the recent excercise Sweetbriar.

Mr. Claxton also said Mr. White had referred to the Royal Military College at Kingston, and had stated that possibly it would be better to train Canadian officers at universities.

He invited Mr. White to visit RMC. He was sure he would return and say it was a good thing for Canada to have a college of that kind.

Senator Wants License Actors

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP) Criticizing the "brazen" romance between Ingrid Bergman and Roberto Rosselini, Senator Edwin C. Johnson (Dem., Colo.) introduced Tuesday an actor's licensing bill he said would curb "immorality and lewdness" in the movies.

Johnson called Miss Bergman "a powerful influence for immorality" because she bore Rosselini's child while she still was wed to Dr. Peter Lindstrom.

The Colorado Senator told the Senate that RKO had engaged in "nauseating commercial opportunism" by its "shameless exploitation" of Rosselini's picture Stromboli, in which Miss Bergman was starred.

The senator criticized Eric Johnston, head of the Motion Picture Producers Association, for permitting the film to be shown in the United States.

"With one eye on the cash register and the other constantly winking at evil, he has permitted scandal to pile up on scandal until the movies, a powerful influence for wholesome life, have lost the confidence of the American people," he said.

The bill would set up a licensing bureau in the Commerce Department.

Licenses would be denied to any person convicted of a crime involving moral turpitude "or who admits committing acts constituting the essential elements of a crime involving moral turpitude."

Win $19,229 Damages

WOODSTOCK, March 15 (CP) —Two Tillsonburg youths who each lost a leg in a crash between their motorcycle and an automobile were awarded a total of $19,229 in damages in Supreme Court Tuesday. They were: Clarence Smith, 36, driver of the motorcycle, $13,146; and Ryle Bruce McQuiggan, 21, his passenger, $6,083. The damages were assessed against the car driver, Julius Matscke also of Tillsonburg.

Large Ice Bridge

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., March 15 (CP)—One of the largest ice bridges in the last 10 years is forming here. Ice was poured into the lower Niagara river basin from the falls and tons more is expected from Lake Erie. The bridge already is an estimated 40 feet thick in places. Police have warned that it is unsafe.

Commandeer Homes

HONG KONG, March 15 (AP) —The Chinese Communists have commandeered about 2,000 residences in Shanghai's Plush Hungjao district, reports from Red China said today. No reason was given but there was conjecture the houses are for Russian advisers who are swarming in.

Salvage Ships Lift Sub, Likely 20 Bodies

SHEERNESS, March 15 — (Reuters)—Ten straining salvage ships Tuesday bodily lifted the gashed hull of the British submarine Truculent from a muddy grave nine fathoms deep in the Thames mouth.

Sixty-four men died when the Truculent was rammed and plunged to the bottom two months ago.

A rip tide delayed Tuesday's lifting for a while, but as the water rose, mighty steel hawsers around the Truculent's hull tightened and two former German submarine salvage vessels took the strain. Eight other ships helped.

Then the submarine—weighing 1,000 tons — was hauled up at about 20 feet an hour.

Her conning tower broke the surface just two hours after the lift began.

The plan is to tow the lifting vessels, with the submarine cradled between them, to a sand spit off Sheerness at full tide.

Divers who labored to get hawsers under the hull believe about 20 bodies will be found when her compartments are entered at the first low water.

VOL. C. No. 62 — WEDNESDAY, MARCH 15, 1950

Utilities Commission Plans $275,000 Program In Water, Electrical Depts.

For extension of their light and water services in the expanding community, Utilities Commission is facing the necessity of borrowing an additional $275,000 for their 1950 works program. As reported by R. L. Dobbin, manager, the estimate for the electrical department is $150,000, and for the waterworks system $125,000. A minor part of the expenditure that has to be financed is for projects already completed, but the bulk of the spending is in the immediate future.

Still To Be Paid For.

In the waterworks section, the westend elevated tank and booster pumping station for Civic Hospital water pressure were complete last year, but still have to be paid for at $29,000.

Then there is a 6,000,000 gallon electric pump at the waterorks pumping station, partly paid for in 1949 but not yet installed, costing $13,000.

And proposed water mains and connections requested by citizens and approved by the Ontario Department of Health in the amount of $88,000.

Mr. Dobbin recommended to the Commission that provision should be made for the extension of the 18-inch force main on Bethune St. from Sherbrooke to the corner of Perry and Aylmer Streets. It is already finished from the pumping station to Sherbrooke St., since the laying of the big main was resumed when the war was over.

"Also we should extend a 12-inch main at this point, Perry and Aylmer Streets along Perry St. to connect with the 12-inch feed line to Ashburnham at George St.

This construction, together with the laying of a 12-inch main from the end of the river crossing at Burnham's Point to the corner of Mark and Maria Streets would materially increase water pressures in Ashburnham.

Postponed to 1951.

Mr. Dobbin suggested that with so much other work to be done at once, these two 16" and 12" pipe lines might be held over to 1951.

The Commission has the following list of streets for this season's proposed water mains:

Weller, from the city limits, 317 feet westerly.

Juliet Road from Snelgrove to Swanston Road; Park Hill Road from Snelgrove easterly, 800 feet Gillesipe St. from Monaghan Rd westerly; Simmons Ave., from McFarlane Ave., 290 feet southerly.

Alberuts Ave., from Charlotte to Sherbrooke.

Ford Avenue from Chamberlain to St. Mary's St.

Monaghan Road from 280 feet north of Lansdowne to Edison Avenue.

Herman Ave., from Wilson to King George.

Western Ave., from Chamberlain to Lansdowne.

Ford Avenue from St. Mary's to Lansdowne. High Street from St. Mary's to Lansdowne, and also from Lundy's Lane to Chamberlain.

Lansdowne St. from High to Erskine Ave. Estimated cost, with connections, $75,144.41.

The borrowing will also provide for the mains on Hawley and Little Streets west of Monaghan Road, plus connections, that cost $13,415; plus new pump for the waterwork station $13,003; plus $29,036 for the elevted tank and booster pump for Civic Hospital.

Electrical Expenditures

Details of the capital expenditures in the electrical department are:

New primary and secondary circuits to supply Central Mortgage and Housing construction on Simmons Ave., Welch St., Ludgate St. and Watts Ave., in Ashburnham; also on Gillespite St. in the southwest end and other new housing on Swanston, Juliet and Park Hill Roads in the Nicholls Park area, amounting to $29,500.

Rebuilding and increasing capacity of present circuits (50 p.c. of this cost will be paid out of the depreciation fund) such as 2,300 volt primarly line on Romaine St. to Monaghan Road; on Sherbrooke St. from Aylmer St. to Dobbin Ave., on McFarlane Ave. to connect with McConkey dairy; and on Water St. north to Langton St. Estimate of that cost is $21,500.

Also, 700 new three-wire services at $25 each, $17,500; 1,000 three-wire meters at $25 each, $25,000; 200 street lighting units at $70 each, $14,000; 500 water heater controllers at $30 each, $15,000. Total of the estimate for work in the electrical department this year, $152,500, but the debenture issue is recommended at $150,000.

It is hardly likely that the Utilities and the Board of Works will have the same mileage of water and sewer lines this year as the totals in 1949, biggest year in the history of both departments, but the Dobbin program indicates continuation of further accommodation for the people at commensurate cost that has to be provided for by debenture borrowing.

Fraser Probes Two Incidents In Ottawa City

OTTAWA, March 15—(CP)—Defence Minister Claxton said Tuesday there is no evidence that the army was responsible in any way for a thunderflash explosion that injured four members of one family here Sunday, one seriously.

He was answering a question by G. K. Fraser (PC, Peterborough West) who twice stirred hostility in Liberal benches in the Commons by the way he phrased questions about two recent Ottawa incidents.

Mr. Fraser asked if Mr. Claxton was going to make a statement on a young man's hands being blown off by a thunderflash.

Mr. Claxton said no evidence has been brought to his attention that it was an army thunderflash, or that the accident was caused by army negligence. Investigation was going on, but reports indicated there would be no liability on the Government.

Mr. Fraser asked where else the thunderflash could come from. Mr. Claxton said it was a type made and used commercially.

Three of the injured, all members of the family of Mr. and Mrs Kenneth MacLaurin, were taken to hospital after what was described as a practice bomb exploded in the hands of David MacLaurin, eight, outside their home. His hand was virtually torn off.

Mr. Fraser earlier asked Trade Minister Howe if the Government would take responsibility for a boy who had suffered two burns as the result of coming into contact with radioactive radium needles stolen from the National Research Council.

Mr. Howe said the question included statements which might or might not be true and he would look into it. It arose out of last week's disappearance of 20 radium needles from an NRC shed.

FIRST APPLICATION RECEIVED

First application for enrolment in the Y's Men's Club's Boys' camp on Clear Lake was received this week by Don Duncan, Boys' Work Secretary at the YMCA. Mr. Duncan said that he has received a number of outside requests for information.

END OF AN OUTING—The wreckage of a giant four-motored airplane lies scattered on a gentle hillside near Llandow, Wales, where it crashed, killing 80 of the 85 persons aboard. The tragedy was the worst air disaster in history. The plane was carrying Welsh football fans home from Ireland, where they had seen a Wales-Ireland game.

Plan Ski Meet For Weekend

The Southern Ontario Ski Zone championships' meet will be held this weekend at Bethany and Nassau. The meet was to have been held early in February but was cancelled due to poor skiing conditions. With skiing tops in this district, clubs of the zone have asked that the meet be held.

Cross-country skiers will leave the Westclox Saturday at 10 a.m. while in the afternoon at 2 p.m. the jumpers will take to the air For the skiers who like to stay close to the ground the down hill events will start at 10 a.m., Sunday and the slalom events at 2 p.m. at Bethany. These times are subject to change by the judges who will be from out-of-town.

The city will be invaded by skiers from at least 20 clubs of the 40 clubs in this zone. In February the club officials waited until the last moment before postponing the championships for this year. The next week about 10 inches of snow fell.

Grove School of Lakefield used the Bethany hills Tuesday during the afternoon. The skiing was good. There is about six-eight inches of old snow covered by three inches of powder snow on the slopes and about 12 inches of old snow and three inches of fresh snow in the bush.

The Ski Club and the Recreation Commission have decided to operate a school on Saturday at Kempt's hill. Last Saturday the school was called off when the top of the hill became bare. The average attendance at the previous two Saturday schools was 200 children.

$3,000 Truck Burnt Hulk

Fire late Tuesday afternoon seriously damaged a three-ton heavy duty truck owned by the Peeling Lumber Co. on Highway 28, just north of the five-mile turn.

It has not yet been decided whether the truck, valued at more than $3,000, will be a total loss or has any salvage value. Exact cause of the outbreak is not known.

Combined efforts of a Colonial bus driver and a couple of transport drivers—all using their fire extinguishers—helped prevent a possible explosion. The flames reached the gasoline tank but the blaze was kept under control.

Extinguishers Used

Picking up an extinguisher from the Peterborough Fire Department the owner of the business, Art Peeling, drove to the scene of the blaze and helped subdue the flames.

The burned-out hulk of the truck was towed back to the Peeling Service Station, Charlotte St., by Russelle's tow truck.

The driver of the lumber truck was Jack Pacey, Gilchrist St., who was on his way to Fraserville for a load which he intended taking on to Hamilton. He was uninjured in the blaze.

The engine and cab are both a total loss as it most of the rest of the truck. One back tire at least is salvageable.

Scheduled Air Line Service Endorsed For Kawarthas

A plan to supply air service into the Kawartha Lakes district by the Central Aircraft Limited, Malton, was endorsed by the Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce Tuesday night. The Central Aircraft Limited plans to have a Class 3 charter with the airlines connecting at Malton Airport in Toronto. They will be using twin engined amphibian aircraft, smaller float and land based aircraft of four or five passenger type to fulfil the needs of the traveller, fisherman or businessman.

Working with the Trans-Canada Airlines and the American Airlines company plans to offer the flying tourist a service on a parallel with the airline standards. The passengers will be able to make connections from the points of departure right to their destination.

Apply Transport Board.

An application to the Air Transport Board to operate this service has been made by the company. In order to back up their statements they are asking the various tourist agencies such as the Chamber of Commerce to endorse the plan.

The resolution endorsed was three-fold: first, since the Peterborough district has thousands of visitors arriving and departing each year, the tourist business could be substantially increased with better air transporation facilities; second, travel by air at the present time is unsatisfactory and is pracicaly non-existent between this tourist area and Toronto; third, the Board approved the charter air service between Toronto and the Peterborough district.

Approval of the plan to service the resort areas of Ontario was given by the Canadian Tourist Association recently.

$45,000 Deficit For Hospital

Brantford General Hospital had a deficit of $45,000 last year. Total expenditure was $849,000, of which wages amounted to $466,000 and food costs $145,000. The number of patient-days was 110,086 at $7.80 a day. Total number of patients in 1949 was 6,997.

J. McIntosh Tutt, chairman of the Board of Governors, told Brantford Kiwanis that when the John H. Stratford Hospital was built there in 1885 the contractor's price for the 35-bed building was $12,500, which, he said, would represent the cost per bed for new hospital construction today.

Mr. Tutt said hospital expansion in Brantford was badly needed and a new building was proposed. He estimated that the hospital deficit this year would be greater than for 1949.

Peterborough Civic Hospital had a total expenditure in 1949 of $434,420.92 and an earned revenue of $370,172.82. Salaries totalled $243,856.25 and food costs $59,623.20. The number of patient days, 47,539, at an average cost of $9.12 a day.

Keene and Westwood will remain under Jonathan Greene, a catechist who came to this country from Ireland, and Warsaw will become a separate charge to be supplied by students from Knox College.

BUT NOT SERIOUS

Several bus customers commented Tuesday that if Armar Butcher superintendent of the parks, had left the rink boards up maybe the weather would have kept on the way it was going, mild and agreeable. But, when Mr. Butcher indicated that the winter was over, the weather turned perverse and is still on the job. As it turned out, junior would have weeks of skating after all if there had not been general agreement that spring was just around the corner and rinks were only wasting public money, without making ice.

Catholic Youth Present Irish Comedy

The opening night curtain went up on Tuesday night in the PCVS auditorium on the annual three-act Irish comedy of the Catholic Youth Organization of St. Peter's parish. The play, "Princess O'Toole," a farcical comedy, was played before a large audience. The cast, directed by Edward Murphy, included experienced actors and some making their first appearance on the stage.

Leading characters were difficult to single out. A comedy of errors, the plot gradually grew out of the opening scene as each new character appeared on the stage. There were plenty of opportunities for laughs. The setting was an eastern resort, owned by Elbert Ross (George Sullivan), hen-pecked husband of Minna, portrayed by Peggy Bowen. Della Hipt, the forceful renting-agent, who links together the plot, was very well played by Eleanor Collins. Elsie (Margaret Gorman) was the snoopy young girl next door, who continually stirs up trouble by her mistakes in identity. Lil Kelly (Alice Colline De Wolfe), the war-time woman constable, with her thick Irish brogue threw the audience into a uproar. Next appears Mrs. Ross Irwin (Catherine Doris), a sophisticated lady who has rented the resort with her Irish maid, comically called "Princess" O'Brien. Florine Killen, who ably plays the "princess," then becomes the centre of attraction, since all mistake her for the real Princess O'Toole. Walter Ryan, portraying the part of Erwin Ross, the son of old Elbert, elopes with Bubbles (Marie Kieran) who brings along her dog, named for Princess O'Toole. Brian O'Sullivan (Neil Plumpton), the wise cracking reporter, adds to the confusion, along with Bill McTeague, the suave husband of Mrs. Ross Irwin. Erwin's sister Cissie (Joan Rose), flies back and forth between the draft-board and the resort, complicating things still further. Elbert Ross is accused of being a scoundrel, and it is only toward the end that he is able to prove his innocence.

Before the curtain went up and during intermission the orchestra conducted, by Tony Seidel, delighted the audience with a medley of Irish airs. A vocal solo, rendered by Miss Helen Hajnik, and a duet by the Chretien sisters, Margaret and Olive, were well received by the audience.

"Princess O'Toole" will be staged tonight and Thursday, beginning at 8.15.

Failed To Give Police Proper Information

Found guilty of vagrancy, by Magistrate W. R. Philp in police court today, James Park, 22, of 37 Morrow St., was fined $5 and costs.

Constable Victor McConnell testified he was checking stores and buildings along Lansdowne St. about 2.30 a.m. Sunday. He saw a man in the doorway of the office of the Toronto-Peterborough Transport Co.

The man ran across the road and started to walk down the railroad tracks. When he and Constable Douglas Stark asked Park for his name and explanation of what he had been doing at the transport company's office, he said Park called the police a bunch of Gestapo. After he had got into the cruiser, Park told the officers his name and address.

Park said he had been out trying to phone a taxi for his friend, D. H. Downer, 172 Lake St., who with others had been at Park's house for the evening. He thought he might be able to find a watchman at the transport office to ask to use the phone.

He had also gone to a nearby house which showed a light and asked to use a phone, but there had been none in the house.

He said he started to run back to his house because he was wearing only a sweater over his shirt.

Magistrate Philp has previously warned persons charged with vagrancy that they must readily give their name and address and an explanation of what they are doing at any particular occasion when asked by a police officer.

TLC Asks Frost To Cancel Decertification Clause In New Ontario Labor Bill

TORONTO, March 15—(CP)—The Trades and Labor Congress today asked the Ontario government to delete from the new labor bill the clause providing for decertification of unions. A T.L.C. delegation met today with Premier Frost and his cabinet and presented a brief outlining requests for revision of the proposed labor code and other legislation. The brief also asked that the Ontario Labor Relations Board should have the right to grant a conciliation board and handle prosecution cases rather than the Labor Minister. Other demands were for a clear definition of company unions and inclusion within the bill's provision of municipal employees.

Unions should have the right to apply for certification and obtain a vote when 25 per cent of the employees authorize the union to apply, the brief said. The Bill now provides that a vote must be taken if a union has a signed-up membership of between 45 and 55 per cent of employees.

51 Per Cent of Voters

Fifty-one per cent of those taking part in a certification vote should constitute a majority instead of 51 per cent of the employees in the plant at the time of the vote, the Congress said. A simple majority should be enough to decide the issue of a union shop and compulsory dues check-off.

Unfair labor practices should include threats of various kinds to shut down, move plants and declare lockouts. Automatic grievances procedure should go into effect on certification to cover the period of early negotiation. The board should be provided with an adequate staff to speed up its work.

Special provisions should be made in the Act to cover the peculiar problems of the building trade and other groups in seasonal employment.

"Widespread Dissatisfaction"

The brief said there was "widespread dissatisfaction among Ontario workers with the Labor Bill which is at second reading stage in the Legislature.

"The feeling that the Act is not as good as preceding similar legislation is prevalent," it said.

The Federation asked the government to "enforce and police" its apprenticeship system to ensure the apprentice will be provided with the greatest possible benefits. It urged that the report of the Royal Commission on Education appointed in 1944 be presented at the current session of the Legislature.

Reduce Voting Age

It endorsed recommendations of the Federation of Ontario Provincial Fire Fighters that the Fire Department Act be amended to provide a mandatory "not-more-than-48-hour" week, the Federation asked for establishment of a Resources Commission to halt waste of natural resources. The

Seed And Cattle Prices Good Horses Outdated

"Horse-drawn machinery, unless almost new, sells as old iron," is an indication of the passing of the old agricultural order as reported from Wellington in the weekly report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Horses are cheap at auction sales in the county, "even show horses won't bring over $150 apiece."

Cows from listed herds are bringing "good prices" for export in Hastings. Seed barley is reported scarce in Ontario County, weanling pigs are selling at $8 to $10, and some hay is being brought in at $28 to $30.

Chick Orders Near Normal

Grenville hatchery men say total orders for chicks are almost up to normal; LennoxAddington the demand is about 80 per cent of last year; and Renfrew business is estimated at 25 per cent less than in 1949. In Bruce "chick orders have been very light."

US buyers have been active in Lincoln where prices of grade cows range from $200 to $250.

The grain fields of the province have been covered with snow for the last three weeks. Water supply is the best in years.

Baled hay is selling at $24 to $28 at the barn in Stormont, and weanling pigs are selling at $7 to $10.

Lindsay Youths Hurt In Crash

Just south of the junction with Highway 7A the car, driven by Cameron, skidded on the slippery road and then rolled over in the east ditch.

The vehicle also struck a tree and total damage is set at $400.

Cameron and O'Neill were taken to hospital by ambulance.

Smelt Run Near Spring Just Around Corner

TORONTO, March 15—(CP)—The annual smelt run will start any day now, the Ontario Lands Department said Tuesday. And to many Ontario residents who live near the Great Lakes, that means spring is just around the corner.

For in many communities, fishing smelt on the nights when they run in their silvery millions has become a rite of spring.

As soon as the sun's warmth clears the ice from the mouths of creeks and inlets and long before the floes have vanished from the lakes, the smelt suddenly appear. Almost always, they are first reported in the lower lakes area, where the creeks become ice-free sooner than in the north.

Soon, however, the run is on all the way from Kingston to Fort William.

Entire communities join in the smelt-fishing run, for the smelt are so numerous that practically anyone can easily catch enough in a matter of minutes to fill a frying pan.

A man with a small net or a washtub—or a boy who scoops up the fish with a bucket—needs no licence. But use of a medium-sized net calls for $1 licence fee, while anyone fishing on a commercial scale with a large net is required to take out a licence costing $10.

Gubitchev Changes Mind Prefers Jail To Russia

NEW YORK, March 15 (AP) — Valentin A. Gubitchev probably will refuse to leave the United States next Monday rather than lose his right to appeal his conviction on spy conspiracy charges, his lawyer said today.

"The deal is off," lawyer Abraham L. Pomerantz told reporters.

Pomerantz had said earlier that Gubitchev—given the choice between going to prison for 15 years or returning to his native Russia—would sail Monday.

Later Tuesday, however, the lawyer said the plans have been changed because the government insists on Gubitchev giving up all right of appeal if he leaves the country.

U. S. Attorney Irving H. Saypol confirmed that Gubitchev would have to drop his appeal if he tons.

Saypol said Gubitchev wants to leave the United States.

"I won't let Gubitchev have his cake and eat it," Saypol said. "If he wants to proceed with the appeal he will have to do it from jail."

Gubitchev was convicted along with Judith Coplon, former Justice Department employee, last week on charges of conspiring to spy for the Russians.

Federal Judge Sylvester J. Ryan sentenced each of them to 15 years in prison. On the government's recommendation, he said he would suspend Gubitchev's sentence if the Soviet engineer left the country, never to return.

Graduate Air Cadets To Get 20 Scholarships

SEIGNIORY CLUB, Que., March 15 (CP)—The Air Cadet League of Canada will award 20 scholarships this year to graduate air cadets.

Funds for the scholarships this year, valued at $600 each, were set aside Tuesday at a meeting of the league's national executive committee. The scholarships will assist the cadets to attend either of Canada's two services colleges—Royal Military College at Kingston or Royal Roads near Victoria.

The executive also agreed to continue the international exchange of cadets with Britain and the United States and to sponsor the Canadian team which will participate in the international cadet drill competition to be held in the U.S. this summer.

WHITBY, March 15 — (CP).—Albert King, 17, and John Cook, 18, both of Toronto, were committed Tuesday for trial on the charges of motor manslaughter arising from the death of two 'teen-aged companions. Pumping Station Plan

TORONTO, March 15 (CP). — Plans for a $10,000,000 west-end pumping station expected to supply enough water for the Greater Toronto area were passed Tuesday by the Board of Control. Mayor Hiram McCallum said the project is "another reason" for the city's 12 suburbs to amalgamate with Toronto. The city now supplies some suburbs with water and increased supplies have been asked.

Landslide Of Letters Demand Reform In U.K. Voting System

By ALAN HARVEY.

LONDON, March 15 (CP) — A landslide of letters demanding reform of Britain's system of voting has followed the Feb. 23 general election.

Indignant correspondents contend that the present method, once described as the world's most discreditable, should be replaced by proportional representation or the alternative vote.

These are among the points raised in correspondence columns of the Independent Times and Manchester Guardian and the News Chronicle, both Liberal:

1. The present system of single votes in single-member constituencies, similar to that used in Canadian federal elections and allowing the elector no second choice among candidates, has done much to create today's stand-off between the two big parties.

2. Of 625 members elected to the House of Commons, 186 received a minority of votes cast in their constituencies.

3. The Liberals polled 2,600,000 votes but obtained only nine seats compared with some 13,000,000 votes and 315 seats for Labor.

One correspondent recalled that the late J. L. Garvin, editor of the Independent Sunday Observer, called Britain's system one of the most discreditable in the world.

Flood of Inquiries

Britain's proportional representation society, founded in 1884, reported "a flood of inquiries" at its London headquarters following the Feb. 23 vote.

Under the proportional representation, electors select candidates in order of preference. The same thing happens under the alternative vote. The chief difference between the two systems is that proportional representation returns more than one member in each constituency. The alternative vote applies to constituencies electing one member only.

A spokesman for the society said that in the last provincial election in Canada, with proportional representation in Calgary and Edmonton and the alternative vote in country districts, supplied a striking example of varying results.

In the country districts, the society said, the Social Credit party won 58 per cent of the total vote and won all 47 seats. In Calgary and Edmonton, under proportional representation, Social Credit won five, CCF two, Liberal two and one other.

Less than two weeks after the British election, Conservative leader Winston Churchill surprised the House of Commons by suggesting a select committee to consider the whole question of electoral reform.

Herbert Morrison, government leader in the House, rejected the idea and said any change in procedure should be supported by a mandate from electorate.

London Letter

London's "Little Terrors" Blamed For Crime Wave

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

LONDON, March 15—(CP)—London's "Little Terrors" — street-corner boys responsible for the city's latest crime wave—were discussed recently at a Scotland Yard conference. Inspectors, Superintendents and Constables told Assistant Commissioner Ronald Howe, C.I.D. Chief, that street-corner boys aged between 15 and 20 are committing "acts of maximum violence for the minimum of profit."

"They are not professional crooks," one Inspector said. "They lack the skill of house-breakers and even the wile and guile of pickpockets. But one of these days one or more of these little terrors will be facing a murder charge."

He said he believed the little terrors would use firearms if they could get them. As they could not, they made blackjacks from lengths of rubber tubing, filled with lead, sawn-off gas pipes and even bicycle chains.

Many assaults made by the youths had been without any apparent motive.

No Real Reasons

The conference was told a gang of eight youths knocked down and kicked a young man walking with his fiancee—but made no attempt to rob him.

When the gang was rounded up the leader was asked: "Why did you do it?" He replied: "If we go a strange area with a girl we get beaten up—so we do the same."

Several police officials criticized the "excessive leniency" of police courts dealing with such cases.

They contended that hooligans who inflict physical pain should themselves suffer physical pain instead of being treated in a "kid-glove" fashion by magistrates.

Most trouble-makers, it was said, were boys who already had appeared in juvenile courts and had been dealt with leniently.

Authorities agree probably the best way to meet the problem would formation of more youth's clubs in London. Of the 54,000 youths between 15 and 18 years of age in the city, only about 30 per cent now belong to boy's club

Many of the rest, seeking "adventure and excitement," try to get it by gang methods.

PEI Legislature Forecasts Small Surplus

By The Canadian Press.

Record revenues and expenditures are forecast for Prince Edward Island during the fiscal year ending March 31, 1951.

Hon. Walter Darby, making his first speech as Provincial Treasurer Tuesday, predicted a surplus of $45,434 in revenue over ordinary expense for the coming year, the smallest surplus a provincial government has had to work on in years.

He said the difference between accumulated total expenditure and total revenue will be $1,631,066 after $495,245 is added to the sinking fund.

A large proportion of the province's revenues are derived from sources that may be reduced considerably in case of depression, Mr. Darby said. But it was reasonably certain that no serious recession is likely to occur during the year with the large projected works program.

Debt Disturbing

He said the rapidly-mounting public debt is disturbing but the province is still reasonably solvent.

In the New Brunswick Legislature Hon. J. G. Boucher, provincial secretary-treasurer introduced a bill to provide for refunding more than $14,000,000 worth of debentures. It received second reading on the ground of urgency and then was approved by the committee of the whole house.

At Quebec, Provincial Treasurer Onesime Gagnon tabled record estimates of government expenditure totalling $200,614,850 for 1950-51.

Announce Estimates

The estimates indicated that the treasurer will announce record estimates of revenues for the province when he delivers his budget speech Thursday.

Estimates of expenditures for the year ending March 31 had been $176,497,860. The treasurer Thursday will give the results of the year's financial operations.

In Saskatchewan, B. L. Korcinski, Liberal for Redberry, said the CCF party policies are destroying rural Saskatchewan.

Speaking in the budget debate, he said Socialist legislation is causing farmers to move to cities or out of the province entirely. In the last nine years, farm population has decreased by 100,000 he said.

In cities, labor bosses are "forcing the worker to toe the CCF line, he said. The CCF is destroying rural Saskatchewan and "labor is helping them destroy the goose that laid the golden egg," because Saskatchewan cities only exist to serve farmers.

The bake sale to be held on Easter Saturday was discussed and it was also decided to hold a bingo in the Town Hall on April 11.

The president, Mrs. Cook, thanked those who had held card parties in their homes and asked conveners to present reports of study clubs at next meeting. Group nine was asked to provide refreshments at the April meeting.

Father O'Neill congratulated the League upon the success of the card parties.

Long Distance Telephone Call System Will Be Simplified

OTTAWA, March 15 — (CP) — Making a long distance telephone call will be simplified under a program to be started by Bell Telephone Company of Canada next year.

At first, the streamlining procedure will affect only major Ontario and Quebec cities. Eventually, the company hopes to integrate its plan into a continent-wide scheme of semi-automatic long distance call-making.

Arnold Groleau of Montreal, general facilities superintendent for Bell, outlined the plan Tuesday before the Board of Transport Commissioners as its hearing continued on the company's application for a 20-per-cent rate increase in Ontario and Quebec.

At present, he said, in placing a call between say, Toronto and Montreal, two operators must participate. The Toronto operator must call the Montreal operator and tell her the number. She in turn dials it in Montreal.

Mr. Groleau said the program to be started in 1951 will eliminate need for the second operator. The operator in the centre originating the call will be able to dial the number in another centre directly.

Completed By 1956

Mr. Groleau, in a detailed discussion of Bell's three-year $252,000,000 construction program, said the long-distance streamlining should be almost completed on a continent-wide scale by 1956.

Striving to catch up with a backlog of requests for service, Bell would spend $83,200,000 this year alone on construction. It would include conversion from manual to dial phones in such places as Lindsay, Sarnia, Tecumsem, Ahmerstburg and London.

A new dial exchange would be established at Deep River to serve the National Research Council's Atomic Energy Development. Bell would also spend $210,000 to move underground cables in Toronto because of the subway.

Other Jobs

Some other construction jobs expected to start this year:

Kingston — $220,000 extension for central office dial equipment.

Niagara Falls—$425,000 building for conversion to dial phones.

St. Catharines—$131,000 extension for central office dial equipment.

Toronto—$4,000,000 administration building on University Ave.

Windsor, Ont.—$285,000 garage and work centre on Kildare Road.

Belleville—$359,000 new long distance switchboard.

Brantford—$248,000 for addition of equipment for 2,000 dial phones.

Hamilton—$503,000 for 6,000 additional dial phones.

Kitchener—$87,000 for increasing size of long distance switchboard.

Imaginary Child's Bonus Taken, Man Fined $50

KAPUSKASING, March 15—A 7-year-old child which didn't exist cost Arthur Lavoie $50 and costs when he appeared in police court charged with illegally converting children's allowance cheques to his own use.

Charged jointly with her husband with inventing the child and drawing allowance cheques for it for two years, Mrs. Bertha Lavoie was placed on suspended sentence for one year.

RCMP officers said that Mrs. Lavoie had made out a registration form claiming the couple had adopted the imaginary child and that her husband had signed it. Lavoie claimed that he did not know how to read or write and did not know what he was signing. He admitted he had cashed allowance cheques for the child, however.

Magistrate Tucker ordered Lavoie to make restitution of about $170 which the government had paid for the child over the two-year period. The Lavoies have one child. It was adopted.

Wants Crowd At Festival

QUEBEC, March 15 (CP)—The adjudicator of the Eastern Quebec Regional Drama Festival hopes everybody who attended Tuesday night's opening performance will "bring a friend" tonight when the curtain goes up for the second and last entry.

Maxwell Wray lamented at the "sadly empty hall" Tuesday night when less than 50 persons were present to greet Les Comediens De Chez Nous and their Canadian written play "La Melodie Inachevee" (The Unfinished Melody.)

The second production of the first drama festival here in 12 years tonight will see the drama section of the National Conservatory of Music present "Quand Le Chat N'est Pas La (When the Cat Is Out) by Paul Vanderberghe.

The two entries are competing for the Sir Barry Jackson Trophy and a chance to be selected as a candidate for competition in the Dominion Drama Festival at Calgary next May.

Mr. Wray said Tuesday night's production was not happy fare for sophisticated urban theatregoers but lauded author-director-actor Georges Delisle for the sincerity with which he staged his play.

The plot concerns a mother who disguises the true character of her drunken, improvident husband, into that of a hero for her son.

Youthful Blonde Is Horse Student

VANCOUVER—(CP) — A post-graduate course in handling horses is not the sort of thing you'd expect Phyllis Houghton to take up—if you judged by her appearance only.

But that's what the small, young blonde who left here for England recently on a Norwegian frieghter is going to do. She will spend the next few months studying horse breeding farms in England and Ireland.

Now in her middle twenties, Miss Houghton has been studying and raising thoroughbreds at her Benacre farms on the southern tip of Vancouver Island for the last five years.

The 70-acre stud farm, once the property of Sir James Douglas, the second colonial governor of British Columbia, was purchased by her aunt, Mrs. Ann Gooch, shortly before the Second World War.

Miss Houghton is travelling to the United Kingdom under the auspices of the Anglo-Irish Breeder's Association.

Woman, 83, Makes First Phone Call

COLLINGWOOD, Ont.—(CP).—Mrs. Joseph McPherson, 83, received the first telephone call of her life Feb. 28. It was a call from her grandson extending congratulations on her 60th wedding anniversary.

Oscar McPherson phoned from nearby Zephyr where he is a telegraph operator. He was surprised at the ease with which his grandmother spoke, considering she had never used a phone before. "Sounded pretty good," said Mrs. McPherson. "Seemed as if Oscar was right in the next room."

Mr. and Mrs. McPherson were married in Stayner in 1890, but they have lived more than 50 years in Collingwood.

Unusual Fashions By Male Designers

MELBOURNE, Australia. — (CP).—Men are becoming designers in Australia, where many ex-servicemen have invaded the fashion world.

Trained at technical colleges under the Commonwealth Government's reconstruction training scheme, the men are now turning out some of the most unusual fashions ever seen in this country.

The principal of one of Melbourne's leading dressmaking schools, Dorothy Sandre, said that she thinks men make better fashion designers than women, because they have a better color sense and know what lines of a woman's figure should be accentuated.

Ballerina Dances Hubby Minds Baby

VANCOUVER (CP) — Finding time to be a prima ballerina and mother combined takes a lot of manoeuvring and in the case of Pat Meyers, formerly of Vancouver and now of Hollywood, it keeps the husband at home a lot.

Home from the film capital where she starred in the musical "A la Carte," Miss Meyers said "if it wasn't for an accommodating husband, I don't know what I'd do. He stays home almost every evening"

Miss Meyers made her debut as Alexandra Denisova in the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo. "I'm awfully glad to get rid of that Russian name," she says.

Her husband, Grant Garrett, is a Hollywood writer. They have an 11-month-old daughter, Sharon Denise.

Home League Shamrock Tea Includes Splendid Music

"Irish Tea Room", set up Tuesday afternoon by the Home League of the Salvation Army, in the Temple building, was a delightful rendez-vous for about 275 ladies. There, they enjoyed not only pleasant fellowship and delicious refreshments, but a musical program in keeping with the Army's just fame.

Major Cyril Everitt and Mrs. Frances Turner played piano selections and 10-year old Hugh Smith came in to entertain with a piano solo. The Temple Xylophone Party gave several excellent numbers, Mrs. A. B. Smith, Mrs. R. G. Routly, Mrs. Ken Bolam and Major Everitt, using the hammers and Mrs. S. J. Richardson accompanying on the piano. Mrs. Len Slaughter's humorous reading was also well received.

Guest artists assisting on this occasion were Mrs. Ross Moore, soprano, who sang several Irish numbers, and her accompanist, Mrs. Leonard McNeil.

Decorations were the colour of old Erin itself with festive streamers all around the large room, caught with big shamrocks to the dozen posts, each of which was topped with a pot of fern.

A white lace tablecloth was laid over shimmering green cellophane that sparkled with the light from green tapers in silver candlesticks. Mrs. A. B. Smith and Mrs. Major Cyril Everitt were pouring the tea.

Individual tables for the extra convenience of guests, were each centred with a white lace doilie and a fancy basket of candy. These were served by Mrs. Art Wilfong, Mrs. Gordon Holnbeck, Mrs. Carl Bowes, Mrs. Allan Wilson, Mrs. May Howden, Mrs. Geo. Allport, while plates and tea pots were replenished by Mrs. Wm. Lowell, Mrs. R. G. Routly, Mrs. Wm. Parsons, Mrs. Geo. Smith and Mrs. Mel Shadgett.

Hostesses in the tea room were Mrs. Len Slaughter and Mrs. Ralph Braund. Receiving at the door were Mrs. Col. Ritchie and Mrs. Major Everitt Sr., and the tickets and admission fees were taken by Mrs. Wm. Jones.

Spring flowers made the home cooking table specially gay and they were all that remained on it before close of the tea. Mrs. Ken Payne and Mrs. Harold Barton were the salesladies.

The candy table was decorated with white doilies and shamrocks on the green cellophane and a lovely bouquet of tulips, and Mrs. W. Wilkinson and Mrs. P. Butler were selling the sweet stuff.

Mrs. Mendel Braund, general convener of this event, is largely responsible for the splendid success.

Judge Says Woman Behaved Like Cat

DERBY, England, (CP)—Judge R. A. Willes in divorce court referred to a wife as "displaying all the characteristics of a wild cat."

"She ought never to have been allowed to marry any human being," the judge said.

He granted a divorce to William Sault, maintenance engineer, on grounds of desertion by his wife, Frances Sault.

Judge Willes said the wife had refused to live anywhere but with her mother. She found fault with his endeavours to find a home and eventually "the feline wife and the cat-like mother turned him out of the latter's house."

HALF-CENTURY HIGHLIGHTS

HORSE AND BUGGY TO HELICOPTER is the story of the American Red Cross nurse in the Twentieth Century. Through the years since this vital nursing service was founded in 1910, Red Cross nurses have gone on their errands of mercy by whatever form of transportation presented itself. They have traveled on skis and snowshoes, mounted horses, paddled boats, driven "tin lizzies" through mud and snow and very often walked to visit the sick and injured in isolated or disaster-stricken areas. The "horse and buggy nurse" picture was made shortly before World War I. The "helicopter nurse" shot was taken a few weeks ago, when nurse Myrtle Wilson of St. Louis, Mo., went by Coast Guard 'copter to aid flood victims along the St. Francis River in Arkansas.

DOROTHY DIX

Wife Is Unable to Tolerate Husband's Harmless Hobby

DEAR MISS DIX: I have been a good and faithful husband to my wife, and her four children, now grown, bear testimony to the fact that I have been a splendid stepfather to them. For more than twenty-one years I have carried out every desire to my wife, who is considerably older than myself. I am a very quiet and reserved man and my greatest pleasure in my hobby, which is the love of birds. I love to watch them. To this my wife strongly objects. She ridicules me daily and resents my harmless little birds, and my little aviary at the far edge of the garden has been the cause of many a quarrel. I love peace at any cost, but I do not feel that I should give up this one hobby to please her, yet her constant nagging takes away the happiness I derive from it. What should I do? ?

UNDECIDED

ANSWER: Keep your birds. Assert your right to a little independence of thought and action. Tell your wife that you intend to indulge yourself in this harmless pleasure and that if she says another word about it or makes another wisecrack concerning it you will take the birds and go to some place where you can be the master of your own house and live in peace.

Demand Her Respect

This will not only enable you to pursue your hobby unmolested, but will make your wife respect you more. You have let her run roughshod over you so long and dominate you so completely that she come to think of you as a moral coward who hasn't enough backbone to stand up for his own rights. That is why she twits you with your birds. She wouldn't dare raise an objection to them if she knew that you would give her a good bawling out and tell her just where she got off. If you would just tell her one time that because she was old enough to be your mother was no reason you had to obey her, you would hear no more about your little pets.

I think that one of the most inexplicable characteristics that women show is their almost universal lack of sympathy and understanding of their husband's hobbies. They forget that a hobby can be a lifesaver in taking a man's mind off his business worries and perplexities. Also, a hobby is first aid to a wife in keeping her husband at home. The man who is free to amuse himself at home in his own way is seldom a stepper-out.

DEAR MISS DIX: I have a daughter of 23, a college graduate, above the average in looks and in intellectuality. She is in love with a young man of 25, of fine reputation and good position. He is in love with her but not enough to marry her, but he permits my daughter to lavish her whole heart upon him. My daughter makes no secret of her affection for this young man and it worries me to see her baring her very soul to him. Am I taking the wrong attitude about it? Should I leave them to work out things in their own way?

A MOTHER

ANSWER: You will have to leave them to work it out their own way because there is nothing you can do with an infatuated girl. She is deaf to reason and blind to consequences and nothing but time and experience can bring her to her senses.

She cannot even see that she is taking the surest possible way to disgust the young man and keep him from marrying her. For there is nothing a man gets fed up on so quickly as too much love. He gets surfeited on it as surely as he would on too many chocolate creams. Kisses lose their flavor when they become a steady diet and petting becomes a chore when a girl demands it.

No girl can possibly make a bigger mistake than to make herself too easy, for thereby she becomes so cheap that the man ceases to want her. It is the girls who have reserve, and who hold themselves dearly that men desire. For down at the bottom of his heart every man is an adventurer who loves the chase. And he loses interest in the game the moment the role is reversed and he becomes the chased and the woman the chaser.

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband insists on taking his stenographer home several times a week in his car. When I ask him not to do so, he gets mad. We live in a small town and people are beginning to gossip about it. Is there any way I can stop it?

A. H.

ANSWER: None, because the more you nag your husband about it, the more determined he will be to do as he pleases. But he is doing a very foolish thing and one that will bring scandal upon him and the girl. He should have enough sense and worldly experience to know that the world always believes the worst of a married man's attentions to a pretty girl. And to be gossiped about is bad for his business.

New School Drops Progressive Idea Tries Discipline

By DAVID TAYLOR MARKE

NEW YORK.—(AP)—A determined mother of four children who thinks progressive education is "hogwash" is busy putting her ideas into actual school practice.

With the slogan "self-expression through self-discipline" and recruits ranging in age from two to 12, Mrs. Isabelle P. Buckley has been quietly spreading her ideas for the last 15 years.

The tall, blonde, young-looking mother, founder and head of the Buckley Schools in California, says she is opposed to "progressive" education because "a child needs a sense of order in his world if he is to feel secure. He urgently requires a pattern for living, not only to guide him but to give him comfort and assurance. Disciplined education provides that pattern."

Expanding her theories in an interview between conferences with New York book publishers Mrs. Buckley compared disciplined education to the fence surrounding a child's play yard.

"It is not a barrier so much as a boundary," she maintains. "It defines—rather than confines—the child's world.

"What has come to be regarded as 'progressive education' has failed to fulfill this vital function. In an attempt to widen the child's horizon it has torn down the backyard fence. The result has been merely to deprive the child of emotional security and to dissipate his creative instincts."

Not Popular

When Mrs. Buckley organized her first small class of students in 1934, "discipline" was not a popular word with professional educators of the very young.

Starting on a shoestring and dependent upon tuition fees for capital, her plan 'grew like topsy." Now there are three Buckley schools in greater Los Angeles; two ready to be launched in Omaha, Nebraska and Grosse Pointe Park, Michigan; and other pilot schools in the planning stages for most of the principal United States cities.

Mrs. Buckley considers the desire to learn and the enjoyment of learning "the essential prerequisites of education." This philosophy is reflected in emphasis on good manners. Visitors to the schools are sometimes startled by the politeness of the youngest pupils.

Discipline Youngsters

Mrs. Buckley points to her art classes as an example of "self-expression through self-discipline." Before two-year-olds are turned loose with their paints and crayons, they are taught a "design alphabet," consisting of the basic shapes and forms and given instruction in the meaning of texture and color.

Other innovations are foreign language study (French or Spanish) for all students from two through 12 as insurance against juvenile insularity; thorough training in the fundamental principles of musical theory; Bible study in all grades, and prayers before classes. Older children, six to 12, receive instruction in all primary subjects, as well as public speaking, physical education, dramatics and dancing.

"Psychologists," she says, "have long recognized the formative years from two to six as vital to a child's future emotional and mental well-being. Yet these are apt to be the most wasted years of all, when children are left largely to their own devices at home or bundled off to nursery schools and camps.

Approximately 220,000,000 people, or one-ninth of the world's total population, speak English as their native tongue.

Charge University Kept Doctor Prisoner

RENO, Nev., March 15 (AP) — Charges that Temple University kept a noted Philadelphia surgeon a virtual prisoner in his last years and gave him "exaggerated personal attention" in order to win his million-dollar-plus wealth were made by the man's daughter in a will contest action here.

The action by Mrs. Janice Chase King of Silver Spring, N.D., was filed Tuesday. Lawyers indicated it was the first legal step toward having set aside the $1,400,000 in gifts the surgeon, Dr. Theodore Chase, 84, left to Temple.

Dr. Chase's will bequeathed all but $1,000 to Temple.

TLC Asks

right to vote in municipal elections should be extended to all citizens more than 18 years of age. The Ontario Government should join with the Federal Government to ban all rent increases for housing accommodation.

Other demands were for an 8-hour day, 40-hour work week, time and a half for overtime and double pay for the seventh day worked in a week, and two-week annual vacations.

The eligible age for old-age pensions should be 60 for women and 65 for men and the means test abolished. Another recommendation would curb discrimination for race or religion. Subsidies on basic foods such as dairy products should be restored.

What's Right

You are embarrassed by an argument between a husband and wife who are in your group.

WRONG WAY: Side in with whichever one you think is in the right—thinking that will help the situation.

RIGHT WAY: Keep out of it, unless you can say something that will turn the conversation toward a more pleasant topic.

Home and School Association News

KING GEORGE SCHOOL

Mrs. B. Bell welcomed a large number of parents and the teachers of King George School to the Home and School Association meeting Tuesday evening and after a short business session, she called upon Mrs. J. Nornabell to take charge of the special home education program.

Mrs. Nornabell showed three films whose titles are self-explanatory, "Buy-Words", "Spending Food Dollars," "Managing the Family Income," and made comments on each.

Mr. D. Munro moved a vote of appreciation for Mrs. Nornabel's untiring work in conducting the classes on home education. Mr. C. Bullock was thanked for operating the projector.

Mrs. K. Ferguson and her committee served refreshments.

PARKHILL SCHOOL

First father's night meeting of Parkhill Home and School Association was an exceptionally well attended event of Tuesday evening, that members label a complete success. President Mrs. Lloyd Parnell took charge of proceedings.

Mr. Alex. Kay of the Department of Lands and Forests gave an informative address on bird life. He was introduced by Mr. C. Fulton and thanked by Mr. T. Sturgeon.

A dance number by eight pupils from Grade 2 was enjoyed. Mr. Herb. Randall, violinist, and Miss D. White, pianist, gave several selections. Songs by Grade 1 pupils included "Bippity boppity Boo" and the girls who had brought their dolls sang a lullaby.

Mr. B. Young was at the piano for a sing song led by Mr. M. Bullied.

Mr. A. Clark and Mr. Wm. Anderson convened the lunch of coffee and do-nuts, assisted by Messrs. L. White, B. Hewie, A. Crowder, J. Essex, M. Bullied and H. Bollans.

KING EDWARD SCHOOL

Home education was the theme of King Edward Home and School Association meeting Monday. Speakers were Miss Isobel Connolly, whose subject was the preschool child and Jack Telford, whose address was entitled What the Home Can Contribute to the Welfare of the Child. Both spoke to parents and teachers about child psychology.

Robert Hutchison entertained on the violin, accompanied by Max Clarke and Mrs. Norman Hughes sang to the accompaniment of Miss Phyllis Kidd.

Mrs. V. Reynolds, president, took the chair during the business period, when it was decided to send delegates to the Home and School convention in Toronto Easter week.

Several teas to be held at various schools were announced.

The April meeting was planned for April 17 to avoid meeting during Easter week.

Miss H. Mutton's class won the roll call banner. Refreshments were served by Mrs. J. Finnie and her committee and a vote of thanks to those taking part in the meeting was proposed by W. M. Patterson. Mr. Telford was pianist.

5-Hour Spree Preceded Murder

SYDNEY, N.S., March 15 (CP) —Dan Jack MacLean told today of a five-hour drinking spree with Joseph MacKinnon the man he is accused of murdering, and testified he can't remember what happened the night MacKinnon was killed.

MacLean, 58, and ruddy-faced, took the stand in his own defence in his trial on a murder charge. He pleaded innocent to murdering MacKinnon.

The former mayor told of drinking beer with MacKinnon, the city's registrar of voters, then driving to his summer home with bottles of rum and brandy where the two men drank and talked and sang in Gaelic.

He fell asleep, he said. The next thing he remembers is being awakened at home by his wife who told him the police wanted him.

MacLean is accused of running down the 63-year-old cripple with his car in a dark alley Dec. 18. Once MacLean broke down as he told of a life-long friendship with MacKinnon.

"It struck me pretty hard to think that I was accused of the murder of the best friend I had in this world," he said.

Awarded $68,000

CLEVELAND, March 15—(AP) —Roy F. Young, 31-year-old seaman, won a $68,000 judgment in court Tuesday as the result of injuries received in a collision of two lake freighters two years ago. Young had sued the Interlake Steamship Company of Cleveland for $100,000 on grounds of negligence. He received head, back and internal injuries when the J. P. Morgan, Jr., collided with the Interlake's steamer Crete June 23, 1948, in Lake Superior.

Tempers Flare At Rowdy Labor Meeting

VANCOUVER, March 15 (CP) —A rowdy meeting of the Vancouver Labor Council (CCL) Tuesday night voted support to the United Steel Workers of America (CIO-CCL) in their attempt to take over membership of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers.

Fist fights threatened during debate on an appeal from the B.C. Federation of Labor for council support. George Brown of the Marine Workers and Boilermakers Union and Stewart Alsbury, International Woodworkers of America executive, almost exchanged punches.

Another boilermaker union delegate, Sam Jenkins, had to be restrained after a verbal scuffle with Alsbury.

Chaos reigned several times despite efforts of George Mitchell, acting council president, to keep order.

Couldn't Talk

Ken Smith, president of the mine, mill, was not allowed to address the meeting when Mitchell ruled his union already had been ousted from the CCL and the council. The ruling was sustained by a 43-26 vote.

A Marine Workers Union resolution of support to the mine, mill union was voted down.

Earlier, council delegates heard Pat Conroy, CCL secretary, describe the mine, mill union as "an outcast body."

In a recorded broadcast, Conroy said that a CIO investigation "clearly brought out that the top leadership of the union had policies drawn up by the leaders of the Communist party and that 90 per cent of its staff are members of the Communist party."

Vet Allowance To Get Boost

OTTAWA, March 15 — (CP) — The Veterans Department had $2,000,000 worth of good news today for between 4,000 and 5,000 Canadians.

Veterans Minister Gregg gave notice to the Commons that he will present a bill to open the benefits of the War Veterans Allowance Act to British and other allied veterans of the first world war who have lived in Canada for 20 years or more.

The change, sought for years by British veterans in Canada, will add an estimated 4,000 men and 800 widows to the 33,000 persons now getting veterans allowances.

It will raise the current annual cost of $21,000,000 to $23,000,000.

The allowances, sometimes called "burnt-out pensions," are paid to aged and needy veterans and widows of veterans. The maximums are $40.41 a month for single recipients and $70.83 for married recipients.

Set Floor Price On Farm Goods

OTTAWA, March 15—(CP)— The government gave notice today that the legislation providing floor price for farm products will be put on a permanent basis at this session of parliament.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner placed on the order paper notice of a bill that would take the time limit, currently March 31, out of the Agricultural Prices Support Act of 1944. Since the war, the act—basis for current floor prices for butter and eggs—has been extended for a year at a time.

The government now proposes simply that it shall continue in force indefinitely after March 31.

The act provides the legislative foundation for floor prices for any agricultural products the government sees fit to sustain at certain levels in the interests of the national economy.

In addition to butter and egg prices, some cheese prices are also currently covered by the act.

Ask Attlee If Warning Came From Canada

LONDON, March 15 (CP) — The British government will be asked in the House of Commons whether it received any warning from the Canadian government about Dr. Klaus Fuchs when the Canadian Royal Commission on espionage was sitting in 1946.

The question will be put to Prime Minister Attlee Monday by Henry Strauss, Conservative member for Norwich South.

Fuchs, German-born British scientist, recently was sentenced to 14 years' imprisonment for betraying western atomic secrets to Russia.

There have been reports that United States authorities who first discovered that Fuchs was giving secrets to Russia received their first tip from the notebook of a Soviet agent who was investigated in connection with the Canadian spy ring.

No Enthusiasm For Merger In Toronto Area

TORONTO, March 15.—(CP).—Three further developments on amalgamation of the greater Toronto area occurred Tuesday.

Reeve O. E. Crockford of Eastern Scarboro township told a Lions Club meeting that amalgamation will drive big industry from greater Toronto.

"Toronto assessments are so high that if amalgamation came and these were applied against suburban-located industries the result would be to drive them out altogether," he said.

In north-eastern Leaside, signatures of more than three-quarters of slightly more than 5,000 property owners had been obtained on anti-amalgamation petitions.

Mayor G. T. Manes said the Provincial government must realize it will be going against the wishes of the people if it forces amalgamation.

In the western suburb of new Toronto, council decided to ask the Ontario Municipal Board for a decision on a proposed union of four western suburbs—New Toronto, Long Branch, Mimico and Etobicoke townships.

After the decision is given, residents of New Toronto would be given a chance to either vote or present a petition on the amalgamation issue.

Blames Parents For Delinquency Among Children

COBOURG, March 15 (ENS)—"The children of to-day are not greatly different from the youngster of 25 years ago. It is the home that has changed in that period," declared Rev. Vincent Priester of Toronto, executive director of the Catholic Educational Association, at a meeting of St. Michael's Parish Parent-Teacher Association Tuesday.

Mrs. William McCaig was elected president; Ray Lees, vice-president; Sister Mary Daniel, principal of the Separate School, honorary president; Mrs. George Clinton, secretary and Charles Cowling, treasurer. Rev. P. J. Collins is spiritual advisor.

Introduced by Rev. P. J. Collins, the speaker outlined the history of the Parent-Teacher Association. The Catholic Educational Association served as a liaison between the Department of Education and the separate school boards and between the bishops of the dioceses and the Dept. of Education.

The Catholic Education Association structure also provided for a parent-teacher association for Ontario, and was an essential part of Catholic education, he said.

The current age was marked by an effort to cut loose from traditional things. Something new was being sought continually but it was well to remember there was nothing new under the sun.

The only new thing should be a renewed effort to retain the old ties and one of the greatest traditions was the human family.

Christian education required the intellectual cultivation of the God-given power to each pupil, so that through Christian education each pupil would be trained to live to the proper standards of Canadian life with the ultimate aim of citizenship with God in Heaven. The manner in which the child fitted in with the Divine plan depended on the home training and the school.

Parents Responsible

The parent was a natural teacher with an obligation that was not only family but social.

The presence of the school did not remove the responsibility of parents. Children were no worse now than they were 25 years ago but they were neglected a great deal more now.

"Woman in her proper sphere as an essential part of the home, occupies a place of high dignity. She loses it when she seeks public life or a career. Her place is in the home and there she should remain," he declared.

The speaker lauded the sacrifice of separate school teachers who worked hard on small salaries but as it was part of their religious vocation, their man compensation was in the service which they rendered.

School board members worked at considerable inconvenience of time and effort to assist the schools. They often took a great deal of abuse. However important the school was in the life of a child, a proper job could not be done unless the parents and the teachers worked together. The joint direction by parent and teacher would determine the extent to which the child will be equipped to meet the challenge and demands of the future.

The speaker was thanked by Rev. G. J. Maher.

It was decided to meet on the first Monday evening in each month at the Separate School.

Gariffes were also known as camelopard—a name probably given when they were first introduced into Roman amphitheatres from Africa.

Bethany WI Plans Branch History

BETHANY, March 15—(ENS)—Mrs. T. E. Shea entertained the Women's Institute for the March meeting on Monday evening, Mrs. H. L. Challice presiding.

Leaflets received from the Health League of Canada were distributed. A request was received from the head office of the Department of Agriculture and Women's Institute Branch, requesting the local branch to compile it's history since first organized and this work was designated to the secretary, Mrs. R. W. Price.

The program was prepared by Mrs. C. Cummiskey and Mrs. H. Bristow, leaders of group two, both of whom were absent through illness. Mrs. T. Jennings sang a solo and, with guitar accompaniment, led in group singing of Irish songs commemorating St. Patrick's Day. Mrs. Clarence Page, convener of historical research gave a paper on buttons, their origin, designs and uses. Mrs. H. L. Challice read an article "Spots and Splashes" and the proper method of cleaning them, also describing in detail the many new cleaning methods in use today.

Mrs. R. Carr gave a series of "Economic Hints for the Home" prepared by Mrs. Ona Thorndyke, home economics convener, who was also absent through illness. A humorous "Pat" contest was won by Mrs. T. Jennings.

Mrs. Finney announced Durham County Achievement Day to be held April 12 in Orono, at which the Bethany Girls' Club will have an exhibit and compete in the judging exercises.

Mrs. T. S. Gault invited the members to hold their April meeting at her home. The program will be under the leadership of group three and the annual election of officers will be held.

The hostess, assisted by Miss L. Thompson and Mrs. Lloyd Capstick, served refreshments and Mrs. Finney proposed a vote of thanks to Mrs. Shea for the use of her home, and also to the committee in charge of arrangements.

Eskimo Trappers Go Fishing

CHURCHILL, Man. —(CP)—A lake 200 miles northwest of this Hudson Bay port is providing a new source of livelihood for some 30 Eskimos hard-hit by a drop in fur prices.

Nueltin Lake, which lies athwart the boundary between Manitoba and the Northwest Territories, teems with whitefish and lake trout. Six-pounders are the smallest the Eskimo fishermen bother with.

Last fall, most of the Eskimos in the 12,000-square-miles area northwest of here existed almost entirely on family allowances because of the low prices for fox pelts, their only source of income.

Then, officials of the federal fisheries department flew to Nueltin Lake from Churchill. They reported that the fish there was of high enough grade for export.

The officials added that the lake could be a source of livelihood for Eskimos in the region for many years.

Now a plane carries a 1½-ton pay load of fish twice a week from Nueltin Lake to Churchill, the end of steel.

So far, the fish has been fast-frozen by nature herself. During the summer, the fish will be iced as they are pulled from the net and re-iced at least once before being placed aboard the plane.

During the winter, the Eskimo "jigs" his line through a hole in the ice. This is similar to the Newfoundland fisherman's method going after squid, which is used for bait.

From as far north as Baker Lake and the Kazan River, the Eskimos have trekked south to Nueitin Lake. Though not all are fishermen, there is work for everybody. Hauling fish, chopping wood and putting up ice are some of the jobs connected with the fishery.

Author Demands Harvey Appear On Screen

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, March 15 (AP) — Mary Chase, author of the prize-winning "Harvey," is campaigning to have her six-foot rabbit shown on the screen.

The film version of the stage hit will soon begin production at Universal - International. Mrs. Chase is here to confer on writing the script. She has spent the last few days trying to argue the producers into showing Harvey in the film.

"All I want," she told me, "is a final scene of Jimmy Stewart leaving the sanitarium arm-in-arm with Harvey. Just a shot showing them from the rear. I feel this is necessary to vindicate Mr. Stewart. Otherwise he appears to be merely a lrunk."

So far the U-I execs have said a flat "no." They think it should be left up to the audience whether or not there is a Harvey But Mrs. Chase is still arguing.

Harvey appeared in public only once. The play's producer, the late Brock Pemberton, was opposed to the idea. But he agreed to let Harvey appear onstage at the end of the second act in a try-out before an audience of servicemen.

"Mr. Pemberton was very nice about it," said Mrs. Chase. "He paid $650 for a beautiful costume. But after the pooka appeared on the stage, the audience froze. The comedy was lost."

Stewart Disagrees

She still thinks Harvey should make an appearance in the film, but this time at the end. Unfortunately for her, Jimmy Stewart doesn't side with her. Along with the producers, he believes his six-foot sidekick should remain unseen.

The invisible bunny is still trouping the U.S. with the road company of "Harvey", six years after his debut. He is playing his 63rd week to London audiences and appears in Swedish, Norwegian, Danish and Finnish versions. He will soon open in Paris That's the only place where Mrs. Chase is worried about his chances.

"I'm not sure the French people will go for the play," she remarked. "It's not their kind of comedy. And there's no sex in 'Harvey.'"

Saves 4 Sons Mother Then Bears Child

Herds Her Children From Blazing House On Hospital Grounds

FORT WILLIAM, March 16—(CP)—Mrs. Fred Green gave birth to a son today, 10 hours after herding her four other boys from a blazing home on the Ontario Mental Hospital grounds, 10 miles from here.

Assistant Fire Chief Harold Lockwood, scoring lack of "adequate" water supply, said he was forced to pull his men from the fire to concentrate on saving the surrounding buildings. The fire destroyed the eight-room home occupied by Greens. Mr. Green is the hospital engineer.

Mrs. Green gave birth to a 7½ pound boy at 6:40 a.m. today. She was taken to hospital Wednesday night at 9 p.m.

Hospital attendants said mother and new son are doing "fine."

Father Of Twins In 100th Year

CARBONDALE, Ill., March 16.—(AP).—The Rev. James E. Smith, who observed today what he says is his 101st birthday, may be the oldest "new father" known to medicine.

Smith is the father of twin girls, born 16 months ago. He and his 37-year-old wife also are the parents of four sons. Smith married his present wife, Anna Lee, in 1935, when she was 22. Their oldest son is 13. The others are 12, nine and five years old.

Records of the American Medical Association in Chicago show a 94-year-old man fathered a child in the 1930's.

The Smiths' physician, who refused use of his name, said he had not considered the possibility of a medical record when the twins were born. By Smith's reckoning their father was 99 at the time.

Legislature Gets Bill On Race Discrimination

TORONTO, March 16—(CP)—In what he called "an attempt to efface the crime of Dresden," A. A. MacLeod (Lab.-Prog.—Toronto Bellwoods) Wednesday introduced in the Ontario Legislature a bill to forbid licensed businesses from discriminating on grounds of race, creed or color.

The bill, an amendment to the Municipal Act, requires that applicants for licences shall give an undertaking not to discriminate in the conduct of their business and makes it illegal to do so.

Mr. MacLeod referred to Dresden, where citizens recently voted in a plebiscite against a measure which would have forbidden restaurant owners to deny service to negroes.

GUELPH, March 16—(CP)—Agriculture Minister Kennedy today denied reports that a successor had been named to replace Dr. W. R. Reek, President of the Ontario Agricultural College. Dr. Reek is expected to retire shortly. At the present time no one has been chosen to succeed him, Mr. Kennedy said.

France Accepts Arm's From U.S. In Hot Session

PARIS March 16 (CP)—Amid the banging of desks and cries of "Fascists, swine," the French national assembly early today voted 416 to 181 to accept American arms for use against the spread of Communism.

With only Communist deputies opposing, the assembly voted to authorize ratification of the arms and agreement reached by France and the United States Nov. 27.

The measure still must be considered by other parliamentary house, the council of the republic, which has only advisory and delaying powers.

Fifteen minutes of tumult closed what had hitherto been a surprisingly calm two-day debate.

Sets Off Fireworks

It came when an Algerian Communist deputy, Abderrahmane Djemad, forbidden by the Deputy Speaker to speak on the grounds that his party had already had more than their allotted debating time, ran from his seat to a commission bench and grabbed a microphone there.

As he began to speak, Government Party deputies thumepd their desk lids. Communists shouted "Fascists, swine."

The session was adjourned briefly for the counting of votes after a first tally had shown the Communists had put more votes into the urns than there were Communists in the Chamber.

Franec should get armaments worth $500,000,000 this year and the total delivery would be worth about $1,100,000,000.

Time limits may be set on the hours of play.

Find Mayor Guilty Manslaughter

Ilsley Directs Jury Drop Murder Charge; Jurors Out 3 Hours

SYDNEY, N.S., March 16—(CP)—A Supreme Court jury today found former Mayor Dan Jack MacLean innocent of murder but guilty of manslaughter in the Dec. 18 death of Joseph MacKinnon.

The verdict was returned at 1.14 p.m. EST, almost three hours after the case was handed to the jury. He will be sentenced Saturday.

Earlier Chief Justice J. L. Ilsley told the jury there was no evidence of "murderous intent" in the trial of the 58-year-old former Mayor. MacLean was charged with slaying MacKinnon crippled 68-year-old city Registrar of Voters by running him down with his car.

The Chief Justice made the statement in his charge to the jury shortly before the jury retired at 10:20 a.m. EST to consider its verdict.

Chief Justice Ilsley said the jury must find MacLean guilty or innocent of manslaughter.

The Chief Justice, sitting at his first murder trial since his recent appointment to the bench, instructed the jury for an hour and 20 minutes as the trial opened its fourth day.

Operated Negligently

He said there is evidence that the car that killed MacKinnon had been operated negligently.

But the jury must decide whether or not MacLean was guilty of manslaughter.

MacLean, testifying in his own defence Wednesday, said that he fell asleep after a drinking party with MacKinnon and could not remember what happened the night MacKinnon was killed.

Crown prosecutor Donald Finlayson said Wednesday night he would be satisfied with a manslaughter verdict in the case.

In a 55-minute address to the jury, Mr. Finlayson said he did not believe MacLean intended to murder MacKinnon, a cripple.

MacLean, Mayor of Sydney longer than any other man before resigning after being charged with the December 18 murder, was arrested after Mackinnon's body was found in a darkened, muddy south-end alleyway.

The Crown said MacLean drove his car over Mackinnon in the alleyway.

MacLean, re-elected for his fourth two-year term as Chief Magistrate 12 days before the murder, took the witness stand.

Detroit Market Shaken By Bomb Explosion

DETROIT, March 16—(AP)—A bomb exploded in a Big Bear food market Wednesday night, shaking a wide area of Detroit's northwest section.

The blast blew out the door of the one-storey brick building and smashed scores of windows in the vicinity.

Police inspector Miles Furling said it probably was a time bomb, planted in the vestibule of the supermarket.

Detective Lieut. George Harmon said the market had labor trouble recently.

JUST A JOKE—Lora Lee Michel, 9, a $100-a-day Hollywood child actress, is shown visiting with the Rev. Elford Sundstrom in Burbank, Calif. She ran away from her foster parents charging she was hungry all the time. When police were called, she reversed her story and said they had been wonderful to her.

Corruption Inquiry Opened By Police Commission

WINDSOR, March 16—(CP)—Windsor's Police Commission this afternoon at 2 p.m. will open a public inquiry into "allegations of corruption" in the city's police department. The inquiry, ordered by the Commission, will be heard by its three members: Magistrate Angus W. MacMillan, chairman, Mayor Arthur J. Reaume, and County Judge Albert J. Gordon.

One outside counsel, A. Douglas Bell, Kent County's Crown Attorney from Chatham, will "present witnesses" and conduct the cross-extamination.

Four witnesses have been summoned to appear. They are County Magistrate J. A. Hanrahan, whose written judgment last week in the case of a convicted bootlegger hinted at police laxity and touched off the inquiry, Police Chief Claude Renaud, Deputy Chief W. H. Neale, and Sergt. George Brown.

One source said that at least 12 witnesses would be called, including city and Provincial Police officers.

5,400 Sales

Most contentious of matters likely to be examined by the inquiry is a list purporting to show customers of Joseph Assef, convicted bootlegger who is alleged to have made some 5,400 individual sales in the 90-day period ended last Dec. 31, with an average profit of $1 on each.

The list is alleged to contain addresses but not names of many prominent Windsor residents and some city police officers. Mayor Reaume says that Assef, now in jail, will be called "if we think he can add anything."

Public concern has run high since last New Year's Day when provincial and city police raided residences, occupied by Assef, in Windsor and suburban Sandwich West. Police said they seized a large quantity of beer and liquor and found the mysterious list, but they didn't find Assef. After 51 days he surrendered to city police and told reporters that he had been on a trip to the United States since Dec. 26.

Customs Officer Fined $2,000

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., March 16 (CP)—Magistrate John B. Hopkins, today levied fines and costs totalling $2,000 on Matt Leskiw, 28-year-old former customs officer, who pleaded guilty Tuesday to seven charges of violating the Customs Act by smuggling six automobiles and an automobile motor into Canada from the United States while a member of the customs staff.

In a written judgment, Magistrate Hopkins said it was difficult to understand how this man could cross the bridge into the U. S. and then return to Canada and each time be driving a different style of old car.

"Are customs officers as individuals treated differently at the bridgehead from other citizens?" the magistrate asked.

"It would appear to be the case or this man could not have operated in the manner in which he did."

He said that Leskiw was the simple type of person and it was hard to understand how he was allowed to join the customs department.

Boston Irish Receive Jolt

BOSTON, March 16.—(AP).—Published reports that the British Consul-General had received an unprecedented invitation to parade tomorrow in honor of St. Patrick caused consternation in Irish south Boston—until all concerned said it wasn't so.

The presence of a British dignitary marching with the Sons of the Shamrock would have been unusual enough. But the 17th also commemorates the evacuation of Boston—by British troops—in 1776.

Consul-General C. E. Whitmore was quoted at first as saying he was "extremely sorry" but he could not parade because he had "already scheduled appointments with some very important people who are coming up from Washington on that day."

Last night, however, the Consulate circulated a press release with this statement from Whitmore:

"I am very sorry that my name has been used in connection with the parade on March 17 and I would like to state that I have received no invitation . . ."

Seize 27 Communists In Big Berlin Drive

BERLIN, March 16 — (AP) — American-controlled German police seized 27 young Communists early today in a drive to stamp out Red demonstrations in West Berlin.

U.S. public safety officials announced the arrests started about midnight and continued until 6 a.m. in three boroughs of the American sector.

The previous night, 18 members of the Communist "Free German Youth" were jailed for marching in an American sector street and singing Communist songs.

Officials indicated the police action was part of a "get tough" campaign to discourage 500,000 young Communists from attempting disorders in their "March on Berlin" May 27-30.

Labor Federation Asks Ban Used On Company Towns

TORONTO, March 16.—(CP.—A provincial ban against "company towns" was urged by the Ontario Federation of the Trades and Labor Congress in an 80,000 word brief submitted to the Ontario Cabinet Wednesday.

Percy Bengough of Ottawa, president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, was present as the lengthy document was read to Premier Leslie Frost and other cabinet ministers. A. F. MacArthur, president of the provincial body, and Hugh Sedgwick, secretary, read the brief which also asked the cabinet for changes in the new labor code.

The brief hit at towns owned entirely by companies which employ nearly all residents of a community. The labor body objected to these corporations owning all stores and houses and asked that a ban be applied which would allow the development of free competition. Company towns, said the brief, were contrary to all principles of free enterprise.

Included in about 20 Ontario company towns are: Kapuskasing, Terrace Bay, Schreiber, Smooth Rock Falls and Red Rock.

The Premier agreed with the Labor body that the means test on old-age pensions must go and described it as Canada's greatest welfare problem. The Premier added that Ontario alone could not eliminate the means test because the province could not bear the financial burden.

Cheap Prices Upset Market Here

Anti-Dumping Law Put In Force By Canadian Gov't.

OTTAWA, March 16—(CP)—Canada has applied her rarely - used anti - dumping laws to prevent cheap Japanese goods from flooding the Canadian market at "ridiculously low prices," a government official said today.

The laws have been applied against Japanese knitted gloves, men's shirts, children's dresses and cigaret lighters, the official said.

Many of the goods were brought into Canada through a private industry barter deal by which about $2,000,000 worth of Canadian wheat was exchanged for Japanese textiles.

The deal was administered by a New York Corporation which assisted in bringing the Japanese goods into Canadian ports.

It is understood that complaints from Canadian trade have flooded the government as the result of the appearance of Japanese shirts in Canadian shops at between 99 cents and $1.39.

Criticism of the influx of Japanese goods was voiced by the Canadian Importers and Traders Association.

The association said in Toronto Wednesday that the Japanese goods either are being subsidized by United States occupation authorities or are being produced by sub-standard labor.

"Last Batch"

A US government official, however, is believed to have explained to the Canadian government that the shipment of the shirts is "the last batch" of some 3,000,000 shirts made by the Japanese as a special occupation job.

About 20,000 dozen were shipped to Canada and the official assured the government that the same type of shipment at the unusually low price would not be repeated.

Under the anti-dumping law, the Revenue Department can appraise the value set on a product and, if necessary, apply a tariff to bring the export price up to what it considers a fair market value in the country in which the product was produced.

For example if the Japanese were trying to sell shirts in Canada for say, $3 a dozen, and if the Canadian authorities found the same shirts selling in Japan for $6 a dozen, they could apply a tariff which would bring the Canadian price up to equal the Japanese price.

Cairo Stages Clean-up

CAIRO, March 16 — (AP) — Police raiding squads early today started a cleanup of Cairos Communist movement. Newspapers reported many arrests had been ordered. Authorities said that in one raid they confiscated pamphlets and leaflets calling for a revolt. The Communist movement in Egypt is considered neither large nor influential.

KIRKLAND LAKE, March 16—(CP)—Reeve Ann Shipley has the mumps and it will be 10 days before she can leave her home. So far this winter, 1,960 residents of this northern Ontario gold - mining community have been ill with mumps, but Dr. E. R. Harris, Medical Officer of Health, said today that the epidemic is on the wane.

Canadians See Atom Meeting Encouraging Sign

OTTAWA, March 16 (CP). — Canadian officials saw an encouraging sign today in an announcement of the first trination atomic meeting since the espionage case of Dr. Klaus Fuchs broke in England.

The Atomic Energy Control Board said representatives of the United Kingdom, United States and Canada will come together on March 22-24 inclusive, to discuss "problems in the design and application of instruments for detecting and measuring radiations encountered in atomic-energy work."

The "highly technical" meeting will be held at Canada's Chalk River, atomic project "within the technical co-operation program carried on among the respective governments for the past several years." Scientists from 10 US projects will be present.

The announcement brought encouragement to some official quarters here who have been watching for signs whether the Fuchs case is going to mean an end to talks by the three countries, aimed at a new general agreement on exchange of atomic information.

Fuchs, German-born but one of Britain's top atomic scientists, was sentenced recently to 14 years for espionage on behalf of Russia.

The technical conference announced for Chalk River is at another level, a working level as proposed to a high-policy level. But it at least means that no sharp break is contemplated and it might be a prelude to a resumption of the broader negotiations.

Quebec Has Surplus

QUEBEC, March 16 (CP) — Provincial Treasurer Onesime Gagnon reported today in his budget speech an estimated overall provincial surplus of $7,620,604 in the financial year ending March 31 and forecast a 1950-51 surplus of $735,100.

Warehouse Burned

KANSAS CITY, March 16—(AP)—Fire late Wednesday destroyed a four-storey Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company warehouse with an estimated loss of $2,300,000. The flames jumped across the street to a nine-storey factory building containing more than $1,000,000 worth of cotton, burlap and paper bag material, but were controlled quickly there. An estimated 60,000 rubber tires were destroyed in the warehouse.

US Officials Badly Worried Jobless Nearing 5 Million

WASHINGTON, March 16. — (AP). — Government economists showed concern today over how to clamp a lid on mounting unemployment in the United States, now inching toward the 5,000,000-mark.

By 1960, they said, the U.S. will have to provide jobs for some 70,000000 workers instead of the 60,000,000 considered the top goal for the immediate post-war era.

But the increase in the labor force apparently has brought no corresponding rise in job openings in recent months.

Census takers counted 4,700,000 jobless Feb. 11. Statisticians say the number may pass the 5,000,000 point this year, for the first time since 1941.

Already a dozen U.S. areas have been stricken with unemployment described as equal to that of 1933. While most of these are small, scattered places with special problems, 43 areas are classed as having "substantial" surpluses in manpower—meaning that more than 12 per cent. of their workers are walking the streets.

Through the country, 7.1 per cent. of all workers covered by jobless insurance were listed as out of work in mid-February. That compares with the national average of 25 per cent. unemployed in the worst year of the depression, 1933.

Another 1,750,000 college and high school graduates are expected to join the labor force this spring and summer.

To help relieve the pressure, the Federal Government is conducting a campaign to encourage private business to make more jobs. President Truman has told Congress that 2,000,000 more jobs in private industry will solve the immediate problem.

Exiled King Leaves Move To Parliament

Leopold's Future Left To Leaders; Holding Conference

GENEVA, March 16—(AP)—Leopold III, exiled King of Belgium, told his people today he will abdicate if that is the will of the Belgian parliament.

Leopold said he would do so "to spare the country the grave political disorder which opposition between public opinion and the only legitimate representative of public opinion could provoke."

On the other hand his statement added, if Parliament should decide to restore him to the throne, the principle of parliamentary majority should be respected. In other words, he should be accepted by all opponents and proponents alike, if Parliament votes that way.

Leopold asked Parliament to act "without further delay." Parliamentary leaders who have been conferring with the king here left immediately for Brussels. Under a law of July 19, 1945, Leopold cannot regain the throne except after a majority vote by Parliament.

"Whatever the decision which Parliament will take and for which it assumes, in conformity with the constitution, the entire and exclusive responsibility I will bow to it," Leopold said in a statement released by his secretary, Jacques Pirenne, at a press conference.

Leopold, exiled from his homeland since the war, won 57.7 per cent of the vote in an advisory referendum last Sunday on whether he should return to his throne.

Many political leaders in Belgium feel this percentage is far too small for a King, supposed to represent unity for his people. Other political factions feel he should be returned.

Changes Mind

Earlier, circles close to the Belgian cabinet, had said that Leopold had decided to return to Belgium.

These circles said that Belgian Premier Gaston Eyskens and the Presidents of the Lower House and the Senate were holding important talks with the exiled King at Pregny, Switzerland, with the aim of forming a new government.

Four leading Liberals arrived at Pregny by special plane to join in the talks with the King.

Cuts Half Hour Off Rome Record

ROME, March 16—(Reuters)—Group Capt. John Cunningham, flying Britain's new four-engined jet passenger plane, the Comet, today lopped nearly a half-hour off the London-Rome air record.

Flying at an average of 480 miles an hour at a height of 40,000 feet he made the trip in two hours, two minutes from take-off at Hatfield airport, London, to touch-down at Ciampino airport, Rome. The distance is 915.86 miles.

The Comet is expected to make the return flight to London this afternoon.

The previous record was held by another Briton, Sqdn. Leader Neville Duke, Hawker test pilot, who made the trip in two hours, 30 minutes, 58 2/5 seconds in a Hawker Fury aircraft in May, 1949.

Pilot Cunningham, greeted by roars of cheers as he stepped out of the plane, said "it was an excellent flight but we had a head wind."

Old Licence Plates Bring Mayor $10 Fine

VANCOUVER, March 16 (CP)—A traffic officer halted a car last Sunday, said a few words to the driver and wrote something in his notebook. The next day police clerks issued a summons.

Wednesday, Mayor Charles E. Thompson meekly paid his $10 fine. The offence—driving with 1949 licence plates.

U.S. Offering To Lead Asia Against Reds

SAN FRANCISCO, March 16—(AP)—State Secretary Acheson Wednesday projected the United States as the real leader of the revolutionary urges he says are sweeping Asia.

In a foreign policy address before the Commonwealth Club here, he promised support and limited aid for non-Communist independence movements in the Orient. He said Russia seeks only to pervert for her own imperialistic purposes the changes sought by half the peoples of the world.

He cited Red China as an example of the way Soviet imperialism can capture such movements, and tossed in a warning to Chinese Communists that aggressive or subversive adventures beyond their own borders can only bring grave trouble in themselves and violate the United Nations charter.

In outlining the kind of aid the United States might extend to those resisting communism, Acheson sketched the conditions under which he said it must be applied.

"The Asian peoples for the past several decades have been engaged in a revolution in which they have been trying to throw off the poverty and oppression of past centuries. They have been striving for independence, better education, more widespread ownership of the land and control over their own destiny.

Same Goals

"It is no accident that their goals and our goals are the same. The American people have been the leaders in a revolution that has been going on for a century and a half, a revolution by the common people. . . . That is why we are opposed to the spread of communism, not only in Asia but elsewhere. It is because this tool of Soviet imperialism perverts the real democratic revolution that has been going on all over the world since long before communism as a world conspiracy had been thought of."

But to say that the United States is merely trying to halt the spread of communism is far too negative a way of putting it. Americans oppose it because it is the means, the tool, by which Soviet Russia is attempting to extend its absolute domination over the widest possible areas of the world.

"The aid we extend must be of a kind appropriate to the particular situation; it must be fitted to the responsibilities of others, and it must be within the prudent capabilities of our own resources," he said. "In some situations it will be military assistance. In others, it may be grants or loans, such as the recent $100,000,000 credit to the Republic of the United States of Indonesia. In still other cases, the need may be for technical assistance."

CCF Non-confidence Motion Defeated By Gov't 155-55

OTTAWA, March 16—(CP)—The government was upheld by a vote of 155 to 55 Wednesday on a C.C.F. motion of non-confidence. The vote was taken after a display of temper engendered by charges and counter-charges hurled across the floor of the Commons by Prime Minister St. Laurent and George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader.

Amid a clamor that at times drowned out talk, the two leaders spoke for a second time in continued debate on the Speech from the Throne.

Mr. Drew charged the government with attempting to stall on election promises to remove the means test from old-age pension legislation. He accused Agriculture Minister Gardiner of trying to make the Commons a political platform for "cheap political tub-thumping speeches."

Mr. St. Laurent retorted that Mr. Drew was waging "partisan political warfare" and said he would leave it to the House and the country to judge the "value" of the opposition leader's speech.

He did not feel that much of Mr. Drew's address would tend "towards the betterment of the Canadian people." If all the speeches which came from the opposition side were in that category, he was sure that this country would have a Liberal government for a "very long time."

MORE ABOUT—

Exiled King

Roger Motz, president of the Liberal party, told reporters at Pregny "we will explain to him the position and the feelings of the Liberal party. I think it probable that a Socialist delegation will also come to Pregny."

Liberals Divided

The Liberals are generally divided as a party on the royal issue.

Motz recently declared publicly that in his personal opinion the only solution to the royal question was the King's "effacement" in favor of his 19-year-old son, Prince Baudouin, but he added that members of his party were free to vote as they pleased on the issue.

Liberal Senator Jules Hoste, one of those participating in the talks, is known to be an ardent supporter of the king's return.

VON To Hold Regional Meet In Peterborough

Peterborough branch will be host to members of the boards of branches in Lindsay, Whitby, Oshawa, Trenton and Belleville for the all-day conference at the Empress Hotel.

Main speakers will be Miss Christine Livingstone, chief superintendent of the national organization and Miss Mary Miller, national supervisor of this region.

Plan Summer Use Of Civic Arena

The managing committee of Civic Arena is considering the possibilities of its use during the summer months. One application has already been received for two bingo games a month, and there might be dancing, but nothing definite was decided at the board's meeting Tuesday night.

The amount of the investment required for roller skates checked present movement of planning in that direction.

The skating season will wind up at Easter time, probably with a final week for the youngsters unless they go flying kites or have found dry fields for sketchy baseball.

The summer season which the board is now aiming at would fill in the months from May to September, if a satisfactory program can be arranged.

The financial statement of the Arena year will probably be ready fort he next meeting of the board.

In the years before the first war, Mr. Lovelace had been postmaster in St. Catharines, leaving these duties to serve overseas in the army.

He is survived by his widow and a son.

Charges Farmers Being Made Peasants Again

TORONTO, March 16 (CP) — Ontario's Progressive Conservative government will be put to a formal test today as the throne-speech debate ends. The result is expected to be an easy victory for the government, which has 53 members including the Speaker in the 90-seat house. There are 21 CCF members, 13 Liberals, two Labor-Progressives and one Liberal-Labor member.

The debate on the address in reply to the throne speech has occupied the Legislature off and on for almost a month but is expected to end today, in time for Premier Frost to bring down his budget tomorrow. CCF leader E. B. Jolliffe and Liberal leader Farquhar Oliver both introduced amendments during the debate.

C. C. Calder (Lib.-London) leads off the last day of the throne speech debate. Seven members spoke Wednesday—Roscoe Robson (PC-Hastings East), W. H Temple (CCF-Toronto High Park), W. J. Grummett (CCF - Cochrane South), J. A. Pringle (PC-Addington), T. D. Thomas (CCF-Ontario), W. E. Sandercock (PC-Hastings West) and T. K. Foster (Lib.-Bruce).

Reducing Farmers

In debate Wednesday Mr. Robson said lack of parity prices — a level to farmers commensurate with increasing costs of goods they use—may reduce Ontario farmers to a class of peasant.

Farmers had formerly been reduced to a peasant condition by "vested interests," he said but the new threat was from irresponsible organized labor.

"Has labor got such a hold on the throat of Ottawa as to make us hewers of wood and drawers of water?" he said.

Rising farm costs were due to increased industrial wages, he said.

Eamon Park (CCF-Toronto Dovercourt) asked: "would the $9,000,000 profit of Massey-Harris have anything to do with it?"

Mr. Robson: "I don't know much about the intricacies of company financing but I do know that every time wages go up or social services are increased — which is the same thing as wages —up goes the price of the ploughshare we buy."

No Better Quality

"We wouldn't mind so much if the quality of things we buy were improved but they are not" he said. "Shorter hours, bigger pay watching the clock and being agitated by certain organizers doesn't help."

Mr. Robson said the national economy could ill afford to pay farmers "the few dollars subsidy" required to see them over the period of falling farm prices caused by the failure of the British market.

Mr. Grummett charged police were not enforcing laws regarding men who deserted their families and men could "walk away with impunity," leaving their wives and children a burden on the municipality. A crime against property received more attention than a crime against humanity.

Children of unmarried women were another burden on municipalities, and police made little effort to punish the putative father. He also called for stiffer fines against minors illegally entering beverage rooms.

Disagreeing with two CCF colleagues, G. I. Harvey (Sault Ste. Marie) and F. O. Robinson (Port Arthur) who have asked the government to designate Highway No. 17 around the north shore of Lake Superior as the Ontario section of the Trans-Canada Highway, Mr. Grummett favored Highway No. 11, which runs north from North Bay to Cochrane and west to Nipigon Bay where it joins No. 17.

Mr. Thomas asked for a government hospital-care program. "Hundreds of thousands of wage earners" were living "in dread of the cost of prolonged medical attention" when some minor treatment now might "save them endless pain and needless expense," he said.

The government's program of assisting prospective home-owners with second mortgages had been a "disappointment". The government was "just making it easier for the mortgage companies to induce some people to accept committments they can never fulfill."

Industrial Demands Strong On Exchange

TORONTO, March 16.—(CP).—Demand continued strong in industrials, lifting the list into new high ground for a second successive session on the Toronto stock exchange today. The remainder of the board also advanced with activity increasing in mining issues. Volume for the first three hours was 883,000 shares.

In the last two sessions industrials have chalked up a gain of more than three points on the exchange's index and have established peak points since the index was first completed in 1934.

A few gold stocks traded briskly for moderate advances. Louvicourt Goldfield Corp., with property in Northwestern Quebec, featured, trading heavily for a gain of about five cents.

The base metal advance bogged down.

Western found strong support for gains ranging up to 30 cents in key issues.

Farmers Form Poultry Group

TORONTO, March 16 (CP)—A group of farmers voted Wednesday to establish the Ontario Poultry Producers' Association and took the first steps toward setting up their own egg-marketing scheme.

A motion for formation of the association was made by William Newman of Victoria County, who said speculators have reaped profits on eggs at the expense of both farmers and consumers.

The newly-formed Poultry Producers Association, while almost immediately instructing its directors to move towards a marketing scheme, slowed down on the question of levies to finance its operations.

Financing suggestions included a levy on baby chicks, on eggs or poultry meat, or on all three. Final decision was to leave the question to the new directors.

Provisional directors chosen were William Legault, Stormont County; Donald Paul, Lennox and Addington; R. Heatherington, Halton; G. F. Luckham, Norfolk; Ken Betzner, Waterloo; W. Sutcliffe, Grey, and Tom Robson, Essex.

Shipping Faces Crisis

Greek Mothers Plead With UN To Return Children From Reds

LAKE SUCCESS March 16—A report received here today from the United Nations Special Committee on the Balkans said that a survey group had made a 600-mile tour of Greece's Northern frontier and heard numerous pleas for the return of Greek children who had been removed to neighboring Communist countries.

The survey group returned today to Athens and informed the parent committee that parents, school children and Greek officials in towns and villages had come to them at public hearings to tell of family members who they said, were being barred from returning to Greece. Secretary General Trygve Lie has been negotiating through various channels to have the Greek children repatriated. Mr Lie recently reported that he was beginning to have some success in paving the way for the ultimate return of many of these children.

At Edessa, according to the report, the group was greeted by school children shouting, "Bring us back our brothers." Near by, in the town of Florina, the group held a public meeting and heard a 38-year-old mother plead for her 15-year-old daughter and 19 year-old son. She told the group that she knew her son was in Poland and her daughter in Czecholovakia from a letter she had received through Yugoslavia. In the village of Vatokhorion, the group reported that its convoy was halted while fifty peasant women pleaded for the return of their children.

Before the start of another trip it was reported, a representative of the Government of Salonika and the Archbishop of Salonika made a plea to the committee for aid in the return of Greek youngsters. In the course of a public hearing both declared that Greece owed a debt to the United Nations committee.

In another Balkan development, Mr Lie received a letter from Vladimir Poptomov, Foreign Minister of Bulgaria, who charged Greece with responsibility for seventy-eight new border violations.

Cobourg Cagers Win To Rub Out Napanee

COBOURG, March 16 — Cobourg Legionnaires eliminated Napanee in the basketball playoffs last night by the score of 33-22. In the first game of the best two-out-of-three series, Cobourg took Napanee by the score of 42-39. Cobourg will meet Brampton here on Saturday and the winner of that tilt meets the winner of a play-off grouping consisting of Centralia, Amherstburg and Elmira.

Jamieson was the main point-getter for Cobourg last night, chalking up 12 points out of Cobourg's 33 counters. Hircock accounted for 10 tallies. Quigley gathered in four, Hamilton and Bevan had two each and Holman recorded the remaining point.

For Napanee, five points each were registered by Finlay, Allison, and Elliott. Seaman collected four, Richards got two points and Sexsmith scored one. Cobourg took the first half 16-12 and in the final half recorded 17 points to the visitors' 10.

Line-ups—Napanee: Hooper, Sexsmith, Moore, Seaman, Finlay, Dale, Allison, Richards, Elliott and Hay.

Cobourg: Jamieson, Hamilton, Hircock, Holman, McGuire, Quigley, Bevan, Galley, Wilson, Lane.

Cobourg's New Rink Pays Its Own Way

COBOURG, March 16 (ENS)—Cobourg's new recreational centre for the period of Jan. 11 to March 11, had an operating balance of $2,362 a satisfactory state of affairs in view of the fact that the centre was not open in time for the early skating and hockey.

Gross revenue for that period was $10,105. General expenses were $5,843; accruals, including insurance, totalled $1,900.

The keen interest in intermediate hockey drew big gates including a crowd of almost 2,000 for the final tussle between Cobourg and Port Hope intermediates.

The townspeople had not skated in five years, due to the old rink being condemned and this resulted in large attendances on skating nights.

What About Experts?

TORONTO, March 16 (CP)—William Dewar, executive secretary of the community chest, was asked Wednesday by Board of Control to report why it was necessary to import "high-priced" experts from the United States to make a welfare survey here.

Send Bombers

WADDINGTON, Lincolnshire, England, March 16 (Reuters)—A squadron of four-engined Lincoln bombers left here Wednesday for Malaya to fight the Communist terrorists.

Take The Drunken Driver's Car

There is much to be said in favour of the amendment to the Highway Traffic Act which is now under consideration in the Ontario Legislature; it provides that the car of a proven drunken driver may be impounded for six months, a year and two years, upon his first, second and third convictions, in addition to other penalties. This is severe, but not too severe. As we pointed out in our leading editorial yesterday, the accident rate is increasing with alarming speed.

• • •

There is every reason to take the drunken driver's car from him. He has shown that he cannot be trusted to use it wisely. When a man is found guilty of breaking the game laws his gun is taken from him; the same type of punishment is just when applied to car drivers who break the law in this particularly dangerous way.

• • •

Stiffer penalties, however, will not make it any easier for the police to get convictions in cases where the charge is drunken driving. It is altogether too hard to prove such a charge, and it must be said that there are some members of the medical profession who do not make it easier by their reluctance to say that a man is drunk when this is obviously the case. Nevertheless, in justification of the attitude of the doctors, we must also point out that it is often hard to judge the effect of alcohol in a particular case, and that it is simply impossible to say that a given amount of alcohol will produce a given effect. There are tests and statistics which attempt to show the effects of alcohol in a general way, but they are refuted time and again in every doctor's experience.

• • •

The only solution, it appears, is to have an arbitrary rule that any driver involved in an accident whose blood shows an alcohol content above a particular level, shall be charged with drunken driving. There will be protests that this is unjust, and that the blood test is not a reliable guide in such cases. Perhaps this is so, but a poor guide is at least better than none at all, and this system, which is in force in Norway, has reduced the level of accidents due to drunken driving in that country very sharply.

• • •

It is only by severity that drunken driving can be controlled. As we pointed out in an editorial on Tuesday on another subject, there is a widespread, if sneaking, sympathy in this country with people who get into trouble when they are drunk, and the notion is growing up that a drunken man is licensed to do things which would bring the severest penalties upon him if he were sober. If we are to keep our present system of freedom in the use of liquor, these abuses cannot be tolerated.

Trials For Treason

Four trials on charges of treasonable conspiracy shook men's minds the world over in the last several weeks. In Washington Alger Hiss was found guilty and sentenced to five years' imprisonment. In London Klaus Fuchs, guilty, was given fourteen years. In Budapest, the American businessman Robert Vogeler was found guilty and sentenced to fifteen years in a Hungarian prison. In the same city the English businessman Edgar Sanders was sentenced to thirteen years imprisonment. Four trials, two in the democratic western world, two in the Communist.

All four are signs of a world straining under suspicions, conflicting ideologies, and lowering, imminent war. It is usually only when war is actually joined that espionage and treason so acutely agitate nations as they have done in the last month, a time of so-called peace. Are these disclosures of espionage and treachery an indication that the Cold War is seething in the bowels of a volcano likely to erupt at any moment?

The Hiss affair is related to the others as a phenomenon of these unbalanced times. The other three have a special affinity. In London Klaus Fuchs voluntarily made a full confession. In Budapest the American Vogeler and the Englishman Sanders "voluntarily" confessed to the details of their guilt. Is the Communist world as shocked and incredulous over the confession of Fuchs, as the western is over the confessions of Vogeler and Sanders? Is the Russian press asking by what horrifying, devilish capitalistic tricks and torture the man Fuchs was lead to confession? Certainly the western world has greater reason for incredulity and dismay at the quiet, deliberate application of psychology — which Communists have used in Hungary to extract confessions from princes of the church as well as western tradesmen, than the eastern Communist world has for British or American quiet, deliberate use of psychology. The records of the methods are now available.

Scotland Yard fixed its eye on Fuchs; quietly they watched him, talked with him intermittently, appealed to his intellectual honesty, and Fuchs told his tale. The principle was used in Hungary with vicious methodology. There the interrogations were endlessly long, hour after hour, day into night. There was no calm statement, no simple question-and-answer method and presentation of incontrovertable evidence. Psychological terror and mental torture were used, if not physical cruelty or drugs.

Terror has long been a Communist political weapon. Mental terror is a refinement developed to use against the sensitive men who could withstand physical torture but crack under the battering of their minds.

Return Of The King?

Belgium is still a kingdom although its king has been exiled for five years—since the return of the Government from its war-time exile in Britain. King Leopold's younger brother Prince Charles has been regent. The country has been strongly divided for and against Leopold. The division showed up strongly in the plebiscite held Sunday when a small majority of the Belgians voted in favour of his return.

King Leopold fell into disfavour if not ignominy in patriotic Belgians' eyes when as commander-in-chief of the armed forces he capitulated suddenly to the Germans in 1940 and later accepted German hospitality, and returned it. Prime Minister Churchill at the time of the shock of that surrender spoke guardedly about Leopold's conduct, and did not pass judgement on him. Now, in the second volume of his wartime memoirs, he censures his actions very strongly, classifying him as a traitor to the Allied cause, if not to his own people.

The heat and passions of war have subsided although the scars remain. Because the plebiscite has favoured the King's return does not mean that Parliament will allow it. (A plebiscite is not mandatory on a government, as Mr. King showed in the handling of the plebiscite on conscription in Canada which was also a nationally divisive matter.) King Leopold is not the heroic figure of his father, Albert, who stood staunch through the terrible years of 1914-18. Parliament will certainly not vote to make Belgium a republic; it may decide to continue the regency until Leopold's son and heir, Prince Baudouin, now 19, comes of age.

The burdens of kingship are said to be onerous, yet it is surprising how many exiled kings seek to regain their thrones.

Ryerson Institute Thriving

Founded in 1948, the Ryerson Institute of Technology in Toronto is a thriving school. It was established by the government of Ontario, with the approval of industry, educators and the universities, to give what amounts to a skilled artisan training, beyond ordinary technical school levels, and outside the scope of the universities. The Institute now offers courses as varied as architectural draughting, journalism and publicity, photography, horology, tool design, and "food administration". There are more than twenty types of courses in which young men and women with full matriculation standing, may enrol. It does not grant degrees, but various kinds of certificates, the most valued being the one given after a full three years' course has been successfully completed. Fees are remarkably low, and the Institute is attracting able students who wish to develop special skills.

The courses are, in a sense, of university level, but give students a specialized type of education which a university cannot provide, nor should be expected to. As time goes on Ryerson students will find their services increasingly in demand by business and industry.

German Protests Over Saar

From RICHARD LOWENTHAL
In Bonn

THE German protest against the Saar conventions signed in Paris last week has proved unanimous, and it will not easily be silenced. Today's meeting of the Bundestag (West German Parliament) has shown that all German parties, whatever their tactical differences, are agreed on one thing — that this Saar question is a German concern on which the Federal Republic must speak for the whole German people. The flood of specific arguments put forward in the various speeches and memoranda must not be allowed to obscure the one essential core of the protest: five years after the war and six months after the creation of the Western German State the Germans will no longer admit that vital decisions concerning former German territory should be made by the Allies over their heads. If talk of German integration into Europe is to become a reality, Germany must be treated as a partner and not merely as an object in these issues.

◇ ◇ ◇

THAT will also be the fundamental context of the note which the Chancellor, Dr. Adenauer, as he announced today, is going to hand to the Allied High Commission for transmission to the Foreign Ministers of the Western Powers. Therefore, to soften the German attitude on the eve of the Bundestag debate and prevent a German commitment against joining the Council of Europe, both the French and British High Commissioners informed the Chancellor last night that all the conventions signed in Paris would be valid only pending a final settlement by the Peace Treaty and that British approval was conditional on that.

◇ ◇ ◇

DR. Adenauer's reply has been that as the peace settlement will have to be negotiated with Germany, Germany is today entitled to object to such changes in the status of the Saar as could in practice no longer be reversed in the Peace Treaty. His note will detail why the changes laid down in the Paris conventions are of such a nature: first, because they make any expression of opinions in the Saar disputing the present status, including any propaganda for a plebiscite, impossible under the special powers granted to the French official representatives. Secondly, because they bring one third of the Saar's population—the part employed by the mines—into direct economic dependence on a French corporation and create an indirect dependence of the same kind for most of the Saar's industry.

◇ ◇ ◇

DR. ADENAUER, who last week said that his Government would have to reconsider its willingness to join the Council of Europe, was not specific on this point today. The Socialist leader of the opposition, Dr. Kurt Schumacher, was. Germany was willing to continue on a European course and to join the Council in that spirit, he said, but she could not be asked to "recognize" a new Saar state by joining the Council if the Saar was invited too.

◇ ◇ ◇

SO far, the Strasbourg Council of Ministers has approved the French proposal that Western Germany and the Saar should be admitted to the Council of Europe at the same time. Dr. Schumacher now called on the Council to revise this decision in the light of the Saar conventions, because these proved that the Saar would neither be independent in international relations nor democratic in its internal organization. A state in which the admission of any party opposing the present statute was made legally impossible and in which there was no freedom of the press or of association does not correspond to the requirement of the Council of Europe's Statute; nor was there any obvious reason why a state which would be represented in all other countries only by Saar staff members of French Consulates, should have a delegation of its own only on the Council of Europe. As some of the smaller European countries have had doubts about the admission of the Saar from the first, more may be heard of this argument at the next meeting of the Strasbourg Council of Ministers.

◇ ◇ ◇

ONE positive feature of the German reaction is that all responsible quarters are trying to demonstrate their willingness to continue with the attempt to establish better relations with France despite this conflict. Dr. Adenauer spoke today of the bitter disappointment his effort for a France-German understanding had suffered over the Saar, but he explained that his hint of a "France-German Union" to an American journalist had been intended to show that he was not abandoning hope of such a development.

◇ ◇ ◇

THE Federal German Government memorandum insists that legitimate French interests in the Saar could be safeguarded in other ways by agreement—for instance, by setting up an international Saar authority on the model of the Ruhr Authority and by a special customs agreement giving France and Germany equal access to Saar products.

◇ ◇ ◇

SIMILARLY, Dr. Schumacher today spoke of the need for a broad negotiation on France-German economic issues transcending the framework of an ordinary commercial treaty, which, if attempted in the right spirit, would settle French interest in the Saar as part of the broader question. It is believed that Dr. Schumacher had negotiations in mind which would deal with the general division of labour between the steel and coal industries of France and Germany, and the investment programmes of both countries within the Marshall Plan—a problem which is responsible for most of the conflicts of interest between the two countries since 1945, including the conflict over the Saar.

Shamrock For the Irish Guards

When the Irish Guards, on March 17th celebrate the half centenary of their foundation, the King, who is the regiment's Colonel-in-Chief, will present them with the traditional shamrock. In 1902, Queen Alexandra made the first gift of a shamrock to the regiment on St. Patrick's Day and the custom has been continued.

Letters To The Editor

RE MR. CHURCHILL

Sir: Continuing the discussion on the merits or otherwise of Mr. Churchill's leadership I propose to raise Mr. Gilchrist's letter to the status of a reply. Its more coherent passages seemed to contain the usual assortment of half-truths and distortions indulged in by opponents of the Welfare State (bloated bureaucracy etc.). He then went on to play havoc with some misquotations from my letter and finally joined in harmony with Mr. Gilbert in another rhapsodic effusion on the glories of Mr. Churchill.

I will not dignify his arguments by refuting them. The purpose of this letter, like my first, is merely to enjoin Messrs. Gilbert and Gilchrist and other slavish admirers of Mr. C that when considering the stature of their hero they should first remove their magnifying rose-coloured glasses. They might then discover that the niche in history's Hall of Fame which, with Mr. Churchill's enthusiastic help and approval, they are so intent on hacking out, is rather oversize.

A little research into the last half-century of British history would show them that Winston has made his full share of military and political blunders—not always mentioned in his Memoirs. Indeed I could undertake to furnish your correspondents with a list of Mr. C's political indiscretions which would indicate that his abilities as an amateur bricklayer (one of his many talents) is equalled only by his professional skill in dropping the same commodity.

An important point overlooked by the many faithful who so hopefully await the second coming of Mr. Churchill is that, in the unhappy event of the Tories regaining political power in Britain, Winston's days as Prime Minister would probably be numbered. Winnie's "bulldoggishness" has great poster-appeal at election time and his glittering rhetoric serves admirably to conceal, from the less discerning of the electorate, the paucity of ideas and almost total lack of policy of the Tory party. Having made use of these qualities to raise themselves to power it is fairly certain that Mr. Churchill would soon be under pressure to "relieve himself of the heavy burden of office" and persuaded to pack his easel to become once more another tourist attraction at Mr. Gilbert's "beautiful Miami beach".

Since I consider the subject matter of this correspondence to be unworthy of any more of your valuable news space and since I might grow weary of championing the cause of reason it would give me great pleasure, Mr. Editor, if you would announce the closure of the correspondence.

It would also give me the immense satisfaction of having the last word.

Yours etc.,
ARGUS.

Ed. Note: We will decide the time for the closing of this correspondence, and that time has not yet come.

KEEP PICKEREL IN RICE LAKE

Sir: It is reported that at a zone 5 Federation meeting attended by Campbell Rowatt, past president of the Peterborough Fish and Game club, a resolution had been passed by his club requesting that pickerel fishing in the Counties of Peterborough, Victoria, Northumberland and Durham, be opened on May 1st and closing date for bass, muskie and pickerel fishing October 1st instead of October 15th.

As an operator of a tourist resort on Rice Lake and a member of the Rice Lake Tourist Association, I am in full accord with their resolution to close all fishing October 1st, but do not favour opening pickerel fishing May 1st, for the following reasons:

(1) The water in Rice Lake and the Trent River is very high at this time of year, making it almost impossible to operate from any boat livery and give satisfactory service to tourists.

(2) A very heavy strain is being put on the fishing in Rice Lake and the Trent River, with the result that the supply of fish does not nearly equal the demand. Opening earlier would only aggravate the situation.

(3) "Reduce the pickerel" has been given as the main reason for requesting an earlier opening, the claim being that pickerel population is too high. This condition may be true in lakes and rivers north of No. 7 highway, but not in Rice Lake or the Trent River. We badly need an increase in pickerel in our area, not a decrease.

There seems to be a movement on foot by certain parties to eliminate pickerel from the Kawarthas, and endeavour to replace them with muskie and bass. This change might work out in some districts, but in my opinion not in Rice Lake or the Trent River, where the fishing population has grown to such an extent that muskie and bass alone in these waters wouldn't begin to keep up with the demand.

There may not be much of a thrill in catching pickerel, but for eating they are second to none, and the American tourists who have been coming here for a good many years are quite happy and satisfied when thy can get them.

Yours truly,
K. S. HERALD.

Gore's Landing.

RESOLUTE IN DISSATISFACTION

Sir: I was rather amused at Mrs. Sayer's attempt to justify the lack of hospitality shown to visitors to England. Before, however, enlarging on the subject I may state that her idea of what constitutes "hospitality" is similar to my own.

Now, Mrs. Sayers says that English hospitality is "slower to unfold". That is, to coin a phrase, putting it mildly. It is usually so slow to materialize that the visitor has been thankful to get back to his own country, after prolonged but unsuccessful attempts to pierce the "natural reserve". These two words are no doubt intended to cover a multitude of shortcomings.

The visitor to England, having never succeeded in getting behind this iron curtain of reserve, may, or may not accept Mrs. Sayers' philosophy that nevertheless English hospitality is "probably more sincere".

Mrs. Sayers further challenges me to produce a single vet who shares my opinion. My answer to that is that I don't have to produce any evidence, as she only requires to ask any Canadian who has been overseas.

On the question of bus drivers and policemen, I repeat my assertion that here in Peterborough you have men the equal in courtesy and helpfulness of any in London or elsewhere. The only reason that this fact is not more widely known is that the people here are so used to it that they don't consider it necessary to shout it from the house tops.

Yours, etc.,
MACDUFF.

A SITE FOR MEMORIAL BUILDING

Sir: At the start of this letter, I would say, that the proposals following, I do not expect to be followed.

To add to the 1,000 and 1 suggestions, as to where the memorial building should be built, I would suggest that we are fortunate in having a ready made place to put both the Federal building and the memorial in a situation which will give the city the best civic centre of any city of its size in Canada.

Why not clean up all the property bounded by the creek, King, Charlotte and Aylmer Sts. and in so doing, widen Charlotte St. to any desired width, place the memorial building either facing Aylmer or King Sts. and build the Federal building facing Charlotte St. and the extra space be paved for a central parking space. Entrance on Charlotte St. and exit on Aylmer or King, a charge of 5c or 10c per hour to be made for parking privilege. This would put a stop to cars being parked by the week.

To carry out the above would mean the co-operation of the memorial and government parties, which should not be to difficult a proposition.

Trusting to live long enough to see both these buildings completed, I remain,

Sincerely yours,
C. R. BANKS.

SEEKS CHANCE ACQUAINTANCE

Sir: In Toronto, on March 11, while riding north on a Yonge Street car I found myself seated next to two girls who were obviously recent arrivals from the Old Country. About six blocks from my destination I got into conversation with them. When six hours later I boarded a Yonge Street car going south, here again were my two 'friends' of the afternoon. It was definitely a "ships that pass in the night" encounter but such a pleasant and unusual one that I am wondering if it could not be continued. All I know is that one of them works in Peterborough. If either of them were to see this letter they would recognize the circumstances.

Yours sincerely,
(MISS) EVELYN BOYD.

IS MACDUFF A NASTY FELLOW?

Sir: When "MacDuff" complains that th. English did not show him enough hospitality he lays it all to English coldness. Now it seems to me that he misses a very likely explanation. It seems to me likely that he is such a nasty fellow, judging from the tone of his letters, that nobody wanted him around. Nasty people are often unpopular in England, as elsewhere.

The English always treated me fine, and so did the Scotch. I guess I am nicer than MacDuff.

YOU BET I'M A VET.

A WORD FOR THE HEN-PECKED

Sir: I would like to say: Congratulations—Del Crary!!! The Arthur Godfrey of CHEX! He sure puts in a plug for hen-pecked husbands—the kind that forget to put out the ashes or shovel off the walks; or what have you—

Then he tops this little build-up off with a recording of Dinah Shore's: "It's So Nice To Have A Man About The House".

Keep up the good work, Del.

A HEN-PECKED HUSBAND.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Hast thou not known? hast thou not heard, that the everlasting God, the Lord, the Creator of the ends of the earth, fainteth not, neither is weary? there is no searching of his understanding. He giveth power to the faint; and to them that have no might he increaseth strength.

Even the youths shall faint and be weary, and the young men shall utterly fall; but they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; and they shall walk, and not faint. (Isa. 40: 28-31.)

No Place For Joke

An Englishman living in Buenos Aires has just learned the hard way that in a dictatorship such as exists in Argentina a sense of humor can be a dangerous thing. He spent a week in a South American jail, charged with "crimes against the security of the state" because a friend of his in Brazil sent him a jocular cable of congratulations when his wife presented him a new baby daughter.

As soon as the cable was received the Englishman was arrested on the supposition that he was plotting against the life of Argentine President Juan D. Peron. What happened was that the Englishman had informed several of his Brazilian friends of the birth of his daughter and told them proudly that she weighed three an one-half kilos (seven and one-half pounds.)

One of the friends gaily cabled back as follows: "Congratulations safe arrival three and one-half kilos dynamite." Well, that did it. The Argentine secret police took the cable at its face value and threw the Englishman into the pokey as a potential assassin. There just isn't any sense of humor in a dictatorship.—Sherbrooke Record.

Alexanders Pay Visit To Britain

LONDON, March 16—(CP)—Viscount Alexander, Governor-General of Canada, arrived Wednesday aboard an RCAF plane for a 10-day unofficial visit to Britain.

The Governor-General will take part—as Regimental Colonel-in-Chief—in the ceremony of presenting Shamrocks to the Irish Guards St. Patrick's Day.

The Governor-General was accompanied by Lady Alexander. They will stay with Lady Alexander's mother, Lady Lucan, at her home in Portman Square, London.

An Evening News columnist, John Carpenter, wrote that Ottawa political circles attached more importance to Viscount Alexander's visit than merely regimental affairs.

"It is expected that while in London he will confer about the appointment of a successor when his term expires this summer."

The Evening News mentioned speculation that W. L. Maskenzie King, former Prime Minister, and Lord Wavell are possibilities to succeed Viscount Alexander and comments "neither of these seem at the moment to be in the running."

EYE TOPICS

THE MOST SENSITIVE THING

The most sensitive matter in creation is the retina. This is the back screen of the human eye, on which images are formed.

The eye can see a flash of light produced by the amount of energy required to lift a tiny drop of water about half an inch. Scientists call this infinitesimal amount of energy an "erg."

The retina is even more sensitive than this illustration indicates. Light does not strike the retina directly. First it must pass through the cornea, the outer transparent protective covering of the eye; then through the lens; and finally through the vitreous humor inside the eye.

In this process, about 20% of the energy in the flash of light is lost by reflection and absorption. The retina, then, enables us to see a mere 80% of the light produced by one erg.

About half a million nerves extend back to the brain from each retina. They form two cables called the optic nerves—so we really see with centres in the back of our heads as much as we do with our eyes.

The impulses conducted by the optic nerves from the retina to the back of the head are electrical. The currents that flow along the nerves were detected with vacuum tubes similar to those in a radio set. Vision, therefore, is partly optical and partly electrical. Nature has devised a living television apparatus which far outranks the finest contrived by man.

Imperial Bank Observes 75th Birthday Today

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor.

On September 4, 1891, a bank opened a branch in a tent in Edmonton, the first Eastern bank to go in there.

Perhaps that is a good point at which to start the story of a Canadian institution which is 75 years old today, for its particular pride is its part in following the frontier west and north.

It is the Imperial Bank of Canada which first saw light of day March 16, 1875, in the Masonic Hall of Toronto. Some three months later it had paid-up capital of $600,000 and deposits of like amount. Today it has paid-up capital of $7,000,000, reserve fund of $10,000,000, total deposits of $476,000,000 and assets exceeding $519,000,000.

The story of the bank is interwoven with the march of the West with branches opening in Winnipeg in 1881, Brandon 1882, Calgary 1886, Prince Albert and Edmonton 1891, Vancouver 1895, Nelson 1898, and so on.

Other Expansion

Meantime, it expanded through Southern and Western Ontario from its original territory of Toronto and Niagara Peninsula, and later, with the romance of silver and gold, into Northern Ontario: New Liskeard and Cobalt 1905, Gowganda 1908, Cochrane 1909, South Porcupine and Timmins in 1911. It had also turned East to Montreal in 1898, Ottawa 1900, Quebec 1906.

Only last year, howeevr, did it get the breath of the Atlantic with its first Maritime Provinces branch at Halifax. Altogether, it now has 213 branches; its staff has grown from 7 to 2,600

Good Achievements

In a statement marking today's anniversary, I. K. Johnston, president, comments:

"I feel that the bank can rightly claim to have achieved something for the good of Canada From its inception it has moved westwards and northwards with the pioneer, assisting the farmer, industrialist, miner and lumberman."

The present general manager is L. S. Mackersy, a native of Scotland, who joined the bank at Red Deer, Alta., in 1911.

In its history, Imperial has absorbed two other institutions, the Niagara District Bank in 1875, and the Weyburn, Sask., Security Bank in 1932.

IOOF Does An Excellent Job Sponsoring Junior Hockey

Many people may be asking the question—"What makes the Oddfellows click?" They have reference of course, to the hockey Oddfellows.

How does it come that under the sponsorship of IOOF, there seems to be such a fine spirit of harmony and the will to win among the players of IOOF teams? Possibly some of the many fans who will cram Civic Arena Friday night for a new junior hockey attendance record for Peterborough, when Triple Links meet Oshawa in the third key game of a best of five series, may want to know the solution to this query.

The IOOF Club

The Triple Link hockey club is sponsored by the Independent Order of Oddfellows of Peterborough. They appoint a committee of 16 men once a year to take charge of hockey. These chaps are responsible for the financing and operation of the clubs. This committee in turn appoints its own executive who plan different seasonal projects for the purpose of raising funds. These include a booth at the Peterborough Exhibition, mammoth bingoes at Civic Arena and other lesser activities.

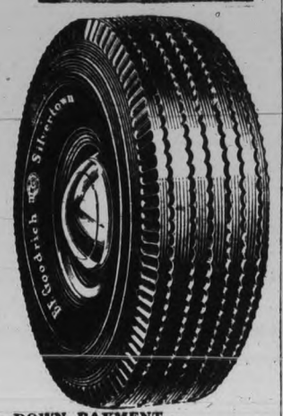
Each member of the committee does his full share of work to the end that youth in this city may have an opportunity to play hockey the right way. All money raised is used (a) to purchase equipment (b) pay travelling expenses (c) to insure each player. And each player is insured too, on the Oddfellow clubs.

Juvenile, Too

At first IOOF sponsored only junior hockey. This year however they branched out into juvenile as well and the club under Len Symonds completed a fine season after making an admirable showing against Weston Marlboros.

Members of the committee, including the executive, receive no remuneration whatsoever for their service. What they do for the boys and for the community is done in the spirit of true charity. Their reward comes solely from the satisfaction of seeing the boys play hard, clean hockey—win or lose. To say the community should be proud of these men would be an understatement. They— and others like them — are the salt of the earth.

The Workers



Those who are responsible for the Oddfellows Triple Link club and the juvenile team are as follows:

Executive: Glyn Edwards president; Len Symonds, vice-pres.; Don Andreson, secretary; Bob McCuaig, treasurer; Andy Price, manager Bill Harris custodian with Vic Brown and Art Spears assistants; Herbert Young timekeeper. Other members of the committee include Grattan Harris, Bill Townsley, Frank Colwell, Bob Smith, Jack Cuffe, Elmer Pearse and Bill Alberry.

This year the Oddfellows were fortunate to secure the service of two of Peterborough's former great hockey stars, Arthur Heal and Harry (Bun) Kingdon as coaches of the juvenile and junior teams, respectively. Their records are well known to every hockey fan and need no recounting here. Art's team is out now but Bun will be in there Friday night at Civic Arena to lead his fine juniors to victory, in the group finals.

That's one reason too why the Arena will be filled, because no finer athlete ever gave more on the field of baseball or on the hockey cushion for Peterborough than Bun Kingdon. And no finer organization ever sponsored any branch of sport in the city of Peterborough than IOOF.

McArthur's Rink Captures Ostrander's Cup

By HERB. MARTIN.

Mr M. Knox representing Ostranders Jewellers, presented to T. McArthur's "Rotary" rink the Ostrander Trophy and first prize, in the all-day bonspiel held on Wednesday.

The veteran Dave Charlton was a close second with Dr. C. McKee being the other three-game winner.

Two Dozen In

There were 24 rinks entered, and while it was mostly Peterborough rinks, it was encouraging to see rinks from Lakefield and Keene.

As is the case in these one-day 'spiels each rink played three 10-end games. Play began pretty well on time and things were kept going along at fairly good speed. The bonspiel was all over about 11:30 o'clock.

Kids Stage Tourney At Lindsay Arena

LINDSAY, March 16.—The biggest little hockey tournament in Ontario will be run off here on Saturday with more than 100 "under-12" youngsters from eight centres taking part.

Thought to be the only tournament of its type in the province the event sponsored by the recreation commission and Lindsay Minor Hockey League, was a big success in its inception last year when Whitby won the Kennedy-Sullivan Trophy.

The draw will bring together Brooklin and Whitby, Sutton and Fenelon Falls, Lindsay and Minden, Haliburton and Little Britain.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

Babe Ruth took his first salary cut in baseball 18 years ago today when he agreed to a decrease of $5,000 a year for his services with the New York Yankees. However, that still left him $75,000 a year. Three years later he retired. He had a "come-back" in 1942 on the screen "as himself" in the Lou Gehrig film.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Looks like that big Southern Zone ski championship meet here is on again. Unless the weather once more plays the slatted-sports enthusiasts false this week-end. Plans are for the six-mile cross-country race to start at 10 Saturday morn from Armour Hill, with the jumping at Nassau commencing at two that aft. On Sunday at Bethany, the downhill and slalom events get under way at 10 a.m. and go most of the afternoon. About 30 outstanding ski competitors expected here from Ottawa, Hamilton, Toronto, Midland, Huntsville and Peterborough for these annual championship affairs. Spectators the invited to the meet.

Lasses' cage playoffs go at the YWCA tomorrow eve. Junior Nurses play Normals at eight, opening the best-of-three finals for the junior cup. This one is followed at nine by St. Catharines vs. Towne Togs, first of a two-game LOBA intermediate "B" semi-final series. These rate a hefty gallery. PCVS has three hoop teams in COSSA finals up Toronto way this week-end, the senior girls, the senior boys and the junior "A" lads. With the midget PCI-ers meeting Regiopolis at Kingston tomorrow in a return OABA playdown joust. Nice going.

Oshawa Bees And IOOF

Big puck attraction tomorrow is the OHA junior "B" group playoff at 8.30 in Civic Arena. Third tilt of the best-of-five group finals between Oshawa Bees and the local Oddfellows. Each team has won at home in hot frays, so this one should be a humdinger. The IOOF-ers have to take it or they're in a tough spot, going right back to play on the large Motor City surface Saturday evening. Yes, it'll be a sizzler from start to finish, with some swell, close hockey served up. Fans shouldn't pass up any of these lively junior playoff games from now on.

* * * * * *

In passing, we'd like to doff the chapeau to Manager Walt Smillie and his staff at Civic Arena. They're doing a good job with what they have. It's tough trying to suit everyone—there being but one rink operating here all winter and its capacity being limited—but they're doing pretty well. The parking attendants, the ticket man, the ushers, those at the lunch bar, and the rest — they are all courteous and efficient. Seems to us to be a well-run organization and one that is making plenty of money this odd winter for the city. Sports do pay sometimes, eh?

Awaiting On Markham

Legionnaires had a workout last night and they go again Friday in a drill at the arena, awaiting for Markham to polish off Stouffville. That series could be over tomorrow as Markham last night won 4-1 in Oshawa to make it three straight in as many starts. Their series is four-of-seven for the senior "B" group crown, with the winner almost sure to be drawn in the first playdown round against Legion. Sarnia will be in the hunt again, and it looks like Brantford over London. Beaches of Toronto are around, too, and there may be one other grouping, apart from the coming series betwixt Markham and Legion. Incidentally, the dinner being thrown Legionnaires will be at five p.m. Sunday, not Friday.

Word of the sudden death last night of Gord Armstrong came as a shock to us. We've known him since he was a star PCVS gridder back in the 30s, and he was a very fine fellow always. Gord was keenly interested in athletics, having sponsored the Petes' senior "A" lacrosse club last season—and he probably would have done so again this year. He recently did some research work for the Recreation Commission regarding floodlights for Riverside, being in favor of the project. A prominent business and sportsman, a former soldier and council member, his death is a distinct loss to the community. Our sympathy to the family.

CITY CARPETBALL

The finals for the Gracie's Memorial Doubles Cup between D. Bartley and W. Sorrie vs. A. Bromley and R. Ralston were played on March 14 at Legion and settled in two matches with the second match going two extra frames. Both matches proved worthy ones for the players and for the spectators to witness. The first game was tied in the fourth frame and then the latter team went ahead but faltered when the former team finished strong by taking the last three frames with a two-end for a win 8-3. In the second match the Bartley-Sorrie combination were leading 5-0 going into the fifth end when their opponents scored a two and three in the next two frames to tie it up, and each team scored in the last two ends to make it a 6-6 game. In the extra ends D. Bartley and W. Sorrie scored to win the game 9-6 and take the Gracie's Memorial Cup for 1949-50 against their very worthy opponents R. Ralston and A. Bromley. This championship match was refereed by A. Pilling and W. Wilson. With W. Wilson having a difficult time staying down at his own end whenever the play was at the opposite cat. He also took up a magnificent collection from the spectators of 49 cents for what reason no one knows. He turned it into the treasury. After the above game there were two different challenge matches and everyone had to bowl left-handed and as none of the players were southpaws a swell time was had by all.

In the second round of the President's Cup Big Bens No. 1 fresh from a factory tune-up were clicking smoothly, much too smoothly for Legion No. 5 to decipher and the Westclox team swept to two straight victories to eliminate Legion No. 5 from the Cup playdowns by scores of 10-4 and 13-2 thereby qualifying to meet St. George's No. 2 in the semi-final round.

The Cup match between Treasurer's No. 9 and SOE No. 3 will be played March 16 at the LOL hall.

At the league meeting the president and secretary-treasurer were authorized to make arrangements for a banquet or smoker after receiving the opinion of all the members through their skips. Members and skips please note so that early plans can be made for presentation of the prizes.

The meeting also decided that the postponed games by Legion No. 7 through sickness will have to be played as follows: Legion No. 7 vs Legion No. 5 Friday, March 17 and Legion No. 7 vs Legion No. 6 on Tuesday, March 21. The matter of securing more copies of the rules was left to the executive to secure prices for printing in booklet form, etc.

The draw for the semi-finals of President's Cup Playdowns is Big Ben No. 1 vs St. George's No. 2 and the winners of Treasurers No. 9 vs SOE No. 3 a bye.

Local Cagers Playoff In Big Series

Championships are riding on games for four local baskeball teams this Saturday. The Outboard Marines start their series for the Southern Ontario intermediate "A" championship while the Collegiate senior, junior "A" boys and senior girls are in the C.O.S.S.A. championship tournaments in Toronto.

Only the Marines game will be played in Peterborough. They will meet the Hamilton Strand Cycles at 8:00 p.m. Saturday at P.C.V.S. in the first game of a home-and-home points-to-count series for the Southern Ontario title. The winner of this series will be meeting probably the Sault Ste. Marie cagers who have won the Ontario title for the past two years. The Outboards were champions three years ago.

The Cycles were taken by the locals once this year 50-45 in an exhibition tilt. They were without star Tom Casey colored football star of the Hamilton Wildcats. Casey has been averaging 20 points a game throughout the season. The Hamilton squad easily took the Niagara district playdowns and swept their series with Windsor.

From Behind

On the other hand the Marines had to come from behind last week to take the Toronto intermediate champions, Broadview YMCA. Most of the Outboards are familiar with the Hamilton players and knew them to be dead shots on long field attempts. In the Hamilton livery are Stew Bard, Bert Carrigan, Sam Hunter, George McKay and Ron Weston.

In Hart House in Toronto, the Collegiate junior boys' cage team will be opening the junior tournament as they dive into the Georgian Bay district champions at one p.m. Coach Bev. Goulding has been giving his team practices and games to keep them on the bit. Most of the juniors will be in Kingston Friday night as they finish their Ontario midget series with Regiopolis College. The Collegians have a 33-point lead in the series. Al McIlraith is a doubtful starter both for the midgets and the junior A's in Toronto.

Hitting Stride

Coach Goulding's senior squad are just beginning to hit their old stride. They will be defending their championship won last year against the Georgian Bay finalists at 3:30 in Hart House. Last year was the first time the senior C.O.S.S.A. title was taken out of the Niagara district.

Harold Grafstein who was hurt two weeks ago may not see action on the rearguard for the PCI'ers. They will have to rely upon the scoring powers of Al Northcott and Neil Thompson to bring the honors home again.

Girls Playing

Miss Doreen Pemberton's girls' cage squad will be entering the playdowns for their second try this year. In 1949 they lost the first game of the series to Georgian Bay finalists by one point to drop out of the tournament. Tuesday Mary Craw, one of the top scorers for the squad, received water on the elbow during a mix-up in a practice session. They have been working out in the mornings and evenings preparing for the important game.

Mary Braund, another top scorer is expected to help carry that end of the load with Miss Craw in the Toronto series. Back on the guard line Miss Pemberton has stalwarts Nancy Mason, Cath Graham and Donna Howson.

The Collegiate teams winning their first games will advance into the final game in the evening against the winners of the other semi-final games, Bay of Quinte finalists or the Niagara Falls district finalists.

In girls' playoffs at the YWCA here Friday, Junior Nurses open junior finals at eight against Normals, followed by St. Catharines vs. Towne Togs in the first of a two-game LOBA intermediate "B" semi-final series.

TONIGHT AT THE BROCK—Whipper Billy Watson, above who will try to tame Dr. Len Hall in the feature match at the Brock tonight. The doctor has not lost a bout here to date and claims he will keep his record perfect by beating Watson tonight. Hi Lee and Roy McClarity tangle in the semi-final and Ali the Turk and Tiger Tasker start things off. Looks like an evening of fireworks especially in the main event.

Edmonton Mercurys Heavy Title Favorites

LONDON, March 16 (CP). — Edmonton Mercurys, with two one-sided victories over weak opposition under their belts, carry Canada's colors into the final round-robin of the world hockey championships tomorrow.

After defeating Switzerland 13-2 and Belgium 33-0, the Mercurys rule heavy favorites to take the world title back to the Dominion after a year's absence. The 1949 champion Czechoslovakian team was not allowed by the Czech government to come here to defend its laurels.

The Mercurys' first real test probably will come on the final day of the tournament next Wednesday when they meet Sweden—probably the second best team in the tournament on the basis of first-round performances. Friday's opening game pits Canada against Switzerland, easy victims of the high-flying Mercurys in the first round. Saturday Canada plays the United States, Monday Norway, and Tuesday Britain.

Diesels Take Crown For Second Year

BELLEVILLE, March 16.—The CNR Diesels captured the Belleville and district hockey league crown for the second successive year here Tuesday night by defeating Northern Electric, 8-6, in the fourth game in the best-of-five final series. The Trainmen took the series 3-1.

Trailing 5-3, at the end of the second period, the defending champs outscored the Plantmen 5-1 in the final 20 minutes to snatch the game and the championship.

Leo Goyer led the marksmen for the winners with four goals, while Timmy Williams claimed a pair. Vern Goyer and Doug Bastedo also scored. Don Barrett accounted for four of the losers' tallies while Jack Wardhaugh potted the odd one.

Detroit Clinches NHL Title Trounces Canadiens 4-1

By HARR YECCLES
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

After leading the pack all season, the Detroit Red Wings have clinched the championship of the National Hockey League.

Wings made sure of the league title by beating Montreal Canadiens 4-1 Wednesday night, while Chicago Black Hawks shut out Toronto Maple Leafs 4-0. Boston Bruins walloped New York Rangers 4-1 to keep alive their slim mathematical hope of a Stanley Cup playoff berth.

Detroit now has 82 points and second-place Toronto has 70, each team having five games left. Montreal in third place has 67, and New York 65.

Rangers are not yet wholly in command of the fourth and last playoff spot, But it is pretty solid—they would have to lose all five remaining games while Boston won five to give Bruins the edge.

A crowd of 12,978 at Detroit saw Wings trounce Canadiens. Defenceman Red Kelly scored twice, Gordon Howe and Jack Stewart getting the others, while Floyd Curry spoiled a shut-out for Detroit's goalie Harry Lumley.

Has Bad Time

Canadiens' rookie goalie Gerry McNeil, after averaging a goal a game in five previous starts while replacing the injured Bill Durnan, had a bad time in what is probably his last fill-in game. The high-powered Detroit No. 1 line of Sid Abel, Howe and Ted Lindsay figured on every Detroit goal, with four assists to Abel, three to Lindsay and Howe's 30th goal of the season.

Coach Dick Irvin, of the Canadiens, was on the bench, despite reports before the game that he was chained to his hotel room by illness.

At Chicago a crowd of 11,776 saw the last-place Hawks whitewash the Leafs, three-time Stanley Cup winners. It was Frank Brimsek's fifth shutout, while Turk Broda of Toronto was beaten twice by veteran Doug Bentley and once each by Bert Olmstead and Metro Prystai. Bentley brought his lifetime goal total to 204.

Madison Square Garden had only 7,412 in attendance when Bruins hung onto their fading play-off hopes with the victory over Rangers. Silvio Bettio, Johnny Peirson, Ed Kryzanowski and Bud Poile did the scoring honors, with Pentti Lund spoiling a shutout for Boston's goalie Jack Gelineau.

Postpone King Bout

TORONTO, March 16 (CP). — An eye injury to Arthur King, British Empire lightweight champion, has forced postponement of his bout here next Monday with Humberto Sierra, of Miami, Fla. Allan McFater of Toronto and Timothy Hayes of Boston will sub for the bout.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Don Newcombe has yet to pitch a full season in the majors but already they're picking the big Negro righthander to become the first since Dizzy Dean to win 30 games in one season.

Winning 30 is a stupendous feat but the mere fact that players and writers are willing to speculate on Newcombe doing it is a tribute to the equipment and mound wizardry of the Brooklyn Dodgers ace. Despite inexperience Newcombe hung up a 17-8 record in 1949. He did not start a major game until May 22 after he was brought up from Montreal Royals.

Dean amassed 30 victories in 1934 for St. Louis Cards.

Cary Middlecoff, who gave up dentistry for golf, Wednesday carder a two under par 70 to win top money in both the medal play and pro-amateur competition in the $10,000 Seminole golf tournament at Palm Beach, Fla.

The Ormond Beach, Fla., professional, last year's United States open champion, won $1,500 for his aggregate of 207 in the 54-hole medal competition among 42 leading pros, and another $1,250 for his tie in the 36-hole pro-amateur contest.

Ralph Greenleaf, 13 times world's pocket billiard champion, died Wednesday at Philadelphia at the age of 50.

It now appears that singer Bing Crosby won't make a trip to England and Scotland this spring, after all. Larry Crosby, his brother, Wednesday said: "I think Bing has called off the trip entirely." The American crooner-sportsman underwent an appendectomy on Monday and is still in hospital. Crosby had hoped to play in the British amateur golf championship in May.

Freddie Mills, former world light heavyweight champion, has been granted a manager's licence by the British Boxing Board of Control. Mills quit fighting after Joey Maxim took his world title from him Jan. 24.

Manuel Ortiz, world bantamweight champion, Wednesday announced definitely at Los Angeles that he will defend his title in a 15-round match with the British Empire champion, Vic Toweel, in Johannesburg, South Africa. The little Mexican kingpin said formal papers are being drawn up, with May 13 the tentative date for the fight.

J. D. Nash led his London, Ont. rink to victory Wednesday night at Toronto in the final of the Ontario Colts curling competition winning the H. J. Sims Trophy over Stan Cleverley of Orillia.

Walter (Babe) Pratt, New Westminster player-coach, and Larry Silvestri, right winger for the San Francisco Shamrocks, have been chosen as "most valuable player" in their respective divisions of the Pacific Coast Hockey League.

Dutchmen Hand Marlies 5-2 Surprise

By The Canadian Press.

Anything goes in the Ontario Hockey Association.

Last night was "upset" night in the league that annually displays exhibitions of boxing, wrestling, fencing and—occasionally—good, clean hockey.

Guelph Biltmores and Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen were the principals in one of the OHA's gentler nights, as they both came through with underdog victories. And there was only one penalty in the two games.

Kitchener-Waterloo handed the Toronto Marlboros a convincing 5-2 defeat to force a sixth game in the Senior-A finals. After losing the first three games of the best-of-seven series, the unpredictable Dutchmen have copped the last two.

The Biltmores apparently laughed off the talk of a four-straight Windsor triumph. The Hatters outskated and outplayed the powerful Spitfire crew all the way in romping to a 3-2 win in the opening game of the Junior-A best-of-seven finals.

Played To Hilt

Kitchener - Waterloo, playing without the services of ace forward Bobby Bauer and hardrock defenceman Jack Shewchuk, played it to the hilt in crushing the highly-favored Toronto sextet.

The game was hard but clean as Norm Locking and Jack Mehlanbacher handed out the night's single penalty to Ted Grasser of the Dutchmen. Mehlanbacher, a referee who is extremely unpopular in the Waterloo arena after last week's Dutchmen "ultimatum," was forced to throw a dead fish off the ice four times during the game.

The Kitchener club had refused to play the second game of the series if Mehlanbacher and Red Farrel were used as referees. The Dutchmen objected to their handling of the first game.

Don Bauer, Mike Dzuira, Butch Martin, and Mickey Roth were the winning marksmen. Bobby Hassard rapped home both Toronto tallies.

Windsor Disorganized

Windsor seemed disorganized without their ace goal scorer, Glen Skov. The lanky sniper suffered a leg injury in the Windsor-Marlboros semi-final.

The packed Guelph Arena went wild when the Biltmores pulled the victory out of the fire in the last period. Eddie Stankiewicz had given the Windsor crew a 1-0 lead with the only goal of the second period only to have Guelph outscore the favorites 3-1 in the third.

Gerry Theberge fired two counters for the Hatters while Herb Dickenson picked up a single. Erwin Grosse tallied the third-period spit goal.

Hastings Victorious

HASTINGS, March 16 (ENS)—Hastings defeated Keene 7-5 in a well-played exhibition tilt on Hastings ice. Both teams played wide open hockey and Keene led till halfway through the third period.

Fife with four goals, and Morrow with three accounted for the entire Hastings' score, but Carr Mueller and Wilson also went well forward, and McKenty played a fine game in the net.

W. Thompson and Kempt scored two apiece for Keene with McCarthy pushing in the odd one on a fine solo play. Renwick was outstanding in goal, stopping shot after shot, and he was the main reason the score was kept down. There will be a return game in Keene Friday night.

Referee, R. Scriver; linesman, J. Crowley.

Hastings: Goal, S. McKenty; defence, J. Fairman, M. Fife; centre, J. Morrow; wings, Carr P. Stevenson; alternates, Laver, P. West, M. Mueller, A. McMillan, Wartman, J. Wilson.

Keene: Goal, Renwick; defence, Anderson, Musgrave B. Thompson, Woods, W. Thompson, Payne, Kempt, D. Musgrave, Whalen.

Warsaw Triumphs

LAKEFIELD, March 16 (ENS) Warsaw boys took a 7-3 puck win at home over the Lakefield Sea Scouts. Darling got two goals and Davis one for Warsaw in the first, with Lonsberry and Selkirk each having an assist. Brown tallied for Lakefield. In the second, Lonsberry and Dennis hit the twine for Warsaw, as Brown and Down scored for the visitors. Selkirk scored in the third for Warsaw as Lonsberry got one from Williamson.

Lakefield—Goal, Wingett; defence, Pratt, Burger; centre, Wilford; wings, Brown, Leonard; alternates, Henry, Hill, Down, Hinton, Chatten, Rath, Edwards.

Warsaw—Goal, Little; defence, I. Lonsberry, Bell; centre, Darling; wings, Dennis, Selkirk; alternates, Davis, Williamson, H. Hamilton, A. Hamilton, Batten, T. Lonsberry, Watson.

Keene Juves Win

NORWOOD, March 16 (ENS)—Keene juveniles defeated the Norwood team 6-2 in a scrappy tussle here on Tuesday evening before a few fans.

Keene boys seemed older and had more weight, but the locals gave them a good game. Salleby of Keene was in fighting form and strife threatened to break out a number of times. Horen opened the scoring with a lone effort, Morrison was gated and Musgrave alone and Davidson from Musgrave shot two quick goals. Cowie and Lynn combined on one with a few seconds to go in the first.

Cowie tallied, E. Spencer for Norwood Salleby from Musgrave and Davidson alone completed the game scoring.

Lineup:

Keene: Goal, Musgrave; defence, Whalen, McNevan; centre, Cowie; wings, Salleby, Lynn; alternates, Musgrave, Stock, Davidson, Panter, McIntyre.

Norwod: Goal, Stackhouse; defence, Cuthbertson, Mathews; centre, B. Spencer; wings, E. Spencer, Dick Fredericks; alternates. Althouse Horne Davis, Morrison Monahan, Aldred, Rae, Scott, Peoples.

Referee: Boyd Kelly; linesman, Fred Waldon.

Had $200,000 But Worked As Yard Clerk

NEW YORK, March 16—A former Scotland Yard clerk, Thomas George Piggott Roupell, who died recently after he had worked for many years at £6 ($16.80) a week left a fortune, which is the equivalent of $200,000 at present exchange rates, according to London newspaper reports. He had inherited valuable real estates in Charlton, London. He worked for years at a small salary only because he liked his job and felt that he was "really doing something worth while," his widow explained.

Mr. Roupell traveled third-class from his home—a $40,000 house in an acre of beautifully kept ground at Sonning-on-Thames, where he kept two automobiles, two maids and a housekeeper—to Paddington, whence he continued to Scotland Yard by bus. He caught the 9:05 train every morning at Twyford, Berks, and returned home each afternoon on the 5:38.

He seldom spoke of his riches to his fellow workers, but always was ready to help a colleague in distress. He never told his wife, Mrs. Florence M. E. Roupell of his small salary. He resigned from the Yard in 1939 to join the Berkshire Constabulary as a full-time "special" and was in charge of the specials' records until his death. Unpaid and working every day he rose to the rank of district officer—inspector—and had an office in Reading headquarters.

As a young man, Mr. Roupell was a racing motorist and motorcyclist, and won cups and medals.

Mrs. Roupell said her husband traced his descent from Henry VII. The house was filled with pieces of expensive period furniture, china and original paintings.

Film Stars Hit Bitter Days

HOLLYWOOD, March 16 (CP)—Hint of the bitter days which have fallen on this fabulous city was seen Wednesday in the new contract signed by a ranking movie star.

William Bendix, long a top-office draw, Tuesday signed a seven-year contract with R. K. O. which pays him less than $1,000,000. He will make 14 pictures at a rate of two a year.

That is only $70,000 a picture.

A few years ago studios were paying more than that for mere feature players. Even writer got that much. Some stars were making $500,000 or more a picture.

Then along came the British ban on American movies with the resultant loss of foreign revenue; and, finally, television. Studios have been laying off employees by the hundreds. The number of players under contract has dropped from 742 in 1947 to 315 this year.

R. K. O., in a statement announcing the contract today, said it "may well set the pattern for future negotiations in Holywood."

Fruit Crop Acreage Higher During 1949

TORONTO, March 16 —(CP)—Fruit-crop acreage in Ontario was higher last year than in 1948 but vegetable acreage was lower, the Provincial Agriculture Department said today.

The 1949 fruit acreage was 90,800 compared with 87,750; vegetable acreage, 140,300, compared with 159,000.

Tomatoes and turnips acounted for most of the vegetable decrease, the department said. In fruits, the gain was mostly in apple orchards, which showed an increase from 32,800 acres in 1948 to 34,600.

Single-Bloc List Pleases Red Voters

MOSCOW, March 16—(AP)—The final count in Russia's general election last Sunday gave an overwhelming vote of approval to the single-bloc list of Communist party and non-party candidates, figures released by the central electorate committee showed Wednesday.

The official figures showed that 99.98 per cent of Russia's registered voters cast ballots for deputies in the two houses of the Supreme Soviet (Parliament.)

In the total vote for the council of the union 99.73 per cent were for the bloc candidates. In the council of nationalities 99.72 per cent were favorable.

Opposition votes for the council of nationalities numbered 306,382—less than half the figure in 1946, when 818,955 voted against the chosen candidates. There were 1,619 invalid vallots this time.

Better with Butter

Yes, everything's BETTER WITH BUTTER . . . because butter alone is made from the rich cream of fresh, pure milk — nature's best, most complete food.

On Bread, Toast, Biscuits, Muffins — That matchless, natural butter flavour!

On Fish, Steaks, Chops — Butter added means extra goodness!

Pancakes, Waffles, take on new meaning — smothered in golden butter!

GOOD THINGS TO EAT ARE Better with Butter EVERY POUND MADE FROM A FULL QUART OF WHIPPING CREAM

Senator Wants Immigration To Be Controlled

OTTAWA, March 16 (CP) — Senator John T. Haig, Progressive Conservative Senate leader, Wednesday said he favored increased immigration to Canada, but not if it was going to mean starvation and growing unemployment.

He spoke in the upper chamber during discussion of a resolution which would increase study of means of getting more immigrants into Canada.

The resolution was introduced by Senator Cairine Wilson (L—Ontario), who in reviewing recent immigration trends, noted that many Europeans still are anxious to make their homes in Canada.

Many people, such as those in the United Kingdom and the Netherlands, were discouraged by current regulations in their countries. Displaced persons "eagerly awaited an opportunity to establish themselves in another land."

Senator Wilson said it was gratifying that the government now has recognized the importance of immigration and has framed an immigration and citizenship department.

She believed that Canada could absorb at least 200,000 people a year. The highest post-war flow was 125,414 in 1948. The rate recently had declined sharply.

Senator Haig said he would vote in favor of the resolution which directs the study of the standing committee on immigration and labor. However, he asked assurance that the government is dealing adequately with the unemployment situation in Canada.

Don't Want Tax

TORONTO, March 16 (CP) — Board of Control decided Wednesday to ask the Ontario government not to impose the provincial 20-per-cent amusement tax on amateur sports events for which the admission fee is 50 cents or less.

Purse Snatching

MONTREAL, March 16 (CP)— Two youths captured in the street following a $3,500 robbery were refused bail Wednesday pending preliminary hearing set for March 23. The accused, Hubert Filion, 19, and Gilles Choquette, 18, were charged with snatching the purse containing the money from Miss Collette Mireault, Tuesday.

ROBIN HOOD POPOVERS

1 cup sifted Robin Hood Flour — 1 cup milk
¼ teaspoon salt — 2 eggs
1½ teaspoons melted shortening

What wonderful puffed-up popovers you make the Robin Hood way — crisp and golden outside, light as thistledown!

1. Preheat oven to 475°F. (Very hot oven.) Place approximately 9 thick muffin pans or custard cups in oven to heat while making batter.
2. Measure sifted flour into sifter, add salt. Sift together into mixing bowl. Add milk gradually, beating until smooth.
3. Beat eggs until thick and light. Add to flour and milk mixture, then add melted shortening. Beat for 2 minutes with rotary beater. Batter should be thickness of heavy cream.
4. Remove pans from oven and grease thoroughly (butter gives best flavor.) Pour batter into pans, filling half-full.
5. Bake in a very hot oven 475°F. for 20 minutes, then reduce heat to 350°F. (moderate oven) and bake 20 minutes longer.

Serve warm. Yield — approx. 9 popovers.

Claim Afternoon Tea Snacks Bad For Your Stomach

TORONTO, March 16 (CP) — People should eat bigger breakfasts and smaller lunches and refrain altogether from between-meal snacks, in the opinion of George Heckman of Montreal, president of the Canadian Restaurant Association.

Here for the Association's annual convention, the restaurateur who supervises preparation of 18,000,000 meals a year told a reporter between convention sessions that rest periods and mid-morning coffee are doing nobody any good.

He said that through morning coffee, afternoon tea and late evening lunching, people get stomach trouble.

The Rev. John W. Foote, Deputy Commissioner of the Ontario Liquor Control Board, Tuesday told the convention that "those restaurant operators who put service to the public as their first consideration and the sale of Liquor as the second cause very little trouble for our department."

Mayor Hiram McCallum urged the association to "put teeth" into its regulations concerning sanitary conditions in restaurants. He said 300 Toronto restaurants were closed during the last three years because of unsanitary conditions.

HONORED BY THE NETHERLANDS—Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, former Prime Minister of Canada, has been awarded the highest civil decoration The Netherlands can bestow. At a special investiture during the official visit of Prince Bernhard to Ottawa, Mr. King was given the Grand Cross of the Order of The Netherlands Lion for "outstanding services to the Allied cause during the war."

to "assess the value of what is being done here."

Thus far in the month-old debate, there had been 82 speeches. Twenty-one of them had come from the 40 Progressive Conservative members, 11 from the 13 C.C.F. members and eight from the 10 Social Crediters. The 190 Liberals had delivered only 41.

The leaders' speeches — Mr. Drew spoke for 115 minutes and Mr. St. Laurent for 12—were followed by the vote on the non-confidence motion moved during the debate by the 13-member C.C.F. party.

An expansion of a still pending Progressive Conservative motion, it charged the government with deliberately "suppressing" last year's report of an alleged price-fixing combine in the flour-milling industry. It accused the government of "failing" to take action to expand markets, to inaugurate an over-all social-security program and to take steps against espionage and Communistic activities.

Back Conservatives

The motion was supported by the C.C.F., Progressive Conservative and Social Credit parties and by two Independents, P. E. Gagnon, Chicoutimi, and Dr. R. Poulin, Beauce.

No sooner had the division ended than Solon Low, Social Credit leader, announced that he will move today a non-confidence motion outlining the views of his party.

Mr. Drew dealt with each of the four points mentioned in his own and the CCF motions of non-confidence.

At the outset, he charged that the government was "stalling" on a pre-election promise to abolish the means test now obligatory for old-age pensions.

(Under the present pensions system, a person to qualify for a pension must prove he is at least 70, that he is in need and that he has no other means of support. In some cases the pensioner is required to give a lien against any of his possessions so part of the pension may later be recovered from his estate.)

The government, said Mr. Drew, was asking for establishment of a committee to study the whole pensions question.

"Exposes Sham"

This move "exposed in all its naked reality the sham that has been behind the propaganda that has been carried on now for several years in regard to the responsibility of some provinces for holding up social security of various kinds."

The government had been saying for years that Ontario and Quebec, by remaining outside a taxation agreement with the Federal Government, were responsible for Canadians not having an over-all social-security program and an old-age pensions system without the means test.

The government's move to establish an old-age pension committee showed there was nothing behind the allegation. The committee was to obtain information on old-age pensions, including figures on costs, and the number of pensioners.

"If the government has not the figures then the government was perpetrating a tremendous fraud on the provincial governments in 1945 because in that year the Dominion Government presented to the conference a detailed statement of what they were prepared to do."

Mr. Drew, premier of Ontario during the 1945 conference, said he and Premier Duplessis of Quebec had urged that the dominion-provincial conference be reconvened.

Brings Denial

The statement brought a denial from Mr. St. Laurent. He said he had never received any application from Quebec for a renewal of the conference. He knew that the Quebec government had stated it would not consider any constitutional amendment that would be required to tie contributions to social-welfare services.

Mr. Drew replied that Mr. Duplessis was capable of taking care of himself as he had in the past. However, as former Premier of Ontario, he (Mr. Drew) was on record as having asked that the conference reconvene.

Commenting on this in his 12-minute speech, Mr. St. Laurent said:

"Well, I may have been unfair in my appraisal of what the honorable member then wanted. I felt that he wanted to have partisan, political warfare. It probably was unfair to him—but you have heard his speech this afternoon."

In any event, the conference now was being reconvened—this fall.

Turns To Combines

Mr. Drew turned from social security to the major issue of the last session—the government's withholding for 10 months of a report on an alleged combine in the flour-milling industry. The Combines Investigation Act requires that such reports be made public within 15 days.

He said that anyone who supported the government on the non-confidence vote would declare his approval of the government's breach of one of the laws of this parliament.

Mr. Drew added:

"If there is any party which by its acts has demonstrated that it is hand in glove with big interests with a capitl 'B'—and I say capital 'B'—it is the party which has seen fit to say to one group of manufacturers, "We are so virtuous we will prosecute you,' but to a very much larger group dealing with the main primary product of this country, "Oh, no; we dare not touch you."

"If anyone wonders just why that should be so, let them look and see who are the men in charge of some of these companies. Then they will not have to guess very long as to why there was such consideration."

Criminal Code Changes

Mr. Drew also spoke on the question of criminal-code changes to suppress activities of Communists in Canada.

He said there is need for a criminal code section that will enable the courts to deal with the activities of anyone who advocates the overthrow of the State by force.

Mr. Drew also had something to say about the suggestion of Fisheries Minister Mayhew that a national export-import board be establishde to arrange for barter of Canadian goods with those of non-dollar countries.

The opposition leader said the minister originally had suggested that the board be financed and managed by the government and include representatives of Canadian manufacturers and wholesalers. A day later the minister had asked that a correction be made, but even with the correction it still was clear that Mr. Mayhew wanted a board that would be controlled by the government.

Mr. Mayhew rose twice and said his correction made it clear that what he wanted was a board that would be established, managed and financed by Canadian manufacturers and wholesalers. The government would contribute through trade commissioners abroad.

RemandHancock Counsel Seeks Bail Reduction

Aubrey S. Hancock, 35, Toronto made his second appearance in police court here today and was remanded one week on a charge of forgery which it is believed connects him with a $100,000 car finance swindle.

Several other charges are pending. John Corkery representing Hancock's attorney E. J. Murphy KC, of Toronto, intimated he would apply to have Hancock's $20,000 bail reduced next Thursday to $10,000.

Hancock was brought here a week ago Wednesday by Sergeant Willam Aggas and Detective Sergeant W. A. Clarke after he had been arrested in Vancouver about two weeks ago by Vancouver police.

Five Months Loose

Hancock had been on the loose five months after disappearing from Peterborough early in October with Paul Imming, 25, of Peterborough, believed to be his partner.

About two weeks after the pair disappeared the Colonial Finance Co. of Toronto announced they had been cheated of at least $100,000 by making loans on phoney used car sales.

Hancock was operating under the name Hancock Motor Sales and Imming under Ideal Auto Body.

Marion Lankin who was living with Hancock as his common-law wife in Peterborough and Vancouver was released on $250 cash bail after being arrested in Barrie Thursday night by Detective Sergeant Clarke. She failed to appear in court today and the charge against her was set over another week.

HAVELOCK COMMUNITY ARENA and Recreational Centre was officially opened on Wednesday evening. A near-capacity crowd witnessed the ceremony, watched figure skating, listened to the RCAF Training Command Band of Toronto and thrilled to a hockey game as the home-town team trimmed RCAF Repair Depot by 6 to 4. In Top Left photo chairman of the rink committee R. A. McNeely, district director of Ontario Fairs Association Fred Rutherford of Campbellford and Havelock Reeve E. J. Maj. Gordon Armstrong Dies While Using The Telephone

Major J. Gordon Armstrong, D.S.O., founder and head of the Armstrong Lumber Company died suddenly at the telephone in his home, 375 Albertus Ave., early Wednesday evening. He was stricken with a heart attack while waiting for a long distance business call to Robbeville, Quebec.

Mr. Armstrong had put the call through Miss Marjorie Turner of the local Bell Telephone Co. staff whose alert reaction through the medium of the telephone discovered the domestic tragedy the news of which has keenly distressed the community in which Mr. Armstrong was highly respected as a young veteran officer of the War, business man and a civic leader.

Mr. Armstrong seemed to be breathing quite heavily when he put in the call, Miss Turner mentioned in her report, but he did not make any remark to her about any unusual condition. He said he would hang up his receiver until the call was put through. When she then dialed the line into the Armstrong home, Miss Turner noticed the board signal that the receiver was off its hook.

Getting no answer, she listened and could hear a sound that seemed like some person moaning, and also the crying of a child.

Miss Turner kept ringing, a buzzing sound in the receiver, and finally little John Armstrong, four years old, answered. Breathlessly he told Miss Turner that his daddy was lying on the floor and did not answer him. She immediately notified the supervisor Miss Marie Hynes, who telephoned the nearest neighbor, the police station and Dr. Bob Young.

Police Constables H. Mesley and A. Edmison, arriving at the home by automobile, found Mr. Armstrong lying dead on the floor beneath the telephone. Presumably he had lifted the receiver off, or had knocked it off in falling. Dr. Harry G. Carleton, coroner, was also called. He pronounced death caused by a heart ailment.

It was learned that Mrs. Armstrong her three young daughters, Nancy, Joan and Sara, had gone out for the evening, leaving her husband and son, John, together. Mr. Armstrong, it was learned, had answered a long distance call from Robbeville, and about 8.15 p.m. he wished to resume the conversation.

The shocking untimeliness of the death of Gordon Armstrong deeply affected citizens generally as the report of the circumstances were learned last night, and spread widely throughout the city today. He was one of the most popular young men in Peterborough, with a splendid war record, having enlisted with the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders at the outset of its mobilization here; with a business already well established, a recent term of two years in the city council that enlarged his reputation of ability and good citizenship, and with other interests in sport, community recreation and the general welfare of the city.

MAJOR GORDON ARMSTRONG

Born At Millbrook

Mr. Armstrong was born at Millbrook 36 years ago, son of the late Herbert R. Armstrong and his wife, Sarah J. MacDonald. He leaves his wife, who was Marcelle Garvey, and a young family, three daughters, Nancy, Joan and Sara, and son, John; three sisters, Miss Margaret Armstrong of Millbrook; Mrs. A. Burrow (Mary) of Toronto; and Mrs. John Tinney (Esther) of Millbrook; and two brothers, Norman of St. Catharines, and Roderick of Peterborough. Another brother, a pilot in the RCAF, was killed in action during the recent war.

The body is resting at the Comstock funeral home, Water St., until Saturday afternoon, when the service will be conducted at 2 p.m. at All Saints' Anglican Church. Burial will be at Little Lake Cemetery.

Mr. Armstrong was a member of J. B. Hall Lodge, No. 145 A.F. and A.M., Millbrook, and also of Scottish Rite and Rose Croix. He was a member of the Canadian Legion and also of the city's Recreation Commission to which he was appointed after his retirement from the municipal administration as alderman.

Gordon Armstrong was a most attractive personality, literally of charming disposition, sincere, kindly, and possessed of an extraordinary sense of responsibility. He accepted nomination to the city council, as he said, because he was convinced that young men should be willing to assume an active part in the affairs of the community. That same spirit was exemplified when he joined the Peterborough Rangers shortly after he had come to Peterborough in 1933 and prepared himself for promotion to an officer's commission.

Plant Stays Closed

Trenton, March 16.—(CP). NEGOTIATIONS between the United Textile Workers (A. F. L.) and the Downs-Coulter Textile Company have been broken off and the plant will remain closed "indefinitely," James Uttley, company manager said today. The firm employs 160 persons.

Mr. Uttley accused the union of being Leftist led and said "we will not deal with the union as long as there are Communistic elements at the head of it."

Union representatives were not available immediately for comment.

The plant closed 11 weeks ago after the union asked higher wages.

Road Estimates At Minimum In Economy Drive

County of Peterborough estimates will be approved next week and an increase over last year's figure is expected.

In 1949 the county estimated $161,636.21 would be required for municipal purposes.

However, at the statutory meeting of the County Council in January the clerk and treasurer announced that the deficit for the year amounted to $35,963.98. This consisted of an over-expenditure of $22,157.64 on county roads and $13,806.34 on current expenditures.

Because of the heavy deficit, council shaved the 1950 roads expenditures to the bare essentials. Its objective was to pull that committee out of the red and at the same time meet the year's commitments.

At the January meeting it was stated that the Suburban Area Roads Commission had an operating deficit of more than $1,600. And deficits carried over from 1948 by both the County Roads Committee and the Commission amounted to nearly $10,000.

One Mill Higher

Despite the strict economy measures, the 1950 road levy is seven mills. This is an extra mill over the previous year.

Six and three-quarter mills will go to road maintenance, and the remaining quarter mill will have to cover construction costs.

(In 1949 the mill raised more than $11,000).

The generally higher costs of materials and labor—as well as larger salaries—all contribute to swollen estimates.

Meet Commitments

This year there will be an additional outlay. The first debenture payment financing the cost of the Chemong Causeway is due. It will be the first of five annual payments—each $6,678.75.

And it will be the second year for paying off the $150,779.85 debenture covering the county's contribution of $120,000 towards completion of the new Civic Hospital. The 15 yearly instalments each come to $10,051.99.

Other items in the estimates are expected to be fairly well in line.

But one thing is almost certain: the estimates are going up.

UE NEGOTIATIONS RESUME

Contract negotiations between the UE and CGE resumed early today in Toronto under the chairmanship of Louis Fine, chief conciliation officer for the Ontario Department of Labor. Heading the Local 524 negotiating committee is President T. P. Davies and C. R. Sullivan, UE district representative.

John G. Morton Remaining Canadian Head

John G. Morton, president of the right-wing local, Local 524 IUE (CIO-CCL), announced today he had reconsidered his decision of a week ago and will continue as Canadian director of the IUE.

At a membership meeting on March 7 he stated he was resigning his post to give his full attention to organizing the Peterborough CGE plant.

Because he was urged by IUE local unions, officers and rank and file—as well as by James B. Carey, administrative head of the IUE—Mr. Morton said he had decided to withdraw his resignation and continue as Canadian director.

At present the left-wing UE is the legal bargaining agent at the plant where there are more than 3,000 production workers. At the time their application was turned down by the OLRB the IUE claimed to have a majority in the plant.

Resigning Workers

Since then another campaign has been under way to re-sign the workers and obtain another OLRB hearing. It was to give all his efforts to this campaign that caused him to offer his resignation, Mr. Morton said.

Mr. Carey's telegram read in part: "We have fought, you and I, the Communist and big business exploitation of the workers of our industry for many years. The membership of IUE has urged that you continue, that you devote whatever time you may have available to organization within the district while striving for the democratic rights which the workers of Peterborough have been denied. Continue on as you have in the past."

Mr. Morton replied: "The loyalty which IUE's membership has displayed toward our common endeavor should prove once and for all—even to Communist minds — that the UE is through for good in the electrical and allied industries. The members have urged that I continue. Continue I shall, for I am more determined now."

Havelock Community Fills Arena At Official Opening

With march tunes, the rip of figure skates in ice and the thumps of heavy body checks, Havelock and district officially open their Community Arena and Recreational Centre Tuesday night. The arena has been operating since the middle of January. Fred Rutherford, District 3 Director for the Ontario Fairs Association, cut the white ribbon to open the rink after Reeve E. J. Leeson, master of ceremonies, and Reeve of Belmont Township Ross Barrons, had congratulated the citizens on building the rink. Rev. F. R. Vanderburgh gave the dedicating prayer.

Cost of the rink has been $25,000. Village debentures were used for $15,000, a government grant $5000 and another $5000 was raised by subscription. Work on the recreational rooms, which will be on the second floor at the front of the rink, has yet to be started. The rest of the arena is complete.

The dimensions of the arena building are: 218 feet long and 90 feet wide with the basement 10 ft. deep and the full width of the south end of the rink. Four dressing rooms, a ticket office, a referee's room and rest room are on ground level. The ice surface is 70 feet by 175 feet. The arena accomodates 1500 spectators.

The Training Command Band of the R.C.A.F. of Toronto which travels about 35,000 miles a year in their district ,all east of Winnipeg, presented a musical program. During the between periods of the exhibition hockey game the band turned from march and semi-classical selections to light, popular numbers. The 34 members are under the direction of Warrant Officer I. Clifford O. Hunt

Gerald Covey of Gananoque stole the figure skating show with his mimicry of a woman trying to do her washing. June Brierly of Kingston presented a solo waltz on skates and thrilled the crowd as she glided and spun her way along the ice. Other skaters performing were: Mrs. Barbara DeLaney of Gananoque and 12-year-old Dorothy Topliss of Kingston.

Trenton No. 6 Repair Depot, R. C. A. F. team threw a scare into the Havelock fans as they jumped an early period lead in a wide-open hockey game with Havelock and district All Stars. But the All Stars fought an uphill battle tying the score once in the first and later in the third to go on to take 6-4 victory.

Game of Thrills

Robinson for Havelock opened the scoring in the first minute of play on a pass from Blake. For the next 12 minutes Hill in the Havelock nets and Tomassini between the pipes for Trenton performed miracles. Filion for the Repair Depot finally sank a long screen shot to tie the score. Christie put Trenton one up as he caught the all stars well up the ice.

Hamilton tied the score two-all at the three-minute mark of the second. Forget and Twigg on passes from Christie, gave Trenton a 4-2 score but Lavender tipped a Kerr pass just before the period ended. Payne whipped home Lonsberry's passes at 6:40 of the third to tie the score. A minute later Lavender put Havelock up with a tricky side shot. He sent home the clincher on a pass from Brown to perform the hat-trick.

Hill of the Circle League and Tomassini for Trenton, kept the crowd on their feet throughout the game as they outguessed the forwards and defencemen on what seemed sure goals.

Ends With Banquet

Following the hockey game the teams the band and the figure skaters, were banqueted at the Havelock Anglican Church by the women of the village. The dinner was supervised by the Havelock Home and School Association.

The building committee of the rink was: H. A. McNeely, chairman; Fred Rogess, Harold Watson, W. J. Nobes, E. D. Chiles, G. W Hubbel and the Rev. F. R. Vanderburgh. The administration committee are: H. A. McNeely, chairman; E. D. Chiles, Harold Watson, W. J. Nobes, H. T. Mathison, Reeve E. J. Leeson and Councillor Jack Davidson.

Chinchilla Breeders Name Ward President

Other elected members of the executive were: F. G. Leahy, vice-president; G. T. Colwell, secretary-treasurer; and J. R. Turnbull and G. R. Schwab directors.

Mr. Ward told the meeting of the annual meeting of the National Chinchilla Breeders of Canada in Ottawa in February. He also discussed research now going on at MacDonald College in Montreal.

Mr. Schwab and J. W. Miles related the events of the international Chinchilla show they attended in Denver, Colorado.

A plan to have a central inspection and grading point for the district was discussed and left in the hands of the directors.

Snakes Departed and Erin Smiled For Saint Patrick

By ALAN DONNELLY, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Faith, and 'twill be a great day in the morning tomorrow when sons of the old sod gather in their greenery to honor Ireland's patron saint, the good St. Patrick. The leprechauns mourned, and the fairies watered the emerald isle with their tears back on that day in the year 461 when Bishop Patrick went to his reward at Abbey Saul, in County Down.

But the sadness is gone now for Hibernian legions wherever they may be, and the anniversary of the saint's death is a cause for rejoicing that one man could have brought such good to the Irish back in the fifth century.

And when did St. Patrick die?

With true Irish contradiction, legend says it certainly wasn't on March 17. For years after his death the Irish quarrelled over two possible dates—March 8 or 9—until a certain Father Mulcahey, in the spirit of Irish compromise, added the two dates together and proclaimed March 17 as the day.

The man who established Christianity in Ireland was born probably in 389 and probably in Wales, though England, Scotland and France claim him too.

He was brought up in Christianity and at the age of 16 was kidnapped and sold into slavery in Ireland, where he learned the language while tending sheep on the hills of County Antrim. He is said to have had visions, and one of them encouraged his escape to France where he entered the famous monastery at Lerins.

Vision Was Guide.

Returning to his home some years later, he had another vision and in the dream read an epistle in which were the words "The Voice of the Irish." That sent him back to a monastery in France, whence he was sent to Ireland in 432 by Pope Celestine.

Twenty years of untiring missionary work followed, from Killarney to Derry, until he finally founded his bishopric at Armagh.

Great works were done among the pagan Irish. St. Patrick is said to have founded 365 churches and baptized with his own hand 12,000 persons. Legend claims he turned the River Boyne into Ireland's River Jordan.

The sons of Erin credit him with even more resounding deeds—such as ridding the island for every snake and toad.

And he raised the humble shamrock to its exalted position as Ireland's national emblem.

While preaching at Tara, so it is told, a Druid priest challenged the mystery of the Trinity.

St. Patrick plucked a shamrock from the emerald sod and held it high to demonstrate how three could combine in one, and one in three.

Whitehall Notebook

Scottish School Teacher No. 2 Woman In British Govt

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON, March 16—(CP)—For the first time, a woman will sit in Whitehall with high responsibility for the administration of Scottish affairs. Dark, diminutive Margaret Herbison is the first woman to be chosen as parliamentary secretary to the Scottish office. With the appointment she also ranks as No. 2 woman in the Labor government behind Dr. Edith Summerskill, the new Minister of Insurance.

Miss Herbison, a 42-year-old school teacher, has made striking progress since she first won a seat in the House of Commons five years ago. She was promoted unexpectedly to the Labor party's national executive, and was the government's only woman delegate to the Council of Europe at Strasbourg last August.

She was also specially chosen to give one of Labor's five election broadcasts.

Night Owl

In the Feb. 23 General Election, she retained her seat in Lanarkshire North by a 7,000-vote majority over Conservative and Liberal opponents. During her five years in Parliament, she did not miss a single night sitting.

Once she stayed up three consecutive nights—through two all-night sittings and an all-night journey to Scotland.

In her new job Miss Herbison will serve under Hector McNeil, former minister of state and prominent figure at United Nations meetings, who replaces Arthur Woodburn as Secretary of State for Scotland. Thomas Fraser remains as Scottish under-secretary. The only junior minister to leave the Scottish office is J. J. Robertson.

There was considerable satisfaction at the appointment of McNeil, expected to bring new drive and initiative into the handling of Scottish affairs. The 40-year-old, broad-shouldered former Glasgow newspaperman is considered to have done a good job for Britain in the U. N. council halls.

Sad Samaritan

One of the best election stories came from Maj. R. H. Turton, re-elected Conservative member for the North Yorkshire riding of Thirsk and Malton.

He said Sir Stafford Cripps went fishing fell in and was saved by three small boys. The Chancellor of the Exchequer offered to give his rescuers anything they wanted.

The first asked for a bicycle; the second plumped for Sir Stafford's fishing rod; the third, brushing away tears, asked for a state funeral in Westminster Abbey. His reason:

"When I go home and tell my father I've saved the life of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, he'll kill me."

Suspend Police For Drinking

MONTREAL, March 16 (CP)—Charged with being under the influence of liquor while in uniform, three Montreal police constables Wednesday were suspended from the force for terms ranging from six to 15 days.

The suspensions were ordered by the department's board of discipline.

Alfred Belanger, the board's assistant director said two of the men were charged following the disastrous Chinatown fire March 2 when eight persons lost their lives in a $1,000,000 blaze.

Says Charges Nonsense

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 16 (AP) — Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt called charges of Communism in the state department "utter and compete nonsense" in an interview here Wednesday. The widow of former President Franklin D. Roosevelt described as "irresponsible charges by association" accusation of Communist leanings against Miss Dorothy Kenyon, a former state department official, attached for a time to the United Nations.

Abandons Twins

MISHAWAKA, Ind., March 16 (AP)—Police were looking today for the mother of three-day-old twin girls who left the babies in a hospital after after saying she "didn't want girls." The woman, who said she was Mrs. Marjorie Johnson, walked out Tuesday, only a day after the twins were born. She asked to be relieved of any future care of the babies and refused to name them.

Military Projects

WASHINGTON, March 16 (AP) New multi-million-dollar military projects emphasizing secret weapons development and Alaskan defences were outlined to Congress Wednesday. The defence department asked $187,142,770 in new funds—over and above the present $13,541,000,000 defence budget—for the construction of high priority projects. Most of them are closely-guarded secrets.

Gets Big Profits Too Easily U.K. Conservative Member Declares

By ALAN HARVEY.

LONDON, March 16 (CP) — One man's opinion: the trouble with Britain is that it's too easy for business men to make big profits.

That statement, snatched slightly out of context, comes not from a soap-box orator in Hyde Park, but from a Conservative member of parliament who may one day become Chancellor of the Exchequer.

As a young man, David McAdam Eccles entered London's keenly - competitive business world without money or influence and emerged with considerable of both. He does not oppose profits as such. He just argues that under Socialism money is too easy to make and too hard to keep.

The tall, 45-year-old member of Wiltshire's Chippenham constituency long regarded as one of the Tory party's "coming young men," delivered his party's first major financial address in the new parliament. His chief theme was high profits and high taxes.

"One of the really bad features of the past few years," he told the House of Commons, "has been the ease with which profits could be made.

"What is now required is a return to competitive efficiency. Competition is a much better instrument for dealing with excessive profits than the delilitating purgative of taxation imposed upon profits too easily made."

Eccles thus echoed a frequent criticism of government financial policy—that cosy market in sterling countries dull the desire of British manufacturers to switch to dollar outlets. Taxation, regarded as probably higher here than anywhere else, is another common complaint.

As chief Conservative backbench critic on financial matters, Eccles is occasionally caught in a cross-fire of criticism. Some members of his own party are believed to consider his theories on "planning" a little precocious.

He has frequently lauded what he calls "popular capitalism." He says Tories should not be shy about recognizing that universal suffrage is incompatible with great extremes of wealth. Eccles lives on a 300-acre Hampshire farm and is married to the daughter of a Lord.

It's Husband Lures Mercedes To Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, March 16 (AP) — It wasn't movie offers that convinced Mercedes McCambridge to settle in Hollywood. It was acquiring a husband, Fletcher Markle of Toronto.

Miss McCambridge is the heavy favorite to snag an oscar for her hard-bitten performance in "All The King's Men." Despite the acclaim she won in her first screen role, the radio actress was indifferent about settling here.

"I had never thought about Hollywood before," she said. "It was like another world. I managed to keep busy—and happy—working in New York. The idea of invading Hollywood never occurred to me."

Then Marriage

That was before she and radio-producer Markle tripped off to Las Vegas to tie the knot.

"I'm married now," she said, "and a wife has to go where her husband goes." Markle now works Hollywood coming here after years with the CBC.

The actress is doing her second film role in "Lightning Strikes Twice."

Too Long?

Miss McCambridge has refused efforts to make her change her name.

"A lot of people have told me it's too long and I should chance it," she remarked. "I won't. It's my own name and I like it."

They had better let her have her way. She might want to adopt her full handle—Carlotta Mercedes Agnes McCambridge Fifield Markle. It's Mer-say-deez, by the way, with accent on the say. Friends just call her Mercy.

"I can't understand," she remarked, "why people would change a perfectly beautiful name into something short and cute that sounds completely false. I like long names that sound unusual and have a ripple.

"And I don't know why Lizabeth Scott wanted to change her name from Emma Matzo. I think that's a fascinating name."

Fined $50,000

CHICAGO, March 16—(AP)—A soft-coal miner charged Wednesday that the United Mine Workers (Ind.) fined him $50,000 and put him out of work because he attempted to get fellow UMW miners to obey a federal no-strike injunction. The charge aws made in a complaint filed with the National Labor Relations Board by Lloyd H. Sidener, 44, of Canton, Ill.

TORONTO, March 16—(CP)—The body of Mrs. Mary Craig, 43, was found Wednesday on the floor of her east-end home, a few feet from her bed-ridden, 85-year-old mother. Police said the death apparently was from natural causes. A diamond ring, said valued at $3,000, was on Mrs. Craig's hand. Police Constable Ralph Kerney, who lived in the same building, found the body.

The two, Enrique Montenegro, left, and Angel Parra, are deserters from the Spanish navy. They arrived in Vancouver aboard a British freighter. They are shown en route to detention cells at Montreal.

Award Blonde $16,000 Bequest

TORONTO, March 16—(CP)—The secret double life of a wealthy married Hamilton salesman came to light Wednesday when Mary Irene MacDonald, 43, was declared the legal recipient of a $16,000 bequest of bonds and furs.

Miss MacDonald, a bespectacled blonde, testified that Ivanhoe Byrne Reynolds left the estate to her after she had lived with him here for a part of every week for 18 years.

The will was contested by Reynolds' 62-year-old widow, Mrs. Anne Jane Reynolds, and four grown daughters. They said they knew nothing of Reynolds' relationship with Miss MacDonald, former Edmonton nurse, until after his death last May.

Arthur Black Farmer, handwriting expert who was a witness in the post-war trials of Canadians who spied for Russia, said the writing on the will and on Reynolds' cancelled cheques was identical.

Judge Ambrose Shea ruled on the validity of the will:

"I find that the signature of the document was written by the deceased . . . there is no evidence that he was not of sound mind at the time of making the will."

$19,620 Damages For Widowed Mother

TORONTO, March 16 (CP) — A widowed mother of four children Wednesday was awarded $19,620 damages in an action arising from the highway accident death of her husband in April, 1949.

Mrs. Ivy Ellen McKinnon of Parry Sound, Ont., sued William Sheridan and Velma Harrison. Testimony was that Ernest R. McKinnon was fatally injured in a collision involving an automobile owned by Miss Harrison and was a passenger in a car driven by driven by Sheridan.

He left the provincial political field to contest the Cartier by-election after Fred Rose, Labor Progressive party member for the riding, had been convicted of espionage charges.

Believes Government Will Pay All College Tuition In 50 Years

By EDGAR SIMON

TORONTO, March 16 (CP) — Disappearance of economic barriers to higher education within the next half-century is foreseen by the head of Canada's largest university.

Dr. Sidney E. Smith, President of the University of Toronto, says that within the next 50 years any qualified high-school graduate will be able to complete a college course at government expense.

Discussing Canada's educational future, Dr. Smith predicts that the free tuition given former Second World War servicemen and women through the Veterans Affairs Department will be extended to include any Canadian fulfilling the academic requirements.

The student or his parents would still be responsible for his keep, although scholarships would be made available to those financially incapable of supporting themselves without undue hardship.

Not Just Havens

This would not mean that universities would become havens for anyone wishing to spend a few idle years on a college campus. There would be a drastic weeding-out of undergraduates who proved "unfitted, indolent or incompetent."

Dr. Smith dismisses as short-term problems which will be ironed out within a few years the existing overcrowding of elementary and secondary schools and the shortage of teachers, subjects which have occupied an Ontario Royal Commission for the last five years.

College of Future

He foresees for the university of the future:

1. Increased efforts to help students in their selection of courses and in their choice of the vocation for which they are best suited.
2. An increasing demand for psychologists, socialogists and other students of the social sciences.
3. Comprehensive study of the arts and social sciences as a part of all professional courses.
4. Simplification of undergraduate courses in the professional faculties. Much detailed technical work will be left for post-graduate study by students wishing to specialize in a chosen branch of their profession.

Make Greater Demands

In line with these changes, Dr Smith foresses a greater demand on the resources of primary and secondary schools. They would be required to lay the groundwork for broader university courses and to offer a better-rounded education to those who do not proceed to a college degreem.

While no ready-made solution exists for the scarcity of qualified teachers, he feels it will be achieved by an improvement in the financial and social status of the teaching profession.

"Of course, money won't solve it all. It is a matter of recognition of the teacher's importance and significance in moulding the Canada of tomorrow."

Once the problems of overcrowded classrooms and shortage of leaders are solved, the schools will be able to concentrate on improving their curricula. Where the vocational schools of today teach subjects designed for manual dexterity at the expense of all other fields, Dr. Smith feels every secondary-school students should be required to take an essential core of English and the social and natural sciences before graduation.

Swing To Arts

With regard to the broadening of university courses, he sees the swing back to the arts as originating in the professional faculties themselves. In many schools in the United States and in some Canadian provinces, a three-year arts course now is required for admission to some professional courses.

"A doctor must have an appreciation of such subjects as economics and history to understand better the milieu in which his patient works, to attain a better balance wiwhin himself and better relaions wih his fellow-men."

Urges Decentralizing Theatre In Canada

MONTREAL, March 16 (CP)—Robert Speaight, British stage actor and critic, said here Wednesday that theatre in Canada would be greatly improved by decentralization.

Speaking before a meeting of the Women's Canadian Club, he said he would like to see the blossoming of numerous community theatres.

Theatrical enterprises could do with more generous grants from municipal, provincial and federal authorities, he said.

However, Mr. Speaight, said the public needs to show more interest in the theatre which is "a good way ahead of the Canadian public."

Remarkable Progress

TORONTO, March 16 (CP) — D. Leo Dolan, director of the Federal Government's Travel Bureau, said Wednesday that remarkable progress has been made in the last two years in the food and restaurant service, "but we have a long way to go to match the service in the United States." He was speaking at the Canadian Restaurant Association's annual convention.

Jobs For Graduates

HAMILTON, March 16 (CP)—Many jobs paying higher wages than ever before now are available to qualified university students about to graduate, John Andoff, director of placement and guidance at McMaster University, said Wednesday. "Employers are seeking mature graduates to fill positions created by expansion in business and industry during the post-war period," he said.

SECRET WILL — Miss Irene Mary MacDonald, of Toronto, who won an Ontario court decision declaring valid a will under which a married Hamilton salesman left her a $16,000 secret estate. Miss MacDonald, formerly a nurse at Edmonton, admitted living with the salesman, Ivanhoe Byrne Reynolds, part of every week from 1931 until 1949. Mrs. Annie Jane Reynolds, of Hamilton, his 62-year-old widow, testified she had no suspicions her late husband had maintained a separate Toronto home.

Mitchell Gets Big Welcome

OTTAWA, March 16 (CP) — Labor Minister Mitchell got a big hand from all parties Wednesday when he returned to the Commons after a six-weeks rest in the south.

His Cabinet colleagues, including Prime Minister St. Laurent, reached over to shake his hand warmly as he resumed his seat amid a clatter of desk-thumping.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, in the midst of a throne-speech address when the minister entered, said he felt "great satisfaction" that Mr. Mitchell was returning to the Chamber "looking as well as he does."

Mr. Mitchell had been in ill health when he embarked on the vacation early in February.

Land Seizures Still Continuing In Italy And Sicily

By ARNOLDI CORTESI.

ROME, March 16 — No visible drop in the land seizures has resulted from approval by the Senate on Friday of a bill authorizing the government to expropriate 150,000 acres in the Sila region of Calabria and from the government's announcement that it will introduce similar bills in Parliament to expropriate 1,250,000 acres in other parts of Italy.

Although the expropriated land will be distributed among the landless peasants seizures continued in wide areas of Southern Italy and Sardinia and other disturbances occurred in several places.

The seizures and disturbances were sometimes accompanied by clashes between the workers and the police.

In Bisacquino, near Palermo, the police made use of firearms when reportedly provoked by a crowd of demonstrators. Three workers were wounded, one critically. In Petralia, Sicily, peasants clashed with the police, who tried to prevent them from seizing land. The Communist newspaper Unita said that twenty policemen and three workers had been injured. Thirty-three workers were arrested.

The labor unions decided to call a general strike unless the police were withdrawn from country districts and the arrested men released.

The town hall of Ortanova in the province of Foggia was reported invaded by a crowd of farm laborers during riots that culminated in an attempt to lynch a municipal employee. In Foligno seven workers were arrested during riots that resulted in injuries to two Carabinieri. The unions called a general strike.

Land seizures spread rapidly in Sardinia, especially in the province of Sassari. Unita stated that 75,000 acres had been seized. More seizures took place in Avellino where twenty-four peasants were arrested. The unions called a general strike unless they were released.

Seizures continued in a considerable part of Calabria and in the localities scattered throughout Southern Italy. In San Pietro and Gallera, near Bologna, a general strike was called as a protest against an alleged attempt of free unions and "Fascists" to organize some of the workers. Nineteen workers were arrested.

Scientist Solves Work At Night

TORONTO, March 16 (CP) — Joseph Katz solves his scientific problems and does his inventive thinking in the middle of the night.

That's how the 28-year-old scientist at the University of Toronto invented a little gadget which may have a profound influence on the future development of a new giant in science—the electronic brain.

He is one of a team of seven scientists now building Canada's first electronic brain. The men — four post-praduate students and three technicians—won't hazard a guess as to when the project will be finished but predict it will be simpler and more reliable than others in North America.

The "brain"—called a computer by scientists—is intended to solve every conceivable mathematical problem in a matter of seconds and to have a memory far beyond the scope of a human.

Said one scientist: "just as the Industrial Age replaced human muscle with machines, the electronic computer will replace the human brain."

ARMY NURSING SISTERS—Major Edna E. Andres of Battle Heights, Sask., left, has been appointed Matron-in-Chief of the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps. She succeeds Major Dorothy F. Ballantine of Prince Albert, Sask., and Winnipeg, right, who has retired.

Manitoba-born Nurse Gets Top Feminine Army Post

OTTAWA, March 16 (CP) — A Manitoba-born nurse who saw front-line service in the Second World War, has been elevated to the top female medical post in the Canadian Army.

She is Major Edna E. Andrews of Battle Heights, Sask. Her appointment as matron-in-chief, Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps, was announced today by Defence Minister Claxton.

She succeeds Major (principal matron) Dorothy F. Ballantine of Prince Albert, Sask., and Winnipeg who retires after holding the post since 1946.

Born in Miami, Man., Maj. Andrews graduated from the Saskatoon City Hospital in 1931. She later took post-graduate studies at the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal, and gained appointment to the RAMC in 1941.

Like her predecessor, Maj. Andrews went overseas in the Second World War. From the end of 1944 until March 1945 she served as assistant matron at No. 6 Canadian General Hospital during the campaign in northwest Europe. Later she became acting matron with No. 16 General Hospital. In 1945 she was made an associate of the Royal Red Cross.

From June 1946 until her present appointment she was employed at the Toronto Military Hospital.

Underwriting Job Easy for Woman

MONTREAL—(CP)—A young Chinese woman is finding that being a woman doesn't seem much of a bar to a successful career selling insurance.

Eileen Hum is attractive and young—she's in her mid-20s. Interviewed at the annual sales meeting of her insurance company, she had a word to say about woman's place in the insurance business.

Femininity, said Miss Hum, "certainly doesn't hurt my prospects."

Furthermore, she has found that men are the best prospects for insurance sales. So far she has not written insurance for a single woman. But being a salesman and keeping chic is a difficult combination.

"I do an awful lot of walking, so I have to wear flat shoes with sponge soles. Not very glamorous. And my usual costume is a plain business suit and a trench coat.

After graduating from a commercial high school in Montreal Miss Hum spent seven years pounding a typwriter and taking dictation before she found herself in a position to go into business. She has been selling insurance now for only two months but in that time has charmed more than the average amount of business out of her clients.

The work of underwriting people's futures is "stimulating and exciting" and she can't understand why more women haven't gone into the same business.

"This is a perfect business for women," she said. "It [illegible] they can use their natural gift for tact and sympathy."

Miss Hum's father doesn't think it wrong that she should be on her own, making her own way in the business world.

"My father has always been interested in social work in Montreal" Miss Hum said, "and he believes I am carrying on by helping people."

106 Units Formed In Catholic Schools, In Year

"Lack of knowledge as to purpose makes a poor functioning organization" the Parent-Teachers' Association of St. Peter's Parish was told at a meeting in St. Anne's School Tuesday evening, attended by more than 200.

Speaker was the Rev. B. W. Harrigan, spiritual director of the Federation of Catholic Parent-Teachers' Associations of Ontario, formed just one year ago with Mr. J. T. Kerr of Ottawa as president. On the Council are five teachers and five parents, each representing a diocese, and there are now 106 units in the province, he stated.

Father Harrigan also said "working together promotes interest; awakens in parents their responsibility toward education of their children; creates better understanding between the parent and teacher in this Association."

He was thanked by Mr. P. Burke.

Monsignor P. P. Butler opened the meeting with prayer and president Mr. W. J. Cunningham presided.

Twenty-four children, picked from the kindergarten, grades one and two, of St. Anne's and dressed in St. Patrick's costumes,, entertained delightfully by dancing a quadrille. They had a "caller" and were accompanied by the Ryhthm Band and Miss Mary Neville at the piano. The band is directed by Sister Mary Bernard and the dancers were coached by Miss Neville.

The following delegates were appointed to represent the Association at the convention in Toronto at Easter: Mrs. J. C. Donnelly, Mrs. W. H. Towle, and Mrs. P. J. Anglesey.

Parent attendance prizes were won by grades 1 and 4 of St. Peter's (equal), room 5 of St. Mary's and Miss Neville's room at St. Anne's.

DOROTHY DIX

Homesick Wife Told to Fight Nerves and Make Friends

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband would have had to decline a promotion in business if I had refused to leave my boy home and come to this city where we now are, but we have been here for more than a year and we still have not met a soul. He is out of town except for the week ends and I am very lonely and cannot go out on account of baby, who is 2 years old. This is affecting my nerves and although I have fought with all my might to keep them from getting too bad, still I have got to the place where I just can't seem to put in the time when my husband is away. Sometimes I feel that I will have to ask to go back home, but being very much in love with him and knowing that it will hurt him if we have to do this and he has to give up this business, I am anxious to stay here if it is possible. The doctor tells me that I will not get any better as long as I am unable to get out and have some excitement. What do you think I should do?

MARIUM

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Stay on and fight it out. Don't let your nerves conquer you and make you turn quitter and ruin you husband's prospects in business. Brace up and snap out of the morbid state you have got into. You can do it if you will.

Make Up Mind

First, just make up your mind that you are going to stay in the city where it is to your husband's interest to stay, and that you are NOT going back home, no matter how much you want to or how much you pine for your old friends and acquaintances. Keep this thought continually in your mind, and you will be surprised to find how much it will brace you up and make you feel settled.

Then go to work to get acquainted with people. If you have lived a whole year in a city in your own country and haven't met a soul, it is your own fault. You must bring yourself to other people's attention.

The best way to do this for a woman is to take an active part in church and club and charitable work. Join some church. All of them have social organization to take care of just such cases as yours. Join some women's club where you will be thrown in contact with other women. Join some hospital guild or some social service society. They are all eager for new members and more workers. And don't begrudge spending money for a baby-sitter; you need to get out of the house.

Don't give in to your homesickness. Fight it out.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My Husband will not co-operate with me in the training of our children. Time and again when I tried to correct them he has taken the children's part in their presence and censured me. I have talked to him about this and tried to make him see that I can have no authority over the youngsters unless he backs me up, but it does no good What shall I do?

MRS. X. Y. Z.

ANSWER: "A house divided against itself shall fall," says the Bible, and this great truth was never more forcibly illustrated than it is in the case of the families where the mother and father have pulled against each other and each nullified the other's effort to bring up the children properly. For it does not take the smart youngsters long to find out that they can play mother against father and so escape all discipline and do as they please.

It is a strange thing that intelligent men and women are so blinded by parental love that they cannot see this and realize what they are doing when each destroys their children's respect for the other. For the time comes when the girls need a mother's wisdom to guide them, but they will not heed her if their father has taught them to think her a moron who belongs to a moss-grown generation. And the day comes when the boys need a father's authority over them, but he has no influences with them if their mother has taught them to defy him and has killed their respect for him.

Rearing children is a two-handed job and it takes the combined efforts of both mother and father working together, doing the most perfect teamwork, to turn out the kind of youngsters who are a credit to their parents.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am a man of 60 Have a good, saving wife and have accumulated quite a bit of property with her help and economy. But here is the trouble: I have fallen in love with a beautiful young widow about 20 years old. I would be so happy with a nice little young bride Would you advise me to marry this girl? Or should I continue a dull existence with my old wife?

NOBODY'S FOOL

ANSWER: If you hadn't taken entire leave of your sense you would know that the only reason she is willing to marry you is for your money.

And if you desire to justify your right to sign yourself "Nobody's Fool," you will certainly stick to the old wife who has been your friend and helpmeet for so many years For of all the idiots in the world the greatest is the old man who marries a girl young enough to be his granddaughter Nothing ever comes of it but disillusion and disappointment and bitter regret, with the additional mortification of being brought to realize that he has let himself be outsmarted by a girl child, and made himself a laughing stock of all who know him.

"There is a wealth of natural setting and numerous places and things of historic interest," said Mrs. Barnard. "To those who have the ability to seek and find, a great deal of pleasure is obtainable at no cost at all: There will also be the thrill of discovering some delightful surprises.

6—In Memoriams

JOHNSON—In loving memory of a dear father, William Johnson, who passed away March 16, 1945.
Loving and kind in all his ways,
Upright and just to the end of his days,
Sincere and kind in heart and mind,
What a beautiful memory he left behind.
—Ever remembered by Jim, Audrey, Bill and daughter-in-law Dorothy.

LAVERY—In loving memory of Michael Joseph Lavery who passed away March 16, 1943.
Gone dear father, gone forever.
How we miss your smiling face
But you left us to remember,
None on earth can take your place
A happy home we once enjoyed,
How sweet the memory still,
But death has left a loveliness
The world can never fill.
—Always remembered by daughter, Lillian and son-in-law, Leo McGuire.

LAVERY— In loving memory of Michael Lavery who passed away 7 years ago to-day.
Peaceful be thy rest, dear father,
It is sweet to breath thy name,
In life we loved you dearly,
In death we do the same.
—Ever remembered by daughter, and son-in-law, Alice and Earl Brown, and grandson Raymond.

LAVERY— In loving memory of Michael Lavery who passed away 7 years ago to-day.
God called him home, "It was His will,
But in our hearts we love him still.
His memory is as dear to-day,
As in the hour he passed away.
We often sit and think of him
When we are all alone
For memory is the only thing
That grief can call its own.
—Ever remembered by daughters, Pearl and Edith.

Car Hits Pedestrian Lights Blind Driver

Struck down and knocked unconscious by a car on Highway 28 south of Lakefield, a Buckhorn youth, Roy Fulton, 20, Wednesday night was taken to Civic Hospital with only minor injuries. He was treated for a swollen right eye and an injured right ear and hand.

Fulton was walking along the highway about half a mile south of Lakefield when he was struck by a car driven by Gordon Fitzgerald of Lakefield. Fitzgerald was driving towards Peterborough when he became temporarily blinded by the headlights of two approaching cars, he told police.

It was during this period, when his vision was obscured, that Fulton was struck.

The young man was given medical treatment by Dr. Lloyd Bailey of Lakefield and taken to Civic Hospital where he was considered well enough to be discharged at noon today.

Provincial Constable Albert Poulter and C. W. Tutton investigated.

Maj. G. Armstrong

Respected By Associates

He was greatly respected by his associates in the council who regretted his decision of retirement. By that time he was regarded as eventually a strong mayoralty candidate. Even in sports and their place in the life of Peterborough his interest was shown by sponsoring last season the lacrosse team which played through the schedule as the Armstrong Lumberjacks. His military and business experience had developed in him natural gifts which had been tested in action, affirming to his friends a career of great usefulness as a citizen. Their almost wordless sense of deep personal loss is accentuated by their sympathy for his young wife and family.

The ability and training which the young alderman had received in both his peace and wartime responsibilities were soon reflected in his participation in the work of the council.

He had that quality of the judicial mind that sought both sides of questions, and especially below the obvious surface of such matters. He had the gift of clearly and cogently "sizing up a situation," prudence and good judgment. He retired from the municipal administration at the end of his term because his own affairs, he said, prevented him from giving to the city's business the time its volume and importance required.

Came To Peterborough In 1933

Gordon Armstrong was first attracted to the lumber business in Millbrook at the close of his school days. He worked for a time with the Millbrook Coal and Lumber Company, and then came to Peterborough about 1933 with the Scott Lumber Company, the head of which was Hon. Harold R. Scott. Their mill and yard was on Park St. south.

Mr. Armstrong also became interested in military affairs here, joined the Peterborough Rangers, studied and took courses and obtained his commission with the old unit. In 1936 the Rangers and Prince of Wales Dragoons were amalgamated into the Prince of Wales Rangers, and Captain Armstrong assisted in the reorganization. At that time he was adjutant.

When Peterborough was allotted a company of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders, Captain Armstrong was one of the Rangers officers who immediately enlisted in June, 1940.

He was with the unit during its recruiting and training period in Peterborough and Kingston. In fact, he was acting officer in command of headquarters company when its local muster was completed, and the company set out for Kingston on the first leg of the long road to the Rhine.

Brigade Officer

Subsequently he was appointed intelligence officer of the 9th Canadian Highland Brigade, and gradually lost the close contact of an officer of the SD&G's. In July, 1941, he went overseas with the Brigade Headquarters, and in the following year he was sent back to Canada to take a staff course at Royal Military College, Kingston. That advance established his connection and responsibility as a brigade officer.

He returned overseas and was appointed brigade major of the 10th brigade, Fourth Division. That meant he was chief staff officer of the brigadier.

Major Armstrong was with the 4th Armored Division in the Normandy landing and fought through the campaign of Northwestern Europe, was awarded the Distinguished Service Order and was also mentioned in despatches.

Opened Lumber Business

Returning to civilian life after the defeat of Germany, Major Armstrong faced the common problem of the service man, re-in that field came his organization habilitation. His plans naturally turned to the business connection which the war had interrupted, and out of his knowledge of the lumber business and his ambitions of the Armstrong Lumber Company. He started from the bottom rung again, choosing a location in what had been a farm field on No. 28 Highway, immediately west of the Kawartha Golf and Country Club.

Circumstances of postwar building needs were favorable to his enterprise which he expanded, by opening a branch in Port Hope, and recently acquired a cement block business in Peterborough.

That is a brief outline of the results of his initiative in civilian life and of the place that he had established in a comparatively short time. He associated with himself capable assistants, and was in all probability preparing for another active year in the lumber and building supplies field when death suddenly terminated his promising career.

The sense of responsibility in private and public life which had been conspicuous in his character from his teenage years prompted him to accept nomination for the city council, and he was elected in December 1946 for the two-year term of 1947-48.

City Clerk Outram recalled today that with his knowledge of building and his association with the men who had served in the war, Alderman Armstrong was appointed chairman of a special housing committee. Pressure of accommodation for ex-service men and their families warranted substantial action, and this committee recommended to the council an agreement with Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation for the 226 houses of that project which are now completed and occupied.

"It was typical of Gordon Armstrong that he thought only of the public trust which he had undertaken, without any selfish consideration of his own private interest as the head of a lumber company," said Mr. Outram. "That great block of houses might be regarded as something of a monument to him. Only in good humor did he mention the fact that a lot of lumber business was passing through the order of the committee into comfortable houses for men who had earned them, but not a cent of that business could be obtained by his company."

"I think that Mr. Armstrong was proud of the fact that he was chairman of the housing committee when that project was authorized."

Centennial Day In City Churches

Plans for Peterborough's Centennial celebration are still in the process of being formed as seen at a meeting of the Centennial Committee Wednesday.

September 17 has been tentatively suggested as the day when the city's churches will each hold a special morning service. A joint non-denominational service in the evening featuring massed choirs has also been suggested.

The committee decided to buy about $600 worth of flags and pennants to decorate the main business blocks and other strategic corners such as George and Lansdowne Streets.

The day's program for the visit of Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent is being outlined and is likely to include a meeting with the city's school children, tours of about three industries, visits probably to both hospitals and dinners and a reception.

Ross L. Dobbin, public utilities head, brought a hundred year old copy of Peterborough's first by-law printed in booklet form. A limited number of copies of this original may be printed as souvenirs of the occasion. Probably Mr. Dobbin's copy is the only one in existence.

Bergman Wants Her Money, Child Returned

She wants her 12-year-old daughter, too, and "reasonable" support for the child.

The actress' lawyers filed suit Wednesday against Dr. Peter Lindstrom, whom she divorced in Mexico Feb. 9, demanding an accounting of personal and community property and custody of their child, Pia.

Miss Bergman, 34, demanded $154,000 (after taxes) which she said she earned in making the movie "Stromboli" for director Roberto Rossellini.

Last Feb. 2 she bore a son in Rome which Rossellini said was his. Their plans to be married have been delayed by legal technicalities in Sweden, Miss Bergman's birthplace.

The actress said Lindstrom, 43, Beverly Hills brain surgeon, has been holding the $154,000 as her American agent. But, she insisted, he has no right to it because it was earned after she left him more than a year ago.

Demands Interest

She also demanded her interest in two films still being exhibited, "Joan of Arc" and "Under Capricorn."

The actress asked for a division of community property, including their home here, three automobiles, jewelry, furs, life insurance and $29,000 in government bonds.

Miss Bergman now is in Italy. Her daughter, Pia, has been in Lindstrom's care since Miss Bergman left to work for Rossellini a year ago. Lindstrom has indicated he will ignore the Mexican divorce and take action in California courts.

In the suit, Miss Bergman described herself as "a fit and proper person to have the care, custody and control" of Pia. She said the Mexican decree made no disposition of property or custody of the child.

Offer Special Course

KINGSTON, March 16 (CP)—Teachers will have an opportunity to complete the degree of bachelor of physical health and health education in three successive summer sessions at Queen's University starting this year, it was announced. However, officials said the course will be open only if enough applications are received.

Not On Increase

MONTREAL, March 16 (CP)—A prominent Montreal gynaecologist and obstretrician said Wednesday night that cancer is not on the increase as many people believe. Dr. H. Maurice Weisberg, a member of the medical advisory board of the Cancer Research Society, told a meeting of the society here that any apparent increase in the number of cancer cases was due to modern diagnotic and detection techniques.

Take Honors At Festival

QUEBEC, March 16 (CP)—The drama section of the National Conservatory of Music today was hoping to be chosen a candidate for competition in the Dominion Drama Festival after winning top honors in the Eastern Quebec Regional Drama Festival Wednesday night.

The group won with a "remarkably well staged" production of Paul Vanderberghe's comedy of manners "Quand Le Chat N'Est Pas La" (When the Cat is Out).

The prizes for best actor, best actress and best director were also awarded to the group.

Miss Anette Leclerc was named as the best actress, Roger Lebel as the best actor and Jean Marcel as the best director.

The only other entry in the first drama festival here in 12 years was Les Canadiens De Chez Nous who staged "A La Melodie Inacevee" (The Unfinished Melody) written by the group's director George Delisle.

Find Highway Good

MONTREAL, March 16 (CP)—The military importance of the Alaska Highway was a feature of the recent exercise Sweetbriar, Maj.-Gen. R. O. G. Morton, general officer commanding Quebec Command, said in an address Wednesday. He said that the highway was in good condition and that relative high-speed movement was possible on it. However, powerful bulldozers for clearing parking and dispersal areas along the highway were essential, he added.

Condition Critical

BELLEVILLE, March 16—(CP)—Condition of 21-year-old Helen Yateman, found unconscious from carbon monoxide in a parked automobile near Trenton Tuesday, is critical, hospital officials said Wednesday night. A companion, Raymond Rose, 21, was dead when construction workers found the car.

Seek Navy Tender

PEARL HARBOR, March 16.—(AP)—Search centred today 400 miles north of Kwajalein Island for a missing United States Navy tender bearing 33 men en route to Eniwetok Island. She was last sighted 700 miles from Eniwetok in no apparent trouble. A spokesman said it was possible the tender might have struck a floating mine and been sunk. The general feeling here was that her Diesel motor had gone dead, silencing her radio.

Canadian Forces Good

MONTREAL, March 16 (CP)—Canadian forces, supplies, and equipment used in Operation Sweetbriar were in no way inferior to those employed by United States forces, Defence Minister Claxton said here Wednesday in addressing the McGill University Liberal Club.

2 Stores Burned

CHENEVILLE, Que., March 16—Fire of unknown origin Wednesday night destroyed the Polon Brothers and Charlesbourg Brothers stores in the centre of this Laurentian village. Cheneville is some 60 miles northeast of Ottawa.

Ship's Mascot Can't Cope With Candy Diet

NEW YORK March 16— The gobs aboard the USS William C Lawe, a destroyer escort on President Truman's trip to Key West Fla. are killing their mascot with kindness. An order was issued today in an effort to save her life.

Half Hitch is her name. She must be the homeliest dog in the United States Navy. She is only too obviously bow-legged from pacing the pitching decks of this warship from the time she was three weeeks old.

She is not a spaniel. She isn't a poodle,either. You wouldn't call her a fox terrier nor a wire-haired terrier. Now that she is threatened with death, her lineage is unimportant. The kindest way to identify her is to say she is just a dog.

In today's "Plan of the Day" for this warship appeared this order:

"All hands are enjoined not to feed the ship's dog as the dog is apparently suffering from worms Candy is the worst thing to feed a dog and if it continues the dog will not live longer than six (6) months. J. A. Kenniff, LCDR US

Half Hitch's story begins with her rescue from the fleshpots of Tijuana, Mexico, last August when the Lawe was at San Diego. Ensign Lucien Capone, Jr., of Bristol R. I., the first lieutenant of the ship, bought her for $3 and brought her to a ship that is specializing in the tactics and technique of killing schnorkel submarines.

Crew Took Charge

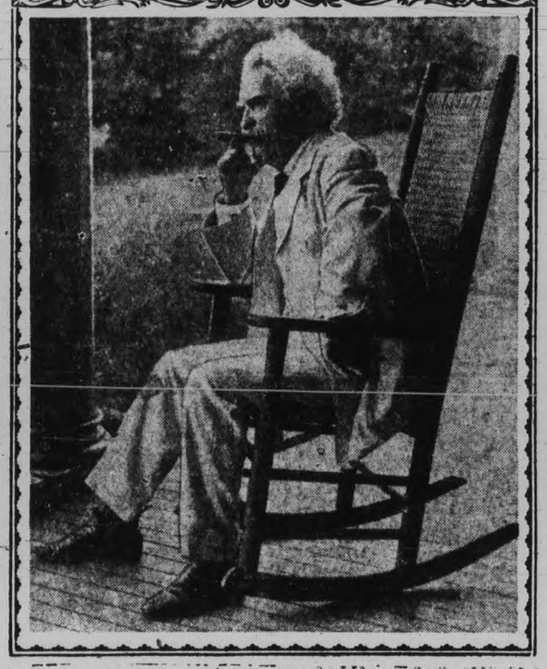
In no time at all the torpedo gang took charge of the pup, named her and built her sort of a rambler to live in aft of the second smokestack.

Every sailor tried to become her pal. The obvious thing was to give her the candy bars they had bought in the ship's store. She began eating candy bars between meals, and at meal times she would not touch meat. But she would eat more candy bars. She does get plenty of food and vegetables, however.

"She eats celery like mad, and also oranges and bananas and vegetables," said Ensign Capone.

Good Sea Legs

It did not take too long for Half Hitch to get her sea legs, though they grew crooked in the process. When she walks along the deck she zig-zags like a ship using evasion tactics in a submarine zone. She hasn't been ashore except for walks on docks since she left Mexico. She is a sight on dry land—she walks sidewise.



A cat looked at her on her last dock visit. Half Hitch never had seen such a creature before, and made a rapid retirement to the ship, taking up a position behind the torpedo tubes.

Half Hitch has the tired look of a sailor who keeps long watches—which is what she does. She has so many friends that she tries to keep all the watches.

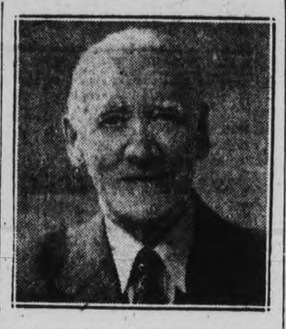
Panic Delayed Alarm

MONTREAL, March 16 (CP)—Panic and confusion delayed the sounding of the alarm in the disastrous March 2 Chinatown fire which claimed eight lives, witnesses Wednesday told an inquiry board headed by Fire Commissioner Jean St. Germain. The hearing was adjourned indefinitely without the cause of the blaze being determined.

HALF CENTURY HIGHLIGHTS

UNCLE REMUS ORACLE was Mark Twain, seen in favorite picture of himself, taken on the porch of his summer cottage at Dublin, N. H., in 1906. When the Twentieth Century was born, Mark Twain was 65 years old, and he occupied a pedestal seldom attained by an author during his lifetime. Tom Sawyer and Huckleberry Finn, his two best known characters, were a solid part of American tradition, and they remain so today. The elder Twain was not just as humorist, but a philosopher willing to expound on any topic under the sun. Though he denied he ever had any morals, he always crusaded vigorously for right against wrong. He lived only 10 years into our century, but his mark on our literature and our lives remains fresh and vivid.

Women's League Plans To Hold Bingo



HASTINGS, March 16 (ENS)—Hastings Catholic Women's League met this month at the home of Mrs. J. Brenklow. The president, Mr. J. Powers, presided.

It was decided to hold a bingo in the Town Hall March 17th.

The following nominating committee for the April election was formed: Mrs. J. Powers, Mrs. M. A. O'Shea and Mrs. M. Herr.

'Gave More Relief Than Anything I Ever Used'

This Man Tells How Syntona Helped Liver and Kidney Disorders. Also Backache, Dizzy Spells and Indigestion. Praises It Highly.

"I have used many different things in my day, but I am frank to say that Syntona gave me more relief in a short time than anything I ever used before," said Mr. H. B. Burroughs, of 62 Park Street South, Hamilton, Ont., in a recent interview.

"I suffered for years from backache, indigestion and sour acid risings after my meals. My liver was sluggish, causing attacks of dizzy spells and constipation and my kidneys disturbed my sleep often at night. I would get rheumatic pains in my limbs, joints and muscles, my sleep was poor and I would awaken every morning feeling tired and have no energy.

"Syntona seemed to help me from the first few doses, so I kept on taking it. Now it has given the best relief ever had from the gas, sourness and indigestion. My bowels soon began to function properly, the dizziness stopped and now the backache and rheumatic pains have disappeared. I also sleep more soundly at night and never felt better in my life than I have in the past few weeks."

Syntona acts on the liver in a smooth, gentle manner, working off excess bile day by day. Its action is not harsh. It tones up the digestive organs, stimulates kidney action and helps restore tired, excited nerves.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Peterborough at Elliott's Drug Store.—(Advt.)

Canadian Composers Found In Bad Way

VANCOUVER, March 16 (CP)—A panel of experts Wednesday agreed Canada's contemporary composers are the "most unpublished, unheard, unperformed and unpaid in the world," but saw no immediate cure for their ills.

The five-member panel aired their views as the fifth concert of the "The First Symposium of Canadian Music," which concluded here Wednesday.

The four-day symposium featured works of 31 Canadian composers chosen from submissions by 125.

BIG INDUSTRY In 1947 some 44 Ontario pulp and paper mills employed more than 14,000 workers and paid more than $32,000,000 in salaries and wages.

SPORTSMANSHIP IN "CANADA UNLIMITED"

It was February, 1946. For the first time since the war's beginning, snowshoe clubs of Canada and the U.S. were meeting. Three thousand strong, they gathered at Lewiston, Maine, for the greatest congress in their history.

The stellar event was the traditional 10-mile marathon. In bright toques and blanket coats, Canadians and Americans swept across the course. When times were tallied, Canadians had taken the first three places in the marathon—and had shattered world records in the mile and two-mile events!

Traditionally, Canadians are skillful with snowshoes. Sportsmanship and team spirit keep us first in the field. Together, sportsmanship and team spirit help you, too. They keep your opportunities for work and play in Canada... unlimited.

Gordon Asks CNR Funds Be Revamped

Hope To Break Even Each Year, Commission Told

OTTAWA, March 17—(CP)—Proposals for revamping the Canadian National Railways' capital structure, aimed at putting the company in a position to break even each year, were placed by the C.N.R. today before the Royal Commission on Transportation.

The government-owned company also recommended that it be allowed to use any annual surpluses, which now go to the Federal treasury, to set up a fund that would be used, among other things, to hold down freight rates.

Donald Gordon, new head of the C.N.R., told the Commission its proposals should enable the company, on the average, to meet its fixed charges. The national line, except for the war years, has had a succession of deficits. The last one reported was of $33,000,000 in 1948.

Appearing before the commission as the lead-off man in presentation of the company's case, Mr. Gordon submitted these main recommendations:

1—The $760,000,000 of interest-bearing obligations held by the government should be exchanged for equity capital, bearing no interest. This would remove fixed charges that amounted to $21,600,000 in 1948.

Acknowledge Indebtedness

2—The government should acknowledge an "indebtedness" to the CNR of $300,000,000, to bear 3 per cent interest until discharged. This would be set up as a capital fund to be drawn on from time to time to retire obligations held by the public or to make capital additions to property.

3—Future "development" lines—constructed to open up undeveloped areas—should be financed to the extent of not more than 60 per cent by interest-bearing securities, which would relieve the CNR of a considerable amount of annual interest payments.

40 Families Starving, Stage Riot

RCMP Rushing Food To Maritime Parish; Living On Potatoes

ST. SAUVEUR, N.B., March 17th — (CP) — The R.C.M.P. today rushed three cases of milk and a few loaves of bread —all they could find in a hurry—to this backwoods parish where some 40 families say they have been living on potatoes and water for several weeks. The families were cut off when roads into the area were blocked by snow.

Constable J. E. Roy arrived here with meagre food supplies. He told The Canadian Press some of the people claimed they had nothing to eat but potatoes and water for several weeks and the children had not "had a drop of milk" for two or three weeks.

Meanwhile, the Red Cross began gathering food supplies for the settlement, some 20 miles east of Bathurst and seven miles south of the shore of Bay Chaleur.

First word of the settlers' plight reached the outside world after a minor hunger riot Wednesday.

The Rev. Henri Levesque, parish priest of St. Sauveur, said the situation was serious.

In Fredericton, however, Industries Minister J. A. Doucet, member of the New Brunswick legislature for Pacquetville in which the parish is located, said the situation is "not very serious."

Roads Blocked

He said stores had run short of food when the roads were blocked. The roads had now been cleared and the "government is studying the situation."

Cut Hospital Amusement Tax By 5%, Passed On To Public Report Surplus $1,004,000

TORONTO, March 17—(CP)—Ontario turned to the personal income tax field today for new revenue to help ease the mounting burden of its public debt—at no extra cost to its taxpayers. In his budget address to the Ontario Legislature, Premier Frost announced plans to take up the Federal government on a two-year-old offer to let the province levy a personal income tax of five per cent. of the Federal tax. Under the Federal government offer the taxpayer could deduct his Provincial tax from his Federal payment. Mr. Frost said he hopes to have the Federal government collect the whole tax and pay Ontario its five per cent—estimated at $13,000,000 to $16,000,000 a year and earmarked for sinking funds for debt retirement.

Ontario Budget Highlights

TORONTO, March 17—(CP)—Highlights of Premier Frost's budget speech today in the Ontario Legislature:

Ontario plans to accept a two-year-old Federal government offer to let the Province levy personal income tax of five per cent of the Federal tax and will seek an arrangement to have the Dominion pay the money to the Province.

Amusement tax for hospitals cut from 20 per cent to 15 per cent with complete exemption for children's admissions of 15 cents and under, conditional on cut being passed on to public.

Tax on pari-mutuel race track betting increased to 12½ per cent from 10 per cent.

Ontario to establish racing commission and to seek replacement of bookmaking system of handling bets at harness race meetings with pari-mutuel machines.

Budget surplus of $1,004,000 after payment of $20,626,000 of current revenue into sinking funds for debt retirement.

Estimated surplus for next fiscal year of $166,000.

Gross debt of $698,124,174 up $69,461,314 from last year; net debt $37,068,914 higher at $520,744,069.

Educational and other grants to municipalities totalled $70,000,000 in the fiscal year ending March 31. Education grants next year to be $52,520,000, increase of $5,136,000.

Special grants to public hospitals of 25 per cent of their 1949 maintenance grants to be paid before April 30 in addition to 1950 grants. Cost to be $3,000,000.

Grants to six universities to total $4,342,000—Increase of $810,000.

Appropriation of $46,000,000 for highway construction, not including cost of Trans-Canada Highway.

Rural hydro lines to be extended to serve 30,000 additional customers.

Two Changes

Delivering his eighth budget address as Provincial Treasurer, Mr. Frost announced two other tax changes:

1. Reduction in the 20 per cent amusement tax for hospital purposes to 15 per cent with complete exemption for children where the admission is 15 cents or less.

2. An increase to 12½ per cent from 10 per cent in the tax on race track pari-mutuel betting. To this he linked establishment of a racing commission to control race tracks and an effort to have the federal government amend the criminal code to make it mandatory to use pari-mutuel machines to handle betting on harness racing, where the bookmaking type of betting now applies.

Mr. Frost, in his 13,000 word report, continued the unbroken cycle of surpluses on current account since he first became treasurer in 1943. For the fiscal year ending March 31, he estimated a margin of $1,004,000 in revenue over expenditures, after providing for a payment of $20,626,000 into capital account sinking funds.

The surplus compares with one of $1,132,000 last year and a forecast for the present fiscal year of $157,546. He estimated a margin of $166,000 in the next fiscal year ending March 31, 1951.

Outrun Estimates

Revenue and expenditure far outrun his estimates of a year ago. Gross ordinary revenue amounted to $232,593,000 and expenditure to $231,589,000—both new highs for the province. Next year he anticipates revenue of $238,260,780 and costs of $238,094,750.

The treasurer's department provided most of the revenue—$131,021,000—headed by $65,000,000 from corporation taxes and $37,500,000 from liquor, $5,500,000 over the estimate. Next came the highways department's $77,430,000 with $57,600,000 from gasoline tax its biggest item.

The provincial debt rose in tune with other spending. Mr. Frost estimated gross debt at March 31 would amount to $698,124,174, an increase of $69,461,314 from a year ago. Net debt was up $37,068,914 to $520,744,069. Funded debt at $585,350,849 was higher by $50,531,214. Contingent liabilities—debt guaranteed by the province—stood at $259,226,684, an increase of $141,932,692.

Against an increase of some $25,000,000 in the net debt since March 31, 1943, Mr. Frost set $168,150,256 in additions to the Family Of Six Trapped In Burning House

PORT HURON, Mich., Mar. 17—(AP)—A fierce fire that destroyed their concrete-block home in a matter of minutes early today claimed the lives of a family of six here.

The fire that swept the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Chase is believed to have started in the living-room of the home where Mr. and Mrs. Chase had been playing cards with Chase's brother Frank and his wife until 4 a.m.

Undersheriff A. J. Foster identified the dead as Chase, 42; his wife, Phyllis, 32, an expectant mother; and their four children—Judith, 6, Nancy, 4, Ralph, 7, and Rebecca, 2.

The fire was noticed at 6 a.m. by a passer-by who said he saw a "sheet of flame" roar out from the home on Willow Lane in Port Huron Township. He tried to get in, but was driven back by the intense heat.

Foster said the body of the father was found in the kitchen and the other members of the family in their bedrooms.

Celebrated Cat-In-Kiln Could Have Lived—Tests

MINERVA, O., March 17—(CP)—Minerva's celebrated cat-in-the-kiln test was completed today. The experimenters said they found: That Miracle, the Calico cat, really was fire-resistant; that she could have lived for 36 hours in a brick kiln, where the temperature reached 900 degrees.

"Now," exclaimed Joe Bucola, Superintendent of the brick plant, "maybe they'll believe we're not a bunch of liars."

Miracle, a stray feline, staggered out of one of Bucola's kilns March 5. Her fur was singed; 1½ inches of her tail was burned off, and her paws were badly burned. But she was alive.

The cat tale was scorned by some experts. So a test was undertaken to prove the story.

Because it would have been sinful to put the cat back into the kiln, a synthetic cat was substituted. It was made up of a sirloin steak wrapped in a second-hand sealskin hat.

In Good Condition

This prefabricated cat was placed in the kiln Wednesday. Again the temperature was raised to 900 degrees. This morning, 36 hours later, the kiln was reopened.

One end of the package—steak and fur—was burned to a crisp, but most of the package was in good condition. The fur was soft and the steak was tender and juicy.

The thermometer wrapped in the synthetic cat still registered 320 degrees. And this was hours after the kiln's heat had been turned down.

Mrs. Twila Carman, who conducted the test, said:

"I think that shows that the cat could have lived."

6 Prisoners Die In Jail Blaze

SPRAY, N. C., March 17 (AP) Six prisoners—five men and a woman—perished in the Spray jail today after a mattress caught fire. Three were white and three Negroes.

The fire was found by desk Sgt. P. L. McBride when he went to the second floor of the city hall building to lock up another prisoner at 2:40 a.m.

All of the six who died had been charged with public drunkenness.

Police said there was a possibility that one of the six — all faced trial this morning—had deliberately set the fire. The jail was only slightly damaged.

The victims were Lucille Wimbush, 30; Junior Yarborough, 22; and Marion Morrison, 25; all white and Harvey Cole, 34; Joe W. Willis, 21 and Bonie Martin, 34, Negroes.

They apparently were asleep when the fire started, and were suffocated.

Edmonton Mercurys Win First Of Finals

LONDON, March 17—(CP)—Canada's Edmonton Mercurys today won their first game in the final round of the world amateur hockey tournament by easily defeating Switzerland 11-1.

The Mercurys, which downed Switzerland 13-2 in entering the round-robin playoffs undefeated, appeared to lack the fire of recent games. For the first 30 minutes of play the Swiss held the score to reasonable proportions.

But the losers were tired and superior Canadian stamina told in the double-figure score.

The game opened with a 15-minute delay. After a scramble in front of the Swiss net goalie Hans Banninger was floored with a severe cut across the cheek bone and he was carried off.

Bd. of Education Trustee Barred By US Immigration

TORONTO, March 17—(CP)—Sam Walsh, Communist Board of Education trustee, today was prevented from boarding an airplane bound for St. Louis, Mo., by United States immigration officials. Walsh, on his way to attend a five-day convention of the Music Educators National Conference, was told by immigration officials that they had received "secret" information to the effect that he was a member of a subversive organization.

The trustee said he intends to protest to the U.S. State Department and Prime Minister St. Laurent. He said he will ask the Cabinet to intervene and ask an explanation of what right the U.S. has to exclude a duly-selected Toronto Board of Education delegate to the conference.

Mr. Walsh said he refused to answer questions posed by US immigration officers on the ground he was not beholden in any way to the State Department at Washington.

One of these questions, Walsh said, was: "What organization do you belong to, and what are your political activities?"

CANTON, Ill., March 17 (AP) —The ousted president of a United Mine Workers local union said today John L. Lewis secretly ordered his miners not to heed the February 11 Federal Court injunction which directed them to return to work.

Frost Outlines Tax Proposal

TORONTO, March 17—(CP)—Here's how the income tax proposal in Premier Frost's Ontario budget speech today will work out:

A man with $1,000 taxable income pays $150 in personal income tax to the Federal Government. Ontario is taking up the Dominion's offer of five per cent of that man's tax—$7.50. It wants the Federal Government to collect the tax and pay it to Ontario in a lump sum. Thus, the Dominion would collect $150 from the taxpayer, keep $142.50 and pay $7.50 to the province.

The Dominion's tax offer was on the basis that the taxpayer make two payments—$7.50 to the province and $142.50 to the Dominion.

Fire Police Chief

WHITBY, March 17 (CP) — Pickering township council is advertising for a successor to police chief John Irvine, dismissed this week by council after eight years in the office. Councillor C. A. Balsdon said today that the dismissal resulted from what he called the chief's "lack of co-operation" and from ratepayers' complaints about inefficient policing.

Report Worst Famine Sweeping Over China

HONG KONG, March 17 — (Reuters)—The worst famine in China's modern history, with thousands already dead and millions expected to perish before the next harvest, is developing in China, semi-official Communist sources said today.

Millions of people in central and northeastern China were existing on leaves, roots, grass and clay, these sources told a reporter.

Information received by official foreign sources here confirmed these reports. The Communist government has not yet officially admitted that disaster is threatening.

In Ahnwei, worst-hit province, 9,000,000 of the 22,000,000 population are reported starving.

Labor Majority Cut

LONDON, March 17 (CP) — Adam S. McKinlay, 64, a Labor party member of the House of Commons, died of a heart attack today at his home in Dumbartonshire, Scotland. His death cut to five the over-all majority of the Attlee government in the house elected Feb. 23. It will force the first by-election of the new session of parliament.

Quebec To Have State Lottery

QUEBEC, March 17 —(CP)— Premier Duplessis today told the legislature assembly a government bill to establish a state lottery will be introduced in a few days.

Notice of the bill appeared on the order paper this morning under the title "an act to assist education and health."

The premier said the bill would authorize creation of a committee with power to determine the conditions under which the lottery would be operated. The premier did not say what form the lottery would take.

The premier first announced his intention last fall of introducing legislation to provide for a state lottery in Quebec.

The premier said the lottery would be operated "in conformity with the laws of the province." He did not elaborate on this point.

It was believed in informed circles, however, that the authority to create a lottery would be dependent on an amendment to the criminal code of Canada which bans lotteries.

French Police Stumble On Internatioal Intrigue

PARIS, March 17—(AP)—French Security Police today grappled with three seperate mysteries of possible international intrigue, including the death of a man found carrying British Intelligence Service enveloges.

The body of a man found on the railroad tracks near Metz in Eastern France Thursday was identified as Emile Stemmler, born in Neusatz, Germany, a naturalized British citizen since March 23, 1939.

Envelopes of the British Intelligence Service were found in the luggage by his body, police said. Death was due to a skull fracture.

At the Franco-Belgian border Thursday, police arrested four Czechoslovakian and Yugoslav citizens.

Police said the four carried varied and contradictory identity papers, and that "papers in a foreign language" were seized. The four men were taken to Little for questioning.

Police said that Stemmler was 81 years old, and that because of this they lean to the theory he might have been a secret agent on active service. He had a ticket to Strasbourg and a passport valid for all European countries. They speculated he fell or jumped from the Metz-Strasbourg train.

At Mulhouse, also in Eastern France, police were trying to learn the real identity of a young German girl arrested recently while trying to enter Switzerland secretly. She had given the name of Ingrid Von Buelov, and said her father was a Gen. Von Buelov, jailed in Holland. Dutch police have advised the French that this is not true. The girl had no papers and no luggage when picked up.

Western Allies To Shelve Proposal To End Nazi War

WASHINGTON, March 17 — (AP)—The Western Allies have decided to shelve for the time being a proposal to end the formal state of war with Germany.

Diplomatic officials said today that Britain, the United States and France have agreed that termination action would threaten a tangle of legal complications which the three occupation powers are unprepared to tackle now.

Accordingly, a meeting of legal experts at London has been called off. Further active consideration of the idea has been postponed until a forthcoming spring meeting of the big three Western foreign ministers.

State and justice department officials here decided that a declaration formally ending the war would mean that the United States Congress would have to concur and also revise or re-enact a mass of domestic legislation.

More than 200 American statutes are still based on the continued existence of a state of war, and will be automatically repealed when Congress votes that the conflict is legally at an end.

Officials here say British and French complications are somewhat less difficult, but there was general agreement that further study is needed.

Politically, officials believe the Western Germans would be pleased, and the effect of a possible separate peace treaty between Russia and Eastern Germany would be offset in part if the Western Allies declared Germans to be no longer enemies.

However, the American position is reported to be that few practical advantages are promised by early action.

University Graduates Called Namby-Pamby

TORONTO, March 17—(CP)—A charge that today's university graduates are "namby-pamby" was made Thursday night by E. J. F. Marnell, industrialist from Tilbury.

Mr. Marnell, director of manufacturing for Chatco Steel Products, told a meeting of the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations that Canadian universities are turning out security-conscious, passive young men instead of aggressive and energetic graduates of the past.

"There is something wrong with the spirit of educational personnel today," he said. "They are turning out too many namby-pamby graduates."

The officers to be tried are Capt. William D. Brown, the skipper; Cmdr. John R. Millett, operations officer, and Lt.-Cmdr. Frank G. Morris, navigator.

The formal charges will not be made public prior to the convening of the courts

Attlee Gov't Refuses Secret Meet

Churchill Requests Special Session On Defence Matters

LONDON, March 17—(CP)—Prime Minister Attlee, victorious in the last week in three motions of non-confidence against his new Labor government, Thursday night shrugged off a motion by Winston Churchill for a secret parliamentary session on Britain's defences.

The suggestion came during debate on defence estimates, which were put forward in a White Paper by Defence Minister Emanuel Shinwell, outlining Britain's £780,000,000, ($2,428,000,000) military budget for the year beginning April 1.

There was no question of a vote of confidence on this government presentation, however, despite an amendment moved by a pacifist Labor member, Emrys Hughes, which expressed regret at the increased spending on armed forces at a time when "the discovery of the atom bomb and hydrogen bomb has revolutionized modern warfare."

At the end of the debate, the White Paper was accepted by the House without a call for a vote.

Asks Double Session

Churchill called for a secret session of both the Commons and the House of Lords. He claimed the government had withheld from parliament defence secrets "certainly and obviously" known to Russia.

But Attlee, in a remark which pointedly implied that the Conservative leader was "electioneering," replied:

"I don't think a secret session would be particularly valuable, except we might avoid these electioneering speeches."

Churchill's speech in the defence debate was one of his usually-expected parliamentary ora-

Ottawa Shatters Navy Tradition

OTTAWA, March 17 (CP) — Despite criticisms and with $2,000,000 at stake, the government gave notice today it is going ahead with the shattering of one of the oldest traditions of the sea.

Defence Minister Claxton gave notice on the Commons order paper he is ready to present a bill "to provide for the payment and distribution of prize money" arising out of the Second World War into service benevolent funds instead of to individual members of the services.

Officials said this means roughly $2,000,000 will be placed in the benevolent funds of the Royal Canadian Navy and the RCAF for the use of distressed or needy veterans or services.

The prize money comes from sale of enemy ships captured during the war and, if tradition were followed, would go to the individual men who fought that enemy on the seas.

The government, however, has decided that division of $2,000,000 among thousands of Canadian veterans would make the individual awards so small as to be almost useless.

'Twas A Sad Day

KITCHENER, March 17—(CP)—The white clay pipe, as Irish as the shamrock, is in the hands of the Scots. The Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans' Association found that out Thursday when it received a shipment of 150 pipes and Irish tobacco — from Glasgow, Scotland. Officials said they ordered the pipes to celebrate St. Patrick's Day today and the only firm which carried the line was in Scotland.

U.K. Preparing To Curb Travel For Reds

LONDON, March 17 (AP). — The Foreign Office said Thursday that it might retaliate soon against Russia and Soviet satellites which had put British diplomats under virtual quarantine.

Ernest Davies, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, made the disclosure in the House of Commons. He cited the Soviet Union, Bulgaria and Romania as the main offenders. In all three countries, Davies said, movement of members of the British Embassies was strictly restricted.

"His Majesty's Government take a serious view of the restrictions in regard to travel and other matters to which its representatives are subject in the countries referred to.

Poor Behavior

"Such practices are totally inconsistent with the standards of international behavior which have been generally accepted in the past and are still observed in countries whose regimes are not based on secrecy.

"His Majesty's Government have hitherto refrained from taking any retaliatory action of a similar nature. But whether this one-sided state of affairs can be allowed to continue indefinitely is under consideration."

Davies made his statement in a written reply to a question by Conservative member Tufton Beamish.

The Under-Secretary said members of the British Embassy in Moscow had been forbidden since September, 1948, from travel outside a 30-mile radius of the city without first giving Soviet officials full details of their proposed trips. Other foreign representatives were treated the same way.

2 Non-Confidence Motions Defeated By Liberal Gov't

OTTAWA, March 17—(CP)—Two Opposition non-confidence motions in the government were rejected in the Commons Thursday night. Members then ended a month-long debate by adopting an address in reply to the Speech from the Throne.

Division bells rang three times and each time the government, with its overwhelming majority, won hands down. On some of the votes it was supported by opposition groups.

Standing of the Commons:

Liberals 187; Progressive Conservatives 40; C.C.F. 13; Social Credit 10; Independent five; Independent Liberal three; vacant four; Total 262.

In the first division, members voted 177 to 21 against a Social Credit motion of non-confidence in the government. The motion criticized the government for "failure" to establish a balanced economy wherein Canadians would have the purchasing power they need to buy all Canadian production, if they so desired.

The motion drew support from P. E. Gagnon (Ind., Chicoutimi); Dr. R. Poulin (Ind., Beauce) and all CCF members except Ross Thatcher (CCF, Moose Jaw), who voted with th Liberals and Progressive Conservatives.

Conservative Motion

The second division was called on a Progressive Conservative motion of non-confidence, defeated by a vote of 166 to 30.

The motion blamed the government for a decline in export markets, lack of an over-all social-security program and so-called failure to take adequate measures against subversive elements.

It was supported only by Progressive Conservatives.

The final division was on the motion calling for adoption of the address in reply to the speech

TWO NON-CONFIDENCE

Judge Loses Tax Appeal

OTTAWA, March 17 (CPY)— The Income Tax Appeal Board Thursday ruled that a judge who receives a special honorarium for his services as Royal commissioner for a provincial inquiry cannot exempt that sum for income tax purposes.

The judge in the case, named only as "Mr. G.," had his appeal dismissed with costs and was criticized sharply for part of his presentation, by W. S. Fisher, one of the members of the three-man board.

The judge sought exemption from income tax of $15,000, which he received from the province "solely as an honorarium as an appreciation of the great volume of work and responsibility you have assumed in addition to your judicial duties."

He claimed that because it was an honorarium, the money was not taxable.

No Consideration

He was described as a member of the bench of one of the courts in one of the provinces of Canada appointed prior to 1946, to investigate "a certain matter in the province." He made his report toward the end of 1945.

"The appellant is a judge, and is quite familiar with the necessity for a litigant, whether he be called plaintiff or appellant, to prove his case," said Mr. Fisher in his judgment.

"Any appellant appealing to this board—at least so far as I am concerned—appears solely as a taxpayer appealing against an assessment, and it makes no difference what his position in civil life may be, whether he be the most learned or the most illiterate, the richest or the poorest, or any of the many other extremes which we find existing among taxpayers, each and every appellant is entitled to the same consideration when he appears before this board.

Prices Very Sluggish On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, March 17 (CP).— Prices moved sluggishly as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Profit-taking sales held the market in check following two days of steady advance.

Volume for the first three hours was 738,000 shares.

A handful of small fractional gains were scattered among leading industrial issues.

Activity slowed considerably in golds. Seniors held firm while juniors tended lower. A few smaller issues were active and mined.

Base metals dipped steadily. Waite Amulet lost 30 cents at $8.20 following release of the annual report showing a drop in earnings.

Royalite was higher in an otherwise quiet Western oil list.

Find Turin Paralyzed By Workers' Strike

TURIN, Italy, March 17 (AP)— The centre of this industrial city was paralyzed today as thousands of workers, many of them Communists, occupied headquarters of the Fascist Italian Social Movement.

The interior of the movement's headquarters were smashed by the workers, who pushed through club-swinging police and troops to storm the building.

Several demonstrators and police were injured.

The assault followed a series of skirmishes during the last few days between social movement adherents and other Turin civilians.

Hope Education Committee Harpooned In Legislature

TORONTO, March 17—(CP)—Education Minister Porter's announcement of changes in school curricula "harpooned" some of the work of the Hope Commission on Education, C. H. Millard (CCF—York West) said Thursday in the Ontario Legislature.

Mr. Millard was the last opposition speaker as the Throne Speech debate ended with a 49-to-34 vote in favor of the government. The 90-member Legislature defeated C.C.F. and Liberal amendments to the motion for an address in reply to the Throne Speech and passed the motion by the same vote. An amendment by A. A. MacLeod, leader of the two-man Labor Progressive group was defeated 61-to-22. Only the 21-member C.C.F. group supported the Labor Progressives. The Liberals, who have 14 supporters, voted for the C.C.F. amendment. Six members were not in their seats for the voting.

Other speakers yesterday were Mr. Porter and C. C. Calder (Lib.-London).

Mr. Millard said a committee composed partly of Mr. Porter's own staff had been appointed to recommend to the commission desirable changes in curricula. Mr. Porter had announced sweeping changes in the education system in a speech last fall at St. Thomas without consulting the committee, Mr. Millard said.

The 22-member commission, headed by Mr. Justice J. A. Hope, was appointed in March, 1945, and so far has presented only an interim report. Mr. Millard said the commission has become a "political football". If he were a member of it he would have "rebelled and resigned."

Higher Output At CGE Expected In 1950

A higher output of Peterborough Works built G-E products is expected in 1950, Works Manager I. F. McRae told a meeting of the Foremen's Association, recently at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club. The 1949 production budget had been met with a one per cent margin. "There has been some talk of a business recession but, as far as we are concerned, it has not presented itself," he said.

The suggestion system was resparked last year and, as a result, more suggestions were received. "We want still more and I would ask that suggestions be processed more quickly where possible. When we are able to process them faster, employees appreciate the attention and submit more suggestions."

President H. M. Turner told the Association he has much respect for members as a supervisory group in their ability to efficiently handle those in their charge. He urged them to capitalize on plant expansion. "If our activities are measured on a day-to-day basis, I think we can do it."

Mr. Turner suggested, as a slogan for 1950, we might adopt "thrifty '50." This is the year to really put our expanded facilities to work. The year 1949 was the best ever in public acceptance of our goods. In closing he asked foremen, supervisors and managers to maintain a close observance of inventory turnover which "is not good" in the company.

Discusses Foremanship

Main speaker of the evening, Mr. L. J. Male, manager of Schenectady Works, addressed the meeting on the subject of foremanship and human relations. During the course of his talk, he outlined some of the qualifications which go to make up a good foreman or supervisor.

The speaker was introduced by Works Manager I. F. McRae, who said Mr. Male manages the largest G-E plant in North America, where there are approximately 30,000 employees. Mr. Male was thanked by Production Manager S. O. Shields.

Retiring president of the Foremen's Association, Ed Foley, thanked the management and foremen for the co-operation he received during 1949. For the newly elected president, Gordon Myles, Mr. Foley asked the group to support him in every way possible and particularly through larger attendance at meetings.

Neighborhood Club Sets Up Committees

Three new committees were set up by the Neighborhood—YMCA club at a meeting in the home of advisor, Eric McKinstry Wednesday. The committees are: membership, chairman John Chestney, Bob Dreury, Carl Simmons; finance, chairman Doug Sanders, Gary Corner, Carl Simmons; service, chairman Art Little, Roy Wood, Jim Brown.

Several suggestions were made for a name for the club but the members decided to wait until they had a full turnout. They were addressed by Donald Duncan, YMCA boys' work secretary and Mr. McKinstry.

Jim Cocker, club advisor, assisted Scott Pearton with his first time as chairman of the club.

Community Campaign Fund Reaches $73,758

The Community Chest is waiting for an additional $1,242 which is required before the campaign objective of $75,000 is attained.

The total has crept up during the past week from less than $70,000 to $73,758.

The retail division, the only section to be below its target, has now subscribed $12,594 towards its $16,500 objective.

Today's totals are as follows: Special names, $22,615; industrial, $32,352; retail, $12,594; women's division, $5,669 and school penny collections, $526.

Gordon Asks

Mr. Gordon said it was his opinion, and that of the CNR board of directors, that nothing short of these three measures could be considered adequate treatment of the capital structure of the company.

Could Meet Charges

"These measures, if put into effect, should enable Canadian National, on the average, to meet its fixed charges, including interest on funded debt," the company chairman and president declared.

It would be "not unreasonable," he added, for the CNR in some years to have a surplus earnings, and he called on the commission for a recommendation that the railway be allowed to use surpluses for:

1—Improvements and betterment to property that do not produce revenue.

2—A "rate stabilization fund" which it was hoped could be built up in good years and drawn upon in bad weathers with a view to stabilizing the rate of structure.

He said such a fund would tend to the extent to which it was built up, to opostpone the necessity of applying for general freight-rate increases.

(In the last two years, the railways have had three rate increases, adding up to 40 per cent over rates in effect before 1948.)

Bookkeeping Matter

Mr. Gordon's three basic proposals would be largely a matter of bookkeeping as between the accounts of the railway and the Federal Treasury. At present, the government collects interest on the CNR obligations it holds, takes any surplus left over and covers any deficit. It finances capital outlays for the CNR, with these amounts being added to the company's annual debt charges.

Object of Mr. Gordon's proposals is to put the CNR on its own feet, free it of its cumbersome debt burden by scaling down its interest-bearing debt to a more normal level and show a profit on its books when operations justify.

The $300,000,000 "indebtedness" which the company head suggested the government should set up apparently was calculated as a propotion of a figure of $1,533,000,000, which he calculated was the "excessive capital burden" imposed on the company since its formation.

40 Families

Some residents said the hungry people had threatened to ransack Mr. Doucet's general store at Pacquetville, 15 miles away, in search of food.

In Moncton, A. Stuart Gillis, provincial Red Cross chairman, said a truck load of food will leave Bathurst today for the area.

Father Levesque said some 1,000 persons lived in the district.

Unemployed All Winter

Most of them were lumbermen who had been unemployed all winter. Family allowance cheques were their only source of cash income. Practically none of them were eligible for unemployment insurance.

First reports said the hunger conditions existed in the tiny hamlet of East Allardville. Actually, the food shortage existed in the sparsely-inhabited area known as St. Saveur, first settled in the middle 1830s.

The hunger riot was said to have occurred Wednesday when some 40 men seized municipal poor commissioner James Mazerolle and took him to a country general store, demanding food. The store, its stocks depleted when roads were blocked, had only a single bag of flour which the men left untouched.

Unionists Clash Four Men Held

TORONTO, March 17 (CP)— Four men were arrested following a fracas today near a Canadian General Electric Company plant.

Charged with causing a disturbance were Robert Stevens, Robert Morar, Joseph Levitt and Lionel Bell. Bell also faces a charge of obstructing police.

Police said that for several days rival unions have paraded in front of the plant and that sometimes fist fights have broken out. This morning the workers were warned that if there was any further trouble, there would be arrests.

The unions are the United Electrical Workers, now negotiating for a new contract with the company, and the International Union of Electrical Workers (CIO), which is trying to organize the workers at the Lansdowne Avenue plant.

Police Inspector Patrick Hogan told reporters:

"There was a regular donnybrook for five minutes, with several fights going on and about 100 persons milling around.

Drew Requests Investigation Of Professor

OTTAWA, March 17—(CP)—George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, asked the government in the Commons Thursday to look into a report that Dr Leopold Infeld, a teacher of mathematics at the University of Toronto, plans to go to Communist-dominated Poland to teach in universities there.

He addressed his request to no particular minister and government members made no immediate reply.

Mr. Drew quoted from a story in the current issue of The Ensign, Catholic weekly, which reported Dr. Infeld as announcing that he would go to Warsaw to teach and to make plans for certain educational programs in co-operation with the Polish government.

He said the article had this quotation:

". . . He is thoroughly familiar with the theory and much of the practical application of atomic energy."

Recalls Prediction

Mr. Drew said he had evidence that Dr. Infeld had predicted in 1946 that Russia would have the atom bomb within three years. That was a "strangely accurate prediction. It also was said that Dr. Infeld, a refugee from Poland, taught at Warsaw and Krakow last summer.

"I think all of us are fully aware that in the Communist states education is something that conforms to more than academic standards," said Mr. Drew. "Those who are engaged as teachers in their universities are certainly under certain limitations and are subject to qualifications that do not relate to their academic standing alone."

Most Remarkable

He thought it "most remarkable" if Dr. Infeld applied to the University of Toronto for a sabratical year—not just the summer—and received half-pay from Canada's largest university "while he was in Poland for the purpose of a Communist government."

He concluded:

"I believe that the appropriate department of the government should look into the matter immediately, and having regard to what has already happened under not dissimilar circumstances, appropriate steps should be taken to ascertain the circumstances under which Dr. Infeld plans to return to Poland armed with certain atomic knowledge that he gained during two years' association with Dr. (Albert) Einstein in the United States and from several years' activity in the fields of mathematics and physics at the University of Toronto."

Burned To Death

MONT BELVIEU, Tex., March 17.—(AP).—A 16-year-old boy, doing his sick father's job, was blasted and burend to death Thursday night as explosions and fires swept nine 15,000 gallon oil tanks on the Sunray lease near here. John Wiley, High school student, had gone to the lease to switch a tank pump. His father, pumper W. D. Wiley, is in bed with a threatened attack of pneumonia.

Sentenced To Die

LANCASTER, Pa., March 17.—(AP).—A sobbing student was sentenced Thursday night to death in the electric chair for the "impulse" slaying of Marian Louise Baker, college stenographer. A jury found Edward Lester Gibbs, 25-year-old senior at Franklin and Marshall College guilty of first-degree murder, with the death penalty mandatory. The verdict came after the jurors had deliberated 4¾ hours and 45 minutes.

MRS. URENA PINNER, who celebrated her 96th birthday Saturday, is the last member of an old Hastings family to live locally. The McWilliams, who were her parents, were for many years hotel keepers at Hastings. Mrs. Pinner lives in Marmora and is the oldest resident in the village.

Mrs. U. Pinner Celebrates 96th Birthday

MARMORA, March 17 (ENS)—Marmora's oldest citizen, Mrs. Urena Pinner, celebrates her 96th birthday on Saturday.

She is the oldest local survivor of the McWilliams family, hotel keepers of Hastings county for a great number of years.

Her health is surprisingly good for one of her age and although the severity of winter prevents her from taking the walks she is accustomed to at other seasons of the year, she is sufficiently active indoors to do much of the work of her cosy home.

She came to Marmora from Springbrook, her birthplace, as a girl of twelve with her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Wellington McWilliams. Her son Fred has lived at her home constantly since the death of her husband in 1915.

There are also two daughters: Mrs. T. J. Butler (Pearl) of Toronto and Mrs. G. R. Hartley (Nina) of Marmora. Mrs. Pinner had a family of seven.

Church Worker

She is the oldest member of St. Paul's Anglican Church, which last year celebrated its 75th anniversary. She is a charter member of Marmora Women's Institute and an original member of St. Paul's Ladies' Guild.

As a housewife and neighbor it may be said she has been to the front in every good thing, ever ready to give good advice and show sympathy to younger generations as occasion arose. Before reaching an advanced age, she was known as a fine dancer.

She was also an enthusiastic euchre player.

Murder, Manslaughter Rape On Assizes List

COBOURG, March 17 (ENS)—The spring assizes will open here on Monday afternoon with Mr. Justice Wells presiding.

On the list of criminal cases to go before the grand jury is a murder charge against Ralph Kilborn, Bailieboro farmer; a motor manslaughter charge against Harvey Lingard of Bewdley and a rape charge against Noah Gilbert of Baltimore.

Three cases are on the civil list, two of them being divorce actions and the third a dispute over a promissory note and chattel mortgage.

The charge of murder was laid in connection with the death last November of Mrs. Irene Kilborn, wife of the accused 56-year-old retired engineer. Mrs. Kilborn is said to have died as a result of a bullet from a .22 rifle. They lived on a farm near Bailieboro.

The motor manslaughter charge was laid after a fatal accident which occurred on October 14 the accused was driving home from Roseneath Fair. His car is said to have gone out of control on a curve in Haldimand Township and to have rolled over in the ditch. Nancy Davis, nine-year-old Bewdley girl, who was riding in the rumble seat, died after the accident.

Noah Gilbert of Baltimore is charged with carnal knowledge as a result of an alleged attack on a 16-year-old Baltimore girl on Christmas night.

Shirt Stuff

The Right Honourable Arthur Meighen as leader of the Conservative Party made a campaign speech on the stage of the old Grand Opera House in this city. It may have been the year 1926. The only part of the evening's affair we remember was his holding up a pair of women's silk stockings. It was a dramatic moment. His voice rolled with emotion and indignation (we seem to remember) as he asked: Do you know where these came from? JAPAN! Cheap Japanese goods, dumped on our markets, putting our factories out of business! That was his point, if not his words. Last Wednesday the same sort of linen was aired at Ottawa. This time it was shirts, cheap Jap shirts.

• • •

It seems that the free-enterprising Japs, under General MacArthur's regime and with low wages and living standards, have been manufacturing shirts which are invoiced to Canadian jobbers at a wholesale price of 33 1/3 cents each. These jobbers bought 600,000 of the shirts, not, of course, to sell at three-for-a-dollar, but at $1.19 each. But even that would be a frightfully bad situation; how could Canadian men now inured to paying three and five dollars for a shirt, calmly face a price of $1.19?

• • •

Mr. Jack Brill, chairman of the Ontario Shirt Manufacturing Association, fearing that the industry would lose its shirt if the Jap stuff came dumping along, could hardly keep his shirt on, so wrathful was he. He went to Ottawa. As a result the federal authorities have refused to accept the low invoice values placed on them (33 1/3 cents) and have instructed the customs officers to increase the values. Further, according to Mr. Brill, special dumping duties may be placed on the shirts. That ought to keep them out. Anyway, what Canadian would want shirts made out of sheeting cloth of poor quality (Mr. Brill's description)?

• • •

Mr. Brill said, after the successful conclusion of his Ottawa visit: "I'm a free trader, myself, not a closed door man". This statement and the whole affair again show first, that many free-traders believe in it only for themselves, not for the other fellow; they sometimes mean by the phrase, freedom to trade without competition. Secondly, it should be observed that the Canadian economy cannot countenance free world trade, if our standards of living and wages are to be maintained. Our agriculture would not thrive if Russian wheat and Indian margarine were dumped on the Canadian market; our industry cannot compete in price with Japanese goods manufactured by workers earning a pittance a day and living on sparrow food.

Shattering Nerves

Late yesterday afternoon the usual peace and hum of our streets was shattered by a bolt from the blue. It was a sudden thunder-whirr, as if a huge projectile were hurtling from Mars to Earth at a devilish velocity, and were about to rip a hell out of the Peterborough earth. It was all over in a second and no demogorgic explosion occurred. But it startled everybody, both people who recognized not quite instantaneously what it was, and those who didn't. Most shocked were hundreds of overseas veterans; the mounting roar and suddenness had a horrible familiarity. We saw one veteran a few minutes afterwards. He ordinarily looks and talks as if he had never been outside a peaceful Ontario pasture. After the thunderbolt he was palsied of hands and speech. He admitted having been scared out of his wits. The cause of the uproar was, of course, a jet plane passing over the city.

It is not the first jet plane we have heard, and it will, unfortunately, not be the last. If nothing can be done to silence them, can some forewarning not be given of their approach? Ordinary planes make a great roar. That is only an annoyance and disturbance of the peace, for it comes announced by a slow, smaller sound. The low-flying jet plane is a destroyer of nerve tissues and causes palpitation of the heart. If its noise is allowed free rein—and soon hundreds and hundreds of planes will be the jet-propelled type—people in this country in the next decade are going to drop dead by the hundreds—just from fright of the sound.

In some enlightened countries before the war aeroplanes were forbidden to fly over some cities. There should be a ban on jet planes over all cities. Although they disturb country folk too, there would be fewer casualties because there are fewer people. And if a jet plane must fly lower than, say, 8,000 feet some system of warning its approach should be developed. For instance, a quiet rocket could be released from the nose of the plane, which would spatter the sky with a brilliant identifying coloured light so people could prepare their nerves for the sound shock to follow in two seconds. Failing that, even a warning system of sirens would be preferable to the unheralded doom-boom of a jet.

Strange Rumours From Russia

The rumours that Russia is well embarked upon a policy of anti-Semitism are strange indeed. Jews were instrumental in bringing about the Russian Revolution, and Trotsky, a Jew, was one of the founders of the Soviet. Kalinan, a Jew, was at one time president of the U.S.S.R. Litvinov, probably the best diplomat the Soviet ever had, was a Jew. In the Soviet Jews have achieved positions of honour, and some of the best apologists for Communism within Russia have been Jews. Why, then, should Russia turn against the Jews?

The Jewish Labour Committee in the U.S.A. has made public a report which says that Russia is putting into effect a strong anti-Semitic policy. For about two years Jews have been frozen out of the cultural life of Russia, on the grounds that they are "homeless cosmopolitans". Jewish publishing houses have been closed and the Jewish daily newspaper has ceased publication. The charges against the Jewish intellectuals are the same as those brought against any thinkers the Soviet does not like—charges of admiring things that are foreign, of being decadent, of being bourgeois—but it is said that the attacks on the Jews are of a special intensity.

This enmity toward the Jews dates from the time that Russia absorbed large territories from Poland and Rumania; there were about two millions of pro-Zionist Jews in these areas, and it may be that these Jews have shown some anxiety to leave Russian lands and go to Israel. According to the claim of the Jewish Labour Committee the present Russian policy is to liquidate the Jews as a national and religious group. The Soviet, having treated Jews well since the Revolution, seems to have revived the repressive and bloody attitude of Imperial Russia.

This is sad news for Jews in every land. Until more definite news about it is available there is little that can be said, and no theory to be formed. Anti-Semitism is one of the ugly forms of madness which seizes totalitarian countries and its occurrence in Russia, though sickening, is hardly surprising.

Canadianizing Our Navy

We were somewhat puzzled by a news item which came to this office from Ottawa a few days ago and which read, in part, as follows:

> The Navy announced a big new step today to Canadianize its fleet and eliminate officer tendencies toward English accents . . . . . Generally speaking the policy of exposing young cadets to the persuasions of the English accent at an impressionable age and for considerable periods, is over.

On the face of it, this sounds like nonsense. What difference does it make what kind of accent a Canadian naval officer has, so long as he has the basic courage and resource required for his job, and the technical training which a naval officer requires?

After some reflection we decided that the item must mean something other than what it says. It has been suggested many times, both publicly and privately, that the Canadian navy suffers from attempts on the part of some officers to inflict upon it snobberies and tricks of behaviour which they believe to be characteristic of the British navy. If this is so, it is undesirable and should be discouraged.

Nevertheless, we think that the Canadian Navy would be foolish to throw out the baby with the bathwater. The Royal Navy has traditions of courage, common sense and resource which have made it great, and in these respects it is a worthy model for any Navy in the world. And although we cannot claim a large acquaintance among naval officers, either English or Canadian, we know a few of them, and they have always impressed us as unusually capable, sensible, down-to-earth men. If a few Canadian sailors put on a bad show of aping the English, let us not assume that the Royal Navy is unworthy of our close study. Its discipline and its effectiveness go far beyond such trivialities as accents. It is not the accent in which an order is given, but the quality of the order and the faithfulness with which it is obeyed, which makes a Navy great.

Notes And Queries

By ALPHA

Questions are solicited for this column particularly those relating to local lore and tradition.

ALPHA: Is it true that the first Bishop of Peterborough was a Frenchman?

ANSWER: Yes, the Right Reverend John Francis (Jean Francois) Jamot was born in Limoges, France (1828) of good family, and studied at the diocesan seminary there, and later taught for a year at the College d'Anjai, in the same diocese. Following this he studied for a short time in Rome, and for seven months in Dublin, to become proficient in the English language, for he intended going to Canada as a missionary.

He arrived in Toronto in 1853 and ministered in Barrie (where he was first resident priest) until 1863, when he was made Vicar-General of St. Michael's Cathedral, Toronto, and Chancellor of the diocese. He revisited France in 1874 and at the basilica of Notre Dame du Sacre Coeur, at Issoudun, (which is about 60 miles north of his natal town Limoges) in central France, he was consecrated Bishop of Sarepta and Vicar-Apostolic of Northern Canada, in which the present diocese of Peterborough was a part. When Peterborough was created a diocese in 1882, Bishop Jamot was made its first Bishop.

He died on May 4, 1886, and was buried beneath the sanctuary of St. Peter's Cathedral of this city. The present Bishop's house property was not acquired until 1887 (from Senator Cox) when the priests' house and rectory property was also bought, so Bishop Jamot must have lived at the old Priests' Rectory, now demolished, at the north-east corner of the cathedral square.

SIR: What are the Ides of March? I used to know when we read Shakespeare's Julius Caesar in school, but have now forgotten.

ANSWER: Ides, from the Latin indus, is (not are) one of the three days in each month in the Roman calendar, from which dates were reckoned. The Ides of March, May, July or October, is the 15th; the thirteenth day of other months. The Ides of March was, as you know, the day on which Julius Caesar was assassinated.

DEAR ALPHA: What can you tell me of the Crowe family, after which Crowe's Landing on Stony Lake was named A clipping in possession of the family reports the death, around 1925, of Christopher Crowe, after whom the landing is reported to be named. A native of Dummer Township, Christopher was the son of Francis Crowe, who the obituary states, "was one of the early and most prominent pioneers who came to this country in 1832, and served as county councillor for eleven years from 1850."

I am particularly interested in the origin and pioneer life of Francis Crowe, who apparently settled in Dummer, and of his son Christopher, who later left the homestead to form the settlement which is named afer him.

ANSWER: My information is scanty and not clear. If older residents of Dummer, and present members of the Crowe family can clarify the family relationships I hope they will write me c/o the Examiner.

There were three pioneer immigrant Crowe brothers: James, Thomas and Francis, who came to Dummer from Ireland in 1831-32. Apparently Thomas (born in County Monaghan in 1803) and Francis (born 1806) came first, in 1831, followed in 1832 by James (born 1805). All settled in Dummer. Thomas who married Miss Jane Welsh of Ireland, died in 1848. James married Margaret Madill of Peterborough. Francis was first Reeve of the Township, holding office for about seventeen years, and a Justice of the Peace for twenty. His wife was Mary Ann Battin of Dummer, and they had a family of seventeen children—twelve daughters and five sons. One of the sons was Christopher the father of Robert and Walter John, who died last August 2nd. I have no information on Christopher. The third son of Francis was John J. a township councillor for five years who married in 1868 Mary Ann Taylor of Dummer.

ALPHA: What is the essential difference between murder and assassination. Why does Canada never have any assassinations?

ANSWER: Give her time. Mature states from Rome to U. S. A. have assassinations. Canada is a bit too young; she hasn't enough people of heroic figure to figure in assassinations. By the way, have you forgotten the assassination of the Honourable Thomas D'Arcy McGee in Ottawa, 1868, the year after the Confederation he did so much to bring about? It is typical of Canadian understatement—or rather democratization — that his killing is usually referred to as plain "murder". (The man who was hanged for the crime, Patrick James Whelan, was the last person in Canada to suffer a public execution.)

The differences between murder and assassination are that murder is common, assassination aristocratic (of mind of the killer; of social position of the killed.) Assassination is a snob job. The killed is a person exalted by rank or achievement above his fellows (as was Lincoln); the killer is so snobbish intellectually and morally that he believes that he has a pact with Destiny to kill his victim.

Murder is sordid; assassination presents a delicate metaphysical problem. The assassin if often moved by the highest principles. He can believe that the person he intends to kill is human vermin, a national evil. As assassin he may bring to his own people and country — even to humanity — social and political good. (Was Caesar's assassination such a boon to Rome?) Thus the assassin is noble—in his own mind, anyway. Europeans are fascinated by the question of assassination, for instance, the Sartre who deals with it in Les Mains Sales. There is a new play in Paris now by the noted French writer Albert Camus: Les Justes. Its theme is assassination.

For a proper assassination the assassin must have political or social motive; not personal or spiteful. The victim must be a man whose thoughts, words or deeds are important to the state or to society. For instance, if a man were to kill me deliberately, my wife might mistakenly think it was assassination (God bless her!), but it would really be plain murder. But if somebody who believes Einstein to be the cause of the mischievous A-Bomb, or the Pope the cause of American anti-Communism, were to kill Dr. E. or the Pope, it would be assassination. But if Dr. E. or the Pope were to be killed by a mere pick-pocket it would be merely murder. If a high-minded man were to kill the biggest Chicago gangster of other days, no matter if that gangster were labelled State Enemy No. 1, it would be murder, not assassination. The reason is: the victim (the gangster) would not be good enough for the killer.

In my idle moments I've often day-dreamed in a pleasant, romantic way, of assassinating somebody. The trouble is, my intended victim changes from week to week. Also, being merely Alpha, I would not be dignified by the title assassin, even if I did the job.

By the way, the word assassin come from the Arabic (through Italian) 'hashishi' — drinkers of hashish, the drug marijuana. These Hashishi were a sect of fanatics in Palestine in the 13th century whose chief object was to stab Crusaders.

FOR THE RECORD: On this St. Patrick's day, a childhood jingle:

Me mither and fither was Irish
And I was Irish too.
We had a pig in the parlour
And it was Irish stew.

Pigs in parlours (or the one-room cottage) are by the way, not uncommon in countries where peasantry exists. A valuable animal like a pig share the living space as well s roof of the family. A peasant woman in a small Italian village in which I sojourned for a week one summer, used to bring her pig out for an airing, leashed like a dog. While she was sitting idly busy at the door-step pulling lice out of her children's hair, she would tie the leash with its pig to the door-knob.

Will It Hold Up?

Letters To The Editor

OUTBOARD ORGANIZED

Sir: I noticed by tonight's Examiner, Tuesday, March 14, under the heading "Unions Seeking to Enlist All Unorganized", that mention was made in reference to the Outboard Marine Workers.

I wish to state emphatically that the Outboard Marine Workers are organized; in fact they are very well organized under the leadership of their own choice.

In reference to the report that, "indication that some right wing elements in the plant would like to affiliate with the C.C.L.," and "Outboard workers were addressed by three top C.C.L. and I.U.E. officials". This leaves the impression that the executive of our union—who were responsible for the meeting addressed by the foregoing officials—are the right wing elements referred to.

As reported in the Examiner Feb. 16th, J. L. McGuire, president of our union "said its purpose was to acquaint the membership with union affairs outside their own shop".

The speaker had been requested not to mention any current controversy. It was unfortunate however that those who were given the privilege of introducing the speaker broke this rule by giving the I.U.E. version of the local labour dispute.

Thus the false impression was created that certain elements in the Outboard Marine were looking for outside affiliation. The C.C.L. have a representative in Peterborough apparently to organize the unorganized —let him do just that and leave the Outboard Marine Workers Union alone.

OUTBOARD WORKER.

ST. PATRICK SCOTCH

Sir: I should like to question the authenticity of the rev. gentleman's rhyming history Erin's patron saint.

St. Patrick was born near Dumbarton in Scotland, at a place now known as Kilpatrick, on or about the year 389, and when he was sixteen years old he was taken prisoner by Niall, (Niall of the Nine Hostages, high king of Ireland) during one of his periodic raids on Strathclyde.

He was kept prisoner there for almost six years, when he made his escape to Gaul, where he became a monk.

He returned to Scotland and later decided to become a missionary.

With this purpose in view, he retraced his steps to Gaul, where he studied in the monastery at Auxerre for 14 years.

He then returned to Ireland at the head of a band of monks, and attempted to land on the shores of Wicklow. His landing was opposed by the natives, but later he landed on the shores of Strangford Laugh.

Strangely enough, it was a Irish missionary, St. Columba, who later established Christianity in Scotland.

Yours etc.,
J. GILCHRIST.

A LEVY ON THE MEDICAL PROFESSION

Sir: I was very interested in 'Taxpayer's' letter the other evening, and if I as a working man with a family could offer a few suggestions, would I be out of order?

A business man on George Street who has to rent his store, pay huge rent, water, light and insurance and of course taxes, before he makes a dollar. What do you think of the idea of the Hospital Board's charging each physician one thousand dollars a year rent for using the people's hospital?

In this way we could realize a yearly income of considerable amount.

Say for instance, if there are fifty medical men in our city, could our hospitals use fifty thousand a year?

Yours truly,
ALSO TAXPAYER.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Behold, God is mighty, and despiseth not any: he is mighty in strength and wisdom... Behold, God exalteth by his power: who teacheth like him?....Remember that thou magnify his work, which men behold. (Job 36: 5, 22, 24.)

Fear not, O land; be glad and rejoice: for the Lord will do great things...Be glad then, ye children of Zion, and rejoice in the Lord your God: for he hath given you the former rain moderately, and he will cause to come down for you the rain, the former rain, and the latter rain in the first month:...And ye shall eat in plenty, and be satisfied, and praise the name of the Lord your God, that hath dealt wondrously with you: and my people shall never be ashamed.

And ye shall know that I am in the midst of Israel, and that I am the Lord your God, and none else. (Joel 2: 21, 23, 26, 27.)

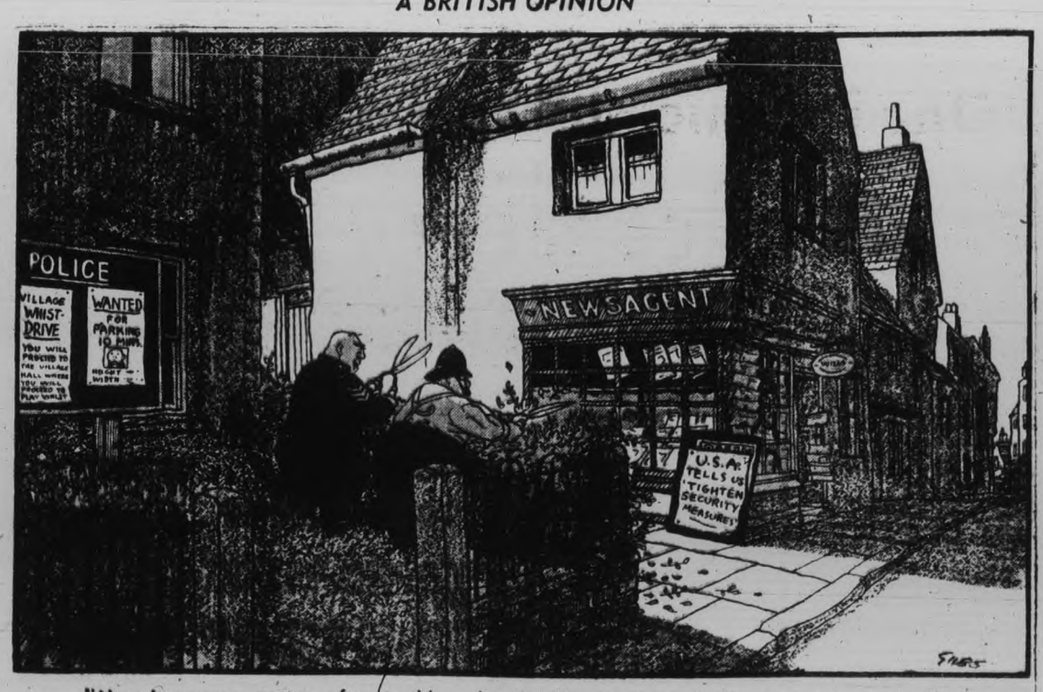
And after these things I heard a great voice of much people in heaven, saying, Alleluia; Salvation, and glory, and honour, and power, unto the Lord our God: for true and righteous are his judgements...



And I heard as it were the voice of a great multitude, and as the voice of many waters, and as the voice of mighty thunderings, saying, Alleluia: for the Lord God omnipotent reigneth. (Rev. 19: 1, 2, 6.)

Segregation In Washington

It is hard to appreciate that Washington has been without a legitimate theatre since the summer of 1948. The Actors Equity Association, it will be recalled, refused to tolerate a policy that barred Negroes from the audience. The result was that the nation's capital was left with nothing but movies and segregation. But, pleasing enough, the dramatic drought has produced a sort of double dividend, "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," which opened the other night at the Gayety, a former burlesque house reformed and refurbished. Furthermore, segregation is no longer the rule. And from all reports, the capacity audience was none the worse for this new experience.

'Flu Keeps VON Twice As Busy As Last Winter

Influenza has been so prevalent in the city this year that the Victorian Order of Nurses were unable to meet the heavy demand for nursing care during the first two months of this year, Miss Mary Ross, superintendent of Peterborough branch, reported at a meeting of the Board Wednesday.

The nursing staff made twice as many visits during January and February than during the same period last year despite the illness of two nurses. In many homes the whole family was sick and where possible, the V. O. N. attended influenza patients instead of visiting some of their regular patients.

Miss Ross told the Board that antihistamine drugs are "good things to avoid." She said many people have taken them thinking they would feel better, but according to a medical report, they had after effects which, in some cases might be dangerous.

Total visits to medical and surgical cases, including pneumonia, tuberculosis and cancer during the first two months of the year was 601.

Prenatal visits and visits to mothers and babies totalled 339 and would have been much larger if the staff had not been so busy. Nine night calls were received during the busy period when two nurses were off duty because of sickness.

Twenty-two students nurses had observed 226 visits in the district and the figure would be higher by the end of the month.

Explaining the system by which charges are made for V. O. N. visits Miss Ross explained that although 56 per cent of the total visits during 1949 were made free of charge, only 190 per cent of this number were chargeable visits. No charge was made for prenatal visits which came under the Order's free public service.

The 10 per cent which could have been made chargeable to the patient had not been paid for because of the financial circumstances of the patients. Twenty two were old age pensioners and one was a woman living on Mothers Allowance.

In some instances, the families of old age pensioners had paid $1 towards visiting fee. Some of the patients visited without charge were people living on small savings.

Out of 601 chargeable visits 108 were free and 181 partly paid.

Military Arms Become Issue In Tito Election

BELGRADE, Yugoslava, March 17—Premier Marshal Tito indirectly raised the question of getting arms from abroad in a pre-election speech he made yesterday to peasants at Drvar in Bosnia, which saw some of the heaviest fighting in the last war.

The Yugoslav leader said that his government had received $72,000000 worth of military equipment and services from the Soviet Government up until the split in the Communist Information Bureau and the rupture of all economic, political and military relations between Belgrade and Moscow.

Soviet deliveries were part of a credit of $78,000,000, repayable in ten years.

The Marshal said the Yugoslav Government made its first payment on capital plus interest last year under terms of the credit agreement and intended to repay the Soviet Government in full. Last year's payment on capital plus interest totalled $3,196,000.

The problem today, Marshal Tito said, was that Yugoslavia was standing alone in the world and must look to her defense.

"We must create a strong army and give it the means with which to defend our country" he said. Because of this, he said, a great part of the national income was being devoted to improving the country's defenses.

Requires Sacrifice

The task of rearming Yugoslavia required great sacrifices because "nobody will give us anything free and nobody will give us arms," he said.

"I told you earlier how the Soviet Union did this and how dearly it cost us," he added. "If we had ordered arms from abroad we would have ruined our country, because tremendous sums would have had to go for armament.

"We must create factories which can provide what is necessary. That is what we are striving for and, therefore, I appeal to our peasants to understand our needs in respect to the defence of our country."

Fear Soviets

The danger of Soviet imperialism in the Balkans has become one of the main themes in pre-election speeches of Yugoslav leaders who are campaigning up and down the country in order to get all voters to the polls March 26.

It has become more than apparent that Yugoslav leaders have spent much time in re-examining the history of the Balkans and the roles played by Czarist Russia and its successor, the Soviet Union, in Balkan history.

The conclusions reached were threefold.

First, that the so-called liberation mission of imperial Russia in the Balkans during the nineteenth century only concealed the determined policy of the St. Peterburg government to gain a foothold on th Aegean Sea and obtain control of the Dardanelles.

Unity Hindered

Second, Czarist Russian intervention in the Balkans was perhaps the greatest single factor in preventing unification of the south Slavs.

Third, the Soviet government is actively pursuing the same policy methods employed by its imperial progenitor and is determined to succeed where Czarist Russia failed.

These views are being placed before the Yugoslav people in unvarnished terms by Yugoslav leaders during the present election campaign. It is clear there is a desire to bring home to the Yugoslav people that Soviet imperialism is as dangerous to the independence and unity of the south Slav nations as were Czarist Russian imperialism.

WASHINGTON, March 17 (AP) The United States navy in effect put Capt. John G. Crommelin, the most outspoken sea-going critic of service unification policy into involuntary retirement on Wednesday.

The move is in obvious response to Crommelin's disregard for orders from Admiral Forrest P. Sherman, Chief of Naval Operations, to stop public criticism of high-command decisions and of the other armed forces.

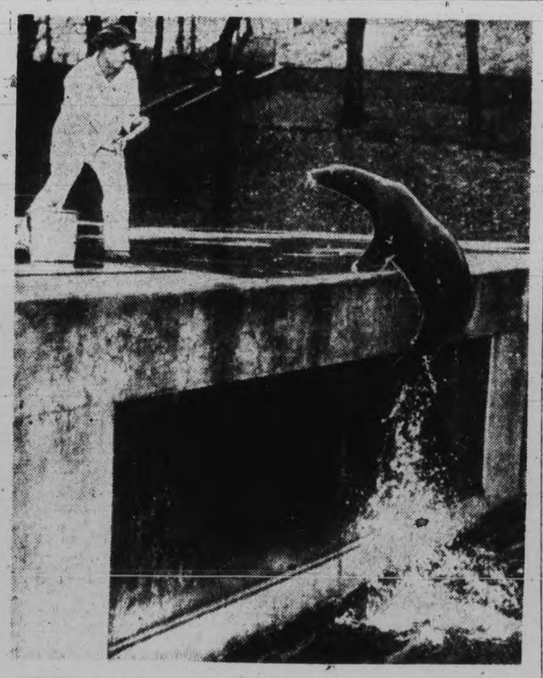
Missing Farmer Voluntarily AwayFromHome

PORT PERRY, March 17 (CP) Police said today they believe Harry Gray, 78-year-old Scugog Island farmer, is "voluntarily staying away."

The farmer, missing since Feb. 28, had cashed a $500 cheque, Police Chief George Holnes said. The money was apparently a personal loan from a friend, Ernest Wright, and the chief said he thought Gray "may be staying away as long as the money holds out.'

A new development disclosed by police Thursday was that a writ for $350 has been issued against Gray by a contractor who dug two holes on Gray's land last summer in search of clay. The chief said that Gray had formed a company last summer with 10 shareholders. The company was to manufacture bricks from a type of clay he had discovered on the island, about 15 miles north of Oshawa.



The chief said he belived Gray went to Toronto to "straighten up some things.'

A few days after he was reported missing Gray's wallett was mailed to his home with a note scribbled on a torn match folder. The note said the billfold was found in East York in suburban Toronto. The note was received by his wife, still on crutches from the effects of a recent fall.

Newspaper Correspondent Tries To Prove Cat Could Stay In Kiln And Not Be Baked

MINERVA, Ohio, March 17 — (AP)—A "string" correspondent flashed this message to the Canton Repository Wednesday:

"Historic cat tale experiment launched. Hat, steak and themometer in kiln as of 11.45 a.m.

"Kiln to open early Friday morning. Will have photog on scene."

Thus began a test to determine if the tale about "Miracle," the cat, is true.

Could Miracle really have stayed in an inferno-like brick kiln for 36 hours wiahout being cooked? The temperature reached 900 degrees.

The Dean of Ohio State University's Veterinary College said it was impossible. So Mrs. Twila Carman, the correspondent who first told the world about Minerva's heat-resisting cat, undertook to prove her story.

She wrapped a sirloin steak in a second-hand sealskin hat. This synthetic cat she placed in the kiln, with two thermometers.

The kiln will be heated to 900 degrees.

If the synthetic cat is not a well-done steak when the kiln is reopened Friday, correspondent Carman will feel vindicated. So will kiln superintendent Joe Rucola, who told the story, and Dr. William Orr, the veterinarian who backed him up.

27 Rat Pelts Confiscated, Man Fined $145

Terry Donaghue, Durham County, pleaded guilty in police court at Bowmanville, Tuesday, before Magistrate Baxter, on two charges laid under the Games and Fisheries Laws, by Provincial Game Warden Jack Deyell, Millbrook.

Officer Deyell gave evidence as to how he, in company with Game Warden Fred Walton, and District Inspector Gordon Buie, both of Lindsay, searched the premises of Donaghue on January 27. The officers testified that they found the hides of 27 muskrats in Donaghue's house. They also found part of a roasted hen pheasant in the accused's ice box.

Deyell stated that at first the accused claimed the bird was a rooster but admitted to Officer Walton, after questioning, that it was a pheasant.

The accused was ifned $5 per pelt on the muskrat charge, or a total of $135 and costs of $11 or 30 days. On the pheasant charge he was fined an additional $10 and $11 costs or 15 days in jail, the terms to run consecutively if that alternative were taken.

The 27 muskrat pelts were confiscated by the officers as well as the remains of the pheasant.

Muskrat season in this district for 1950 will not open until March 20th and closes on April 21st, both days inclusive.

Say Pharmacy Course To Run 4 Years Now

TORONTO, March 17 (CP) — An amendment to the Pharmacy Act which will require students to take a four-year course instead of the present two-year term, was introduced in the Legislature Wednesday by Welfare Minister Goodfellow.

The minister said the change would not affect students now registered in the course, but would apply to all future pharmacy students.

Swedish Coach Not Confident

LONDON, March 17 (CP) — Frank Trottier, coach of the Swedish hockey team which experts figure will give Canada the closest run for the world championship, isn't over-confident that his squad can stop the red-hot Edmonton Mercurys.

"We'd like to think we had a fighting chance," he told The Canadian Press Thursday. "Actually our main objective in the championship tournament is to win the European crown.

"If the Mercury's play the hockey they are capable of we don't stand much chance for the world title."

Thursday was an off-day for all six teams which qualified for the final round-robin series. The finalists, in addition to Canada and Sweden, are Britain, the United States, Norway and Switzerland. The Czechoslovakian government forbade the Czech team to come to London to defend the crown that country won in 1949.

Doc Handed First Reverse As Whip Gets Deciding Fall

It took an old mat hand like champ Whipper Bill Watson to out-guess rough Doc Len Hall and hand the latter his first defeat in a Peterborough ring, doing the trick last night in the main bout before a big crowd. The canny Doc knew he couldn't out-wrestle Whip so he roughed him hard throughout, using all his illegal wiles gained from a lengthy career as a pro wrestler. And he had Watson in plenty of trouble at times before the Whip got the main fall.

Whipper, at 235 pounds to Doc's 250, won the opening fall in 18 minutes with a body slam and two "whip" holds—yanking his opponent over his back by the arm and throwing him heavily to the floor. It was popular with the crowd as the Californian used illegal stuff from the start and Referee Bunny Dunlop—evidently figuring the champ could look after himself—let a lot go. The Doc was chucked out of the ring once by the angry Billy after goughing and choking him, pulling hair and using knees and feet at every opportunity in an effort to soften his faster and smarter opponent up. He showed a barrel of stluff, most of it quite illegal, but the Whip earned the fall handily after a hard go.

Won Second

Hall came back to win the second bout in eight minutes with body slams, after twice throwing Watson hard into the turnbuckles as the referee again looked helpless. From the start, the Doc didn't give the Whip a chance, tearing into him with elbows and fists and feet to soften him up early and keep him on the defensive. The crowd yelled disapproval but the paunchy pharmacist was tricky and got away with far too much in a masterful display of how not to wrestle legally but still ruin your opponent and get off with it.

Whipper won the deciding one in slightly over five minutes when he looked to be beaten again. He did take a beating as Doc again tore after him in a tough softening-up process, but the Whip this time pulled the old mat trick of faking—acting as if he were out on his feet. The over-confident Hall came in once more to slam him when the suddenly rejuvenated Whipper crossed him up with a savage attack, throwing him into the turnbuckles and then slamming him hard with his "whip" grip, as the crowd applauded heartily.

Proved Good

Hi Lee, at 290 pounds, and the 220-pound Roy McClarity went to a semi-final time limit draw. It looked like curtains early for Roy as his bigger opponent was much stronger and rougher, but the smaller and popular Roy proved tough onions, too. He came back from a brutal beating to hold his own and even slam the shaggy-maned and deep-voiced Texan around. The referee several times had to yank Lee off illegal gripe by his hair and the bout ended with Dunlop pinned in the middle of a mat as the gong sounded. Roy was warned, too, as he got peeved enough at times to rough it up, and it was a hot match throughout, with McClarity earning himself some friends here.

Ali the Turk, a short, squat newcomer to mat circles here—weighing 218, including his turban and praying mat—won the prelim in 10 minutes over the 228-pound Tiger Tasker with slams and top spread. He said a few words to Allah first, and later challenged the winner of the main bout, informing all he could speak four or five languages. He proved a colorful character, being bald and wrestling in his bare feet, showing the crowd some new stuff which went over big with the fans. Tasker used a taped wrist and the bout was lively and noisy most of the way. Dunlop finally removed the tape from the unpopular Tasker, and Ali moved in fast to close that episode.

Confederation Out

Queen Mary seniors of the Public School Hockey League eliminated Confederation 2-1 yesterday at the arena and now meet the winner of Prince of Wales and Central sudden-death game Monday in loop playoffs. Deal scored the first goal of the third period on a fine pass in close from Dunn, but Dunstan got it back on a hot shot. Davis tallied the winner then from Holland on a goal-mouth play.

It was fast, rugged and close hockey with some beautiful passing seen and extra close checking by both squads. The opposing goalies pulled some almost impossible saves. Dunn, Roberts and P. Deck shone for Queen Mary; while B. Bryan, Miller, Parry and Dunstan stood out for Confederation. Teams:

Queen Mary: Goal, Deck; defence, Stewart and Dunn; centre, Roberts; wings, Cullen and Merrett; alternates, Jackson, Brady, Deal, Houghton and Cuffe.

Confederation: Goal, B, Bryan; defence, Miller and Dunstan; centre, M. Bryan; wings, Holland and Davis; alternates, Parry, Sloan, Corner and Coleman.

Referees—D. Crawford and E. Druery.

Remember When—

Frank Boucher, player-coach of the New York Rangers, compiled a lifetime scoring record of 554 major league scoring points, it was announced six years ago tonight. The figure did not go into the records of the National Hockey League because some of the points were scored in Boucher's three years in the Pacific Coast League. The NHL scoring record of 594 points is held by Bill Cowley.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

The shillelehs will be aswingin' tonight down Civic Arena way along about 8.30 of the clock. On account of 'tis none other than Oshawa Bees, a bunch of furriners, playing our local juniors—all good Irish lads like the O'Wassons, the M'Masons, McFloyd and the O'Desjardins. Ready to thump those Motor Citizens on this St. Patrick's Day in the evenin'. Bun Kingdonoghue's smart IOOF-ers are tied now with Oshawa at a game apiece in the best-of-five OHA junior "B" group finals, and this is the big one. They've pretty nearly got to get this or they're in a tough spot, playing back in Oshawa tomorrow. A swell struggle and it deserves a whopping big crowd.

* * * * * *

Oh, so you don't think we're Irish, eh? Yes, indeed, though, of course, a Canadian first. Mike Rodden eyed us suspicious-like in the Kingston press box at a recent puck game when we said, like him, our folks on both sides were Irish. Mike inquired: "And isn't Perdue a French name?" But we pointed out that some Frenchmen of that name had moved to Ireland several hundred years ago and, being a prolific people, there were now many Irish by that name not only in the Emerald Isle but all over creation. And our mother was an O'Leary. That fixed it, and Mike accepted us at once as a respectable person.

Written In Green Ink

From Detroit comes a letter from a McMahon, written in green ink, as Sylvester—or "Vep" as he was known here ere he hit for Detroit many years ago—figures it's appropriate to the 17th. He writes us about this time each year, calling the Red Wings to take the Stanley Cup. Vep was a disappointed man last spring when the high-flying Wings were softened up by Canadiens and fell easy prey to the surging Leafs. But Detroit again took the NHL title handily this season, and we also believe they'll capture the Stanley Cup. We don't think the Leafs can do it again, so there!

* * * * * *

Getting back to Vep, he says he is related by marriage to Johnny Godfrey, and that he still remembers Peterborough fondly. Used to go to Olympia for sure when Bill Calladine would come with the Bruins, and hopes to see some more make the big time now that we have artificial ice. He likes his baseball in the summer as well as the harness horse races. Wants to be remembered to friends here. He also sends some NHL clippings along, as well as a piece in a Detroit paper saying how wide-open Windsor now is, and how easy it is to make a bet there on anything by driving over in a taxi paid for by the gambling house.

Keen Cage Contests

Cage fans shouldn't pass up that girls' twin bill playoff in the YWCA tonight. St. Catharines plays Towne Togs at nine in the first of a two-game LOBA intermediate "B" semi-final series. Likely a nifty struggle, following a junior playoff game betwixt the Junior Nurses and Normals at eight. All clubs really playing for keeps now. At the Collegiate tomorrow eve at eight, Hamilton Strands open their two-game OABA men's playdown series with the Marines, and it'll be a hotly contested joust, no doubt. PCVS midgets are at Kingston tonight, while three PCVS cage crews are in COSSA playoffs tomorrow in Toronto, the senior girls, the senior boys and the junior "A" chaps.

* * * * * *

While Whipper Bill Watson defeated rough Doc Len Hall in the main pro mat bout at the Brock last eve before a big crowd, Ali the Turk proved an interesting and colorful character to many. Folks have seen the Whip and Doc before, but Ali was something new and the fans seemed to like him. A short, chunky gee, he weighs 218 pounds and has a lot of new stuff. Of course the turban could be expected, but the praying mat in the middle of the ring just before his bout was something else. And his actions in general exuded that intangible stuff known in sports parlance as "color"—enough to give a fair-sized barn two coats. Roy McClarity did well, too, in the semi-final to gain a draw with huge Hi Lee.

Omemee Victorious

OMEMEE, March 17 (ENS)—In the second game of the Cannington-Omemee round of the ORHA semi-finals here Wednesday night, the Omemee Black Hawks, led by Floyd Parsons, edged out a 3-2 victory.

It was a rattling good game all the way with no choice between the teams. The only goal in the first period was scored by R. Crawford for Omemee after 14 minutes of play. In the second period Pickering bagged one for Cannington at 11 minutes but in the next minute Floyd Parsons upset the even score. The battle continued into the second half of the third when each team added on. Parsons with Parker assisting for Omemee and McKay for Cannington at 12 and 13 minutes. The last minute of play was an intense one with Jamieson in the penalty box and Cannington's goalie out in a desperate attempt to tie the score.

What's New In Baseball?

By The Associated Press.

St. Petersburg, Fla.—The lineup of the New York Yankees is beginning to look more like the one that won the world championship last year.

Catcher Yogi Berra, late signing up for 1950, is back behind the plate and the team's regular second base combination, Phil Rizzuto and Gerry Coleman, worked together on Thursday for the first time this season.

Berra worked eight innings, getting a single and two walks. Rizzuto went hitless in two at-bats but Coleman got one for three as the Yanks walloped Washington, 13-2.

Phoenix, Ariz.—The New York Giants are glad they have a handy man like Bill Rigney around.

Henry Thomson, Negro third baseman who has shown fine progress, is sidelined with a sprained right ankle which will keep him confined for a few days. Rigney is one hand to fill the gap.

San Francisco.—Manager Lou Boudreau for Cleveland Indians is rubbing a smarting left hand and probably thinking it's just like old times.

The shortstop was clipped on Thursday in Los Angeles by a fast ball on rookie pitcher Bill Connelly in the first inning of a Chicago White Sox-Indians exhibition contest. He stayed in the game, however, which was won by the Tribe, 5-4, in 11 innings.

Shockeys and Cavanaghs took four points from Babe's Place and Tem to maintain their first and second place positions. McGillis won by the same margin from Esquires to hold down third place. Capitol Taxi, Charlotte Credit Jewellers, Sunocos and De Laval had four-point victories over Bond Clothes, Dunn's, Tailors, Campbell & Best and Clappers. Buck Fleming followed L. Anthony's high single with 327, Harold Davies and Len Anthony rolled 316 each, Jack Mackness 310, Gene Reynolds 309 and Joe Denault 308. Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

With Detroit Red Wings' high-scoring hockey line of Sid Abel, Tel Lindsay and Gordon Howe it is one for all and all for one.

The Detroit trio, currently running one-two-three in the National Hockey League's individual scoring derby, announced on Thursday they have agreed to a three-way equal split of any of the $1,500 bonus money awarded by the league to the top two finishers.

The National League awards $1,000 and the Art Ross Trophy to the player scoring the most points in the regular season. A casr prize of $500 goes to the runner-up.

With five games left to play, Lindsay is first in the scoring parade with 23 goals and 49 assists for 72 points. Abel has 37 points for second place on 34 goals and 33 assists while Howe is third with 30 goals and 31 assists for 61 points.

Maurice Richard of Montreal and Paul Ronty of Boston still are conceded to have good chances to break up the Detroit sweep. Ronty is fourth in the league scramble with 57 points and Richard has 56.

The Detroiters' agreement to split any prize money they might win isn't a new idea. Roy Conacher and Doug Bentley of Chicago Black Hawks, who finished one-two in last year's race, had a similar agreement.

At Phoenix Park, Ariz., Billy Herman was painfully injured on Thursday in a base-path collision during the New York Giants-Oakland Oaks exhibition baseball game The Giants won the contest 4-3 with a tally in the ninth inning. Herman, former Chicago, Brooklyn and Boston major-league player, crashed into Giants' Monte Irwin during a force play at second base in the eighth inning. He was knocked unconscious and removed from the field on a stretcher. At hospital, his condition was pronounced satisfactory.

Bobby Locke of South Africa may play in the annual greater Greensboro, N. C., open golf tournament March 24-26 if the sponsoring Greensboro Jayaees are successful in their request for permission from the Professional Golfers Association to invite the golf star.

At Raleigh, N. C., Richard (Pancho) Gonzales, freshman flash of professional tennis, explained Thursday why he will sit out his sophomore season. "I'm pooped out and tired of looking at tennis balls," sighed Gonzales, who is in his first year of the play-for-pay game as a member of Bobby Riggs' tennis troupe.

"Come October, I'll lay off for a year and just rest and practice my game."

Gordon Richards, Britain's champion jockey, Thursday opened Lincoln's 1950 racing season by riding a winner on his first mount, Little Go. Richards' horse was a 7-to-1 shot.

The champion is in his 29th year as a jockey and needs 34 winners to take his lifetime total to 4,000. No other jockey has ridden as many. Gordon was leading jockey for the 22nd time in 1949 when he rode 261 winners.

A terrific struggle between the Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs for second place promises to enliven the last few nights of the National Hockey League's long schedule.

The Canadiens, with veteran big Bill Durnan back in goal after missing several games through injury, roared back to hold the Detroit Red Wings to a 2-2 tie Thursday night before a Montreal Forum crowd of 14,006.

Detroit has already clinched the league championship. But the tie put Canadiens within two points of Toronto and the coveted second spot. The Cup contenders will be Detroit, Toronto, Montreal and New York Rangers, but the gimmick is that the first team plays the third, while the second team collides with the fourth in the Cup semi-finals. And none of them relish the prospect of a gruelling semi-final with Detroit.

So Canadiens are driving hard for second place. Like Toronto, they have five games left. Today Detroit has 83 points, Toronto 70, Montreal 68, and New York 65, with Boston Bruins still holding a very faint mathematical play-off hope with 56 points and Chicago Black Hawks out of it at 48.

Need One Game

Rangers need to win only one victory to make their playoff berth a certainty. Before the schedule winds up March 26 Chicago has six games left, with five games for Toronto, Montreal, New York and Boston, and only four for Detroit.

The Montreal crowd saw a rugged, close-checking game in which Detroit rolled up a 2-0 lead. Durnan was beaten by Gordon Howe in the first period and Red Kelly in the second.

In the third frame the Canadiens were flying, while Wings iced the puck at every opportunity.

The Canadien pressure paid off in the third period when Maurice (Rocket) Richard scored. Forty seconds later Harvey scored the tying goal on his own rebound from 25 feet out.

They all play twice this weekend with Saturday's card calling for Chicago at Toronto, New York at Montreal, and Boston at Detroit. Sunday, Toronto is at Detroit, Montreal at New York, and Boston at Chicago. The league holds its regular meeting to settle playoff dates at New York on Monday.

Need Personality When Reporting To Stockholders

By FORBES RHUDE,
Canadian Press Business Editor.

Disturbing news is drifting up out of stockholders' meetings in the United States.

Apparently it is no longer good enough for the head of a firm to report a good profit and nice dividends. Now he is being judged also for appearance, manners and general aplomb.

It is, of course, the women who are doing this, for they are taking more and more to attending annual meetings.

Here are some of the things they are saying, as reported by Sam Dawson of the Associated Press:

"A famous chairman of a noted financial institution is rated 'D' and described as 'behind the times.' But the No. 2 man of his concern is rated the 'handsomest president.'

"Other chairmen drawing low marks include ones who 'couldn't stem the tide,' who have 'contempt' for women stockholders, or who let the meeting 'get out of hand.'

Rates Top Scorn

"Top scorn, however, is reserved for the chaiman who provided no transportation to the meeting and 'left stranded his only two women stockholders at six degrees above zero'."

Other chairmen get marks for polish, diplomacy, or for 'providing comfortable chairs.'

One wins the top accolade for personally welcoming women stockholders and answering their questions by complimenting them on their intuition; and another, a natural, for appointing woman to the board of directors.

In Canada a sprinkling of women are to be seen at annual meetings and occasionally they send sharp questions from the floor, but as yet they do not seem to show as much militancy as their sisters in the United States.

However, Mr. Chairman, to be forewarned is to visit your tailor, brush up on parliamentary procedure and bring along your drawing-room chair.

LUXURIOUS PET—"Doly is our only luxury," says Carl Moravec of Timmins, Ont., former Czech army officer and now a gold miner. Mr. and Mrs. Moravec had to save more than $400 to bring the pedigreed Doberman-Pinscher from Europe to Timmins. Most of the money was for three months' quarantine after the dog arrived in Canada. Mr. Moravec said the dog "led us when we escaped from Czechoslovakia last year."

Lone Contender From Ottawa

HULL, Que., March 17. (CP).—La Comedie Nouvelle, a Little Theatre company formed two years ago, is the lone Ottawa contender in Eastern Ontario's French-language festival opening here tonight.

This will be the first year outside the capital for the drama competition which has shrunk to a two-day contest, with only three groups attending. There were four entries in last year's three-day festival.

The Ottawa players, winners of the "best production" trophy last year, will start the ball rolling with a domestic drama "Famille," one of the two Denys Amiel plays in the festival.

The second Amiel work, "Ta Jeunesse," a three-act character play, will be performed at a Saturday matinee by L'Ecole D'Art Dramatique of Hull.

Le Cercle Gascons of Hawkesbury, Ont., will produce the final play of the festival Saturday night, 'Le Chant Du Berceau," a translation from the Spanish play by Martinez Sierra.

Will Send In Police To Enforce Law—Frost

TORONTO, March 17 (CP) — Premier Frost indicated Thursday he could send Ontario Provincial Police to enforce the law in Windsor, if local police failed to do the job. The Windsor police commission is conducting an inquiry into a suggestion by Magistrate J. A. Hanrahan that Windsor police are "impotent" to curb bootlegging activities in the border city.

C. H. Millard (CCF-York West) read Thursday in the Legislature an article appearing in the Detroit Free Press describing bootlegging, gambling and prostitution in Windsor.

Mr. Frost told the House an inquiry was already started into the operations of Windsor police. Municipalities had been advised some time ago, he said, that if they are not prepared to enforce the law it would be enforced by Provincial Police.

Fatally Bitten

SOUTH PORTLAND, Me., March 17 — (AP). — Five-year-old Donald Boucher was fatally bitten by a dog here Thursday, police said. Boucher was attacked by an Alsatian husky chained in the yard of its owner, Emil J. Morin. The dog was ordered destroyed.

League Crown Captured By Queen Mary

Queen Mary won the junior Public School Hockey League championship yesterday at the Arena by blanking Grove 3-0 in the sudden-death final. Wayne Haig proved the big gun for the champs, firing a trio of counters in the second period of an otherwise even and neat tussle. They were well-matched teams, but for that sniping spree by Haig, and both sides hustled throughout. Some fine saves were made at either end. Teams:

Grove—Goal, Wood; defence, Bailey and Hotston; centre, Little; wings, Lindsay and Simmons; alternates, Copping, Gardner, Davey, Sanders, Keene, Heard and Hargreaves.

Queen Mary—Goal, Welch; defence, Staves and Haig; centre, Stewart; wings, Brown and Dafoe; alternates, White, Mann, Brisbois, Linton, Cromie and Jobbitt.

Referees—H. Wilson and A. Olmstead.

Plan Greyhound Racing Track

OTTAWA, March 17 — A greyhound racing track at Windsor with pari-mutuels would employ about 500 persons each day of operation, it is said in brief being circulated in Ottawa as the opening shot of a campaign to have greyhound racing with betting legalized in Canada.

Ex-Canadian's Brochure

"What greyhound racing could do for Canada" is the main theme of a brochure mailed by Murray Kemp, a former Canadian, now president and general manager of a greyhound racing operation in Portland, Ore. He offers his opinion as to what greyhound racing "could do for the people of Canada and their Dominion and Provincial Governments in way of United States dollars coming into the country, employment, new taxes and investments."

Mr. Kemp's proposals initially contemplate tracks at Windsor, Fort Erie and Vancouver, with Windsor being the largest. Each track would have two 28-day meets annually.

He estimates the initial investment in tracks at $1,500,000 (US) and says $1,000,000 (US) would come to Canada each racing day. Three tracks would bring in $60,000,000 US funds a year, he estimates.

"Approximately 99 per cent of all race track income remains within the community or state in which the establishment is located," he says. In Oregon the take is divided as follows:

"Of the 15 per cent commission retained by the track, three to five per cent is paid immediately to the state in taxes, two per cent goes to the dog owners in purses, about three per cent for salaries of employees, and the bulk of the remainder for other necessary operating expenses. After all bills are paid the track owners consider themselves fortunate if they can put aside one per cent of the nightly 'handle.'"

Ex-Mayor Dies

EDMONTON, March 17 (CP)—James McRie Douglas, 83, former mayor of Edmonton and former member of parliament, died Thursday. In 1909, he was elected member of parliament for Strathcona and held the seat until 1921. He was elected mayor in 1929 and served for two years.

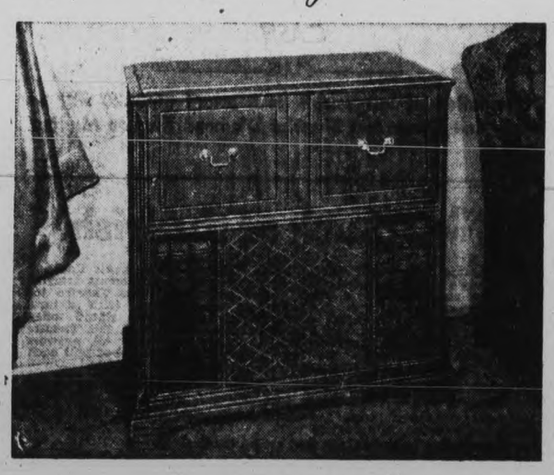
London Courts Plan Use Sound Recording

LONDON (CP).—London's law courts are to be wired for sound.

Electronic equipment, which will eventually replace the corps of skilled shorthand writers, is to be installed. It will make a record of every word spoken in the courts.

The records will be made on two-mile-long drums of thin tape, each of which will store the court proceedings of one hour.

After typists have transcribed the recorded words, the records, each about the size of a packet of cigarets, can either be filed away or wiped clean and used for another recording.



Lord Goddard, Lord Chief Justice, tested the equipment and approved it.

Europeans Ask U.S. Help Unite All Free Nations

NEW YORK, March 17.— Paul Reynaud, former Premier of France, and Lord Layton, British Liberal publisher, who is vice-president of the Consultative Assembly of the Council of Europe, this week joined in urging United States support for an economic and political union of the free nations of Europe.

The two men spoke at a press conference at the St. Regis Hotel arranged by the American Committee on United Europe. They left later on a two-week lecture tour under the committee's sponsorship in eight cities from Boston to San Francisco. They plan to voice similar pleas for European unity.

M. Reynaud called unifying Europe a "compelling necessity" and advocated more speed in the process.

"We are too slow," he said referring to the various attempts at union being made in Western Europe. "Stalin is much quicker than we are. We have no time to lose."

The Frenchman declared that no European union that did not include Western Germany in its plans should be attempted. He had harsh words for alleged British attempts to exclude the German Republic from the expanding economic union of the Benelux nations, France and Italy.

Unity Vital

M. Reynaud contended that unification of Europe was vital not only to the nations involved but to the containment of Soviet expansion in Asia.

Asked if Western Germany in a united Europe would form a bulwark against Communist expansion from the east, M. Reynaud replied: "The real bulwark has been your stock of atom bombs up to now and very likely will continue to be for two years coming."

Support Here Urged

Lord Layton, calling European unity "one of the most vital issues facing the free world today," stressed that the movement needed enthusiastic support in the United States as well as abroad.

"Some form of political and economic union in Europe is of the utmost urgency," the publisher asserted. "It is very important to you in America whether the peoples of Europe are strong or weak, united or divided, prosperous or in poverty; whether they are firm in their adherence to the free way of life or whether their faith in democracy falters."

HALF-CENTURY HIGHLIGHTS

SALOON SMASHING CRUSADER was Carry A. Nation, seen with her famous hatchet. The Twentieth Century came in — in Kansas, at least — accompanied by the sounds of smashed mirrors, broken bottles and glasses, and chopped saloon furniture — all the target of the righteous wrath of this spunky, Kentucky-born foe of John Barleycorn. It was in Wichita, Kan., in 1900 that Carry Nation began her self-imposed task to abolish the saloon. At first, she used rocks, a cane and her fists — along with ringing verbal denunciations — in her battle. Later, for more effective destruction, she took along the hatchet which became her trademark. Spurred by success in Kansas, Carry moved on to Nebraska and other states, even going as far east as New York.

Four Countries Accept International Traffic Plan

NEW YORK, March 17.—Belgium and the three Scandinavian countries have agreed in principle to accept international regulation of commercial truck traffic, it was learned here today.

The establishment of an institution corresponding to the Interstate Commerce Commission for all of Europe, which a year ago was only a dream of some American believers in European integration, is now regarded as a serious possibility.

If Western Germany should join Denmark, Sweden, Norway and Belgium in adherence to some such project, a nucleus would be formed that other countries would find it disadvantageous not to join, transport experts here believe.

Discussions of the past few days in the transport committee of the United Nations Economic Commission for Europe, which has been a forum for the idea of this all-European transportation development, are regarded by United States officials as highly satisfactory.

Neither Italy nor Switzerland appears basically opposed to international, instead of national, regulation of safety standards, weight loads, markings, publication of tariffs, etc.

All Can't Agree

French opposition is based on the belief that road transport cannot be separated from rail and water transport. Dutch opposition is based on the Netherlands' strong competitive position in the international trucking business, resulting from her early post-war start.

The underlying objective of the United States economic officials in seeking to advance international regulation of highway transport is to enable Europe to get fuller economic benefit from the truck as a means of moving goods.

As an industry, trucking in most of Europe is about where it was in the United States twenty-five years ago, except that European operators generally have much more local and national regulation to worry about.

Railway opposition and frontier complications confine trucking to a limited area within which competition is likely to become fierce and even destructive.

By opening the frontiers and ultimately enforcing all-European rules to govern competition in rates, and safety and service standards, E. C. E. experts think they could greatly advance Europe's development.

French Actress Says Americans Best Husbands

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, March 17 (AP) —Males in the United States are getting a boost from beauteous Gaby Andre, the screen's latest French flash.

"I am French, you understand, and there is nothing wrong with French men," green-eyed Gaby began cautiously. "But Americans have so much—what you call zing!

"They keep so young and vigorous they make everyone around them feel the same. Such spirit as this I have never seen before."

The French gal went 'way out on a limb and declared that American husbands are the best in the world.

"They like to spoil a girl, to make her think she is the most wonderful thing in the world. Now in Europe I am afraid men take their wives for granted."

Gay and Gayer

Gaby speaks from experience. She was a French film actress until she met an American Army Colonel during the war. She came to the U. S. as Mrs. Eli Smith Now she is making her Hollywood debut in "The $2,000,000 Bank Robbery."

The French may be considered gay but Americans are gayer, she remarked.

"Even during the war, American soldiers in France gave our country a lift," she said. "I think a lot of this gayety and vigor is due to the American love of sports, they take part in them. This gives them a youthful outlook."

Swim Club Show Chicago Forms

The Peterborough Ornamental Swimming Club will perform on Friday and Saturday nights at the YWCA, the routines of synchronized swimming which they will use in the United States championships in Chicago the following weekend. This will be the first opportunity this season for the public to see the girls working out. They are considered by synchronized swimming expects as one of the top clubs in Canada.

The meet is sponsored by the YMCA Swimming Club and will include races and novelty events featuring Gus Sassafras, Canada's leading aquatic clown, who performed for several years at the Canadian National Exhibition. Proceeds of the meet will be used to assist the travelling expenses of both clubs. The YWCA club will be represented at the Ontario YMCA championship meet in London April 29.

Food Poisons 90 People At Lake Success Dinner

LAKE SUCCESS, March 17 — Ninety adults and children, including United Nations officials and their families, were stricken with food-poisoning after a dinner held here at the world organization's headquarters. Among those taken ill after the meal was Assistant Secretary General Benjamin A. Cohen.

Mr. Cohen was scheduled to be a guest speaker at the dinner, which was to celebrate the second anniversary of the United Nations Scout Association, an organization made up of the children of United Nations staff members.

The first evidence of trouble came during the meal itself when a few of the thirty-five boys and girls attending the affair reported that they felt ill.

Scores of Cases

Within a few hours, more than a score of cases of illnesses were reported. Three of the 100 diners —Antoni Wojciki, a member of the United Nations staff, his wife, Helen, and son, Andrew — went immediately to Queen's General Hospital, where they received emergency aid. All three, however, were allowed to leave the hospital after treatment.

Mr. Cohen, who felt the effects of the poisoning almost at once, cut short his address and requested that the award of Scout medals be made by the mothers of the winning youngsters. The assistant secretary general drove home with Mrs. Cohen, who did not eat at the dinner.

Almost the entire meal, it was learned was prepared by a mothers' committee and carried to the United Nations building. It included cold meats and salads, tomato juice and dessert.

Nassau County health authorities have asked that remnants of the food be preserved for testing, United Nations officials said tonight, and a list of persons attending the dinner also has been made available.

FRENCH COLONISTS

At the time of the British conquest of Quebec in 1759, there were only 65,000 French-speaking inhabitants of New France.

Swim Damsels Preparing For USA Meet

Preparing for the international synchronized swimming meet in Chicago next week, the Peterborough Ornamental Swimming Club girls will stage a dress rehearhal tonight and Saturday evening in the YMCA pool. They plan to go through their regular competitive routine both evenings, in conjunction with the YM boys' swim meet.

Coach Mrs. Pansy Forbes, and Mrs. Violet Heffernan—in charge of the music—will take 17 girls to Chicago for the big aquatic meet, lasting two days, on Tuesday. Peterborough girls made excellent showings at Des Moines in 1948 and last year at Chicago, Cleveland and Detroit. It is the only Canadian entry and will carry the Union Jack and sing "O Canada" just prior to the competitions, at which several Canadian officials will attend. They will appear also on the "Breakfast Club" program on the air on March 23.

Advertise District

"I am prepared to tell a good fish story on that program," Mrs. Forbes says, feeling that it is good advertising for the Kawartha district. The Canadian competitors are always treated very well in their meets across the line, and they have brought credit to their country in these events.

The local club will have two teams entered, one of nine girls and the other of six, as well as four duets and one solo. Those performing there on March 24 and 25 are: Norma Gant, June Storey, Mary Rutherford, Irs Reilly, Jean Millard, Betty Welch, Isabel Crary, Shirley Moldaver, Maureen Finn, Beverly Rumary, Norma Delaney, Nanita Bogue, Mary Gordoniere, Mary Dorset, Joan Lynch, Joan Monk and Sally Hartman.

Two weeks ago her face was drawn and haggard . . . her dark eyes red from weeping . . . as she and her trapper husband raced with death through the woods . . . .

Today, she smiles again and her heart sings a thankful song. For today her little girl lives . . . nursed back from the valley of the shadow by the skilled hands and sympathetic care of a Red Cross Outpost Hospital nurse.

Discover Israel Tough Spot For Night Life—There Isn't Any

By LARRY ALLEN,

TEL AVIV, Israel, March 17.—(AP)—Austere Israel is a tough spot for any one who likes night life. There isn't any.

The Israeli Government never lets the people of this new country forget that things are hard and they're going to stay that way for a long time.

The government says the people have to go without many of the things they'd like to eat and wear and much of the fun they'd like to have. Irsaelis are told they have a big job to do to absorb tens of thousands of immigrants and work must come before pleasure.

That's not a mere statement of policy. It's pretty much of an accomplished fact. Israelis have to spend most of what they earn in channels which contribute to building a sound economy, whether they like it or not.

No Night Clubs

Night club entertainment doesn't figure in the economic picture. There's no such thing as a floor show or a night club anywhere in Israel.

After a hard day's work, the average Israel can, for instance:

Join a private bridge game, play table tennis, go to a movie or concert, sit at a sidewalk cafe and drink and talk, read a book, stroll along the Mediterranean, or elbow his way into a hotel or restaurant where there's music.

Sometimes in these small establishments, there's room for dancing. Music may come from a lone piano player or an orchestra of four or five. There are no casinos, race tracks or any gambling dens.

Generally speaking, at midnight all of Tel Aviv, and other cities and towns, close up tight.

Two or three cafes have special permission to stay open to around 2 a.m. That's so movie-theatre employees, waiters and other late workers may have tea and a snack before going home.

The local market doesn't offer much in quality to quench one's thirst. A glass of Israeli beer is weaker than a new-born kitten. With possibly one or two exceptions, nobody would write home favorably about local wines. Cognac is just fair.

Black Dynamite

Tea is consumed in big quantities because the coffee, heavily mixed with chicory or barley, could best be called black dynamite. Beer runs about 50 cents a glass; tea and coffee about 30 cents.

Foreigners and tourists however, don't have to drink local products. French champagne is available in spots. It costs from $18 to $22 a bottle. A Scotch and soda runs from $1.20 to $1.50 a drink. The same goes for any imported cognac. Quotations are higher in hotels and restaurants.

Israel is no place for gourmets. Four days a week there's a steady diet of sogy, frozen fish, dark bread, a handful of carrots and peas in the restaurants. White bread can be had upon request and soups are available, too. No butter or milk is available. The children of Israel get the milk supplies.

If you had a few cocktails or a bottle of wine to this typical daily meal, you can get out by paying anything from $5 to $10.

Three days a week ther's meat, Rarely is it beefsteak.

In spite of all these rough edges in everyday living one finds the average Israeli, while ready to grumble, also ready to laugh and look forward to a better day.

Two Top U.S. Leaders Disagree About War

WASHINGTON, March 17 (AP) — Two top American military leaders appeared at odds Wednesday night on the imminence of a third world war.

On Capitol Hill, Senator Elmer Thomas (Dem., Okla.) quoted Gen. Omar N. Bradley as saying he sees no danger of a "shooting war" with Russia in the near future.

In Buffalo, N. Y., Gen. George C. Kenney of the air force declared:

"The new D-day of a third world conflict might be much closer than we had thought."

Order New Crackdown

ROME, March 17—(AP)—Interior Minister Mario Scelba Thursday night ordered a new crackdown against Communist-inspired violence in Italy. Emerging from a meeting with Premier Alcide De Gasperi, the interior minister said recent disorders have "required the government to reaffirm vigorously its directives for the maintenance of public order."

Quite A Difference

MISHAWAKA, Ind., March 17 (AP)—The mother of three-day-old twin girls born shortly after she collapsed in a restaurant said Thursday she mistook her labor pains for an upset stomach. "I had pains like that before when I ate poisoned lettuce," said Mrs. Margie Anderson Johnson, 39. "It was a shock when I awoke and found I had twins."

Soviet Gold Centre Built In Far East By Slaves

Far to the North of the temperate regions of the Soviet Far East lies one of the grimmest landscapes in the world where the Kolyma River, frozen for eight or nine months of the year, empties itself into the Arctic Ocean, Edward Crankshaw writes in The Montreal Star.

Here lie the rich Kolyma goldfields from which a road runs south across the Kolyma mountains to the Sea of Okhotsk. On the windswept rocky cliffs of the Sea of Oghotsk the Kremlin, at the beginning of the thirties decided to build a great city to serve as the capital of the then almost uninhabited North-East and to administer the vast goldfields.

Slave Enterprise

The story of the building of Magadan, of the terrible road from Magadan across mountains and Arctic swamps to Srednikan in the midst of the goldfields is one of the most terrible stories in the history of the world. It is all the more terrible because what was really a huge-scale and totally ruthless slave enterprise was disguised by propaganda as an example of enlightened socialist construction.

The building of Magadan itself, with its great municipal buildings, its House of Rest and Culture, its gardens full of flowers specially conditioned to flourish in the Northern climate, was signalized as a great triumph of man over nature, made possible only by the liberating idea of Leninist-Marxism.

The plant breeding stations set up to produce fruit, grain and vegetables which would stand that fearful climate, in order to administer to the comfort of the warders of a million prisoners, were held up as examples of the disinterested pursuit of science possible only in the Soviet Union.

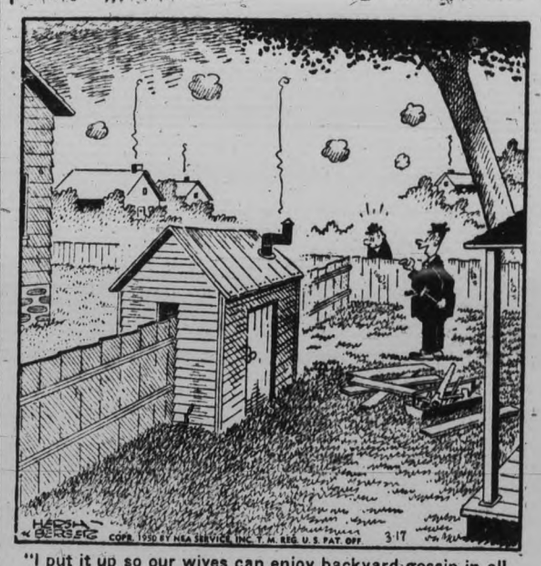
Even the ocean itself was degraded. For the first successful voyage of the steamer Rabochi through the celebrated North-Eastern passage which for centuries had attracted the most adventurous seafaring spirits, was used to bring a cargo of prisoners from Archangel to Magadan.

And the whole aim and purpose of this colossal and hideous enterprise was to exploit the gold of the Kolyma basin — that gold which, according to Lenin, was the root of all evil in the capitalist world and which they, the enlightened Bolsheviks, were going to use for the fittings in their public lavatories. Instead it has become the sole object and stay of a police-state within a police-state: the great land ruled over by the M. V. D., three times the size of France, with its new capital of Magadan and inhabited, apart from a handful of Eskimo-like natives, solely by prisoners and their guards, with a sprinkling of highly-paid volunteer specialists and technicians.

I have never been to Magadan or seen the Kolyma River. But I have seen other and less grim parts of the same sort of landscape in other parts of North Russia, the barren "taiga" where the earth is perpetually frozen, just below the surface, so that in the short, intense summer the melted snow and ice cannot drain away and turns the landscape into swamp above which mosquitoes dance in vast clouds.

In winter, the frosts can kill. And it is not hard to believe that during the first winter of the Kolyma enterprise whole camps were lost, prisoners in their thousands, guards, N.K.V.D. (former name of M. V. D.) commanders and the gray prison dogs, perishing without a single survivor to tell the tale of disaster—disaster matched by the story of the transport ship Dzhurma which started from Vladivostok to Magadan with 12,000 prisoners packed so that they could scarcely move.

The ship left too late in the season, got caught in the ice and after that terrible winter arrived in Magadan without a single prisoner to unload.



Camps Typical

I have seen these prisoners not in Kolyma, but in those other desperate landscapes of the north as well as in more temperate parts of Russia. In those days one tried to believe that what one saw was the terrible exhaustion, due to wartime conditions. Now it is clear that the odd camps one stumbled against were typical of thousands —the endless lines of flimsy huts ments behind barbed wire, the watch towers on stilts furnished with searchlights and machine guns; the brutalized guards, themselves criminals set in authority over the politicals; the prisoners themselves facing the terrible winter in rags, with broken ravaged faces and eyes that never left the ground.

I have seen prisoners fall dead with exhaustion on the march and left lying in the snow. I have seen them in convoy trains, staring blankly out of the gratings of their cattle trucks, left without food sometimes for days on sidings.

Nobody knows how many prisoners there are. But they run into millions.

Tire-Test Driver Has Tiresome Job

BIRMINGHAM, England — (CP) — Every day in his five-day work week, Arthur Akins drives a car from Birmingham to London, has a bite of lunch, then drives all the way back to Birmingham.

He has been doing it week after week for the last 10 years.

Arthur, aged 52, is a tire-test driver for a well known rubber company. His job is to give tires the wear-and-tear they would receive at the hands of an average motorist, under normal road conditions.

At Longoner, he started tire-testing in 1920 and has since covered 1,500,000 miles, equivalent to 60 times round the world.

"At present I'm doing about 60,000 miles a year," he said.

Protest Exaggerated Cracks Cheapen St. Patrick's Day

OTTAWA, March 17 — (CP) — Ottawa's Irish Historical Society is a bit peeved about what it terms the "cheapening of the observance of St. Patrick's Day."

"It's not that we object to humor or the old dig," said George McHugh, the society's vice-president, "but we don't like to see the Irish ridiculed in such a manner as to suggest they are subnormal.

"It's not the caricaturing of the national characteristics and the cheapening of the celebration of a feast day that we are opposed."

Where, except on the radio or the stage, does one hear people use such expressions as "begorra" or "'bejabers," McHugh asked.

"And what have pigs and potatoes to do with the celebration of the national day of a great country?"

He added that the linking of the Irish with Pat and Mike and the pig sty were carry-overs from the time when opponents of Irish freedom found it politically convenient to ridicule the sons of Erin.

And the society thinks the whole thing reeks with impropriety.

School Board Chooses Readers

HAVELOCK, March 17 (ENS) —The public school board of education, Inspector Birkin and the boards and staff of SS No. 6, SS No. 10, school areas one and two and the Havelock public school staff met recently when Mr. Birkin explained that under the new curriculum, the boards would purchase the required readers for grades primary to grade six.

The primary division covers grades one to three and the junior division grades four to six.

The local board decided to use the curriculum foundation series, 1948, for the primary devision and the New World readers for the junior division.

During the business session of the Havelock board, on motion of trustees Chevalier and Marten, Mr. Birkin was requested to ask the Board of Education, hydro engineer inspector to make a survey of the wiring and lighting in the school and that the secretary notify H. McCabe that his tender for wiring will be held until after the inspection.

R. Vincent asked the board for screens for the windows of the school and the property committee was authorized to make the necessary purchases.

The truant officer's report showed the school was open 20 days in February with an average attendance of 149.33 out of an enrollment of 171. The actual aggregate was 2,986 out of a perfect aggregate of 3,420. The percentage was 87.321.

On motion of trustees Calnan and Marten the secretary was authorized to ask the Victorian Order of Nurses for information regarding health services.

Blind Girl Hopes Get Sight Back

NEW YORK, March 17 (CP)—A 19-year-old London, Ont., girl underwent an operation here Wednesday to restore her sight.

Doreen Stoutenburg, who has been blind in one eye for several years and has been going blind in the other, underwent a corneal operation at Manhattan Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital.

The delicate operation involved putting the cornea—the eye's outer covering—from a good eye onto the patient's eye.

The eye and all expenses involving the eye were donated by the Eye Bank for Sight Restoration.

An official of the Eye Bank said there were no complications in the operation, and the chances of success are good.

The London girl has a special reason for wanting her eye, the Eye Bank spokesman said. She plans to get married soon.

Mock Amphibious War Staged In Cuba By U.S.

By HANSON W. BALDWIN.

GUANTANAMO BAY, Cuba, March 17—Portex, the joint Puerto Rican exercise just completed, shattered a number of precedents and possibly opened a new chapter in the technique of amphibious and joint operations.

Senior ranking officers who spoke at the critique held on Vieques this week and observers who had witnessed the two week war game agreed that the maneuver was not only the largest amphibious maneuver ever held in peacetime but it also was the first amphibious airborne exercise in the United States' experience in which all three services had participated since the Unification Act was passed. Thus it was the first exercise of its kind but probably also the last.

Large amphibious operations against small land masses are viewed by some high-ranking observers as things of the past, and considerable reserve had been expressed in Washington, before the start of Portex (named for Puerto Rican exercise) about the wisdom of spending so much money, time and effort on what some Army and Air Force officers and a few Naval officers regard as the tactics of the past war.

Portrex Satisfactory

These reservations may be broken down, at least in part, when Portrex has been fully evaluated and the lessons it taught learned, for there can be no doubt that from a somewhat indifferent beginning it progressed to a very satisfactory end.

The majority of the officers at the critique thought Portrex one of the best and most realistic joint exercises ever held.

Rear Admiral Jerauld Wright, whose command and staff were the brain and nerve centre of the amphibious operation and who had brought the Atlantic Fleet amphibious force to a high state of efficiency in the past year, said he noted with "misgiving that there is no large three-service exercise scheduled for next year."

In any war of the future, he said, any operation would be a joint operation and all peacetime manoeuvres, he declared, should include participation by units from other services.

Manoeuvres Costly

Rear Admiral Daniel E. Barbey, however, sided with some of the Washington skeptics and said he questioned the advisability of such "costly and magnificent" manoeuvres annually.

Other opinion was divided, but it seems certain first, that Portrex was a highly successful manoeuvre and, second, that it will not be repeated in the precise form it took this year.

The purposes of the manoeuvre were four-fold: To provide training in joint operations, to test the validity of techniques and procedures for joint operations and to accumulate knowledge concerning the principles governing a joint amphibious-airborne operation, to service-test new equipment, and to provide training for the defense forces of the Caribbean Command.

Training Realistic

The first and fourth purposes were completely fulfilled. The training was hard and realistic and the whole manoeuvre better conducted and the troops, particularly the defence troops in a higher state of training than in any other amphibious manoeuvre conducted since the war.

Communist Strike Ended In Venice

VENICE, Italy, March 17 (AP) —A Communist-led general strike which spread from this city of canals to industrial suburbs and nine neighboring provinces ended today after halting normal business for 24 hours.

The strike, called to protest the wounding of seven workers by police gunfire during a demonstration here Tuesday, even brought gondola traffic on the canals to a stop.

Communist leaders of Italy's general Confederation of Labor asked in Rome for a parliamentary investigation into the shootings. They demanded once again that police be disarmed.

Noronic Stories Capture Prizes

TORONTO, March 17 (CP) — The best news coverage of fires in Toronto in 1949 was concerned almost exclusively with the biggest and most disastrous fire of the year—the burning of the Noronic last Sept. 17—a board of judges from the Toronto Men's Press Club announced today.

The fire aboard the Great Lakes cruise ship, which took 119 lives, was the subject of three of the four entries which shared $1,000 in prizes put up by the Toronto Fire Fighters' Association for the best fire stories and pictures of the year published by a Toronto newspaper.

James Y. Nicol of the Telegram won the $300 first prize for the best story, with the assistance of other Telegram reporters in obtaining his facts. An eyewitness account of the Noronic fire by Allan Kent of the Telegram won the $200 second prize.

A picture of a cigar-smoking passenger leaving the burning ship won the $300 first prize in the picture division for Nelson Quarrington of the Telegram.

J. Douglas Croft of the Daily Star won second prize with a picture of a youth rescuing four persons from a fire May 2, 1949.

Young Alberta Heiress Finds Romance In Scotland

LISMORE ISLAND, Scotland, (CP). — A young heiress from Champion, Alta., and a handsome young ferryman from a tiny island off the West Coast of Scotland, are principals in a fairy-tale romance.

The couple are 26-year-old Morag MacDougall of Champion and Colin Black, also 26, of Point House, Lismore Island. He lives with his parents, 19-year-old Jean and a twin brother.

Three years ago, Morag, an only child, went to Scotland for the first time to visit her late father's birthplace on Lismore Island. With her went her mother and her uncle, Charles MacDougall.

Colin took the party over in his trim ferryboat from Port Appin, 16 miles north of Oban on the Argyllshire mainland. After that, when Morag returned to Canada, she and Colin corresponded regularly. Then in May, 1949, Morag and her mother flew back to Scotland to spend another six months on Lismore Island.

At the end of that time Morag and Colin became engaged. Date of the wedding has not yet been fixed. But it will be a big wedding and after their honeymoon the couple will settle at Colin's island home.

Morag's father, Sandy MacDougall, emigrated to Canada from Scotland in 1905. He worked on cattle ranches, studied breeding, and saved his money, all with one aim in view—to own his own land.

In 1920 he achieved his ambition and when he died in 1942 his prestige as a cattle breeder was so great that he was known in Alberta as "the Shorthorn King."

MORE CO-OPERATION WITH FEDERAL GOV'T. IN BUDGET SPEECH

Ontario Will Co-operate On Financial Problems

TORONTO, March 17—(CP)—Premier Frost said today in his budget address to the Ontario Legislature that co-operation, good will, determination and "the machinery to get things done" can solve Dominion - Provincial financial problems.

The Dominion and Province already share the corporation tax and succession duty fields and the Premier announced in his address Ontario would also seek to share the personal income tax field with the Dominion Government. Ontario would take up the Federal government's offer of five per cent of personal income tax collected in Ontario and would ask the Dominion to collect it for her.

"As between the federal and provincial Governments we are very anxious to arrive at measures which will completely remove inconvenience to taxpayers by obviating duplication of forms," he said.

Can Co-operate

There was no reason, for instance, why either Government could not make assessments which would be accepted by the other. Arrangements for joint taxing in these three fields could be so simplified that each Government would have the same direct interest without inconvenience to the taxpayer.

In 1947 Ontario had refrained from re-entering the personal income tax field to "permit the federal Government to reduce taxation."

"In 1950 the situation is altered and the provincial Government is faced with very large work projects which come from the postponement of public works during the war and adjustment years."

Conferences Held

Conferences were being held between federal and provincial authorities to arrange for Ontario to collect a tax on logging operations. At the Dominion-provincial conference of 1945 the federal government had agreed that taxes on such industries as mining and logging were properly a provincial field.

Ontario had taken advantage of the situation as far as mines were concerned, but "because of the difficulty of determining logging profit" taxes from logging were not collected by the province.

"Discussions now are being held with the federal authorities in order to establish methods and accounting procedures by which the province may levy taxes on logging operations as it now is doing on mining without affecting the net position of logging operators," he said.

It was hoped a bill to this effect could be introduced before the end of the current session of the Legislature.

The provincial income tax of $13,000,000 to $16,000,000 and the logging tax of $1,000,000 "will assist in rationalizing federal-provincial relationships and will give to the province the monies to which it is justly entitled without raising—and in fact somewhat lowering—the tax presently paid by Ontario taxpayers."

Nursery Stock Demands Leap

TORONTO, March 17 (CP) — Increased demand for forest nursery stock and prospectors' licences illustrate Ontario's growing interest in development of natural resources, Premier Frost said today in his budget address.

Demand for nursery stock increased sharply and production facilities of Department of Lands and Forests nurseries have been substantially expanded, he said.

The total number of miner's licenses to prospect taken out or renewed increased by 1,300 in 1949. The number of claims recorded increased 5,000. Total value of Ontario's mineral production in 1949 was $315,000,000, an increase of $21,000,000 over 1948.

There was considerable exploration and development of asbestos during 1949 in the district of Matheson in northern Ontario, he said.

"Asbestos has not heretofore been produced commercially in Ontario, but a new mill for its production is nearing completion and is expected to be in operation this year."

Photographing of Ontario's forests was "practically completed" and preparation of topographical maps would be completed in the next fiscal year.

Farm Research Gets $500,000

TORONTO, March 17 — (CP)— Ontario this year will spend almost $500,000 in agricultural research, Premier Frost said today in his budget address to the Ontario Legislature.

More than 300 individual research projects are being carried out by the Agriculture Department, he said. To ensure that new developments can be quickly translated into practice the department's entension staff is being strengthened.

Teh important job of the department was to provide greater support for the marketing of farm produce, speed products to ready market, and seek out new markets.

To improve rural life the government was attempting to provide clear highways, skating rinks, athletic fields and community halls, aid in education and extension of electricity to farm residents. Service would be extended to an additional 30,000 in the next year.

During 12 months ending Oct. 31 4,738 miles of rural hydro lines were built and 35,206 customers added.

School Enrolment 727,000 In Ontario

TORONTO, March 17.—(CP).—Enrolment in Ontario schools increased 81,000 in the last six years and now stands at 727,000, Premier Frost said in his budget speech in the Ontario Legislature today.

A building program, to keep pace with the increasing enrolment, reached its full volume last year. Two hundred and eight new schools, or additions to existing schools, had been built at a cost of about $25,000,000, providing accommodation for an additional 27,000 pupils. In the coming year, another 228 school buildings, providing facilities for 32,000 pupils, would be completed.

"By September, 1951, Ontario will have largely overcome the shortage of functional school buildings, which has been a legacy of two wars," said the Premier, "and the province will compare favorably with any similar area in Europe or North America."

Premier Comes Close To Record

TORONTO, March 17.—(CP).—When Premier Frost moved that the Ontario Legislature go into committee of supply today as he read his budget address he came close to the longevity record for Ontario provincial treasurers.

He remarked at the outset of his speech that it was the eighth time that he had moved the supply motion, and that only two of his predecessors had topped that number—they reached the ninemark.

Hon. Richard Harcourt delivered his first budget speech in 1891 and his last in 1899. Mr. Frost remarked that the aggregate ordinary revenue covered by Mr. Harcourt's speeches amounted to $34,600,000 and ordinary expenditure to $34,900,000—an average of less than $4,000,000 a year. Ordinary expenditure for the present fiscal year would exceed that by 60 times.

The premier did not name the second nine-year man but he was Hon. A. J. Matheson who held the portfolio from 1905 to 1913.

Mr. Frost became treasurer in 1943 and held the portfolio last year when he became premier.

Use 31 Million Monthly On Investment

TORONTO, March 17 — (CP)— Ontario's public investment is at the rate of more than $31,000,000 a month and the volume of private investment in new plant machinery and equipment continues at a high level, Premier Frost said to-day in his budget address.

Volumeof public and private investment in new capital in 1950 will be about the same as last year when more than $1,300,000,000 was invested in Ontario. The banking system was strong in liquid reserves and in a position to extend credit where justified.

The direct capital investment program of the Ontario government this year was about $75,000,000 and the approximate monthly rate more than $6,000,000. Capital investment for highways made up almost half this toal. Most of the balance was spread over public works, resource development and rural extensions.

The Ontario Northland Railway's capital expenditure was about $9000,000 and that of the University of Toronto $2,400,000. Ontario municipalities septn $88,000,000 on capital investment and their current monthly outlay on new works was more than $7,000,000

$300,000,000 Investment.

Total Provincial-Municipal capital investment in 1949 was $300,000,000. Counting housing projects financed in part by Ontario Government loans, the monthly rate is more than $31,000,000.

The Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission was carrying on the largest public investment program in the province. In the fiscal year ending March 31 it would havt spent $150,000,000 an average of $12,000,000 a month.

The government's public investment plans were calculated to increase revenue and improve business conditions.

"During this year business conditions in the Province have been greatly stimulated by the development projects of this government which are all tending to a more presperous Province," Mr. Frost said. "Daily with greater power resources, facilities more industry is being directed to this Province with greater revenue."

The credit of the Province and its subsidiaries was in excellent condtion "with the result that we have been able to obtain excellent accommodation from the investing public from whom we obtain funds for development of our Province."

At March 31, 1950, it was estimaed the let debt of the Province would amount to $520,744,000.

Built Through Pass

VICTORIA, March 17.—(CP).—The British Columbia Legislature decided Thursday that oil and natural gas lines from Alberta to the coast and south across the border to the United States should be constructed through the Yellowhead Pass of the Rockies. It agreed, too, the lines should pass through the interior of the province to Vancouver, with provision for extension to the Peace River block when sufficient supplies are available in that area.

Hydro-Electric Development Remarkable Sign Ontario Growth

TORONTO, March 17—(CP)—The development of hydro-electric power is one of the most remarkable signs of Ontario's growth in the first half of the 20th century which has seen the province's population grow from 2,200,000 to more than 4,500,000, Premier Frost said today in his budget address.

Since the turn of the century Ontario's population has doubled but Hydro production has increased 60-fold, he said.

The Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, established in 1906 began distributing power in 1909. In 1900 only a little more than 50,000 horsepower was developed. In 1949 the province's utilities produced about 3,000,000 h.p.—7/10 horsepower for every man, woman and child.

The first concrete highway in Ontario was built between Toronto and Hamilton between 1915 and 1917 at a cost of $926,000. Today Ontario had 73,000,000 miles of highway of which 8,000 miles were surfaced with concrete or bituminous material and 50,000 miles by crushed stone or gravel. Motor vehicle registrations grew from less than 200 in 1900 to more than 1,000,000 today.

Aids Industrial Expansion

The Ontario Northland Railway which facilitated development of northern Ontario's resources was first started in 1903. It was in the first year of construction of the railway that rich deposits of silver and cobalt were found in the Nipissing district. Gold was discovered at Porcupine in 1909 and at Kirkland Lake in 1911.

"The railway has materially facilitated the expansion of the pulp and paper industry," the Premier said. "This industry has served as a counter pay load to the inbound traffic to the mines. The Ontario Northland Railway has not only created these industries but has promoted farming, established communities, and has pushed back the northern frontier."

New Crops Added

The half-century change in farming was marked by a 30-fold increase in the tobacco crop to more than 100,000,000 pounds. New crops such as soya beans and sugar beets were added. Butter production increased 10-fold.

In 1900 there were 10 small pulp mills whose production would not have met the needs of three of 1950's large newspapers. The capacity of the pulp and paper industry now represents an investment in Ontario of more than $300,000,000.

Mineral production in 1949 was worth $315,000,000, 34 times greater than in 1900. Mining industries in Ontario directly employ about 33,000 persons.

Boost Production

In the first year of the century, Ontario manufacturers processed material valued at $138,000,000 into products worth $242,000,000. In 1949 the gross value of manufactured products was more than $6,000,000,000 made from materials costing $3,300,000,000. The number of employees engaged in manufacturing increased about 3½ times while payrolls increased 23 times.

Medical science, better hospital care, higher living standards, education and public services had added 18 years to the life expectancy of Ontario citizens, Mr. Frost said. Life expectancy of males increased from 48 in 1900 to 66 today and of females from 51 to 70 years.

Ingenious Woman Changes Hutches To Model Chalet

By ANDY ANDERSON

LAKE WALES, Fla., — (CP) — Chalet Suzanne is what you can do with a few rabbit hutches, some imaginating and a background of world travel.

Mrs. Bertha Hinshaw had these —and little else except an enormous capacity for doing things — when she was faced with the necessity of making a living and rearing two small children.

Friends told her she was a little daft, but what she started 16 years ago has made for her a quiet but far-flung reputation for good food and lodging; and has prompted some reputable hotel men to take a page from her book.

Chalet Suzanne is a veritable doll's village near here. It looks like something out of afar-off land tucked strangely behind a fold of the low-rolling hills of the lush Florida citrus ridge section.

Your quarters at first puzzle, then delight you. Doors are sometimes so low that anyone nearing six feet must stoop, almost no two rooms are on the same level. One apartment has a bedroom 13 by 13 feet, a sitting-room eight by eight around a corner, a bathroom with standing space only of about 30 inches—and 30 windows.

The furniture and rugs may have come from Victorian England or Persia—or an obscure second-hand or antique shop.

Guests eat food of unusual preparation and unsurpassed quality with silver and from china and pottery dishes from almost every country you can name. They drink from world-gathered goblets which hold from a few ounces to something just short of a quart.

Chalet Has Lake

There are 30 rooms at the chalet, including efficiency cottages and apartments; and you may take your meals in the dining room which juts out over bass-filled Lake Suzanne, or in your private patio, or where you please.

The remarkable thing about this place is that there is no breakage. Guests hold the unusual glass and dishes in too high regard to be careless. And there is just no thievery, probably due to the charm of Mrs. Hinshaw.

People who boast of turning a stable or barn into a country home can take a lesson from this hardy woman whose banker-husband retired in the prime of life, only to have the stock market wipe him out and leave him so utterly dejected that pneumonia killed him in four days.

Mr. Hinshaw bought the estate where Chalet Suzanne now is. When he found himself without money he spent his last few thousand dollars to see if rabbit-raising could be a livelihood. It wasn't—and suddenly his widow had to make her own way.

Fire has forced her to rebuild part of the chalet, since she turned their home, their playrooms, the rabbit butches, the stables, a huge chicken house and servants' quarters into the quiet spot at the end of a quarter-mile old brick road leading from the highway.

Two great assets are Mrs. Hinshaw's son Carl, 27, who has absorbed her delicate culinary touch and supervises the kitchen; and his wife Vita who is mistress of the dining room.

Mrs. Hinshaw describes herself as "a worker"—which means if something needs repairing, she will probably do it. She goes abroad almost every year, and each time the costuming of the women folk of the chalet reflects her visits (this year it is Norway).

She is up each morning about four, and gives her age like this: "I have always said I will never be older than 65."

Frost Announces Amusements To Cost Less

TORONTO, March 17 — (CP)— Amusements are going tocost less in Ontario, Premier Frost said today in his budget address in the Ontario Legislature.

The 20-per-cent amusement tax on hospitals on admission to places of amusement will be reduced to approximately 15 per cent on "the distinct understanding" that the operators will pass the reduction on to their patrons.

"Already we have letters from the majority of the theatre operators in the Provnice undertaking to pass this tax reduction in total to the people and it is emphasized that the reduction in tax is made with that positive condition," the Premier said.

For children, the government will exempt from tax tickets of less than 15 cents. Tax on other tickets is called fromed a two-cent levey on tickets costing between 18 and 23 cents to a 15-cent tax on those between 96 and 99 cents. Over 99 cents the tax is 15 per cent.

Change Payments.

Under the 1943 hospital aid act revenue collected from this tax was paid into the hospitals aid fund. In future it will be paid into the consolidated revenue fund so that assistance to hospitals may be budgetted and voted in the esimates by the legislature.

Becaues of "rising costs and the impact of inflationary forces" government will increase aid to hospitals by giving each public general hospital and sanitorium a special grant of 25 per cent of the maintenance grant it received in 1949.

This special grant which will cost about $3,000,000 will be in addition to ordinary 1950 grants and will be paid before next April 30.

Get Wheat Agreement

SYDNEY, Australia, March 17. —(CP).—The Sydney Morning Herald said today that Australia has reached agreement on the sale of "a very large" quantity of wheat to Britain. It added that the Australian wheat board is keeping the price a closely-guarded secret. An official announcement, the paper said, is expected within a week.

Ontario Government Plans Have Racing Commission

TORONTO, March 17 (CP) — The Ontario government will establish a racing commission to regulate race tracks in the province Premier Frost announced today in his budget speech in the Ontario Legislature.

Hand-in-hand with that was the news that the government is increasing its 10 per cent tax on pari-mutuel betting to 12½ per cent and that it wants betting by bookmaking at harness race meetings brought to an end.

And the Premier, speaking in his capacity as provincial treasurer, got into the sport news picture still further by announcing that the provincial amusement tax for hospitals—cut by the budget from 20 per cent to 15 per cent—will apply in future to professional or semi-professional sports—"that is, where the players are paid."

Since the tax was first levied in 1948 it has not applied to sports like Big Four football, Ontario Hockey Association Junior A or Senior A series or intercounty and otherbaseball where players get cash for their services.

Apply On Salaries

The Premier said it is intended to exempt all amateur sports from the tax but it will apply when players draw a salary for their services to their teams.

"Members of the house will appreciate the great difficulty in defining 'amateur sport,' but the interpretation will be worked out between officials of the treasury department and of the Athletic Commission," he said.

"It is to be hoped that a fair and workable formula will be found. Let me assure the house that the interpretation will be broad, even generous but it will be uniformly applied and will be designed to meet the situation in a manner which will be fair to all concerned. It is the intention of the government that all amusements operated for private gain or profit will be taxable . . ."

The premier said that the present racing situation is unsatisfactory. The province has left the regulation of horse racing to the business itself. However, the province had no jurisdiction over betting which was a federal matter. Betting was by pari-mutuels on running tracks and by bookmakers on harness racing.

The government planned three steps: 1. To establish a racing commission to regulate tracks; 2 an effort to have the federal government amend the Criminal Code to make use of pari-mutuel machines mandatory at harness racing; 3. to increase is pari-mutuel tax by 2½ per cent.

Stage Big 'Raid'

KAISERSLAUTERN, Germany, March 17—(Reuters)—An "aggressor" air armada today carried out heavy "raids" on many parts of the British Isles as part of the big United States military exercise "Shamrock," which began in Germany Thursday. A U.S. Air Force spokesman said that all big RAF airfields in Britain were heavily "bombed and strafed" by rockets and machine-gun fire as an "enemy" air striking force of 1,200 fighters and bombers launched an attack in the most realistic combined staff-training exercise yet held by American forces in Europe.

from the throne. In this vote it was straight opposition-against the-government and the count was 151 to 51.

The address cimply thanks the governor-general for having read the speech from the throne at the opening of parliament Feb. 16. The speech outlined the government's legislative program for the session and by voting against adoption of the address opposition parties were indicating their dissatisfaction with that program.

The speech from the throne was highlighted by the government's announcement that additional assistance would be provided to help Canada's unemployed through the difficult winter months. The bill providing for additional payments to about 100,000 unemployed already has been passed and given Royal assent.

Staggers To Close

Throne-speech debate staggered to a close after Solon Low, Social Credit leader, moved his motion of non-confidence in the government. He stressed the need for reforms to eliminate weaknesses in the capitalistic system. There was a need to put an end to weaknesses that caused such things as unemployment.

If people had sufficient purchasing power they could buy practically all that was produced. Surpluses piled up when people did not have the money to buy the goods they needed.

He said he was opposed to a straight contributory old age pension system, because there were some people who could not contribute and thus would be denied a pension. A contributory system, he said, might be adopted as a supplement to the present non-contributory system.

Ross Thatcher (CCF-Moose Jaw) said the revenue department should wage its campaign on tax-delinquent farmers on a universal basis. He had nothing against Quebec, but he noted that farmers in that province in 1947 paid only $79,000 in income tax. In the same year 16,893 Saskatchewan farmers paid tax of $4,900,000; 13,985 Alberta farmers paid $4,000,000 and 7,286 Manitoba farmers paid $1,600,000.

RARE EYE OPERATION—Doreen Stoutenburg, 19-year old hairdresser's assistant of London, Ont., was slowly going blind until doctors performed a rare operation which is expected to restore her failing sight. Blind in one eye since childhood and with the other eye slowly becoming weaker, she had a fresh cornea, the eye's outer covering transplanted from a good eye. Officials of the Eye Bank For Sight Restoration, Incorporated, said that as far as they know the operation was successful. Here Miss Stoutenburg is shown with her fiance, Lou Stacey. They plan to be married May 20.

He challenged the government to call a general election on the issue of unemployment.

Sees Ontario Goods

Mr. Millard said he visited Newfoundland last week and found Ontario goods on sale in shops.

"But when you have 14,000 unemployed in a pocket in Saint John and Belle Isle they are not good customers," he said.

If the government was afraid of communism it would have to make private enterprise work to provide jobs, he said.

"I am quite prepared to allow the good people of this province to decide between the position you are taking and the one we are taking."

The Steep Rock iron ore deposits in Northwestern Ontario had been delivered into the control of United States interests, he said. Mr. Millard suggested this was a case of the government "standing behind free enterprise whatever it does."

Mr. Calder drew from Mr. Frost a hint of redistribution of seats before the next Ontario election. He challenged the Premier to deny he planned to redistribute seats at the next session of the legislature.

Mr. Frost said there has been no redistribution for 20 years. In that time the population increased 1,500,000 and asked if Mr. Calder thought it was time for a change.

"It might be all right after an election," Mr. Calder said.

Mr. Frost: "We trust the people."

Throwing Money Away

Mr. Calder said the government was "throwing its money away" and with a general election coming up he would "prefer there be no scandal." Corruption was not so "gross" as it once was, he said.

Mr. Frost asked if he was suggesting the government was guilty of a scandal or corruption.

Mr. Calder: "I'm talking about the future. Everything is rosy now. . . ."

Mr. Porter said he had told the House last year progress in education would not be held up "just because a commission is sitting." Yet when he announced changes in the school system Mr. Millard was accusing him of "a great betrayal."

Part of Course

"Alcohol education in schools was part of the regular health course," he said. It was designed to "induce an attitude of temperance rather than to infuse into their minds a lot of propaganda about what they would do."

Answering Mr. Millard's charge that taxpayers bore "a crushing burden of taxation" to pay school costs, Mr. Porter said education cost the average Toronto taxpayer $40 a year—"just about the same as an annual telephone bill."

In his speech, Mr. Millard also said Progressive Conservative victories in the three by-elections since the last session could not be construed as endorsement of the Charitable Gifts Act.

"The air of confidence" worn by the government was "not very well based." Not only did it represent only about 40 per cent of the electorate but in the Cochrane north by-election it had to form a coalition to win.

capital assets of the province: improvements to highways, $117,514,862; provincial lands and buildings, $18,790,984; rural power transmission lines, $28,243,568; sundry, $3,600,840. In the same period, the province spent $513,885,136 on "human resources" — agriculture, education, health and public welfare.

Impressive Result

"In order that this most impressive result of our management of the public debt of the province may be fully appreciated may I point out that whereas the net debt of the province at March 31, 1943, amounting as it did to $495,441,000, represented a per capita net debt of $127.56, our net debt position expressed in terms of today's population denotes a per capita net debt of $115.72, or a reduction of $11.84."

The province's public investment program in the fiscal year now ending was the largest in its history and he forecast spending at an even greater rate in the coming year. Much of the investment was self-liquidating. Of the amount payable from taxes this year, approximately one-third had been paid from current revenue.

Public works in the coming year included a new head office in Toronto for the Workmen's Compensation Board and an annex to the legal centre of Osgoode Hall, both largely self-liquidating. A start was planned on a new treasury building near the present government buildings. Work was to be continued on the big East River and its tributaries in the Muskoka area on control dams to prevent flooding and "work on the new control outlet from Lake Nipissing will further reduce property damage in the vicinity of North Bay."

Gross Expenditure

Gross capital expenditure in the next year was estimated at $115,330,000 compared with $108,782,000 in the present year. The highways department—with a $46,700,000 building program in sight—is the biggest spender. Fifteen million dollars is to be spent by the Department of Public Works.

The Hydro-Electric Commission of Ontario, which spent about $130,000,000 this year, would spend more in the next. The Ontario Northland Railway was plowing back its earnings into capital equipment to maintain and improve efficiency of the system.

In his reference to the personal income tax, Mr. Frost said that in the last three budgets he refrained from accepting the federal government tax offer "to assist and encourage the federal government in making tax reductions to our people."

Situation Altered

"In 1950 the situation is altered and the provincial government is faced with very large work projects which come from the postponement of public works during the war and adjustment years . . . It has been felt because of the dominion - provincial conference which will take place this autumn that the provincial government should be in a position to claim these monies, which are actually due the province, providing the province can show that by appropriate taxing statutes the tax could be imposed by the province."

The premier said the procedure would be to repeal the old provincial income tax act of 1936. A new act would be passed enabling the province to levy a tax not exceeding five per cent of the federal tax. A further act would permit the province to enter into an arrangement under which the federal government would pay to the province five per cent of the income tax it collects in Ontario.

"The effect of this statute would be to rent the personal income tax field to the federal government on the payment to Ontario of an amount equal to five per cent of the taxes paid by Ontario taxpayers to the federal authorities."

The government would not otherwise impose the tax without putting the matter before the legislature again.

Logging Tax

Discussions were now being carried on with federal authorities so Ontario could levy a tax on logging operations, deductible from federal taxes. Revenue from this would amount to about $1,000,000 a year.

The assessment tax—officially known as the Hospitals Tax Act—came into force in April, 1948. It levied a 20-per-cent tax on amusements and the money went into a special hospital aid fund. Mr. Frost said experience had shown that it would be better to pay the revenue into the general provincial funds. Assistance to hospitals would be placed in the budget and voted by the legislature.

To help hospitals meet rising costs, the province would pay special grants equal to 25 per cent of the maintenance grant each hospital received in 1949. Payment would be made before April 30 and it would be in addition to the normal grants hospitals would receive in 1950. Cost was placed at $3,000,000.

Passed To Public

The reduction — from 20 per cent to 15 per cent—in the amusement tax was to be made on the understanding it would be passed on to the public. Many theatre operators had already undertaken to do so.

It was intended to exempt all amateur sports from the 15-per-cent ta xbut it would be applied to all "professional or semi-professional sports—that is, where the players are paid." Officials of the treasury department and the athletic commission would work out the definition of "amateur sport."

Grants to universities will be increased by $810,000, said Mr. Frost. The University of Toronto will get $3,017,000, an increase of $500,000; Queen's and Western $500,000 each, increases of $125,000; McMaster and the University of Ottawa will get $125,000 each, $25,000 more; Carleton College will get $75,0000, a $10,000 boost.

In the present year, the province paid $70,000,000 in subsidies and grants to municipalities for education and other purposes. Education grants in the next year would amount to $43,420,000, an increase of $5,136,000. Another $22,000,000 would be paid in municipal highway subsidies.

OTTAWA, March 17 (CP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent said Thursday in the Commons that Parliament's Easter recess may extend from Thursday, April 6, to Monday, April 17. He said no formal decision has yet been made, but the government has those dates in mind. A decision will be made when the government whip has discussed the matter with the whips of other parties.

Otonabee Youth Suffers Fractured Back

Roy Fife ,22 had his back fractured when he was struck by the limb of a falling tree on the farm of his father, Ernest Fife, on the fifth line of Otonabee township on Thursday.

He was rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital where it was discovered he also had several broken ribs and possible internal injuries.

His condition Thursday night was critical, but officials reported today he was improved.

Fife was given several blood transfusions during the late afternoon by Sergeant Leo Murphy and Traffic Officer Gordon Trennum of the city police, two members of the fire department and others.

Constable Stuart Fife of the city police, a brother of the injured man, also offered his blood but did not have the same type.

Young Fife and his father were cutting a forked tree about 100 yards from their farm house home. When the tree was nearly cut through, the two trunks suddenly split and began to fall in separate directions.

The son stood and yelled at his father to jump out of the way and was hit himself by one crooked limb which pinned him to the ground.

Aided by another son, Bert, who had been drawing the logs away, Mr. Fife was able to pull the injured young man out from under the tree and load him on a sleigh.

They were unable to get a doctor and had to bring him to hospital in their own car.

Link New Hospital With City Fire Hall

Plans for the installation of equipment to conect the new Civic Hospital with the city fire alarm system are being sent to the fire chief for approval, J. M. Hornal, hospital superintendent, told the board of governors Thursday.

The chief had inspected the building to check fire precautions and had asked that the hospital be linked with the city system.

The board approved the installation of the necessary equipment, which Mr. Hornal said would cost $500.

Funeral Saturday

The funeral of J. Gordon Armstrong will take place Saturday afternoon from All Saints Church where the service will be conducted by Rev. W. E. Kibblewhite beginning at 2 o'clock. He will be assisted by Rev Walter Gilling of St. Luke's Church and Rev. R. T. F. Brain of Toronto, formerly assistant at St. John's Anglican Church, and Chaplain of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders with which Major Armstrong enlisted in Peterborough.

2-Room School Building Plan At Bridgenorth

BRIDGENORTH, March 17 — (ENS) — A new two-roomed school building is to be erected on a site in front of the present school building. Ratepayers of S.S. 5 Smith township decided to have the new building instead of extending the present school, by a vote of 27-19 at a meeting Thursday.

The motion on which the ratepayers voted was that a modern two-roomed brick veneer school complete with full basement and the necessary plumbing be put on this property. The prices of land and cost of building are to be obtained and submitted to the ratepayers.

An amendement empowering the trustees to obtain a price on a two-roomed brick veneer school with full basement and the necessary plumbing, the site to be decided at a later meeting, was defeated by a vote of 26-21.

Present, Future Needs

The school inspector explained that 59 children are enrolled at the present time and a survey of pre-school children from three years of age up, added another 50 who would be enrolled in the next two or three years.

The entrance class numbers seven. It was, therefore, necessary that immediate action be taken since the Department of Education had condemned the church basement as a classroom.

Inspector Anderson outlined three courses to be taken. To leave the school as it was created an impossible situation. An entirely new school could be built on a new site or two rooms could be added to the present school.

Extension Would Cost $37,500

The inspector explained that the $26,000 which had been quoted as the cost of an extension did not include estimated figures for plumbing at $2,000; heating, $2,000; remodelling the old school, $3,000; architects, fees, six per cent; furnishings, $2,130; totalling an approximate $37,500. In addition, it would be necessary to purchase extra land surrounding the school.

D. McKay, chairman, said that a well would have to be drilled before anything else was done because the Department of Education would not approve erection of a school unless it was proved there was a water supply on the premises. This would be done immediately.

HOSPITAL GRADUATION

Civic Hospital nurses graduation is scheduled for June 5 J. R. Marshall, chairman, told the Board of Governors Thursday. The ceremony will take place in the Collegiate auditorium followed by a reception at the Empress Hotel.

Man Walked Into Moving Train Carried 130 Feet

Martin Quinn, 71, of 276 Wolfe St., walked into a moving CNR train engine at King and Bethune Sts. Thursday evening and was carried 130 feet with the train before dropping to the ground suffering from shock, a broken right ankle and head injuries.

He was in serious condition Thursday night, but through the night rallied and was much improved this morning St. Joseph's Hospital officials said.

Mr. Quinn's brother, Thomas, had died in St. Joseph's Hospital just an hour and a half before.

Gateman Sees Him

Earl Johnston, gate and signal operator at the level crossing saw Quinn walking toward the tracks. He saw him cross the street intersection at an angle from the south-west corner until he was in line with the north sidewalk of King St. He then turned east and walked into the front of the north-bound train.

From his tower Mr. Johnston shouted to the man, but Quinn showed no sign of hearing the shout.

Albert Downer, 458 Bolivar St., saw Quinn flying through the air after he was struck. The train's engineer was William Downer, Lindsay.

There are wig-wag signals at the crossing, but no gate barriers at that point.

Traffic officer Harold Mesley and Constable Allen Edmison investigated.

Merchants Protest Hospital Buying Supplies Outside

Peterborough merchants want Civic Hospital to buy more of its supplies from local firms in preference to soliciting tenders from manufacturers outside the city. When V. A. Selkirk told the Board of Governors Thursday that he had been asked "why more consideration is not given to local merchants in purchasing supplies for the hospital." Several other Board members said they had been approached in the same manner by Peterborough merchants.

J. R. Marshall, chairman of the board, said he thought a chance had never been missed for local merchants to tender for contracts they were capable of handling.

Thought Unfair

Mr. Selkirk said local businessmen felt it was unfair for the board to solicit bids from other firms.

"I cannot see that we have any right to pay retail prices when we can buy things in a wholesale way and save the taxpayers' money," Mr. Marshall said. "No money should be spent to favor one taxpayer at the expense of others," he claimed.

If local merchants were able to handle the business of supplying the hospital, it would help them to pay their taxes, Mr. Selkirk said.

Mayor M. J. Swanston claimed that when a customer asked a manufacturer for a commodity, that manufacturer should tell him where he could buy the article from a local dealer handling the goods as the manufacturer's representative.

Mr. Selkirk said he felt sure local merchants would let the hospital have the supplies at a wholesale price plus, perhaps, five per cent.

Proper Approach

When Mr. Marshall suggested this was a matter which should be dealt with between the manufacturers and the retail merchants, Mr. Selkirk agreed that was an acceptable approach to the problem.

J. D. Fitzpatrick said it was well known manufacturers had about four wholesale prices. The prices quoted to the hospital were not really the wholesale price. The entire Board nodded assent to this claim.

Knowing this, the retailers should take advantage of it and make an arrangement with the wholesalers, Mr. Marshall said. It was not a matter for the Board to decide but between the wholesaler and retailer.

"For some jobs a local merchant would have to take on about 10 extra men for three months, and then throw them out and lose some local business in the process," T. T. Rodger, treasurer, said.

It seemed futile to think that some articles were made in Peterborough and taken to Toronto before they went into Civic Hospital here, J. L. Welsh commented.

The general feeling of the Board was summed up by the chairman who said local merchants should be favored, but not at the expense of the ratepayers. He stressed the retailers and wholesalers should come to an arrangement and that it was not a matter for the Board to take action.

Prime Minister Will Open Hospital

Official opening of the new Civic Hospital will take place May 20, when the Prime Minister will bee making an official visit to the city, J. R. Marshall told the Board of Governors Thursday.

"We are hurrying on with the work to get it ready in time to have the ceremony in May, Mr. Marshall explained.

TEAM PRACTICES START

Public School swimming teams will start practising next week for the annual meet April 5 for the Examiner Trophy. For the past two weeks the schools have been holding tryout periods. First indications show all teams well-balanced with each having some experienced swimmers.

Donations From All Sides To Equip New Hospital

"They are coming in from every quarter" was how R. J. Marshall chairman of Civic Hospital Board of Governors expressed his appreciation of donations from Peterborough organizations to help furnish the new hospital.

The following donations were acknowledged by the Board, who received them from the Women's Auxiliary:

George St. W. A. $600 to furnish and provide maintenance of a private ward; Civic Hospital Alumni $1,000 for special nurse's room; 57th Regiment Chapter IODE $400 for private room, the balance of $100 to be forwarded later; Eastern Star Peterborough Chapter 161 $200 to provide for four over-bed tables; Peterborough Chapter of Hadassah $450 to furnish a public ward single room; Peterborough Girl Guides and Brownies $75 to provide something for the children.

A separate letter direct from the Junior Welfare League enclosed a pledge of $500 for furnishing a room in the children's ward.

Civic Overshoots By $5,495 In Two Months

An excess of expenditure over revenue of $5,495 at Civic Hospital during the first two months of this year was reported to the Board of Governors Thursday by T. T. Rodger, treasurer.

"That is not a comfortable situation, and we must do all we can to bring it down," Mr. Rodger remarked.

The actual figure was not quite as high as reported, Mr. Rodger said, because the accounts had been presented on a basis of a grant from the city of $60,000 a year instead of $80,000. It was however, "an uncomfortable situation."

There had been an increase in nurses' salaries of $2,543 and dietry was up $900. He told the board he proposed investigating the matter in more detail to see where the heavy expenditure could be kept down.

Bylaw Drafting

The medical and surgical advisory committee asked the board to prepare a bylaw allowing for the establishment of a subsection of anaesthesia within the service of surgery and to make provision in the bylaws for the establishment of subsections in general in any other service when and where necessary.

The bylaws committee was asked to consider the matter in readiness for the time when all the bylaws are scheduled for thorough inspection.

The service of general practice reported Dr. A. R. Atkinson had asked that a department of physiotherapy be set up in the new hospital.

Mr. Marshall said it had always been the wish of the board to have a physiotherapy department, but it was largely a question of finances. Room had been allocated in the new hospital.

The board approved the recommendation for action to be taken when it is convenient to put the plan into operation.

Mr. Hornal said the equipment at present consisted of one sunlamp and a short-way therapy machine. The crying need was for someone who could give massage.

Polish Doctor To Intern

The board received with enthusiasm an application for an internship from Dr. Stanley Olenski, a Polish doctor at present in England. Mr. Hornal said Dr. Olenski had eight years postgraduate experience and had his licence to practice in England. He spoke several languages.

The doctor will be invited to join the hospital immediately.

Two New Cars For City Police

The city police will get two new cruisers following an okay from the Commission on Thursday.

At its meeting, the commission turned down a request of H. Albert and S. Goldbach for a license to operate an auto wrecking yard on the south-east corner of St. Mary's and High streets.

Representing Mr. Albert and Mr. Goldbach, W. B. Gordon produced a letter showing people in the neighborhood were not against the proposed yard.

However, acting on the advice of Chief Constable John Thompson, Judge S. L. Smoke moved and Mayor Max J. Swanston seconded that the application be turned down.

A request for a licence to open up a scrap yard at 243 Bethune St. by Cyril Gerster and Ross M. Golden was held over for consideration by the commission.

The Kinsmen Club was given the commission's okay to hold a Peanut day September 9 on a motion by Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC, seconded by Judge Smoke.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of St. Joseph's Hospital, represented by Miss Agnes Grant, were refused permission to hold a tag day in June. The commission felt that although the cause was certainly admirable, the Ladies' Auxiliary should raise funds in another way.

The two new Chevrolet police cruisers will cost the department $4,000. J. K. Hughes garage has allowed a trade-in total value of $2,850 on the old cars.

Chief Constable John Thompson feels that the overall cost of operating police cruisers will be cut down by turning the cars in annually. There will be relatively little repair bill with new cars each year he pointed out.

REFUSED ADMISSION

Sixty-five patients were refused admission to Civic Hospital during February "because we were taxed to capacity" John Hornal reported Thursday at a meeting of the Board of Governors in the City Building.

Rooting For Battling Pedula In Irish Sweepstake— He Holds Ticket: 66-1 Shot

"Luck of the Irish?" he said repeating back the question. You bet."

Then he laughed the laugh of a man who was well satisfied.

"Say," he said, still chuckling, "I never thought too much of the Irish before; but today I'd wear a shamrock—if I had one."

PETERBOROUGH Temple Songsters, who are conducted by Ben Smith (above), are scheduled to present a series of concerts in Toronto and Montreal during the coming Easter season.

And why shouldn't Ellis Armstrong be happy? A mechanic in the service department of the Outboard Marine plant, he has drawn a horse in the famed Irish Sweepstakes which will be run off March 25.

His wife, Leola, when contacted at their home 669 Water St., was happy too. But she is keeping her fingers crossed until the Grand National steeplechase is over.

Mr. Ellis is one of eight Ontario residents who have said they held tickets on horses. He is assured of $180 or even $558 even if his horse doesn't start or comes in an also-ran.

Big Stakes

Thirteen lucky winners will each get $77,500, thirteen others who drew tickets on the second-place horse will get $31,000, and third-place winners will each pocket $15,500.

The hopes of the Armstrongs are pinned on Battling Pedula who is facing the formidable odds of 66 to 1. This doesn't worry the followers of the Aintree classic, however, for the difficult course has traditionally been a heartbreak for favorites.

First Peterborough resident to acknowledge he holds a ticket, Mr. Ellis first got word of his windfall at 1 a.m. Thursday. He tumbled out of bed to hear the good news from a friend.

"That was one phone call I didn't mind at that hour," Mr. Armstrong told the Examiner. Later in the day he received confirmation by cable.

The Armstrongs have made no plans in case they win. That's a bit premature, they think. Sharing their anticipation is their daughter, Mrs. Adele Yokom, who lives at home. Two other members of the family, also keenly interested in the extent of their parents' luck, are Mrs. Peter Greenhill, of Port Credit, and FO Earl N. Armstrong, of Trenton.

If Battling Pedula is a starter it will be the most exciting race ever run so far as the Armstrongs are concerned.

"I've been buying tickets for about 20 years and this is the first time I've ever won anything," said Mr. Armstrong.

Hurray for the Irish . . . and, uh, jockey—boot that horse home.

Want All Names Of Men Served In Second War

The Elizabeth Smellie branch of the Canadian Legion, composed exclusively of women, is undertaking the compiling of the names of Peterborough men and women who served in Canadian wars.

The purpose of this roster is for record in the Memorial Community Centre when it is completed. The Peterborough branch of the Legion appealed several years ago for the co-operation of relatives of ex-service men and women, but that effort obtained only 59 or 60 per cent of the estimated total number.

City council has been interested from the beginning in getting as complete a list as possible, and Mayor Swanston has turned the responsibility over to Ald. H. Dodds.

Mrs. B. Cole is chairman of the filing committee, and its other members are officers of the Elizabeth Smellie branch. They are the president, Mrs. Grace Morewood, in charge of RCAF names; Miss Irma Allen, 1st vice-president, in charge of Navy names; Miss Barbara Waters, 2nd vice-president, who has been allotted the Army names. The secretary of the branch, Miss Grace Simpson, will compile the names of all women who saw service.

Assessment Commissioner Norman A. Wilkes is co-operating through the agency of his department. Forms may be received at the city hall. Citizens are requested to assist in this plan which is expected to be the final effort.

Exhibits At Quinte District Seed Fair At Lindsay Exceed Displays At Kingston and Peterborough—Bacon Display Centre Of Attraction — Last Of The Season's Forum Broadcasts Monday Night.

Grain exhibits at the Quinte District Seed Fair at Lindsay this week were 50 to 60 per cent more than at Kingston last year, and the ten-bushel lots were double the volume of 1949.

The quantity of grain was even larger than at Peterborough two years ago, according to the estimate of Mr. S. A. Bowman of this city, representative in this district of the plant products division of Federal Department of Agriculture.

Most of the judging was completed Thursday afternoon, but Mr. Bowman as manager of the show was marking time on some of the classes, expecting arrival of the exhibits that had been prepared and forwarded by Robert Armstrong of Ida and Harry Jackson of Omemee.

They had entrusted their entries to a trucking company, and by some mishap in delivery the Jackson-Armstrong grain had been taken for a ride. Their bags travelled by way of Port Hope to Toronto, and presumably were still there or on their devious way to Lindsay.

The bacon display which was introduced at Peterborough was a striking feature of the fair. Entries were hung at the front of the hall in a long imposing row of Wiltshire sides, processed by Canada Packers Limited who have co-operated generously with this practical development in farm products shown by the Quinte district association.

The carcasses were from Victoria townships, Emily, Verulam, Mariposa, Ops, Eldon and Fenelon, four sides from each township. The awards of export becon quality were announced in that order.

Emily placed first with three red badges for top rating and one blue for second. The firsts bore the names of Cairns Lee, Erie McLean, Morwood McCarrell, of the Omemee district, and R. McLean of Omemee drew the blue.

Verulam in second place showed three firsts and a third, fractionally behind Emily. The Verulam red badges went to N. R. Pilcher, Charles Patterson and W. R. Thurston of Bobcaygeon district and the third prize to Oscar Thurston also of Bobcaygeon.

Mariposa had two firsts, a second and fourth; Ops, one first, second, third and fourth; Elson, one first, two thirds and one fourth; Fenelon one third and three fourths.

Harold Scotchmer of the production service division of the Dominion Department discussed for his audience of some two hundred farmers Thursday afternoon the merits of the top grade sides, and also the factors of difference that accounted for the others placing in the lower grades.

Mr. Scotchmer stressed the importance of maintaining the Wiltshire standard which had been established in the Canadian swine industry.

Subsidies were paid only on A and B grades. That was one practical reason, Mr. Scotchmer said, for farmers striving for uniform quality in production. One of the exhibits, which he described as a well-finished B-3 grade, received special attention in his explanation of the reason it failed to receive top classification. It had finish which the average experienced bacon farmer would recognize, but it was from a 176-pound pig, and said Mr. Scotchmer: "We must not encourage people to market hogs at that weight."

Overweight was not compensated by good finish, he said.

Dwelling on some of the lower rating exhibits which lacked the Wiltshire standard of leanness with only the required strip of fat, Mr. Scotchmer remarked that he could not understand why any producer would expend feet at its present prices on fat that was not wanted in the trade.

Mr. James Turnbull, government grader at Canada Packers, Peterborough, had much to do with the success of the bacon show.

LeRoy Brown of Lindsay, agricultural representative in Victoria county, and Oliver Dalrymple of Stirling, agricultural representative in Hastings county, said they were highly pleased with response of the grain and bacon farmers.

PLAN TRACTOR CLUB

Junior Farmers are sponsoring a tractor maintenance club in co-operation with R. E. Bell, assistant agricultural representative. Membership is restricted to twenty Enrolment forms are to be returned to Mr. Bell by March 25 The two top boys in the project will represent the club at the inter-county competitions to be held at Guelph next October.

Age limit of members is 14-21. Mr. Bell is hoping that the club will be quickly orgahized. Tractor maintenance has become an important skill in present day farming. It requires mechanical knowledge which can be fostered by group study and application. For that reason club offers real value to its members.

GRAIN AUCTION PRICES

Cartier oats sold at $3.90 a bushel in the auctioning of the grain displayed at the Middlesex seed fair at London Saturday. Top price for white beans was $5.50 a bus.; soy beans $5.50; eighteen lots of registered oats in ten-bushel lots brought $296.50; three lots of barley, 10-bushel lots $103.50; nine lots of No. 1 oats sold for $172.

More than half the 28 hogs on display were lower than A quality. Only the two top carcasses qualified for the top award group. Possibly, it was commented, Middlesex hogs have been getting too much corn, but the champion carcass was the product of corn and all the skim milk it could drink.

Another opinion suggested too narrow a spread between the prices of A and B hogs: "If and when the price differential between A's and B's makes it profitable to feed balanced rations, watch market weights qualify and type, . .then we think the grade A hog will come into favor."

The same report mentioned delivery of 66 hogs from a small district to a packing plant, with only six grading A. Producers of that area can't be seriously interested in striving for quality of product.

✦ ✦ ✦

LIQUID FERTILIZER

"On a ton basis, a 5-10-5 fertilizer in dry form costs approximately $45. The same quantity of plant food in the form of liquid fertilizer costs more than $800."

That comparison of cost is quoted from a statement issued by the Ontario Fertilizer Board.

"To date, there is no experimental evidence under Ontario conditions to indicate that liquid fertilizers have any more beneficial effects on growth of farm crops than ordinary dry fertilizers of the same analysis when properly applied."

The following is quoted from the Weekly Market News and Modern Farmer, Jan. 19th last: "A rate of 50 lbs. per acre of 11-48-0 fertilizer for grain crops in many parts of Alberta gave more profitable increases than a 25-lb. or 15-lb. rate, according to results of last year's trials considered at a recent meeting of the Alberta Advisory Fertilizer Committee. The committee also advised that the use of fertilizers on both stubble and summer fallow gave good results, and that barley and oats responded to fertilizers as favorably as did wheat. Farm manure, one of the best of fertilizers, gave exceptionally good returns during the past season.

The Committee had a word of caution about the use of liquid fertilizers. They advised that tests to date at the Universities of Alberta and Saskatchewan have not shown any favorable effects from the application of liquid fertilizers to grain crops. They also pointed oot that in the liquids fertilizers, the fertilizing elements (nitrogen, phosphorus and potash) proved to be around 30 times as expensive as the standard fertilizers. Those considering purchase of liquid fertilizers are urged to keep these facts in mind. Further work will be done with liquid fertilizers in 1950 by comparing them in field tests with grapular fertilizers and unfertilized plots."

IN PRAISE OF PIGS

If any junior farmer wishes to extend his knowledge of the pig beyond its biology and economy, he might accept the recommendation of Louis Bromfield to read the recently published book by Charles Wayland Towne and Edward Norris Wentworth.

The author-farmer of Malabar reviews this book, entitled Pigs, in the New York Times literary section, underlining some of the interesting facts about this domestic animal which he defends as having been too long maligned.

"The pig in probably the most intelligent of all farm animals and certainly the shrewdest," Mr. Bromfield asserts. "From the time he is born, promptly gets on his feet, runs around and begins to suck, he is able to take care of himself if given half a chance. An old sow can take her new-born right across country, foraging her way, and bring back, barring accidents, a fine healthy litter of young 'uns. Often enough in the case of ignorant or indifferent farmers, the sow is better off on her own than in the hands of man who fails to understand her needs or those of her offspring. .

The pig has been accused of being a physically dirty animal which is certainly not true. Because he has no sweat glands and little hair or fur as a protection against heat he likes to lie in water or coat himself with mud during the hot months, but actually he will always choose good clean mud and cold clear water if given the choice. If he is dirty it is not his fault, but that of his stupid or lazy owner. He has been accused of being a scavenger, but so is man with his capacity for eating liver and wormy cheeses.

Of all animals the pig's diet is closest to that of man because it is an omnivorous diet including anything that will satisfy his craving for a balanced nutrition.

Pigs have been closely associated with man about as long as any animal and appear again and again in history and legend back into the misty reaches of prehistoric time. . .He provides a greater variety of cuts and delicacies out of his carcass than any other animal. Most gourmets would place his spareribs, his tenderloin cuts, his hams and even his feet among the greatest delicacies of the table. In the past he has been the basis of agricultural economy throughout the breadbasket of the great Middle West. He is a prodigious fighter, and few animals are as dangerous as an angry boar or an old sow defending her litter."

Mr. Bromfield salutes the pig as an admirable and charming fellow and recommends this "sound and entertaining book."

AT POULTRY MEETING

Appointed by the Peterborough Federation of Agriculture to represent local interests at the incaptive stage, W. W. Dawson, W. Clarence Mann and Ross Legge attended the meeting of provincial poultry producers in Toronto Wednesday.

Farmers from almost every section of Ontario authorized its directors to consider at once the organizing of a marketing scheme on the broad plan of the hog producers. Seven provisional directors were appointed to undertake the details of bringing the industry into corporate form.

Wm. Newman of Lorneville, advised the meeting that action should be taken at once to finish the job of obtaining control over the marketing of poultry products.

✦ ✦ ✦

BARRIER TO COMMUNISM

Co-operatives are a strong force for national unity in Canada and "a stumbling block" in the path of communism," said A. B. MacDonald, general secretary of the Co-Operative Union of Canada at its recent convention in London, Ont.

Convention delegates, he said, represented 3,000,000 people from Newfoundland to British Columbia, members of co-operatives organized for many functions from the fishing industry to medical services.

Among its powerful groups are the co-operative banks of Quebec doing a total business of $225,000,000, the Manitoba wheat pool marketing more than 50 per cent of the wheat of that province, the versatile Federated Co-Operatives of Saskatchewan whose interests reach out to coal mines and oil fields.

"By giving our people a condition of security wherein they are able to enjoy the comforts of ample food, good homes, education, and the general level of modern living in this country, we need have no fear of the Communistic spirit gaining a foothold in Canada," Mr. MacDonald said. "In this respect the co-operative movement is performing a vital service."

Quebec Asking Settlement On Tax-Sharing

By The Canadian Press.

A budget of just over $200,000,000 was presented to the Quebec Legislature Thursday by Provincial Treasurer Gagnon who called it "a token of faith in the province's economic structure."

After estimating a surplus of $7,620,000 for the fiscal year now ending he budgeted for revenues of $201,349,970 and expenditures of $149,932,860 on ordinary account in the coming year, with a surplus after debt charges and capital expenditures of $735,100. There were no taxation changes.

The Quebec Treasurer called for settlement "without delay" on the problem of tax-sharing between governments, saying that the Federal government now collects nearly 70 per cent of the tax money raised in Canada.

At St. John's Fisheries Minister Keough told the Newfoundland Legislature that unless the province manages to sell 250,000 quintals of fish in Europe this year she may have to turn to the Caribbean and other Western Hemisphere markets, traditionally a field for the other Maritime Provinces.

Requests Aid

The New Brunswick House was still on Throne-Speech debate with Louis Lebel (L-Restigouche) asking aid for woods workers in his riding. He said their wages had been cut 50 per cent, although prices of forest products were unchanged from last year.

At Charlottetown former Premier Dr. W. J. P. MacMillan, now leading the Progressive Conservative Opposition, told the Prince Edward Island Legislature that no national unity exists now and never will exist until the provinces are treated on a fair and equitable financial basis.

A committee of the Manitoba Legislature gave second reading to a Bill amending the Defamatory Act to enable courts to consider the caption on a story in conjunction with the story itself in considering whether it is defamatory. Under present law the caption may be considered alone as a report. The amendment, however, does not prevent a caption or headline alone being ruled defamatory.

In the Saskatchewan Legislature J. E. McCormack (L-Souris-Estevan) charged that employees of Saskatchewan government corporations are worse paid than the workers in private industry.

At Edmonton the Alberta House by a vote of 37 to 5 defeated a CCF resolution which urged the government to provide motorcar acident compensation and auto insurance at cost. The Speaker's ruling that a liberal motion for a two-cent cut in the nine-cent-a-gallon tax was out of order was upheld by 44 to 5.

Guilty Of Murder

KOSCIUSKO, Miss., March 17 (AP)—An all white jury of Mississippi farmers and working men Thursday found Windol Whitt, 25-year-old white bricklayer, guilty of murder in the massacre of three Negro children, but disagreed as to punishment. The verdict made a life sentence mandatory.

MOBILE SILHOUETTES star in the Easter parade, achieved by a wide cape collar and gored skirt (left), by a winged cape that sweeps below the elbows and around the back (centre), and by the intricate joining of a cardigan costume's skirt (right). The double-breasted coat is in black and white checked worsted, trimmed in jeck black around cape edge and take pocket flaps. The short, breezy topper in summer-weight red tweed teams up here with the accordion pleated skirt of a navy wool dress. There's a black silk blouse, hidden by the brief jersey cardigan, attached to the skirt worn by the girl carrying spring furs to top off her bright 1950 ensemble.

Bowling Alleys To Be Built At Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, March 17 —(ENS)—Vernon Lockwood, a grocer of Picton, Ont., has been granted permission to erect a large building housing eight bowling alleys, lunch counter, snack bar, rest rooms, lockers, etc., on the old parking lot on Front St. The property has been held by the town under a former agreement made with J. E. Ayrhart.

Building operations are to commence no later than May 15 and the deed to the land will be given to Mr. Lockwood when the roof has been placed on the building and it is considered suitable by the Campbellford town council.

The building will be of cement block construction and under the agreement made with Mr. Ayrhart, any building constructed on the site would have to be worth at least $30,000. Council has set the licence fee for bowling alleys at $25 an alley a year.

Hopes Love Of Man Aid World Economies

OTTAWA, March 17 —(CP)—Senator Cyrille Vaillancourt (L—Quebec) Thursday in the Senate struck a note of hope that some day economies of the world will be organized on a basis of charity and the love of men.

"We were told we fought the last war to save Christian civilization." Senator Vaillancourt said in debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne.

"Did Christ come down on earth to teach us anything else but the moral economy of mutual love?"

HAVELOCK, March 17 (ENS)—The East Group of the Women's Association of Havelock United Church held a special meeting on Tuesday for quilting at the home of Mrs. D. Chevalier. This was also a farewell meeting before Mrs. Chevalier moved to Peterborough to live with her family.

Mrs. Chevalier was presented with a lamp, the presentation being made by Mrs. G. Whitney and the address read by Mrs. H. Hoard.

The occasion was also the birthday of another member, Mrs. A. McMullen, which was celebrated with a gift and a birthday cake.

Vote Against Wigs For Lawyers In Court

LONDON—(CP)—The Law Society has turned down a suggestion that solicitors be allowed to wear wigs in court.

At present wigs are worn by barristers, the senior grade of British lawyer.

D. Napley, a solicitor, said wigs put barristers at an advantage in magistrates' courts when opposing counsel is a wigless solicitor.

He said frequently losing clients blamed the wigless advocate, saying: "I'll get a proper solicitor next time."

Stanley Moore, apposing the proposal, said wigs and gowns are a lot of nonsense and an unnecessary expense. He urged that solicitors look to the future rather than the past.

Joseph Assef Denies Receiving Police Favors

WINDSOR, March 17 —(CP)—Police officers are slated to testify today in the Windsor Police Commission's inquiry into "allegations of corruption" in law enforcement here.

At least two Windsor policemen were mentioned in testimony Thursday at the probe's opening as Crown Attorney A. Douglas Bell, K.C., of Chatham, special counsel, plied a convicted bootlegger, Joseph Assef, with more than two hours of questioning about his alleged customers' list.

Assef was brought under escort from the county jail where he is serving a six month sentence after conviction on a charge of keeping liquor for sale. County Magistrate J. A. Hanrahan, who sentenced Assef in a written judgement suggesting police laxity, was the only other witness heard Thursday.

Mayor Arthur J. Reaume, one of the three police commission members conducting the inquiry, told The Canadian Press every address on the Assef list after which the notation "C.O.P." appeared now is being investigated. The list contained no names; only addresses.

Had No Benefits

Assef told the inquiry that he did not know what the "C.O.P." notation meant. He said he had "never served a (police) officer," and that he had never received "any benefits from any police officers nor did I give them any."

Assef said the list was "faked" and "padded" to make his bootlegging business appear profitable because he wanted to sell it and leave Windsor to work with a brother in a garage. Police evidence at his trial was that the business covered some 5,400 individual sales at an average profit of $1 each, in the 90-day period ending Dec. 31.

Windsor Police Chief Claude Renaude and his deputy, R. H. Neale, already have been officially summoned before the commission, along with Sgt. George Browne and Magistrate Hanrahan. No other names have been mentioned as witnesses.

Besides Mayor Reaume the police commissioners are Magistrate Angus W. MacMillan, chairman, and County Judge Albert J. Gordon. The inquiry is being held under authority of the Ontario Police Act and Attorney Bell said Thursday that all witnesses have court protection.

Wouldn't Talk

The liquor sales testimony Thursday was interrupted by a statement from Magistrate Hanrahan that he was aware of the location of an alleged international race service wire in Windsor. Mayor Reaume asked why this information was not turned over to the Windsor police.

The magistrate, a former court reporter but not a lawyer before he ascended the bench, replied that he had the information "in confidence" and that any report would "disclose a source of information" to the provincial police. Mr. Bell said he would like to talk to that source of information and present his findings before the inquiry.

Wood-Chip Tires Meet Winter Ice

VICTORIA, B.C. (CP)—Scores of British Columbia cars will run on sawdust next winter—or sooner, if the weather is unkind.

The new automotive wrinkle doesn't involve a sawdust-powered version of the Stanley Steamer, but a new kind of tire tread.

A local tire firm has equipped several taxis and its own trucks with a tread containing built-in hardwood chips to give traction either on snow or ice.

Motorists who have used the tires say they are good for safe travel through two-feet-deep snow or on glassy ice. They lessen dangers of skids and side-slips.

They wear away slightly faster than ordinary rubber tires, giving about 23,000 miles instead of 28,000.

Boy Shies At Caning Court In A Quandary

LONDON (CP).—Chelsea Juvenile Court magistrates declined to certify as mentally deficient a 15-year-old boy who refused to be caned.

A school official said because of his refusal the boy had been excluded from a school for subnormal children.

"Certifying as mentally deficient seems to be the only way of dealing with him," he added.

The boy was said to be unable to name three English cities or to give the King's name.

Prof. Barbara Wooton said the magistrates were not satisfied with the evidence that the boy was feeble-minded.

Alaska, Hawaii Seek Statehood, Wait For Senate

WASHINGTON —(AP) — Alaska and Hawaii have moved a step nearer statehood. That doesn't mean they'll get it, at least this year.

The United States House of Representatives has approved statehood for both of them. Unless the Senate agrees, and it may not, the House action means nothing.

Next year there'll be a new Congress. And, in a new Congress what either house did in a previous Congress doesn't count. In that case, the two territories will have to start from scratch again. Both have been seeking statehood a long time.

The U. S. bought Alaska from Russia in 1867 for $7,200,000. It wasn't allowed to become a territory until 1912.

A territory can elect its own legislature but the President appoints the governor.

Alaska and Hawaii are each allowed one delegate in Congress. But he can't vote, even when Congress is passing laws affecting his territory.

Pay Taxes, Can't Vote

The people in a territory pay all the federal taxes but, although they're U. S. citizens, they can't vote in a national election.

The U. S. annexed Hawaii, which was then a republic, in 1898 and made it a territory in 1900.

Alaska, with an area of 585 000 square miles, has a population of about 100,000 people, more than many of the present states had when they were admitted to the union. Hawaii, made up of seven islands with an area of about 6,400 square miles, has a population of 540,000, of which 86 per cent are U. S. citizens.

The people in both territoies have voted in favor of statehood. Congressional committees have investigated the problem. The Democratic and Republican parties have promised statehood for both territories in their platforms. The President approves.

Action In 1947

Pressure to get the job done began in the 1930s. First real action came in 1947. Then the House voted to let Hawaii come in. The Senate has never voted. So nothing happened. This year the House now has voted for Hawaii again and, for the first time, for Alaska, too.

The people in both territories argue that they've more than served their apprenticeship as territories. They're both experienced in running their territorial affairs, but, nevertheless, Congress really runs them, and makes for them. Yet, their people have no voice in shaping those laws.

Although residents of the territories have to pay federal taxes, they don't receive the full benefits from federal laws that states get.

Congressmen opposed argue that if admitted, Alaska and Hawaii would have two senators each, since every state has two senators. In addition, Hawaii would be entitled to two representatives in the House. Alaska would have one.

In their local election, about 100,000 Hawaiian residents vote. In Alaska the vote is about 20,000. Therefore, Alaska would have two senators representing only 20,000 voters whereas states with millions of votes are allowed only two.

Ladies' Guild Adds Two New Members

BETHANY, March 17 (ENS) — The Ladies' Guild of St. Paul's Church was entertained by Mrs. T. S. Gault at the rectory on Tuesday afternoon, with Mrs. Charles Reynolds presiding. Two new members, Mrs. Rupert Wood and Mrs. Janet Smith were welcomed.

The secretary, Mrs. Hector Morton, who has been ill with 'flu, was not present. Two quilts were reported completed, one of which had been sold. A draw for the other will be made May 12 at an entertainment in the Town Hall, when The Rigby Players of Port Hope will present a variety program.

Arrangements were made to sell coffee and sandwiches at the farm sale of Mrs. Janet Smith on April 11. A letter of thanks was read for the Sunshine Box sent to Neal Finney.

Mrs. Emory Smith and Mrs. Mervin Smith assisted Mrs. Gault in serving lunch.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Charles Smith Cavan, on April 4.

Edinburgh Festival Polishes Its Opera

EDINBURGH — (CP) — Rare opera with fine polish is promised for patrons of the 1950 Edinburgh Festival of Music and Drama scheduled for Aug. 20 to Sept. 9.

Richard Strauss' "Ariadne Auf Naxos" and "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme" will comprise one operatic program; Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro" the other.

Production will be by Prof. Carl Ebert, producer for the Glyndebourne Opera Company, Britain's top festival company. Sir Thomas Beecham will conduct the Strauss work while "Figaro" will be under Ferenc Fricsay young Hungarian who has recently triumphed in Vienna and Salzburg festival.

"Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme" is a two-act condensation of Moliere's original, to which Strauss has done incidental and ballet music.

Miles Malleson, whose translation of Moliere's "L' Avare" into "The Miser" has made the French work into a West End hit for the Old Vic company, is translating the "Gentleman."

Ballet will be under Marie Rambert of the Ballets Ramberts while Oliver Messel is doing costumes and design.

5 In Ontario In Irish Draw

TORONTO, March 17 —(CP)— Five Ontario residents reported Thursday that their tickets were drawn in the Irish Sweepstakes on the Grand National Steeplechase at Aintree March 25.

Four said they drew horses. If their horse starts in the race, they are in line for a prize of £25,000 ($77,500); if it finishes first, £10,000 for second and £5,000 for third. Holders of tickets on non-starters and also-rans get £180.

All four drew long shots, quoted at odds of 33-1 or higher. Leonard Cole of Hamilton drew Knockirr. Mrs. T. G. Manley of Toronto, about 50, who works as secretary and has a jobless, ailing husband, drew Wot No, a 33-1 shot.

George Luxton, 21, who works with a Toronto job-printing firm, has a 50-1 chance with Fighting Line. Milton Burnside of Markdale, near Owen Sound, said his ticket is on Finnure. A. G. Ward of Niagara Falls received word that he drew a residual ticket worth $1,100.

Howe Pledges MP's No Strike At Polymer

OTTAWA, March 17—(CP)— Trade Minister Howe said Wednesday he could assure the Commons that there will be no strike at the government-owned Polymer Rubber Corporation at Sarnia, site of a labor dispute.

He could give that assurance, he said, because of what he knew of relationships between labor and management there.

He was replying to J. W. Murphy (PC-Lambton West), who said that a strike would cripple all major industries in Sarnia.

The Minister said he had no recent report from Polymer. A few days ago the conciliation board brought down a unanimous report. In any event, the corporation handled its own labor negotiations.

Co. Sues Belleville For $31,804 Damages

BELLEVILLE March 17 (CP)— The City of Belleville is facing a $31,804 damage suit laid by Klimack Construction Ltd., of Swastika, for alleged breach of contract, it was learned here Thursday.

The company claim is for general and specific damages claimed suffered by the contracting firm as result of the city taking away a sewer construction contract in February, 1949. Klimack had been awarded the contract for construction of sewers on Macdonald Ave., the city taking away the contract after the work was not completed within the specified time of 20 weeks from the start of work.

City solicitor R. A. Pringle said the city had not filed its defense. It is expected the case will be heard in Toronto next autumn.

Suggests Children Only Be Admitted

OTTAWA, March 17—(CP)— Senator Vincent Dupuis (L, Quebec) Wednesday in the Senate suggested that only children between the ages of seven and 14 be allowed into Canada as immigrants.

He spoke on a resolution by Senator Cairine Wilson (L, Ontario) asking that the Senate standing committee on immigration and labor devote a large part of its time to studying means of stimulating the flow of immigrants.

By accepting only these children of certain ages, said Senator Dupuis, there would be no danger of subversive elements sliping into Canada in the influx of more mature people.

These children would get all their education and training on Canadian soil and would prove an asset to this country. Foreign-born boys, for example, would grow into manhood "really ready to fight for their adopted country."

For about half of the period, he has been a chauffeur and has a record equalled by few. It is estimated he has driven 750,000 miles in his official capacity without having a single accident or a ticket for any kind of a traffic violation.

He has received an Ontario Safety League medal for 11 successive years and has been awarded a gold medal again for 1949.

Ban Two Magazines

Steeplejack Wriggles, Finds He's Still Alive Never Say Word Against Deep Snow Again

OTTAWA, March 17 (CP) — Robert Swartman, 23-year-old steeplejack who plunged almost 200 feet from the west block tower of the House of Commons Tuesday, wriggled the toes of his broken legs in hospital and said he'd never complain about snow again.

It was a snowbank that saved his life.

He landed in the only big snowpile on Parliament Hill after a scaffold rope broke.

"When I hit that snowbank I thought I was dead," said Swartman, who suffered battered ribs and punctured lungs besides broken legs. "I remember quite distinctly thinking 'Well, I'm dead' and then I blacked out. . .

"Then I woke up, wriggled in the snow to make sure I really was alive. I felt fine. In fact I stood up and started to walk. Then I collapsed again."

It was Swartman's first accident in seven years of lofty work. Is he going up again when he gets well?

"Sure. Why not? A thing like that never happens twice to a man. I'll be okay."

IF YOU OWN A DOG, READ THIS:

Canine Calories

Contrary to the view held by many dog fanciers, dry dog foods appear to be just as nutritious as canned foods. In fact, some dogs may even do better on a diet of the dried variety.

Research supporting this point was reported last week in the Journal of the American Veterinary Medical Association by Drs. C. A. Hoppert and E. B. Hart, biochemistry professors at Michigan State College and the University of Wisconsin, respectively. After working for more than six months with groups of beagles, collies, and fox terriers, they came to this conclusion: A "properly prepared" dry dog food equals or exceeds the best-known brands of canned foods in meeting a dog's needs.

Ingrid Bergman, Husband Will Battle For Daughter

LOS ANGELES March 17 (AP) —Ingrid Bergman will try to come back to the United States, and her husband, Dr. Peter Lindstrom, is preparing to meet her head on in the fight for custody of their 12-year-old daughter, Pia.

If it happens, it would be the first face-to-face showdown between the couple since the actress went to Stromboli, fell in love with Roberto Rossellini, and had a child—admittedly—by him.

The stage for a possible tense courtroom drama was set Thursday as:

Miss Bergman's lawyer, Gregson Bautzer said the actress will be a witness when the case comes to trial and "is determined to make the fight of her life for Pia."

Dr. Lindstrom, the quiet brain surgeon, finally came out swinging with an announcement, through counsel, that he will charge that Ingrid is unfit to have custody of the child.

The Swedish doctor also will counter with a demand for a divorce here.

Not Valid

His lawyer, Isaac Pacht, termed the Mexican divorce which Miss Bergman obtained Feb 9 "a complete nullity—Mexico having jurisdiction over neither Miss Bergman nor Dr. Lindstrom."

Pacht said Dr. Lindstrom is ready to give a complete accounting of community property as requested in his wife's suit and will demand "an equitable distribution among husband and wife and the daughter."

But the actress, a Swedish citizen, is faced with the possibility of having to battle to re-enter he United States. In Washington, Senator Edwin C. Johnson (Dem. Colo.) put a letter in the Senate record saying neither Miss Bergman or Rossellini should be permitted to enter under immigration laws which forbid the entry of aliens declared guilty of moral turpitude.

CSU Prosecuting Steamship Line Over Labor Law

FORT WILLIAM, March 17 — (CP)—Harry Davis, president of the Canadian Seamen's Union, Thursday said the Paterson Steamship Company, Ltd., will be prosecuted for violation of government labor laws.

At a membership meeting of Fort William seamen, he said the proposed action was being taken because the company refused to negotiate with the C.S.U. and had signed with the Seafarers' International Union (AFL).

A company official said that as far as he knew the company had not broken any labor laws by signing with the SIU.

A company official said that as Mr. Davis also said the SIU agreement called for a return to the 56-hour week and the cutting of some ratings from the ships.

"We are going to fight any attempt to take away the 48-hour week and for the right for seamen to belong to a union of their own choice."

The meeting passed a resolution condemning Senator N. M. Paterson, owner of the company, for violating the labor laws, and ordered the national executive of the CSU to take any and all action to defend the seamen's bargaining rights and working conditions.

Another resolution passed at the meeting recommended the executive fight for a wage-increase of $1 a day, and to maintain the 48-hour week with time-and-a-half pay for all Sundays and holidays.

MYSTERY MALADY—This three-week-old lamb was flown to Ontario from Southern Alberta to determine the nature of disease that had afflicted a flock in the Magrath district. The sheep became partially paralyzed. The lamb is being fed milk by Ruth Jordan, laboratory assistant at the Ontario Veterinary College in Guelph. Later it was decided there was no hope of the lamb's recovery and it was put to death mercifully. Arangements were made for a post-mortem examination.

Fleet Air Arm Sidetracked For Sub Defence

WASHINGTON, March 17 (AP) —The United States Navy expects that its fleet air arm will have to fall back on second-line planes next year so that sea forces can step up anti-submarine defenses.

This was disclosed Thursday by the House of Representatives Appropriations Committee as it made public the navy's money requests for the next fiscal year starting July 1.

Vice-Admiral Cassady, deputy chief of naval operations for air, told the committee that the threat of enemy submarines affected all US programs and gave rise generally to the most urgent requirements which must be covered by 1951 estimates.

Accordingly, the navy planned to make sharp reductions in overall air strength to concentrate on submarine counter-measures.

No Breakdown

The committee's report did not provide any breakdown in the navy's $4,008,700,000 budget requests for next year—which is about a billion dollars less than it received in the current fiscal year.

Generally, naval aviation is taking the second sharp cut in its combat strength since 1949. Retrenchment along this line was one of the principal causes of the admiral's revolt last fall when ranking officers charged that landlocked policy-makers were out to scuttle the marine corps and the navy's air arm.

Stressing the acuteness of the plane-reduction program, Cassady declared the Bureau of aeronautics would be able to buy only 817 planes under budget allotments for 1951. This meant a deficiency of 530 planes in the navy's operating needs, with the result that the navy would be forced to fly second-line planes.

Reds Get 500 Million Gain From Cold War, US Loses

By DANIEL DE LUCE.

BERLIN, March 17 (AP) — Russia makes an annual profit of $500,000,000 from the cold war in Germany while the United States loses at least $700,000,000, western allied economists estimated today.

The economists put it this way:

Untrammeled by four-power restrictions, the Soviet Government takes its profit in the form of current production from East Zone industries.

Labelled reparations, East German heavy machinery, chemicals, optical goods, electrical apparatus and other manufactures flow steadily to the Soviet frontier.

In addition, the Kremlin physically owns 30 per cent of East German factories as Soviet stock companies.

By contrast, the United States has pumped as much as $1,000,000,000 a year into West Germany as post-war relief and recovery aid. Such American expenditures during the current year are expected to reach $700,000,000.

Wasted Breath

Since the Russian policy of reparations from current production was initiated in the winter of 1946-47, it has been opposed by the western allies, especially the United States. Their objections were wasted breath as far as curtailing the tribute.

To help East German Communists develop a two-year economic plan, the Soviet Union of its own accord has trimmed zonal reperations about 5 per cent in the last year.

But this represents no tactical success for the western powers. It merely gives Soviet schemes a better chance to flourish in the former Reich.

Allied experts attribute Russia's cold war profits to a hard-boiled exploitation of the East German working classes which has lowered and kept their standard of living below that in the Soviet Union.

Soviet occupation troops can look condescendingly at the dress and food of average East Germans. Back home, Soviet citizens are better off.

Soviet directives to the East German Communist regime make sure that East Germans work hard or go hunugry. Mothers of families are not spared from labor mobilization. The buying power of wages is kept low.

As long as the cold war continues Russia is under no international compulsion to soften its treatment of the East German population.

OWEN SOUND, March 17 (CP) —Has any zoo lost a bald eagle recently? Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Waite of nearby Kemble saw one Thursday that was so tame it allowed them to walk right up to it. The huge bird was perched in a roadside tree. "We looked the bird over and it looked us over, too, with no sign of fear." Mrs Waite said.

Dresses Stars For Thirty Years

LONDON (CP)—Horace Ridley has been a dresser to leading operatic stars at Covent Garden for 30 years.

No matter how temperamental or excitable some of the continental singers get or how heated the atmosphere in a dressing room, Ridley's job is to keep things calm.

"Sometimes we have to switch a singer into a part at a few minutes' notice," he said. "It's all right when I have had to get a 140-pound man into a costume made for a 200-pound singer.

"It's the other way round that plays you up."

In such cases Horace sews and pins them, lets out seams, puts in tucks and on time to the dot has his stars in the wings perfectly dressed to make their bow.

Besides keeping an eye on the star's clothes and keeping them calm, Horace has to remember their little whims.

"You must never offer a stage singer his right boot first. That's bad luck. It should always be the left boot."

Ridley, an elderly man with greying hair, is the third of his family to attend the great. He, his mother and his father between them have given 105 years' service.

"But there won't be any more Ridleys after me," he said. "My son Leslie is in business for himself."

Ridley hasn't tired of hearing opera and likes to wristle as air or two when he is away from the theatre—walking hime or working in his garden.

"Whistling in the theatre is strictly taboo," he said. "Many singers have a strong aversion to it."

Canals Are Hazards On Dutch Fairways

EDMONTON, March 17—(CP) —A Canadian woman found that her golf suffered when she moved to the Netherlands three years ago. Her problem—too many canals.

Mrs. Walter Fairey moved to Amsterdam with her husband soon after the war when he signed on with the Royal Dutch Airlines. She liked golfing so she took to the fairways there.

"There's no margin for a hook or a slice when you have to shoot over two or more canals on each hole," she reported on a recent trip home to Edmonton.

Mrs. Fairey found that outdoor sports attract all members of Dutch families. "Each Sunday morning everyone from grandmas to two-year-olds are out cycling in their best clothes. And when the canals freeze over, as they do every year for a short spell, everyone skates."

Says French Example Education Weakness

TORONTO, March 17 (CP)— Grattan O'Leary, vice-president of the Ottawa Journal, Thursday cited the case of Klaus Fuchs as an instance of weakness in the modern education system.

In an address to the Empire Club, he said the education system, with its stress upon technical training, does not properly fit its graduates for their duties in a democracy.

Fuchs was sentenced in London recently to 14 years for supplying atomic information to Russia while serving the British and United States governments, he noted.

"This is what can happen to people who are highly trained as specialists but are not generally educated and lack ability to understand true moral principles.."

Union Submits Contract Plan

PORT COLBORNE, March 17—(CP)—Proposals for a 1950-51 contract with the International Nickel Company were submitted to the company here and at Sudbury Thursday by the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers.

Mike Solski, vice-president of Loc. 598 at Sudbury, said the proposals emphasize a shorter work week. There are six points: a 40-hour week with same take-home pay; wage increase of eight cents an hour; two weeks' vacation with pay for employees of one year, three weeks for employees of 10 years' standing and four weeks for those of 20 years service; nine statutory holidays with double time if worked and straight time if not worked, instead of six at present; a union shop requiring union membership after 30 days' employment, and abolition of the classification of "group B" trades.

The UMMSW at present is battling a drive launched by the United Steel Workers of America (CCL) to take over Mine-Mill Union members at the Port Colborne Refinery. The CCL made a direct bid to replace the Mine-Mill Union a year ago but on a previous vote did not receive a sufficient percentage of eligible employees for certification.

Senators Rap CBC Reporter

OTTAWA, March 17 —(CP)—Matthew Halton, CBC London correspondent, was criticized and defended in the Senate Thursday as verbal shots were fired at CBC operations.

Senator John T. Haig, Progressive Conservative leader, said Mr. Halton's reports from London during the recent United Kingdom general election were "biased."

He charged that Mr. Halton allegedly favored the Labor party, although other persons broadcasting from the CBC London studios, such as representatives of the Manchester Guardian, gave a fair picture.

Defending the CBC correspondent, Senator Norman Lambert (L—Ontario) said Mr. Halton was considered by those engaged in newspaper work as "a most competent and objective reporter."

Senator Lambert said he did not believe that Mr. Halton had colored" his broadcasts of the election. He recalled that in a New Year's broadcast, Mr. Halton had forecast defeat of the Labor government.

They were Bernard Stonehouse, meteorologist; Terence Randall, wireless operator, and H. D. Jones, aviation mechanic.

Will Bar Reporters

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C., March 17 (CP) — Sheriff Frank Cotton said Thursday he will bar newspaper men from any future hangings at Oakalla prison. He said "distasteful" newspaper accounts of the recent Worobec-Prestyko hangings were responsible for his action. Walter Prestyko, 33, and William Worobec, 37, were hanged Feb. 28 for the slaying of Michael Geluch, 67, a railway employee.

Ordinary insurance accounted for $1,292,403,749 of the total amount of life insurance underwritten in Canada in 1949, the Department of Insurance said in a preliminary report Thursday.

Uncover Saxon Town

SOUTHAMPTON, England, Mar. 17 (CP)—Beneath the ruins of the 1940 blitzes on Southampton lie the ruins of an earlier town—the Saxon settlement of Hanwith. Diggers are soon to begin a new attempt to unearth the ruins. They will be warned: "Be careful with the bulldozer. You may destroy proofs that the people of the Rhine flooded Britain with goods in Saxon times."

Boy Scout Movement Fails To Attract Peterboro' Boys

By Scout movement in Peterborough has been gradually decreasing since 1947, Frank Buckland past president of the association told the Kiwanis Club Thursday. His topic was "Boy Scouts, Their Friends and Why We Need Them."

"In Peterborough we have less than 600 whereas the movement is growing in other parts of Canada. We have experienced a very serious setback since 1947 when we had a roll of 720."

Mr. Buckland said that a Boy Scout is "a skin drawn over a large appetite". Sufficient food for two ordinary people served at two hour intervals would make up its quota. The rest of the activities must be served in the same way, he added.

The past president explained that the No. 9 Parkhill is on the "outs" with the Recreation Commission who operate the Dixon House. Here the boys had their headquarters. He added that the boys mistreat the building. They are told, he said, they must remove their shoes when entering the building and Mr. Buckland asked the club if that was the natural way to "expect these young appetites to carry on".

The Parkhill troop is no exception, said Mr. Buckland.

A partial solution of the problem has been met with the Kiwanis Club put into scout service the four buildings in Jackson Park. The speaker said that these could be used at Nassau, at Crowe Bay, for the No. 9 Parkhill and as a Rover Den.

Nassau is the present camp site for Cubs and for Scout hikes. The camp comprises 27 acres loaned to the association by the Hydro and a camp hut and cook house. The Crowe Bay camp site is new and for the Scouts. It is situated five miles beyond Campbellford. The land has been loaned the Scouts by the Trent Valley System and a Dr. Fredericks of Toronto. The latter granted them the use of 40 acres of bushland for the camp. There they need a store house and a cook house.

"Our greatest weakness in Peterborough our greatest cause for loss of boys is a shortage of leaders".

Mr. Buckland explained that the movement has been unable to develop a succession of leaders within one group. If one leader becomes overloaded, eventually retiring, a new leader is found a stranger and the boys leave. Some provision must be made for a continuity of leaders.

An appeal was made for help other than financial. By money-raising projects such as paper drives the local association is sound, he said. He asked them members to give the church group committees some help such s finding them boys who will make up the succession of leaders.

Jack Lewis introduced Mr. Buckland who was thanked by George Solmes.

Breaks Through Ice

Bills Fool Banks

TORONTO, March 17 (CP) — A bank official said Thursday some bogus $10 bills flooding Toronto recently look so good they even baffled bank clerks. The spokesman, who didn't want his bank identified, said that in three cases tellers were found to have taken in the counterfeits and unknowingly paid them out to customers.

Glove Industry Fears Japan

TORONTO, March 17 —(CP)— Application of anti-dumping laws against Japanese knitted gloves will not be effective in protecting the Canadian industry, an official of the knitted Glove Manufacturers Association said Thursday.

L. Borsook, association chairman, said in a prepared statement that the industry "may be destroyed" by importation of cheap Japanese-made gloves.

In Ottawa Thursday the government announced that Canada has applied anti-dumping laws to prevent cheap Japanese goods, including knitted gloves, from flooding the Canadian market at "ridiculously low prices."

Under the anti-dumping law, the revenue department can appraise the value set on a product and, if necessary, can apply a tariff to bring the price of the product up to what it considers would be a fair market value in the country in which the product was produced.

Believe 40 Drowned

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, March 17 (AP)—Forty persons are believed to have been drowned Thursday in the sinking of the steamer Bolivar in the Guayas River. Twelve bodies were recovered Thursday night. The captain, who was among the survivors, said 90 passengers were aboard. Port authorities said the sinking might have been caused by the unbalanced loading of 3,000 bunches of bananas.

Pioneer of West Recalls Days Of Indian, Rebel Fighting

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., — (CP)—With eyes as bright as the bead-work on her lap, Mrs. Jane Flett Garson ceebrated her 96th birthday recently in a tourist cabin on the outskirts of Prince Albert.

Her memories went back over almost a century of adventure in Western Canada—adventure tha' started just before she was born at Fort Yukon in 1854.

On that sunny March morning, her mother slipped outside the stockade to gather wood. Before she got back a band of Indians attacked and the stockade gates were closed. Finally she struggled over the fort walls to safety. Jane Flett was born that morning shortly before her mother died.

As she works with her beads and porcupine quills, "Grandma" Garson relates vivid stories of her early days at the fort where she was brought up by her father and Anglican church missionaries.

She recounts tales of her grandfather, Thomas McKay, standing his ground and quieting a group of hostile Indians intent on killing him and his family of her father discovering a cache of rum and mincement left by Explorer Sir John Franklin on one of his expeditions in search of the Northwest Passage; of her own work in helping at the birth of more than 70 pioneer children.

Rebel Trouble

Her husband—they were married in 1870—homesteaded in the town of Prince Albert in the early 1880s, but Louis Riel's insurgents disrupted their first farming venture. Mrs. Garson recalls huddling with her family in the Presbyterian manse while the men went out to quell the rebels.

When peace was restored, the Garsons moved to a farm in the Hoey district, 15 miles south of Prince Albert. Mrs. Garson still owns the property.

Mrs. Garson spends much of her time reading—without spectacles. Around her are stacks of romance and western magazines.

But the Bible is her standby—"the best book of all."

A bout of pneumonia sapped Grandma Garson's strength this year but her hands are still busy, her mind agile and her voice strong.

"You get out of this life just what you put into it," she says.

Plumage From Paris

Parisian designers highlight the air of carefree elegance in the mid-century fashion collections. This is expressed in diverse silhouettes ranging from the short-skirted slim line reminiscent of the 1920's to the voluminous costume that makes lavish use of fabric.

Typical nostalgic reminder of the '20's is Pierre Balmain's sleeveless dress (LEFT) of pale beige lightweight wool satin cloth. A tortoise-shell print scarf attached to a modern version of the cloche hat winds around the neck and ties on one shoulder. Marking the waistline is a tortoise-shell belt. Brief gloves emphasize the lack of sleeves.

At the other extreme in silhouettes is the dramatic "brigand" coat (CENTRE) designed by Schiaparelli and shown here in gray and red plaid. Elbow-high red suede gloves meet the short loose sueeves.

Straw lace which takes a bow in every leading collection, is used by Jean Desses to point up the casual elegance of an evening gown (RIGHT). The moderately full skirt has an uneven hemline which dips to trail on the floor in back. Over a strapless black bodice, a trim-waisted bolero is casually knotted at the neckline.

Maud Moody Dictates Hat Fashions

By DOROTHY ROE

NEW YORK — (AP) — If your husband doesn't like your new spring hat, here's how to answer him."

"Don't blame me, blame Maud Moody."

For the last 20 years, the shape, angle and trimming of hats have been determined largely by one woman, little-known elsewhere but as powerful as Stalin in the millinery industry.

She is a plump, jolly soul with twinkling brown eyes who doesn't look like a dictator at all. But for almost a generation her smile or her frown has decided North America's hat styles.

Mrs. Maud Moody has just retired as millinery editor of Women's Wear Daily, the trade paper known throughout merchandising circles as the "buyers' Bible." If Mrs. Moody did not like a hat, and said so, the buyers stayed way in droves. But if she picked a certain style as the season's hit, buyers fought to place their orders.

Since her retirement, after 28 years with Women's Wear, Mrs Moody has opened her own office as a millinery consultant. Hat manufacturers have developed such respect for her opinion that many of them refuse to show a collection until Mrs. Moody has seen it, edited it, and given the product her okay.

This czar of the hat business drifted into the fashion field purely by chance. After a childhood which included European travels education at proper schools, a debutante polish in New York and a youthful marriage she found herself faced with the necessity of earning a living.

Salesgirl First

She got a job as a salesgirl in a New York department store. There she investigated all departments, including millinery, and rolled up an enviable record.

During the First World War she left merchandising to work for the Red Cross, and after the armistice was offered a job on Women's Wear to report "what they're wearing", wherever the smart set gathered. Then she was handed the job of millinery editor.

During the years, Mrs. Moody developed almost a sixth sense as to hat styles, so that after looking at hundreds of hats she suddenly would pick one and say "that's it."

Her column the next day would carry the news that a particular cloche or sailor or beanie was slated as the number one hat on the season's hat parade. Soon the Moody selection would appear in the hat shop window of every main street. Women, recognizing a new trend, would rush to buy it—and a new fashion success was born.

"There's no real reason why a certain hat style is popular at a certain time", she says. "It's just something that happens. A designer has the idea, and editor tells the world about it, store buyers order it and women buy it.

"Most women think of only one thing when they go to select a new dress or hat—they want one just like their next-door neighbor's. They want to look like everybody else. That's called fashion."

Woman Hit By Wanderlust Works Way Around World

By MARTIN DIER
Canadian Press Correspondent

HAMILTON, Bermuda (CP) — A 27-year-old Englishwoman working her way around the world, will leave Bermuda soon on the next stage of her adventurous journey.

For the last six months, Joe St. Clair has been working as a waitress in a Hamilton tea shop. When she leaves, she'll have a ticket for the island of St. Kitts in the West Indies a travellers cheque for her wages and tips.

Coupled with her willingness to work, that will be enough, she believes.

She has traveled before without much money — to Canada, the United States and parts of the Near East.

After travelling through St. Kitts and other parts of the West Indies, Miss St. Clair hopes to visit Miami, New Orleans and New York and then on to Vancouver. After that, she plans to visit New Zealand and South Africa.

Miss St. Clair says she's not afraid of roughing it. Her big regret is that when she joined the Auxiliary Territorial Services — the women's branch of the British Army — during the war, she was too young — 19 — for foreign service.

"I always wanted to strike out on my own," she says. And she did.

Her earl ytravels took her to Canada. Without money, she supported herself for part of a winter in Montreal by shovelling snow. Later she looked after a child in Ottawa while the father was away. In Toronto she looked after three children.

Then the travel bug bit her again and she worked her way south to Bermuda.

Miss St. Clair said she plans to spend about two weeks in St. Kitts before visiting the rest of the West Indies. In British Guiana, she has made arrangements to work on a farm.

Dinking More Milk

Total 1948 production was 16,730,000,000 pounds.

Listening Panel Suggested Report on Radio Programs

Mrs. Wm. Steinkrauss on Thursday afternoon conducted her second meeting as president of Local Council of Women. Forty five women were present in the YWCA Green Room and heard the president's splendid report on a meeting of Provincial Council held in Toronto last month.

Interesting suggestions in the report were: that a listening panel be set up to report on local radio programs, under direction of the provincial radio convener; that groups be formed to study the housing situation, with regard also to the future, and buying and pricing, particularly of farm products.

All details are arranged for the Centennial Tea, being held on March 31 at the YWCA, with endorsement of the city's centennial committee. General convener Mrs. E. B. McWilliams read the list of those who will assist and explained the plans. Mayor M. J. Swanston and past mayors of the city will be on hand at the time of cutting the birthday cake. The change in women's apparel during the past 100 years will be noted in the dress of tea room assistants that day.

Mrs. Joseph Henderson is in charge of a home baking table at the tea and she secured a list of the goods members will donate for the occasion.

Council has been requested by the women's division of the UEFB (United Emergency Fund for Britain) to sponsor a city-wide drive for food and clothing. The president has been promised use of the city trucks for a door-to-door pick-up, and the committee in charge, Mrs. J. Londerville, Mrs. C. Olaveson and Miss M. Bowers, was asked to work out further details and set a date for the collection.

Mrs. G. Rutherford, United Nations convener, announced plans to form a United Nations group in the city, which will be taken up in detail at a meeting on March 22 in the office of Mr. Leo Copp at the Peterborough Normal School. She extended an invitation to attend to anyone who might be interested.

The president advised that she has set up a schedule that will allow each convener a portion of a meeting program. Mrs. H. Tremaine, mental hygiene convener, and Mrs. D. Hill, health convener, were asked to prepare the program for April meeting.

Archivist Mrs. K. Simpson was asked to compile a history of the Peterborough Council to be ready at the time of the National Council meeting in London, Ontario, at the end of May.

Correspondence included notice that Mrs. C. G. Collins has been appointed representative to Council by the Children's Aid Society, and Mrs. A. A. Leach by the Victorian Order of Nurses. The secretary, Mrs. W. H. Morton, was asked to write letters thanking the Salvation Army who made their building available on two days this month for a food and clothing collection, and also care for the Council members on duty, and Mr. Harry Holbrook who went to various stores collecting cartons in which to pack the donations.

A few books were given in at the meeting, answering a request for good books to supply the new hospital library. St. Paul's Ladies' Aid has on hand a carton of books which is to be donated. Anyone who has books they would care to give for this purpose may leave them at the Public Library in the name of the Local Council, it was announced

Growth of Civic Hospital In Five Years Outlined To Local Council of Women

Figures taken from the records of Peterborough Civic Hospital, and presented Thursday by Mr. J. R. Marshall, chairman of the Board of Governors, to the Local Council of Women, showed amazing growth of hospital service there in the past five years. Actually 6,629 more patient days were supplied in 1949 than in 1944. This figure in another form means that 1,234 more patients were admitted to the hospital last year but their average stay was cut from 12 to nine days.

The new Civic Hospital will provide 265 beds and with the 52 beds recently made available in St. Joseph's Hospital new wing, the city will offer 405 beds to meet the needs of the fast-growing population. Mr. Marshall's figures indicated the demand for hospital care is increasing steadily, and he suggested it is due to the modern way of living in small homes and apartments making it difficult for the sick to be cared for at home. "Not many years ago no one would go to the hospital except the destitute or those who were dying" he remarked. In 1949 it was necessary to refuse admission to 535 sick people at the Civic Hospital. Use of the hospital's special services also increased greatly: the number of radiological examinations threefold and the laboratory examinations doubled.

Basis for setting hospital costs was explained by Mr. Marshall. The fact that all persons applying for admission must be taken in, regardless of their ability to pay, may have been overlooked by those who complain that rates are too high. Last year, 4,938 indigent patient days were recorded, for which the hospital received from the municipalities and the Provincial Government the total of $3.75 a day. The service cost $7.50 a day so there was a loss of $18,517.50 for that period. Public ward rates are fixer below actual cost, knowing that the patients there cannot afford full cost, and last year there was a total loss of $16,480.26 on 20,346 patients received there.

Though a public hospital should make no profit, it should balance its books. Losses such as these can only be covered in one of two ways outlined by Mr. Marshall: making rates sufficiently high to those who can pay or, have the loss restored by government and municipality grants.

Department heads on the staff have been professionally trained for their jobs, Mr. Marshall pointed out, and he believes they are competent to see that all buying is done wisely, and the building run as economically as can be. He estimated cost of operating the old for the first half of this year and the new hospital during the last half at $650,000 with a revenue of about $570,000, leaving $80,000. to be provided by taxes.

He praised the work of women in the city, who, through their various organizations, have already pledged $35,000 for furnishings in the new hospital, and it is expected many more will be heard from.

Mr. Marshall said it is hoped to have an opening on May 30 when Prime Minister St. Laurent makes his first visit to this city.

He was introduced by Mrs. W. T. Fanjoy and thanked by Mrs. D. Hill.

Daughter of Victor Spencer, one-time department store owner, she will ride herd on some 3,000 head of Hereford cattle on the ranch fronting the Fraser River.

Dog Creek will be operated by the newly-formed Circle's Cattle Company, Ltd., of which Miss Spencer is President and Managing Director.

Discover Traces Of Civilization 5,000 Years Old

By DENIS CORLEY SMITH

KARACHI (Reuters). — Archaeologists digging on the site of the ancient Indus Valley city of Mohenjo-Daro have found the remains of a fortress which they believe dates back more than 3,000 years B.C.

Working under the direction of one of Britain's best known archaeologists, Dr. Mortimer Wheeler, archaeological adviser to the Pakistan government, students have uncovered substantial brick defences around the fortress of a citadel which may yield new secrets of a fascinating civilization buried under the sand and tasarisk bushes of the Sind Desert, 200 miles northeast of Karachi.

The site was first discovered in 1921 and from remains uncovered was thought to date from 1500-B.C.

Dr. Wheeler said recently that deeper excavation might reveal traces of a civilization older than even those of Mesopotamia and Egypt.

Street 30 Feet Wide

So far the excavations have uncovered one street about 30 feet wide and over a mile long, revealing an extensive drainage system.

The fortress is the first sign of any kind of defence for the civilization that existed there.

Mohenjo-Daro is the earliest relic of Indian civilization so far known.

High mounds upon which a Buddhist temple had been built in more modern time were found by Dr. Wheeler's students to be the remains of a fortress.

Depth Unknown

A spokesman for the Pakistan archaeological department said that below these defences earlier phases of the city go down to an unknown depth.

"The origins of the Indus Valley civilization which the city represents, have never yet been identified and much remains to be discovered in regard to the beginnins of this prehistoric prototype of East Pakistan," he said.

"The present water level, higher than in ancient times, will be reached shortly, but work will continue with the aid of powerful pumps.

Of Interest to Women

DOROTHY DIX

Which Is the Happier Married Or Single Man?

DEAR MISS DIX: Which is the happier, the married man or the single man?

BACHELOR

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: It depends upon the man and the woman he marries. Neither marriage nor bachelorhood is a safe choice for the man who wants a sure thing in happiness, for he is just as likely to find bliss or misery in one estate as the other.

Dorothy Dix

There are men who are born domesticated. They never had a wild impulse nor a longing for freedom. They follow their instincts by slipping their necks in the matrimonial yoke as soon as they are grown, and they are happier with almost any sort of wife than they would be single because they find their delight in the ordered existence.

On the other hand, there are plenty of men who are celibate by nature and whom no wife can ever tame or housebreak. They love themselves better than they are capable of loving any woman, and they always begrudge the money they have to spend on a family and that they would so much prefer spending upon themselves. They are born with a wandering foot and no wife, not even if she be a paragon of all of the charms and virtues can hold them.

Consider Own Temperament

Just as the born husband is happiest married, so is the born bachelor happiest single. So when a man debates the relative merits of matrimony as appertaining to and concerning his individual happiness, he must take his own temperament into consideration.

Generally speaking, and for the average man, marriage tends to promote happiness and well-being. The best proof of this is found in the fact that practically every widower remarries. After having experienced marriage, and being given another chance at singleness, he voluntary chooses the holy estate as the preferable one.

Doctors say that married men are not only happier, but that they live longer because they lead a more settled life, and because their wives nagging makes them take care of themselves. They say many a man is kept from pneumonia by his wife's continual reminder to put on his rubbers, and many a man's life is saved by his wife tormenting him into going to see a physician in time to catch and scotch some deadly disease.

So marriage is worth trying. Once, anyway.

DEAR MISS DIX: What do erring husbands think of their forgiving wives? Evelyn's husband fell desperately in love with another girl two years ago and told her all about it. However, realizing unhappiness would be the only result of continuing the romance, he broke off with the girl and hasn't see her since. Has never mentioned a word about her, never assured Evelyn he has finally forgotten her, and never told Evelyn that he realizes he loves her best after all. Wouldn't the wife be justified in turning to another man for the love her husband doesn't give her? Shouldn't she leave him? Isn't she foolish to let the best years of her life go by starving for affection?

JOAN

ANSWER: Doubtless a few erring husbands exalt their wives into angels for forgiving them. But the majority of side-stepping husbands consider that their wives make entirely too much fuss about the matter, and that they have no cause to put on martyr airs about it. And sometimes the husbands don't want to be forgiven. They would like an excuse to get rid of their wives. In the case you cite the husband appears to have been more prudent than romantic, so he probably is not brooding over his love for the girl he gave up. Certainly his silence on the subject is no indication of this, and it seems to me that Evelyn is unreasonable when she resents his not talking to her about it.

There are many things that should be forgotten. And certainly a husband's infidelities belong in this category. Because Evelyn's husband strayed off the strait and narrow path is no justification for her doing so. Two wrongs never yet made a right. She has her own conscience and her self-respect to consider, and she will find a lot more happiness in preserving these than she will in trying to revenge herself on her husband.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am 23 years old, have three children and a wonderful husband whom I do not wish to hurt, but I cannot go on living without thrills. There is a fellow whom I have liked for three years and I would love to keep company with him. What is your advice on the subject?

TWO KINDS OF LOVE

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: My advice is to stick to the domestic brand of love. There may not be so much kick to it as there is in bootleg romance, but it won't give you such a headache, either. Quit thinking about this young man and quit seeking thrills. Center your heart interest on your husband and children. There is a lot more percentage in that than there is in growing hot and cold over stray young men you see on the street.

THESE THREE CHILDREN have their photos entered in the Child Photo Contest being sponsored by the Peterborough Hadassah and taking place May 1. German Singer Tours Britain

LONDON (CP) — Blue-eyed, blonde Lale Anderson, who became identified with the most famous song of the war—"Lili Marlene"—is to make a singing tour of Britain.

She will appear in Manchester, Leicester, Birmingham, Coventry, Chatham and other parts of the country.

Born in Bremen, Germany, Lale first sang "Lili Marlene" in a Hamburg cafe in 1938. At that time the song attracted no special attention.

Later she recorded the song and one day early in the war it was broadcast by a German disc jockey by mistake. Next morning thousands of inquiries about the song poured in from German troops.

It quickly became the theme song of the Nazi armies. Phoney pin-up pictures of the mythical "Lili Marlene" were sent out by the thousand to German troops. When the British drove the Germans back in North Africa they captured a German broadcasting station and there found a phonograph record of "Lili Marlene."

They promptly made it their own marching song. German propaganda minister Goebbels sent for Lale Anderson and told her she must broadcast personally from Belgrade and ridicule the British. Lale refused and was sent to the island of Langeoog in the Friesians.

When the war ended, Lale was released by Allied troops and went to Hamburg where she quickly became popular with British and American forces as an entertainer.

6—In Memoriams

CATHCART, Mrs. Harold,—In loving memory your dear wife and mother, who passed away one year ago March 18, 1949.
No one knows how much we miss you
No one knows the bitter pain,
We have suffered, Since we lost you
Life has never been the same.
In our hearts, your memory lingers
Sweetly tender, fond and true.
There is not a day dear mother,
That we do not thing of you.
—Ever remembered by husband and all the family.

CATHCART—In loving memory of our dear mother, Bertha, who passed away March 18, 1949.
One year has passed, dear mother,
Since you were called away;
How well do we remember
That sad and weary day.
You suffered much, you murmured not,
We watched you day by day;
We cried and prayed that your dear life
Would not be taken away.
—Always remembered by her son Donald, daughter-in-law Marguerite and grandson Neal.

DELAHEY—In loving memory of a dear mother, Mrs. Fred Delahey, who passed away three years ago today, March 17, 1947.
Just a thought of sweet remembrance
Of a mother kind and true.
Just a token of affection
And a longing dear for you.
Calm and peaceful she is sleeping,
Sweetest rest that follows pain
We who loved her sadly miss her,
And trust in God to meet again.
—Lovingly remembered by daughter and son-in-law Helen and Wally.

DELAHEY—In loving memory of Mrs. Frederick Delahey, who passed away March 17th, 1947.
She travelled life's journey with courage
And helped others on its hard way.
She lived out each day in its fullness
With a heart always cheerful and gay.
She laboured and loved and was happy,
She was our mother and friend,
And to each of us who so well knew her,
She was faithful and kind to the end.
—Ever remembered by son Harold, Viola and family.

GLOVER—In loving memory of my dear mother—Mrs. Robert Glover who passed away March 17, 1937.
Two dear bright eyes, a tender Smile
A loving heart that knew no guile.
Deep trust in God that all was right
Her joy to make some other bright
If sick or suffering one she knew,
Some gentle act of love she'd do:
No thought of self, but of "the other."
I know He said, "Well done, dear mother."
—Ever remembered by son Earl.

HAMILTON—In loving memory of my dear father, Albert R. Hamilton, who passed away March 17, 1943.
The setting of the sun and in the morning, we remember.
—Ever remembered by daughter, Shirley and family.

HANDLEY—In loving memory of Mrs. J. F. Hadley, who entered into rest March 16, 1941, dear mother of Mrs. Ira Lowe.
Not dead, but passed beyond
The mist that binds us here
Into the never larger life
Of that unclouded sphere.
—Lovingly remembered by her daughter.

MORGAN—In loving memory of Gladys Morgan, who passed away March 17, 1947.
In our home she is fondly remembered,
Sweet memories cling to her name
Those who loved her in life sincerely
Still love her in death just the same.

Swindlers Part Dupes, Money In West Germany

By CLEMENS METZNER

FRANKFURT — (Reuters) — Swindlers are riding the gravy train in West Germany's economic recovery. The public here is hearing the warning "It is your money they are after."

Police officials say that many former black marketeers have turned to new rackets after having their "jobs" owing to the now abundant supplies of food, tobacco, and coffee, which they once almost monopolized now, the lure is the deutschemark.

Many of the swindlers operate as counts, princes and barons. The archives of German nobility at Wrisbergholzen, in the British zone unmasks about 150 of them every week.

Among them have been found the chief of a city's criminal police, two former S. S. officers (members of Hitler's black guards), and another man who as "Prince Karl Von Hannover and Braunschwieg" claimed to be a cousin of the King of England.

One of these, with a variety of aristocratic names, got not only money from sympathizers but also the names and addresses of friends of theirs in other towns from whom he could expect support.

When sentenced at Augsburg, in Bavaria, recently to six years' imprisonment he boasted that he had collected 200,000 deutschemarks (over $44,800).

An ex-officer of the S. S. of Dresden went to the Rhineland under an assumed Jewish name and became a prosperous merchant there. He was even a member of a synagogue board before suspicions were aroused and he disappeared.

Bogus Doctors

Frankfurt police estimate that a hundred bogus medical practitioners have been caught in the past 12 months.

One, who was really an office clerk, was among 50 applicants for the job of chief of the Baden Baden hospital. He got it, and performed hundreds of operations before other members of the staff began to be suspicious. Now, he is serving eight years' imprisonment for having caused physical harm to 235 patients.

Marriage swindlers regard West Germany as a happy hunting ground, largely because there are so many "surplus" women. The police believe that half of their victims keep silence because they are affraid of looking ridiculous.

Phoney emigration agencies have collected hundreds of thousands of deutschemarks from Germans who would like to start a new life abroad.

A former circus voice imitator invited wealthy ex-Nazis, properly denazified, to a private meeting where he tuned in to his "underground broadcasting station" named "reawakening." Then his colleague thundered out in the best style of the late Hitler. The "fuehrer" said he was "living with my wife and son in hiding waiting for the great hour of reawakening."

At the end of the meeting, there was a collection "for the support of the fuehrer". It was reported to have realized 70,000 marks before the British military police broke up the meeting.

SHE'S A FELLOW — Dr. Elinor Black, of Winnipeg, has become the first Canadian woman to be named a fellow of the Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists. Dr. Black is on the staff of both the University of Manitoba medical college and the Winnipeg General Hospital.

Police Seeking Murder Motive

VANCOUVER, March 17.—(CP).—Police today seek a motive for the "murder-suicide" Thursday night in an east-end rooming house which resulted in the death of a 38-year-old land lady and a roomer.

Dead are Jacob Toews, 50, and Gertrude Bonner.

An 80-year-old bystander, Fred Geil, injured when he tried to intervene, told police Toews shot Miss Bonner and minutes later turned the .30-.30 calibre rifle on himself. Geil, suffering from shock, told his story from a hospital bed.

"Toews came in the back door," he said. "He was carrying a rifle."

"There was an argument. Then they scuffled. Miss Bonner ran screaming into the bathroom and shut the door."

Geil said Toews pushed open the door, shot her down, struck him (Geil) in the face when he tried to intervene and then shot himself a few minutes later. Geil said he then ran for help.

Police said the rifle was bought by Toews Thursday and that the dead man had been separated several years from his wife and four children at Chilliwack.

Urge Municipalities Accept Ottawa Grant

ST. CATHARINES, March 17.—(CP). — The St. Catharines Regional Planning Board Thursday night urged the municipalities concerned to accept a Federal government offer of a grant toward the cost of constructing an intercepting sanitary sewer and drainage in this area and rehabilitation of land along the second Welland canal.

The acceptance, however, would be subject to clarification of two clauses in the offer.

The Board felt that the Dominion government should continue to be responsible for operation, maintenance and repair of all locks, weir channels and other structures until completion of the project.

The second clause questioned was the understanding that final payment by the Dominion government would be made "when the problem of industrial wastes has been solved to the satisfaction of the Department of Public Health of the Province of Ontario."

Exports Of Textiles Disappoint Britain

MANCHESTER, — (CP) — Canada was a "disappointing" market for British textiles in 1949, the Manchester Guardian says.

In a financial-page story, the Liberal newspaper said that the value of shipments to Canada was smaller last year than in 1948 for virtually all kinds of yarns and fabrics.

"In several important classes of textiles, indeed, exports to the United States fell appreciably less in value than did those to Canada," the paper said.

Devauation of the pound sterling and the smaller reduction in value of the Canadian dollar had prejudiced the expansion of Canada's export trade in textiles. If the Dominion's overseas outlets are reduced, the Guardian warned, "competition in the domestic market is likely to become keener, so that British manufacturers may have even greater difficulty in finding qualities and prices which attract Canadian buyers."

CLASSIC LEGEND

The idea of bull fighting is believed to have originated in Crete, the ancient land of the Minotaur.

BBC Streamlines Religious Period

LONDON, — (CP) — BBC is trying religious broadcasting with all the trimmings of a full-blown radio feature.

A 40-minute sermon is embellished with professional actors, music and full dramatic efforts.

It's the idea of Rev. Francis House, who wants to widen the scope of radio in bringing the church into the home.

Rev. Joseph McCulloch of Warwick preached on a recent broadcast. Taking 'treasure seekers' as a theme, he said "a treasure hunt lurks in every one of us."

With the aid of the BBC drama repertory company, he showed how, ever since Adam and Eve, mankind had dreamed of money, power and fame or some elusive treasure.

Celebrate Two Anniversaries

ROSENEATH, March 17 (ENS) Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Leach and Mr. and Mrs. Elderidge Sherwin, neighbors, living near Fenella, celebrated there wedding anniversaries Thursday at a dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leach.

Mr. and Mrs. Leach were celebrating their 30th wedding anniversary and Mr. and Mrs. Sherwin their 40th anniversary.

Mrs. Leach was formerly Jessie Campbell, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Campbell of Roseneath, and Mr. Leach is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Solomon Leach, Fenella.

Their entire married life has been spent on the Leach homestead near Fenella. They have two children: Mrs. Kenneth McKee of Peterborough, and Don Leach at home.

Mrs. Sherwin was formerly Clara George, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William George of Fenella, and Mr. Sherwin is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Sherwin, of Fenella.

The early part of their married life was spent in Western Canada and they returned to Fenella community a number of years ago. They have one son, Elmer Sherwin.

No Major Incidents

NEW DELHI, March 17 — (AP) —Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru today told India's parliament that no major communal incidents has developed between Pakistan's East Bengal and India's West Bengal Provinces in the last two weeks. Outbreaks of communal violence have been reported from the two neighboring Provinces in recent months giving rise to fears that the Hindu-Moslem riots which followed India's partition might be revived.

Netherlands Device Feeds Jets Quickly

AMSTERDAM, — (CP)— Tank trucks capable of fully refueling jet-propelled aircraft with kerosene in 2.5 minutes have been developed by Netherlands engineers.

Calculated to save from 15 to 45 minutes on the operation, depending on the type of aircraft involved, the trucks already are in use.

Their possible advantage to military aircraft is obvious and Western Union officers have been reported studying their adoption as standard equipment for the forces of the Brussels pact powers.

As North Atlantic defence involves arms and equipment standardization among all the Atlantic Pact powers, there is the possibility that the others too, including Canada, will use the Netherlands vehicle.

The kerosene fuel used by the jets is pumped into the aircraft under great pressure through hoses suspended from extension levers designed to avoid their touching the skin of the 'plane. Damage of fuselage and streamline thus is avoided.

As soon as the plane's tank is full the nozzle closes automatically, the hose is withdrawn and the truck moves on to the next aircraft.

Philanthropist Dies

PHILADELPHIA, March 17 — (AP) —Ellis A. Gimble, sr., 84, department store owner and philanthropist died today at his home after an illness of four days. With six brothers and his father, he founded a store system that now includes branches in Philadelphia, New York, Pittsburgh, Chicago, Detroit, Beverly Hills, Calif., and Miami Fla.

Seat Scramble At Turbulent Murder Trial

VANCOUVER, March 17 (CP) —One of the most turbulent murder cases in Vancouver's history is drawing to a close while the public continues to scramble for seats in the court house.

The trial of 37-year-old Frederick Rodger Ducharme, charged with the sex-slaying of a devoutly religious spinster, is attracting hundreds of spectators.

The body of 45-year-old Ferne Blanche Fisher was found Nov. 8 in the muddy tide waters of False Creek. The night before she was reported missing by her family who said the seamstress had lived a sheltered life.

Medical evidence showed she had had sexual intercourse the previous night and that she bore bruises on her throat.

Ducharme, a former Manitoba resident and unemployed, was taken in custody Dec. 5 for questioning when police met him in a city street, running through the rain clad only in running shoes and raincoat.

A charge of murder was laid against the self-styled "Lone Wolf" after some of the dead woman's apparel was found in his little houseboat on False Creek's muddy flats.

The trial itself has broken down into a fight between the Crown's contention Ducharme is a "brutal murderer" and the defence allegation the French - speaking Canadian was caught in a web of circumstantial evidence after Miss Fisher was intimate with him in his car.

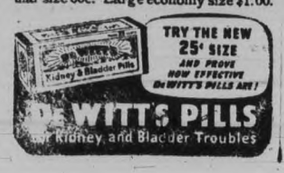
Baby Sitter Costly When Meter Running

HALIFA (CP) — A veteran Halifax taxi driver has unexpectedly developed a new sideline — baby sitting.

When the cabbie arrived at a city home in answer to a call recently, he was given a thorough once-over by a young couple. Then they put the question Would he mind the baby while they went out for a couple of hours? They had tried to get a baby sitter, with no luck.

The driver was willing, but what about the cab. With the cost of living what it is, he had to keep the meter ticking.

"That's all right," said the parents, "leave the meter running."



Away went the couple and for 2 hours the cabbie lounged in an easy chair, checking on the baby ever so often. When the parents returned the cabbie checked his taxi meter and collected $7.50. Which amounts to $3 an hour for baby sitting.

Howe Urges U.S. Chop Trade Balance

Speed World Recovery If Solution Found By Officials

NEW YORK, March 18 — (CP)—Rt. Hon. C. D. Howe, Canadian Trade Minister, today urged the United States to chop down its huge international trade balance as a means of speeding world recovery.

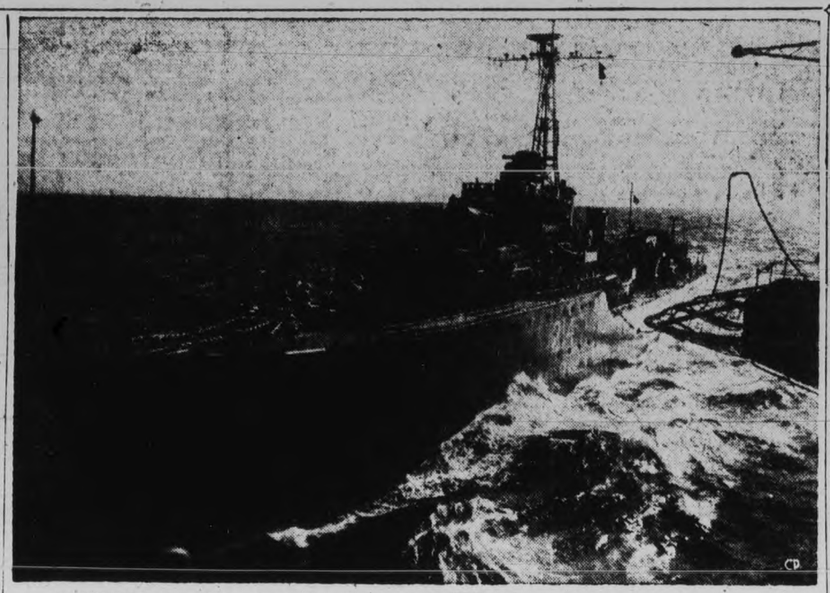
One of the biggest trade problems in the world, Mr. Howe said, was the one dealing with the "staggering difference" between the total value of U. S. exports and imports.

In a speech prepared for delivery before the University Club of New York City, Mr. Howe said:

"I do not presume to offer any gratuitous advice as to how it can best be corrected—whether by increase of your imports, by shrinkage of your exports or by the export of capital and other non-commercial funds.

"However it may be accomplished, the manner of correcting or of offsetting this in balance will have a tremendously-important bearing on the final outcome of all the efforts now being made to get the commercial world back into robust good health."

Long Way To Go



Probing the extent of world economic reconstruction, Mr. Howe said "immense achievement" has been made, but the world still has a long way to go to make complete recovery.

Communism, opposing democratic recovery on economic and political fronts, had deterred the world from making progress.

Resistance to communism also has had beneficial effects. It had helped overcome "deep-seated differences" among democracies—an important gain as the world neared a new phase in the reconstruction picture.

Primary steps in the past have dealt with means of building up United Kingdom and west European economies so that they can produce more. The time was coming when this production, being directed into the dollar markets of Canada and the US, will bring "sharper competition."

Say Station Wrecked Near Ottawa

Two Other Trainmen Taken To Hospital; Train Damage Heavy

ASHTON STATION, Ont., March 18—(CP)—Two Canadian Pacific Railway freight trains collided in a heavy snowstorm here early today killing two men and sending two others to hospital.

Killed were engineer A. T. Short and Fireman C. H. Hannan, both of Ottawa, railway officials identified the two injured men as head-end brakeman T. C. Gilmer and Trainman A. O Renaud, all of Ottawa.

The wreck occurred about 2.20 a.m. EST in the yard of the Ashton Station, about 1½ miles outside this village some 20 miles southwest of Ottawa. Officials said a locomotive and about seven freight cars were destroyed or damaged and the station was "practically demolished" when a freight car ploughed into it.

Crash In Storm

Railway officials at Smiths Falls, division point responsible for Ashton Station, said the wreck occurred when train No. 89 westbound from Ottawa to Smiths Falls ran into an eastbound extra freight as it was pulling into a siding during a heavy snowstorm.

More complete details of the accident were not immediately known, nor could it be learned if the snowstorm had been a contributing factor to the accident.

Early reports of the accident said the two trains had collided head-on, but railway officials said No. 89 had run into the side of the extra.

Doctors and nurses at Carleton Place, about five miles west of here, were rushed to the wreck scene to aid the injured.

"Awful Mess"

Everett Montgomery, of Ashton Station, who was at the station less than an hour after the trains collided, described the scene as an "awful mess."

"There were several freight cars and one locomotive piled up on the tracks and one freight car plowed into the station smashing it up pretty badly," he said.

Mr. Montgomery said it was too dark to tell just what the extent of damage was and that the "snow also made it difficult to know what is what."

The early morning train arrived in Peterborough from Ottawa running only 16 minutes late. It is believed this train may have been re-routed via Bedell.

Railway officials at Ottawa said they hoped to have the line cleared for traffic about 10 a.m. today. They also said the extra would probably continue on to Ottawa before noon. They said it was freight cars at the rear of the extra that had been damaged.

Plan Movie Studio

OSHAWA, March 18 — (CP)—Establishment of a multi-million dollar movie studio on the nearby Parkwood Farms is almost assured, Mayor Michael Starr said Friday. Major British and Canadian movie interests have almost completed arrangements to buy the 6,600-acre property, valued at about $1,000,000, from the owner, automobile magnate R. S. McLaughlin, the Mayor said.

Claxton Believes Air Attack Biggest Danger

OTTAWA, March 18 (CP)—If Canada were attacked tomorrow, the attack probably would come from the sky.

That considered opinion was placed before the Commons on Friday by Defence Minister Claxton as he gave the chamber a review of this country's defence preparations—both past and future—and opened study of a record $425,000,000 defence budget.

"As far as we can see ahead," he told the House, "if there is a likelihood of attack on Canada, it would probably come by air."

To meet that eventuality, he went on, the RCAF is building towards a standing interceptor fighter force of "at least five squadrons" and the equivalent of about six other active squadrons immediately ready for action.

The RCAF already has two interceptor squadrons, one based at St. Hubert, Que., and the other at Chatham, N. B., and the "equivalent of seven other squadrons of one kind or another".

Largest Proportion

Canada was spending a larger proportion of her defence budget on aircraft than any other western power.

But, while he spoke of attack from the air, Mr. Claxton also had a word of encouragement.

He reported that the Atlantic Pact powers have reached unanimous agreement on a "strategic concept" for the integrated defence of the North Atlantic area. Then he added:

"The actions of those powers have "increased the improbability of military aggression."

To further that security arrangement, Canada has invited her allies to send 150 ground and 100 air officers here for training.

Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V. C. (PC-Nanaimo), chief Progressive Conservative military spokesman, called for the building of a strong air force and said he believed Canada has made a mistake in adopting the American F-86 jet fighter as its primary bomber interceptor. The plane had "rather alarming short comings."

Want Details

Alistair Stewart (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre), speaking for the CCF party urged the minister to declare Canada's commitments under the North Atlantic Pact. Canadians, he felt, did not object to commitments, but they liked to know what those commitments were.

11 Go Down With Ship As Jinxed Trawler Rammed, Sunk Off Halifax

Report Several Men Trapped Below Decks In Nightmarish Collision, Survivors Tangled In Wreckage, But Saved

HALIFAX, March 18—(CP)—A jinxed Nova Scotia trawler was rammed and sunk in the early-morning darkness off Halifax harbor today, carrying 11 of her 17 crew members to a watery death. Only six escaped from the 115-foot Gertrude de Costa, out of Yarmouth, N.S., after the sudden, nightmarish collision with the freighter Island Connector, owned by Inter Island steamships Ltd., of Montreal. Sitting in the steaming engine room of the Connector, the still-shivering survivors told of a frantic scramble for safety during the few short minutes before their craft took her last plunge.

All were taken to hospital shortly after the 1,400 ton Connector brought them into port. Some suffered injuries, others were visibly shocked.

In the companionway outside lay the bodies of two of their shipmates, the only two recovered.

Five hours after the collision the body of an unidentified crew member was washed ashore at Maugher's Beach, at the entrance to Halifax Harbor.

All the survivors—one actually was carried under with the ship but lived to tell the story—are from Nova Scotia. All the dead, except one from Grand Bank, Nfld., also were Nova Scotians.

Captain Killed

Among the dead were Capt. Haslem Knickle of Lunenburg, the centre of the province's deep-sea fishing fleet, and his father, Otto.

Another father and son, George Schrader and his son Dave, also were lost in the crash which climaxed a jinxed voyage for the De Costa.

On the banks a few days ago a dory upset and Robert Rhynald of Canso, N. S., was lost. Crew members saved his dory-mate, Morton Tanner of Blue Rocks, from a similar fate. Today, Tanner was one of those lost.

The vessel carried only a partial load of fish—fishing has been bad on the banks this season—as she came in the harbor.

The Connector was outbound for St. John's Nfld., at the time and was not visibly damaged. Her officers declined to comment on the crash.

Edward Tanner, elderly cook aboard the De Costa, told of probably the most marvelous escape.

"It was over in a minute or two," he said.

"I was below asleep but I heard someone yell 'lower the sails' and that woke me.

"Then the crash came and someone cries 'my God, what happened?' By that time I was out on deck.

Had No Knife

"Someone near the stacked dories was yelling for a knife to cut them loose but no one had one. I ran below and got one

Warkworth Lady 100 Years Old Son's 78th Year

Mrs. Catherine Dingman Warkworth, celebrated her 100th birthday Friday, the day her eldest son William was 78.

Widow of Wallace Dingman, who farmed on Oak Heights until his retirement in 1913, Mrs. Dingman was born in Norham, a mile south of Warkworth the same year Peterborough was incorporated as a city.

As a young girl she moved to Montreal, a long and arduous journey in the 50's, with her parents. She went to school there, but returned to Ontario to be married in 1870.

Mr. Dingman was a lumberman working for Gilmour and Rathburn lumberers in the Apsley area before he farmed at Oak Heights. Youngest of the four surviving children is Jim who has been a barber at Warkworth 42 years. He is 66. Catherine, 71, lives three miles north of Castleton and Jennie, 68, is in Guelph. Four other children have died.

Still Active

Mrs. Dingman's brother, the late George Giroux, was for many years an engineer with the Trent Canal and worked on the plans for the liftlocks at Peterborough. Mrs. Dingman was one of 13 Giroux children.

Still active in the home, she and her son Will live together in Warkworth. In the summer Mrs. Dingman enjoys tending the garden. The only disadvantage of her great age is that she has lost most of her hearing.

Suffers Chill King In Bed

LONDON, March 18—(Reuters)—The King is confined to his room at Buckingham Palace with a slight chill.

Sir John Weir, the royal physician, visited the palace today.

The King looked fit Friday when, accompanied by the Queen and Princess Elizabeth, he presented shamrock emblems to officers and men of the Irish Guards at a St. Patrick's Day ceremony at Chelsea Barracks, London.

He had planned to leave the palace later today with the Queen and Princess Margaret to spend the weekend at the Royal Lodge, Windsor.

But plans were altered and His Majesty remained at the palace.

The Queen and Princess Margaret, who has recovered from influenza, left by car for the Royal Lodge.

Sydney Mayor Sentenced To Three Years

SYDNEY, N.S. March 18 (CP)—Former mayor Dan Jack MacLean, 63, today was sentenced to three years in penitentiary for manslaughter in connection with the death of his lifelong friend, Sydney registrar of voters Joseph MacKinnon.

The sentence was delivered in a hushed courtroom here today by Chief Justice J. L. Ilsley. On Thursday he had instructed the jury that MacLean could not be found guilty of murder, that the verdict should be either guilty of manslaughter or innocent. A manslaughter verdict was returned.

When the chief justice delivered the sentence, MacLean, who rose from bellhop to mayor of the steel city, shook his head. He stood up to hear the justice's pronouncement.

Defence Counsel Ross MacKimmie urged clemency on the grounds the defendant was already 63 and a long term in prison would make it exceedingly difficult for him to re-establish himself in his late years, especially because of the wide publicity given the case.

He said his client wishes to thank both the chief justice and the crown for "a very fair trial." "Excessive use of alcohol was responsible for the whole thing," Mr. MacKimmie said. "No one felt more keenly the death of Mr. MacKinnon than the accused."

The chief justice said: "As mayor you had greater responsibility than most citizens in the conduct of law and order," he told MacLean. He said that criminal negligence was proven and the jury had brought in a fair verdict. However, a long term seemed not in order under the various circumstances.

Still Radio-Active

WASHINGTON, March 18 (AP)—The former aircraft carrier Independence still is radio-active more than 3½ years after it was drenched by water thrown up by an atom bomb blast, the Navy disclosed Friday. The Independence was a test ship in the atom bomb experiments at Bikini in 1946.

Rescue 40 Missing 6 Days On Flaming Navy Tender

PEARL HARBOR, March 18—(AP)—All 40 crew members of the net tender Elder, blackened by fire and blasted by explosion, were rescued yesterday near the United States Navy's mid-Pacific atomic testing area. The dock landing ship Comstock picked up 26 men from a life boat and rafts at 3.15 p.m. (8.15 p.m. EST). They had drifted for a week in shark-infested waters after abandoning the stricken 163-foot Elder.

The destroyer tender Piedmont reached the stricken net tender herself at 11 p.m. (4 a.m. EST Saturday and reported the other 14 men were aboard and "all in good shape." They had stayed aboard to continue fighting the blaze.

The Elder, with five feet of water in her badly burned engine room, declined help from the Piedmont's crew.

"I can manage my own ship with my own men," said the Elder's skipper, Lieut. William F. Adams of Wilmar, Calif. The Piedmont radioed that the Elder's 14 men were in "very good to excellent condition."

Passed By

Adams said his disabled craft was passed up Monday by the military transport Gen. A. W. Brewster despite the Elder's signalling "with everything we had aboard except our three-inch gun." He said the Brewster was only two miles away.

"We signalled with flares, a square flag, international distress signal, smoke signals and mirrors. We fired 20-millimetre guns and Very pistols. The crew jumped up and down on deck, waving anything they could lay their hands on."

The twin rescue ended an intensive air and sea search for the Elder—six days overdue at Eniwetok, scene of forthcoming atomic experiments.

What had happened to her was a mystery until the 26 men were picked up from the rafts in the central Pacific.

After they climbed aboard the Comstock, the sailors called for water and then told their story.

RESCUE 40 MISSING

Red Cross Sends Village Food

ST. SAUVEUR, N.B., March 18 (CP)—All was quiet in this backwoods district of northern New Brunswick today and officials credited quick arrival of food for quelling possible hunger marches.

Relief trucks brought food from Bathurst, about 20 miles northwest of here, after reports of a minor hunger riot came out of the area, cut off by snow-blocked roads for two weeks, Thursday night.

Supplied by the disaster relief committee of the Provincial Red Cross, a food-laden truck took more than three hours to travel the snow-banked road. A path wide enough for only one vehicle had been cut but drifting made digging necessary in spots before the truck could proceed. The supply is sufficient for two or three days and more Red Cross aid was promised if necessary.

At Fredericton, meanwhile, Premier McNair said the provincial government is taking steps to encourage employment through private firms in the area.

Hon. J. A. Doucet, minister of industry and reconstruction, whose constituency includes St. Sauveur, said immediate relief would be left in the hands of the Red Cross and similar organizations. There would ge no direct relief from the province, partly because of the difficulty in controlling such a system and partly because of a feeling it would not be the proper remedy.

Communist Workers Stage Turin Walkout

TURIN, Italy, March 18—(AP)—Hundreds of Communist-led workers stayed away from their jobs today in protest against the arrest of 35 comrades in Friday's street battles with neo-Fascists.

Many department of the huge Fiat automobile factory and other plants here were idle, but the city was calm. A number of workers' meetings Friday night and early today demanded that the government force dissolution of the neo-Fascist organization, the Italian social movement (NSI).

Riot-police, in jeeps and armored trucks, remained on guard in the centre of Turin where 15 policemen were injured in Friday's rioting and a number of demonstrators bruised and cut. Armed police and carabineri finally quelled the fighting.

Romeo Hoping 9 Wives To Pay

CRAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 18 (AP)—A strapping "lonely hearts" Romeo waited today in a dingy jail cell for one of his six—possibly nine—former wives to put up $20,000.

That was the sum fixed for release of Clarence W. Buchanan, 49, when arraigned Friday on charges of polgamy and fraudulently obtaining a signature.

Police quoted Buchanan as saying he wasn't quite sure whether he had picked up six or nine wives in his cross-country mail campaign in the last 26 years.

The 206-pound, six-foot Casanova described himself as a St. Louis rooming house operator. He could recall marrying two women in that city and four elsewhere.

"They all wanted to use me for a sucker," he said as he talked freely to police and reporters. "I didn't entice them into marriage. They ran to me. And besides they tried to fleece me."

He made one exception. The exception was Ina J. Cihula, 55, of White Sulphur Springs, W.Va. He said he married her in August, 1949, in Charleston, W.Va.

Canadians Earn 7 Billion 7% Increase Over 1948

OTTAWA, March 18—(CP)—Canadians earned $7,630,000,000 last year, seven per cent more than in 1948.

The bureau of statistics Friday released figures on salaries and wages and supplementary income for 1949, reporting that increases were recorded for all industries except forestry and fishing. The decline in these two industries was substantial. Estimated total of earnings in December was $642,000,000—down $19,000,000 from November, but up $28,000,000 or about five per cent from the previous December.

"The influence of winter weather on outside industrial activity, together with a shorter work-month due to the holiday season, were major factors contributing to the decline from November," the bureau said.

Labor income in agriculture, logging, fishing, trapping and mining as a group was $586,000,000 for the year compared with $622,000,000 in 1948. In December the total was $47,000,000 as against $62,000,000 a year earlier.

In manufacturing, labor income for the year totalled $2,582,000,000 compared with $2,422,000 in 1948, and in December it was $217,000,000 against $211,000,000.

In construction the year's total was $527,000,000 compared with $478,000,000 in the preceding year, the December figure standing at $41,000,000 compared with $39,000,000.

The estimated total for utilities, transportation, communication, storage and trade for the year amounted to $2,022,000,000 as compared with $1,846,000,000 in 1948, and for December at $174,000,000 compared with $164,000,000.

Stove Explodes May Be Blinded

BLIND RIVER, March 18 — A 10-year-old boy who tried to help his widowed mother may be blind for the rest of his life as a result, it was learned Friday night.

Victor May's job was to light the kitchen woodstove before his mother returned from work. He usually used coal oil to get it started. Last night he used gasoline.

The fuel exploded, spraying him with flames. He dived into a chesterfield and then ran outside the whole top of his body blazing.

A neighbor, Mrs. Albert Knapp, hanging out the clothes, grabbed him and wrapped a wet towel around his head. That may have saved his life, said officials.

Heavy Mortar Fire Alerts U.S. Gun Crews

SAIGON, Indo-China, March 18 —(Reuters)—Sudden heavy mortar fire punctuated with sharp bursts of machine-gun fire sent United States naval gun crews to action stations on the Saigon waterfront at 11 p.m. Friday night.

Viet Nam Autonomists (Pro-Communist insurgents) opened fire across the river at about a half-mile, several mortar shells falling within a few yards of the U.S. destroyers Anderson and Stickell.

The American warships did not open fire.

French light artillery replied covering a patrol which drove off the insurgents.

The firing lasted about 30 minutes. It was preceded by the throwing of several grenades into bars and restaurants.

Stops At Too Many Bars, Too Many Times Judge Says Irish Need Break—Jailed 10 Days

OMAHA, Neb., March 18 (AP)—Poafpybitty Thompson, whose name isn't one to win friends among printers and proofreaders, was back in police court Friday for the third straight day.

Wednesday Judge Lester Palmer listened while Poafpybitty (booked as Poofbitty) explained he had stopped at too many bars on his way to the office of the collector of internal revenue. The judge dismissed the drunkenness charge with a warning that Poafpybitty get his income tax paid.

Thursday Poafpybitty was back on the same charge.

"I did too much drinking," Poafpybitty said "but I did mail my income tax form in between bars."

"Well done," said Judge Palmer, "you get one more chance."

Who greeted Judge Palmer in police court Friday?

Right: Poafpybitty.

Said a stern Judge Palmer as he handed down a 10-day jail sentence:

"I tried to give you a chance to go back to Oklahoma yesterday as a favor to all Irish printers and proofreaders today."

"No Irish printer should be asked to spell Poofdbitty on St. Patrick's Day, and no Irish proofreader should be asked to straighten that name out after the printer has tried."

In jail, the full-blooded Comanche Indian tried to straighten everybody out, including the man who made out his social security card: It's Poafpybitty, not Poofdbitty, he said and that's his last name, not his first.

2 Children Burned

LAGRANGE, Me., March 18—(CP)—Two children perished in a fire Friday—the 23rd and 24th children to lose their lives in Maine fires since the start of the year. The victims were Gerald Casey, 2, and Raymond L., 4, only sons of Mr. and Mrs. Wilford Casey. They died as flames destroyed thier small home.

House In Belleville Hit Twice By Cars

BELLEVILLE, March 18 — Henry Hatfield, Hillcrest Ave., believes that motor cars as well as lightning can strike twice in the same place.

A year ago a motorist rammed his car into the side of Mr. Hatfield's house as he attempted to turn a corner at the intersection of Hillcrest and Alexander Sts. A hole was punched in the side of the house and the motorist paid the damages.

The same thing happened Thursday. Clayton West, Cannington I.d., lost control of his car at the same intersection and crashed the Hatfield home. Damage to the house is estimated at $400.

Belgian Gov't Resigns; Strike Ended

BRUSSELS, March 18 (CP)—The Belgian coalition government resigned today after Liberal minister had demanded that the Roman Catholics in the cabinet should modify their attitude on the question of exiled King Leopold III's return to the throne.

After a two-hour cabinet meeting, Premier Gaston Eyskens left for the Royal Palace to hand his government's resignation to the regent, Prince Charles.

The fall of Premier Eyskens' government of Social Christian (Catholic) and Liberal representatives followed the resignation earlier today of eight Liberal ministers the government had hoped would support the move to recall the King.

Social Christian members of the cabinet, led by the premier, had hoped the Liberals would support the move to convene parliament for passage of a resolution to end the regency and invite the King to return. Presumably the Liberals had refused to join the Catholic party in such a move.

Belgian workers, meanwhile, went back to their jobs today after 24-hour strikes protesting Leopold's return.

Despite threats to extend the strikes, reports from South Belgium's Walloon section—centre of the work stoppages — indicated the situation was back to normal.

"Don't forget today is pay day," said one smiling informant, implying that further strike movements might develop Monday.

About 100,000 workers walked out Friday.

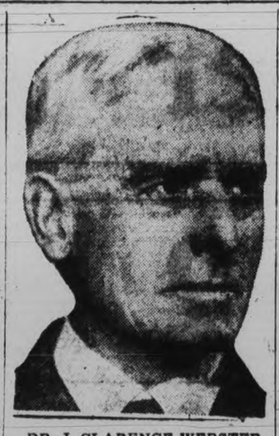
Must Meet Competition

"We must look forward to meeting this competition," Mr. Howe said, "both in our own domestic markets and in our markets overseas—not only in Europe and the British Isles but in Latin-America, the East, the Middle East and elsewhere.

If Canada or the US limited the amount of free competition from outside sources, in order to protect home industries, "we shall find ourselves shutting the door on any expectation of achieving a world in which there will be expanding trade and expanding freedom of trade."



"We cannot get very far with a competitive system in which competition is afraid of its own shadow from abroad," Mr. Howe added.

and took a couple of swipes at the ropes before she went under.

"My arms were twisted in the rigging as she sank. But I still don't know how I'm here. I went down with her and then came up in the wreckage near a bunch of dories—somehow they had got loose.

"It was taking water and I kept thinking 'I can't make it, I can't make it' and I kept on paddling anyway.

"Then they fired ropes and ladders from the Connector and I was safe."

Robert Parker, of Canso, said he was at the wheel just before the crash.

"We saw her coming," he said, "and the skipper gave me the 'hard over' order. Then he took the wheel himself just before the crash. She hit us almost straight on at the after end.

Caught In Wires

"I jumped into the rigging and got caught in the wires. Then the spar came down and I came down with it, into the water."

As he spoke, Parker wiped blood from a badly-gashed eye and held out a tightly-bandaged hand—crushed in the falling rigging.

The survivors had praise for the fast action of the Connector's crew.

"They did everything they could," said one. "But there wasn't much they could do. The boys below didn't have a chance."

"It was cold in the water," said Tanner, "damned cold."

"We lost everything . . . Some of us haven't even got shoes to wear . . . My war medals came the other day and they went down, too. But we're lucky to be here . . . Look at the other poor devils." He glanced toward the companionway.

Outside, the two corpses were covered with blankets. One had died with one of his rubber boots on, the other was in his stocking feet.

Surviving besides Lohnes, Tanner and Parker were Neil Sullivan and William Crew, of Canso, and George Hartlen, of Queensport.

Papers Missing In Windsor Police Inquiry

WINDSOR, March 18 (CP) — The case of the missing papers hangs over Windsor's police inquiry, scheduled to close today after three days of investigation into allegations of corruption in the city's police force.

Two sheets of paper, purporting to list customers of bootleger Joseph Assef, disappeared Friday on the second day of the inquiry. Crown Attorney Douglas Bell of Chatham, counsel in the inquiry conducted by Windsor's three-man police commission, discovered the loss at intermission time when he sought them for questioning of police witnesses.

The hearing continued without any explanation. After adjournment Mr. Bell said that several persons, including other counsel and members of the commission, had access to the box. He did not think the papers disappeared overnight.

Three Witnesses Left

Assef's conviction on a bootlegging charge led to the inquiry.

Mr. Bell indicated Friday night that only three witnesses remain to be called, heads of the police criminal investigation, traffic and morality departments.

Hearing the inquiry are the Police Commission's three members: Magistrate Angus W. MacMillan chairman, Mayor Arthur J. Reaume, and County Judge Albert J. Gordon.

Nine Windsor policemen were heard Friday after investigation showed that their addresses were included in the lists and after each appeared the "COP." All the policemen denied in testimony that they had ever purchased or been given liquor or beer from Assef, now serving a six-month sentence on conviction of keeping liquor for sale.

No mention was made at Friday's hearing of County Magistrate J. A. Hanrahan, whose recent judgment against Assef hinted at "laxity" in Windsor law enforcement and touched off the probe.

Answering questions of Attorney Bell, during an appearance on Thursday at the inquiry's opening, Mr. Hanrahan said that his judgment was based entirely on "facts of evidence" before him during Assef's trial.

Swirling snow was driven across all main highways reducing visibility to zero and the storm headed deep into Eastern Ontario late Friday night. Highway crews are expected to have highways clear today.

Killed during the storm was Mrs. R. A. Wilson, 70, who stepped off a bus into the path of an automobile near her home. Elizabeth Walbur, 52, was fatally injured when struck by a skidding car while shovelling snow in front of her home.

Fire In Engine Room

Fire broke out in the engine room of the net tender March 10. A series of explosions followed.

The crew fought the spreading flames and jettisoned the ammunition aboard. All morning and all afternoon they struggled against the fire.

Then the Elder's commander ordered 26 of the crew to abandon ship. They put out in a life boat and rafts.

The other 14 remained aboard to continue the fire-fighting. They were still tossing ammunition overboard as the 26 pulled away.

"They couldn't go into the engine room," one said. "It was too hot."

Conquered Fire

Those 14 conquered the fire. They were still manning the flame and explosion - scarred Elder when aid came a week later.

Both the fire and explosion were unknown to the outside world until the rescue. She was last heard from March 7.

The only other report came from the military transport Gen. A. W. Brewster. The transport said she sighted the Elder Monday and the net tender was "in no apparent trouble."

It was summed up this way in the words of chief boatswain's mate Morgan A. Tidwell, of Richmond, Calif.:

"We sighted two transport planes yesterday (Thursday) and then about noon today (Friday) we saw these four big patrol planes. We knew then that at last a rescue party was on the way."

They had been disappointed once before. They had seen the Gen. W. A. Brewster Monday, the same day the transport had sighted the Elder.

SHEERNESS, Kent, England, March 18 (Reuters)—Ten bodies have been recovered from the submarine Truculent, but the shattered vessel is unlikely to be refloated until early next week, the Admiralty announced Friday. The Truculent sank in the Thames Estuary last January, with loss of 64 lives after a collision with the Swedish tanker Divina.

The boy, David Donald Bevan, pleaded guilty to manslaughter and was sentenced to five years detention.

RMC Graduates Praised By MP

OTTAWA, March 18 (CP)—W. J. Henderson (PC-Kingston) told the Commons Friday night that Canada could be proud of the graduates from the Royal Military College at Kingston.

Participating in a debate on defence department estimates, he took issue with a suggestion earlier this week by H. O. White (PC-Middlesex East) that Canada could get away from the military caste system by having officers trained in universities rather than in the military college.

Mr. Henderson said he knew many of the graduates and they were not indicative of a caste system. They were no different from civilians and, in fact, were a pride to this country.

Reviewing the college's activities, he said it constituted a means by which Canada could have one standard for military officers. In that way, it assisted unification.

Pot Luck Supper Held Church School Room

WARKWORTH, March 18 — (ENS)—The Woman's Association of St. Paul's United Church met in the Sunday school room on Wednesday for a pot luck supper. After supper Mrs. D. H. Evans took charge of a program, opening with community singing led by the Rev. H. G. Lester. Mrs. Frank Bowen gave a solo and Mrs. Lorne Evans a recitation. Mr. Lester sang a solo which was followed by a reading by Mrs. Oscar Laver and a vocal chorus by the men.

After the program, the president Mrs. Wm. Shaw, conducted a short business meeting. Mrs. Lloyd Seward extended a vote of thanks to all who helped with the program.

Trade Teachers Scarce

TORONTO, March 18 (CP) — R. D. Phillips, director of vocational training at the Ontario College of Education, said Friday night there will be a serious shortage of vocational teachers if more skilled tradesmen don't enter the teaching profession. Enrolment of prospective trade teachers at OGE now is at an all-time low. Twelve will graduate this year to supply the whole province. Average enrolment during the last few years has been 24.

5,000,000 FDR Letters On Career To Be Public

HYDE PARK, N. Y., March 18 (AP)—President Franklin D. Roosevelt kept a copy of almost every letter he wrote, and almost every letter he received after he began his political climb.

Today more than 5,000,000 of these letters became public property—a mirror to one of the vital eras of world history.

Brief ceremonies marked the event at the Franklin D. Roosevelt Library here. It took 2½ years to index the papers.

There are letters to kings and to high and low-born men whose names are marked forever in history. And there are humble letters, the voice of the average citizen, as he took pen in hand and wrote to the White House during Roosevelt's 12 years in office.

About 85 per cent of all the letters became public property. The rest were withheld for another 25 years, as they might embarrass persons still alive, or might affect US relations with other countries.

The letters are in boxes which fill the shelves lining four rooms of the federal library. Confidential letters are marked by red folders.

The papers will not be available to the general public. Only accredited scholars and researchers will have access to them.

Coldwell Suggests A Planned Economy

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 18 (CP)—A planned economy in which production will be geared to need rather than individual profit was offered as the bulwark against totalitarianism today by M. J. Coldwell, national leader of Canada's C.C.F. party.

"Social planning for economic freedom is the first essential in a truly democratic society," he said in an address prepared for delivery to an inter-college conference at Harvard University.

Planning did not mean regimentation. The problem of modern democratic statesmanship was to reconcile planning with freedom.

Rights of Press

LONDON, March 18 (AP) — The Empire Press Union has adopted a declaration that the press "should enjoy by right the full freedom of expression secured to every individual." Even restrictions necessary in time of national emergency, the union says should be agreed in advance between the government and press organizations involved.

Fish-Market Poesy Adorns Paper Bags

LONDON (CP) — Robert and Thomas Hancock are twin hereditary poets laureate of Billingsgate, London's fish-market district.

They compose Cockney verses that are printed on the sturdy brown paper bags in which thousands of fish-and-chip shops dispense their proletarian delicacy.

Robert and Thomas are grandsons of the original poet laureate of Billingsgate, Robert Hancock I. For over 50 years the elder Robert turned out a new poem every week. He died seven years ago leaving £150,000 ($465,000). He had started in business with a hand-press. Today an electric press prints 2,000 "poetry bags" a minute.

Edmison Talks At Father-Son Church Banquet

A text from the Bible as an example for all young men to follow, guest speaker J. Alex Edmison, KC, of Toronto, executive-secretary of the John Howard Society quoted "Jesus increased in wisdom and stature and in favour with God and Man." He addressed more than 300 fathers and sons at a banquet at the George Street United Church Sunday School on Friday evening on character building and preparation for life to follow. In the audience the oldest father William J. Allison, 82, and youngson "son," Ronald Hancock, 3 years, were typical of the age range of this large group which are an active part of the church organization.

His Worship Mayor Max J. Swanston spoke briefly to the group pointing out that such church movements were an important part of community life and congratulated the audience on their splendid turnout.

Chairman of the boys' work committee John A. Hunter acted as master of ceremonies and the speaker was introduced by Leo W. Copp, principal of Peterborough Normal School. A toast to the church was proposed by Dennis Young and a toast to the fathers by Donald Lang.

Proceeds of the banquet will toward modernizing the church kitchen and catering for the affair was done by Number 3 group of the Women's Auxiliary under direction of Mrs. H. G. McGinness.

Thinks Acting Not Nationality Decides Role

By PAT USSHER

NEW YORK, March 18 (CP) — It's all right with British actor Sir Cedric Hardwicke if an American actress plays the role of Queen Victoria in a forthcoming movie.

Sir Cedric this week chided criticism in Britain of the casting of Hollywood star Irene Dunne as Queen Victoria in the film, "The Mudlark," to be produced on the other side of the Atlantic this summer.

Acting ability, not nationality should be the criterion in casting he said at a luncheon of the British-American Club of New York. Sir Cedric currently is playing Caesar in a New York revival of Shaw's "Caesar and Cleopatra."

Canada Bound

The Sadler's Wells Ballet on its second North American tour within two years will be seen again in Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto late in 1950. But Impresario Solhurok says the company's tight schedule means it can play less than a week in each of the Canadian cities. The engagement on this side opens in New York next Sept. 10.

Theme: Riel Rebellion

Play agent Monica McCall went to Toronto recently to see the new play society's production of "Riel," John Coulter's play about the rebellion in Western Canada 1885 led by Louis Riel. Variety's critic commented that, for American audiences unfamiliar with the history of that insurrection, some clarification would be needed in the writing. Miss McCall said she agreed. Coulter, an Irish-Canadian playwright and poet, is said to be revising the play on the basis of her suggestions.

Aisle Jottings

"The Bird Cage," a melodrama centred around a vicious night club owner, closed last weekend. Melvyn Douglas played the principal part in the Arthur Laurents play which lasted less than three weeks. Another quick shut-down was that of "Tobacco Road," a revival with an all-negro cast of the play based on Erskine Caldwell's novel. It ran but seven performances . . . Alfred Drake and Patricia Morison, co-stars of the New York production of "Kiss Me, Kate," leave the hit musical June 1. Anne Jeffreys of the Chicago company will replace Miss Morison. A replacement has yet to be found for Drake.

The lad accidentally swallowed lye on his father's farm, causing his esophagus to close. He had since been fed through a tube inserted in his stomach and had been under treatment for some time in Montreal and Quebec before going to Chicago last month. At top left Philibert grimaces at the prospect that the first swallow may be painful but at right, he assures Nurse Jean Christoffersen that everything's "O.K." as she offers a glass of milk.

Carter Believes Law Of Canada Very Different In 50 Years

By JOHN MOSHER

SAINT JOHN N. B., March 18 —(CP)—A half-century hence the law of Canada will be "probably substantially different" from what it is today, says A. N. Carter, K. C., but the president to the Canadian Bar Association refrains from predicting what the field of law will be like in the year 2,000.

He says:

"He would be a bolder man than I who would venture to predict what fundamental changes will take place in Canadian law in the next 50 years. Nor do I think that anyone is fitted to make such a prediction."

In a democracy such as Canada's says Mr. Carter, public opinion determines the law.

"What the law will be in the next 50 years will depend on what the majority of Canadians decide they want or is in their best interest."

Canadians realized that during the last 35 years there had been a "growing encroachment by government, both Dominion and Provincial, and irrespective of parties on the activities which in the past have been dominated by individuals."

Duties Stressed

When Mr. Carter began the study of law in 1913, he approached each problem "from the viewpoint of the individual citizen and his rights." Little emphasis was laid on the duties of the citizen to the state. "Now the reverse is true and the duties rather than the rights of citizens are stressed."

Mr. Carter went on:

"As yet there has been no indiction that in the near future, at least, the individual will regain his former freedom of action or that governments will give up the fields of human activity they have made their own. In Great Britain, indeed, the government is extending stil further the scope of its activities and the embracing character of its controls. In New Zealand and Australia, on the other hand, the results of the recent elections reveal a change in public opinion towards reducing government activity. . .

"If the great socialistic experiment being carried on in Great Britain is a success in that it continues to command the approval of the majority of the electors of that country and provides them with improved standards of living, we in Canada may find ourselves following their lead and as a people with a system of law in which the government will be a greater and greater factor.

"If, on the other hand, the Socialistic experiment in Great Britain proves a failure, we may well find public opinion in Canada favoring a return to the former system under which the individual was given wide scope for initiative and enterprise, and this country, like the United States, expanded and prospered."

2 Holdups Reported In City Of Windsor

WINDSOR, March 18—(CP)—An unconfirmed report late Friday night was that a second holdup followed one earlier in the night in which a Windsor lunch-counter proprietor was shot and robbed of a large amount of money and cheques by two masked gunmen who held up his cafe.

Hospital officials report Joseph Chaloupka is in good condition and under treatment for shotgun wounds in his right arm and shoulder.

Police would not comment on either holdup report.

The second report was that two or three gunmen held up a pedestrian on a west-side street and robbed him of some $9,000 in cash.

Say Waterfront Fire Caused By Wiring

QUEBEC, March 18 — (CP) — Fire believed caused by defective wiring Friday night caused several hundred thousand dollars damage to a Federal Department of Transport warehouse on Quebec's waterfront.

Late Friday night, the fire was still blazing in the hollowed shell of the 130-year-old building and fire officials believed the roof would cave in before the flames were extinguished.

Capt. G. E. Gauvreau, superintendent of the department's St. Lawrence River buoy system here said late Friday night that the fire was apparently caused by defective wiring on the second floor of the building.

Millbrook Hydro Men Moved To Peterboro

MILLBROOK, March 18 (ENS) —It was announced today that the hydro headquarters after May 1 were to be transfered from Millbrook to Peterborough. It was inimated that two or three men would remain here to keep the local lines in repair but the rest would go to Peterborough. This will mean a loss of eight families to this village.

Hope To Extend Range Of Jet Liners

Flight refueling is once more in the news, says a British writer. There is a proposal that the De Havilland Comet jet liner should now be refueled in mid-air in order to allow her to fly non-stop between London and New York.

It has taken a long time for the advantages of taking on fuel from flying tankers to be put to practical effect by the designers and operators of military and civil aircraft and, indeed, it has only been since the war that any wide use has been made of the system.

"Cambria" Used

I remember, in 1937, watching one of the first public demonstrations of Sir Alan Cobham's mid-air refueling technique. The receiving machine was the Empire Class flying boat "Cambria," piloted by that Atlantic route pioneer, Capt. A. S. Wilcockson of Imperial Airways, and the Whitley tanker was flown by Geoffrey Tyson, now chief test pilot to Saunders Roe.

The operation was successful and there was talk of it being used to open up the first Atlantic passenger service by its aid. Sir Alan had then been working on his scheme for five years and had already given a private demonstration at Portsmouth in 1934 and several other for the Air Ministry and Imperial Airways in 1936.

More tests were made and, by 1939, opposition had been overcome to extent that a scheduled series of 16 North Atlantic flights were made that year. Flying boats used had a taking off load of 46,000 pounds, but were certified "safe" for flight, once airborne, at 53,000 pounds— a direct benefit in load of 7,000 pounds.

War Intervened

All the flights were made without hitch but the war caused the spotlight to swing from civil to military applications of the technique. The United States had a Flying Fortress equipped for a test, and the British decided to adapt 1,250 Lancasters and Lincolns as tankers or receivers for long-range bombing of Japan. The trend of the war however, made this unnecessary.

Since the war, there has been rapid progress.

Bad weather over the Channel showed that radar could guarantee successful meetings between tanker and receiver, and schedules of summer and winter freight services across both the South and North Atlantic were run with 100 percent success by British South American Airways and by B.O.A.C. In the U.S.A., the main strategic bombing force of B 29's was adopted for flight refueling. Sir Alan being advisor on the project, and in Britain, a Meteor jet fighter was able to stay up for 12 hours on flight refueling.

Old Method

For big aircraft the basic principle used was (and is) that of the early 1930's. A tanker aircraft meets the receiver and flies with it in formation. The receiver trails a rope line and the tanker picks it up with a foolproof apparatus. The refueling hose is then hauled in by a windless from the tanker to the receiver, and the fuel passes by gravity feed. Every safety factor has been considered. There can be no spill of petrol — no overfilling—and there are no fire risks.

Today with jets using the less inflammable kerosene the dangers humanly speaking are nil — certainly much less than those of the full load take-off which flight refueling supplants, and as a guide to this matter it is interesting that insurance premiums are lower for flight refueled machines. Expert assessors regard the hazards of the ordinary take-offs at refueling halts (rendered unnecessary by the tanker) as being the higher risk.

Now that we have jet liners with their heavy fuel consumption, flight refueling seems likely to come into its own. The Comet, for instance, can safely operate up to 1,700-mile route stages with 48 passengers at 500 m.p.h. Across the North Atlantic, she can carry 24 passengers via Shannon and Gander. On this "shop-window" route on which there is so much fierce competition, a great prize is to be had by the airliner that can operate non-stop from capital to capital.

IT'S LOVELY ON ICE—At Timmins, the winner of a sweepstakes will be decided by the time the Mattagami River ice goes. A barrel was frozen into the ice and when it passes under the Mattagami Bridge, it will set the time. The person who guesses closest to this time wins the prize. In this photo Patricia Martin, "Miss Break-up," is superimposed on a shot of the barrel in the ice.

Public Phones Won't Be Raised

OTTAWA, March 18 (CP) — Higher telephone rates in Ontario and Quebec proposed by Bell Telephone Company will not apply to public telephone booths.

William Graham Bell, general development supervisor, told the Board of Transport Commissioners today that the company does not plan to raise the price of the nickel calls from public booths.

Mr. Bell—no relation to telephone-inventor Alexander Graham Bell — was replying to a question asked by F. M. Macpherson, one of the commissioners hearing the company's application for a 20 per cent boost in telephone rates.

"Have you ever thought of raising the charge for public telephone calls to 10 cents?" asked Mr. Macpherson.

Mr. Bell said the company had thought of it but was not planning such action. He remarked that it would be a big job to convert all public telephones from nickel to 10-cent-piece operation.

Mr. Bell said the total revenue from public telephones this year would be about $4,000,000. Next year it would be up to $4,130,000 from 19,750 public telephones.

"Dollar Bills" Producing Sure-Fire Films

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, March 18 (AP) —When the "Dollar Bills" start espousing controversial pictures, you know such films are here to stay.

The dollar "Bills" are Bill Pine and Bill Thomas. They won their title by producing sure-fire box office pictures.

"We're out to show a profit," admitted Thomas, the loquacious member of the team. "So far we have never failed." Their "Manhandled" starring Dorothy Lamour and Dan Duryea, came close to breaking their record, but it is expected to limp out of the red ink.

Hollywood was surprised to learn that the Pine-Thomas duo was making "The Lawless," a picture about small-town prejudice against Americans of Mexican origin. Such films were considered to be a gamble.

Gimmicks Sell

But, as variety stated last week in one of its characteristic headlines, "gimmick pix beat B. O. nix." Translated into everyday English, that means that pictures with some new gimmick or theme (such as "Pinky" and "All The King's Men") are succeeding at the box office while most other films are faring poorly.

"All the public wants," explained Thomas, "is something new. They want to be sure they aren't seeing the same thing they saw last week and the week before.

"That means you can't give 'em the old theme of a guy jumping off a moving train into a moving automobile. Meaningless action doesn't pay off any more. You have to give them something to think about."

Thomas said he had trouble convincing the powers to allow "The Lawless." His releasing company Paramount, tried to discourage the picture.

The Johnston office also frowned on the project, declaring it did not show democracy in a good light.

"But they raved after seeing the finished picture," said Thomas. "they want to show it to the U. N."

So Canada Does Not Make The Bomb

"Sixteen hours ago an American airplane dropped one bomb on Hiroshima, an important Japanese Army base. It is an atomic bomb."

This was President Truman's announcement of August 6th, 1945. Since that time, of course, the term Hiroshima has not required identifying qualification, nor has The Bomb. They have been the portentous background of post-war years and the headlines of the news. A timely congruence is the three-day secret conference (which ended yesterday) of Canadian, American and British defence research scientists held, be it noted, in an Ottawa church hall. Following the announcement of the dropping of the bomb came elaborations by the American Secretary of War, Mr. Stimson, who told on the same day that co-operative work had gone on since August, 1943 between his country, the United States and Canada "to bring the project to fruition as quickly as possible." The first result was the Hiroshima bomb; the "project" is having other results such as the H-bomb. And Canada continues to be party to the enterprise.

The chief reason Canada became involved is implied in Prime Minister King's statement in the House of Commons on December 17, 1945:

> "Upon invitation of Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill, in which I had concurred, Mr. Howe, the Minister of Munitions and Supply, was made a member of the Combined Policy Committee as the representative of Canada . . . As soon as the significant use of uranium in the atom bomb process was disclosed to Mr. Howe and myself, we secured the approval of the cabinet of the purchase of the Eldorado uranium properties in the Great Bear Lake area . . . This was a strategic factor of high importance, since this second largest known source of raw material thereby became accessible to the large manufacturing plants already built in the United States".

* * *

From 1943 until 1946 full co-operation existed in all phases of atomic energy development. Bombs were manufactured only in the United States, although British and Canadian scientists co-operating in the work there had available to them what is called the "know-how". In the summer of 1946 the American Congress passed the Atomic Energy Act, and direct co-operation ceased. Some Americans, below the highest official levels, objected to it, and seemed to fear for that nation's power and safety, if the U.S.A. did not keep its bomb work secret to itself entirely. Britain set up a "Research Establishment" at Harwell, Berkshire and the first British nuclear pile was completed in August, 1947. Dr. Robert F. Bacher, a former Los Alamos scientist (Los Alamos is the chief U.S. atomic energy plant) testified before a Congressional Committee last July that "The British have an atomic energy project . . . They have all of the technical know-how, all of the scientific background that is necessary for such a development, and I believe it is only a question of time until they do produce bombs."

* * *

What of Canada? Is it lily-white innocent of all bomb-making, concentrating its scientists and atomic power resources on producing at Chalk River isotopes and kindred stuff of atomic fission for medical and other humane purposes only? Canada is not itself manufacturing A-bombs, but is involved in the entire process right up to the hilt, allowing the Americans and British to fashion the handle.

* * *

General A. G. L. McNaughton, then President of the Atomic Energy Control Board said in May 1947:

> "As a consequence of our war effort in the field of Atomic energy Canada attained a position in development which, while not of the same order of magnitude as that of the United States, was nevertheless second only to that country. Canada has considerable reserves of uranium. She has a staff of scientists who have wide experience in carrying out nuclear research".

* * *

In September of that year Mr. Howe disclosed that Canada had the world's largest heavy water atomic plant and that new uranium deposits had been located in the Canadian northlands—in addition to the Great Bear Lake deposits.

* * *

When Canadians read about the American H-bomb, and the British atomic energy developments; when these countries agitate themselves about the uses, control and exploitation of atomic energy, they cannot stand aside as disinterested observers. Canada is one of the chief atomic power nations in the world, even if it is not manufacturing weapons at Chalk River. Whatever blame or praise may descend in history from this whole matter, Canada will have a large share of it.

Satisfactory Budget

The Ontario budget brought down yesterday by Premier Frost, who is Provincial Treasurer, presents a generally satisfying financial picture of Ontario during the last year, and a good prospect for the coming one. A surplus of $1,004,000 is reported, but this statement loses some of its lustre through the increase of the net Provincial Debt by $36,068,914. It is the seventh consecutive year in which the Government has reported a surplus. But surpluses have an illusory characteristic. It was only in 1947-48 when the Province had the largest surplus in its history ($25,039,000) that the net debt was reduced—to $466,753,485. Last year it increased to $483,675,155; in the present budget the increase is estimated to $520,774,069. The net doubt per capita is $115.72, an increase above last year, but a decrease from a decade ago when it was $130. (The province had then a smaller population.)

* * *

Great capital expenditures and extensions of grants have been made for Hydro, education, hospitals, and various forms of social welfare. One of the more pleasing budgetary proposals is the reduction in the provincial amusement tax from 20 per cent. to 15 per cent. This wartime tax was abandoned two years ago by the Federal Government, and the Ontario Government immediately stepped in. It is a discouraging, annoying, expensive tax levied against one section of the people—those who attend sporting events, concerts, movies and theatre. It is well that a beginning has been made towards (we hope) its abolishment.

The Late Gordon Armstrong

The sudden death of Gordon Armstrong robs Peterborough of a citizen who had shown himself eager and able to assume civic responsibility. There can be little doubt that if he had lived he would have risen to the highest honours that the city can give, and that he would have discharged the duties laid upon him with the intelligence and grace of manner which distinguished him during his adult years. That he should have died at the early age of thirty-six is a blow which the city shares wtih his immediate family, to which we express the sincere sympathy of the community.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Geologists say that the Rocky Mountains will have disappeared in five million years. This is the obvious solution to the freight-rates dispute.

A cafe proprietor says that people who insist on having the crusts cut from their sandwiches waste a lot of food. And in our opinion they waste the tastiest part of the bread.

There has been some tut-tutting about the 39-year-old farmer, father of five, who has run away with a 15-year-old girl. But let's look on the bright side and take it as a sign of spring.

An investigator says that the average dream lasts for five seconds. Except for that one we have about trying all our examinations over again, which seems to go on for the length of an Arctic night.

We agree with the Kitchener Record that there is something basically disgusting about the popular phrase "the foreseeable future". There is no such thing—only the infinite potential of the utterly incalculable present.

The Belgian government fears to restore King Leopold on the basis of a 57 per cent. vote. But many a democratic leader has squeezed along on less. This just shows that it is still harder to be a King than a Prime Minister.

An Ohio convict was recently reprieved from the electric chair after consuming his farewell meal of fried halibut, pigs feet and mustard, collard greens, hot biscuits, buttermilk, apple pie and pop. Nothing in this world, however, could reprieve him from the monumental collywobble which would follow such a barbaric meal.

The Marchbanks Correspondence

To Raymond Cataplasm, M.D., F.R.C.P.
Dear Dr. Catalpasm:

I have just had a brilliant idea which, if you can make it practical, will revolutionize medical science. I am, as you know, of partly Celtic ancestry, and I have for many years been fascinated by the institution of the Sin Eater, once so popular in Wales and its border country. At every funeral there attended some old man who, at the proper time, accepted across the body of the corpse a piece of cake, a cup of wine, and a small piece of money; he ate these — not the money, of course — saying before everyone present that he took upon him the sins of the dead person, whose soul was then free to go to Heaven without any burden upon it.

Could not medical skill arrange for someone, to be called the Fat Eater, to undertake a similar service for people whose metabolism disposes them to put on excess weight? As the stout party sat down to meals he could hand a few victuals across the table to the Fat Eater, on the understanding that the latter would take upon himself any poundage which might result from his feeding. And thus, while the employer had the fun of the food, the Fat Eater would take on the burden of the weight.

Like all great ideas, this is essentially simple. It just needs a little working out, which I am sure you can manage easily.

Your perennial patient,
SAMUEL MARCHBANKS.

To Amyas Pilgarlic, Esq.
Dear Pil:

I attended an admirable concert recently and enjoyed myself very much, but whenever the singer was about to tackle a song in a foreign language I would cast my eyes at the translation of the words which was included on my program, and would see something like this: "Beautiful lips, shuffling to and fro with indecision, why don't you render me the delicious happiness to say yes, again yes, oh yes, lips, hurry up lips, yes, yes". I am no great hand at understanding German and Italian, but I venture to say that the words of the songs were on a slightly higher literary level than the translation indicated.

Do you suppose that in Italy and Germany songs in English are translated in the same way for concert audiences? If so, I can imagine "Drink To Me Only With Thine Eyes" working out something like this: "Let us agree, when drinking, to employ the eyeballs only; similarly with kisses; I sent you some flowers recently and you sent them back after breathing on them; they are still alive but smell quite different".

Could the League of Nations do anything about this confusion question of translating songs?

Your crony,
SAM.

To Haubergeon Hydra, Esq.
Dear Mr. Hydra:

There is a matter of some delicacy which I feel should be brought to your notice, as Deputy Expediter of the Greber Plan for the Beautification of the Dominion Capital. I had occasion to visit Ottawa recently, and as I entered the city by train, and again as I left it, I was painfully struck by its resemblance to a foreign capital which I shall only describe as M-sc-w.

Pause, Mr. Hydra, before you put the R.C.M.P. to work to investigate me. I mean no disloyalty. Quite otherwise. This resemblance grieved me more than I can say, and I would like it to be minimized. I am sure that it has not come to your personal attention because, like all Civil Servants, you rarely leave the capital, and when you do you take a sack full of papers to work at on the train, and never look out of the window. Consequently you have never been struck, as I was, by the resemblance of Parliament Hill to the Kr-ml-n. Those spires, surrounded by grey mist, that air of brooding secrecy, that sense of doom—oh, Hydra, they won't do at all! They give quite the wrong impression.

Do you think that in beautifying the capital you could alter all its architecture to something jollier—something more suggestive of democracy at work? Could the spires be swelled out a little, so that they became domes? Or perhaps the spires could be sawed off at the roots? For I assure you, sir, that those spires, rising above the low skyline of Hull, give the wrong impression to the visitor.

Yours for democratic architecture,
S. MARCHBANKS.

To Samuel Marchbanks, Esq.
Dear Marchbanks:

This lawsuit you are bringing against me is getting to be a nuisance. I only put the skunk in your car for a joke. Have you no sense of humour?

I'll tell you what I'll do. You like pictures, I believe. If you will tell your lawyers to drop the case I'll give you a picture my Aunt Bessie brought back from her tour of Italy before the Great War I. I think she said it was Venus Rising from the Sea, by Botticelli. The family have always called it The Stark Tart, and we keep it in the attic. I believe it is the original, but maybe it is just a copy. Anyhow, it looks like the kind of thing you would like. It is a little stained by damp, but otherwise all right.

If this isn't generosity, I don't know what you could call it.

Yours fraternally
DICK DANDIPRAT

To Richard Dandiprat, Esq.
Presumptuous Dandiprat:

I would call it gross impudence, and an attempt to clog the mightly engine of justice. Keep your foreign pornography, wretch, to comfort you in prison.

Disdainfully
MARCHBANKS

To Chandos Fribble Esq.
Dear Fribble:

You are a great investigator of the phenomena of your civilization. Can you tell me why magazines are getting smaller? Yesterday I wanted a magazine—an unusual thing with me—and hied me to a news stand. I counted 82 magazines on the racks, of which 53 were little ones. Many of these were called Digests of one sort and another. I have noticed the tendency for years for big papers to shrink into magazines, and for magazines to dwindle into digests, but I did not realize that it had gone so far.

Where will it all end? After digestion — what? The smallest of the digests — a new one—was about the size of a pocket notebook. What will happen if somebody decides to digest it? The result will have to be read with a microscope. Not that I care. They can get as small as they like without any protest from me. But I am curious to know the reason for this sudden passion for miniature magazines. Is it shrinking reading matter to suit the shrinking brain?

Your nosily,
SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

Letters To The Editor

ST. PATRICK'S NATIONALITY

Sir: It has now been asserted in your letter columns that St. Patrick was born in Daventry, and was therefore an Englishman, and that he was born at Dumbarton, and was therefore a Scot. May I point out that the usual date given for Patrick's birth is 389, and that neither English nor Scottish nationality was claimed by anyone at that time?

As for the place of his birth, the Encyclopaedia Britannica says that the probable place of his birth was on the Severn, at any one of three places now in Glamorganshire called Banwen. This means that Patrick was a Briton of the West Country. His name was Sucat, which in modern Welsh means "warlike", and how this was changed to the Latin Patricius—"nobly born"—I cannot find out. Certainly this seems to me to be the most probable origin of Patrick, for West Britain was more completely Christianized at that time than any other part of the British Isles.

I do not wish to start a controversy on this matter. I merely wish to make it plain that at the time when Patrick lived nobody considered whether he was an Englishman or a Scotsman. Matters of nationality are a fairly recent addition to our worries.

Yours,
HISTORIAN.

DEFENCE OF CHURCHILL CONTINUES

Sir: Having read Argus's latest puerile attempt to belittle the greatness of Winston Churchill, I pen these few remarks more in sorrow than in anger.

Poor Argus! What a mean, sordid little world his thoughts reside in. His hatred of Churchill must be vaster than his intelligence. If he will re-read my letter, or, better still, have some one read it to him, he will discover that neither I, nor anyone else who has championed Churchill have stated that the Rt. Hon. Gentleman had never made a mistake. My statement was that Winston is the greatest statesman of our time, and I also added that he was a gentleman.

As for the hypothetical possibility of Churchill being more or less forced to resign his premiership after a Tory return to power, I fail to see anything here which detracts from Churchill's greatness.

In all probability, after seeing that the ship of state was steered into a safe anchorage, he might, of his accord, relinquish the helm to some younger man. At the same time he would place his vast knowledge at the disposal of the nation, and would no doubt devote the remainer of his days, to assist in every way the fight for freedom.

"The faithful, awaiting the second coming of Churchill." Thanks for the phrase, Argus. There's thirteen millions of the faithful in Britain, and, contrary to your description, they form the intelligent, hard-working middle classes, not the ignorant underworked hangers-on of the welfare state.

The "Welfare State". It was you, Argus, who introduced this topic, and, as Winston would say of its planners, "Never have so many done so little in such a long time".

Thanks, Mr. Editor, for keeping this correspondence open. And to you, Mr. Argus, "ground nuts".

Yours, etc.,
JACK GILBERT.

COMPLAINS OF SNOW CLEARING

Sir: This concerns somebody—who? You let a contract every fall for removal of snow and slush.

For the last three years removal of snow is a joke and slush is never touched. Whose fault? Board of Works or our Street Commissioner? Go back a few years and we had for better service and more snow. Why?

If it started to snow say 11 p.m. and snowed all night—snow plows were out before factory employees went to work. If it snowed in the morning ground was covered before 12 o'clock, if it was still snowing all afternoon it was covered before 5 p.m. Result it wasn't nearly all tramped down as it is now. Another result was when a thaw came there was very little to melt on sidewalks. This winter we have three examples after a thaw, slush and 4 inches deep and no snow plow. If we are going to have it done this way next year do away with snow plowing and enforce the present bylaw that every one clean their own. This city is getting too big for snow plows. At present some on our street block more than half of us keep our sidewalks bare all winter and it is done many hours before the snow plow shows up. Today, George St. from Sherbrooke St. to Exhibition Ground is a disgrace. Slush and water from 2 to 4 inches deep.

Another thing: a few years back merchants on our main street had to have it cleaned off or policeman on the beat soon saw it was observed. So why is it not done now?

Charlotte street is the worst at present on the south side.

Sincerely yours,
O. S. MATCHETT.

Utopia Can Wait

(FINANCIAL POST)

OTTAWA reverberates with history demanding that Government play to the hilt the vote-catching game of giving more and more social security, public works, floor prices and other "goodies."

But before the Commons gets too inebriated with enthusiasm for arranging vast new expenditures, we suggest it cast an eye on the international scene. And there, there's a war on. It's getting hotter, not colder.

We are already committed to vast defence expenditures and they are very likely to become higher before they become less. In 1938, defence cost us $35.2 million, less than 7 per cent of the national budget. Last year, expenditures were $383 millions, over 16 per cent of the national budget.

Recent months have seen Communisms tentacles clutch vast new areas of Asia. Eastern Europe's problems worsen. Washington sources assert "The U. S. will run the risk of war over Southeast Asia."

And make no mistake. If the United States is involved in war, Canada will be too. No lor is it possible to isolate this great scourage.

Our Ottawa servants, before hastening to carry out the bidding of the Utopia-buildings, should remember this is not a time of peace; that vast and increasing strains will result from the top priority job of protecting our lives.

Danny Kaye

No clairvoyance is needed to understand why devotees should be as numerous, far-flung, and enthusiastic as they are. Mr. Kaye's gifts are so outstanding and unique that by now even the State Department must have recognized them. Certainly it should have done so, because no American has proved a more popular ambassador to the United Kingdom than he. His sojourns in Britain have borne a closer resemblance to royal progresses than visits. He did not play the Palladium in London; he was in residence there. Wherever he travelled in Scotland or the provinces he was mobbed by admirers, who not only crowded to see him on the stage but came, thousands strong, to serenade him at his hotels. British and American humour is not always interchangeable. And Britain and the United States have often been at odds in their foreign policies since the end of the war. But when it comes to Danny Kaye the two nations have been as one and maintained the most united of fronts. — John Mason Brown in the Saturday Review.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

After these things the Lord appointed other seventy also, and sent them two and two before his face into every city and place, whither he himself would come. Therefore said he unto them, The harvest truly is great, but the labourers are few: pray therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he would send forth labourers into his harvest. . . .

And the seventy returned again with joy, saying, Lord, even the devils are subject unto us through thy name. And he said unto them, I beheld Satan as lightning fall from heaven. Behold, I give unto you power to tread on serpents and scorpions, and over all the power of the enemy: and nothing shall by any means hurt you. Notwithstanding in this rejoice not, that the spirits are subject unto you; but rather rejoice, because your names are written in heaven. (Luke 10: 1, 2, 17-20.)

✧ ✧ ✧

All thy works shall praise thee, O Lord; and thy saints shall bless thee. They shall speak of the glory of thy kingdom, and talk of thy power. . . .

Thy kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and thy dominion endureth throughout all generations. (Ps. 145: 10, 11, 13.)

✧ ✧ ✧

But one in a certain place testified, saying, What is man, that thou art mindful of him? Or the son of man, that thou visitest him? . . . Thou hast put all things in subjection under his feet. For in that he put all in subjection under him, he left nothing that is not put under him. (Heb. 2: 6, 8.)

The Churchill Route

Although years will likely pass before Churchill takes its rightful place as one of Canada's major seaports, the Hudson Bay Route Association, which held its annual meeting last week in Prince Albert, has every reason to be proud of the work it has done in promoting the use of the northern route.

Closed from 1939 to 1945, the port began to be used commercially again in 1946, when 3,000,000 bushels of wheat were shipped out. Each year this figure has increased slightly, until in 1949 about 5,500,000 bushels moved through the port.

This is still a long way from the 25,000,000 bushels the association believes can be exported through Churchill in one season. But if the association continues its aggressive action for greater use of the port, there is no doubt that such action will get results. This year the organization is pushing for the resumption of cattle and lumber shipments, as well as a larger volume of wheat outbound and more imports from Britain and Europe.

—Regina Leader-Post.

Election Insults Valued

Mr. Churchill is said to have been given friendly advice by Lord Woolton and Anthony Eden to use the soft pedal a little more in going after his opponents. He is said to have replied: "What's the use of holding an election if I can't insult somebody or other?"—St. Catharines Standard.

On the eight day of March, so some people say,
St. Patrick at midnight first saw the day.
Others say 'twas the ninth he was born.

Now there's a mix-up for you. People on the good old Emerald Isle were not quite sure when their patron saint was born, so, they combined the dates to make it the Sivinteenth, it is said. I wish it were as easy for Hibernian bird-watcher Alex Kaye and myself to settle on two beautiful wild birds I noticed sitting on a haw bush this week. They were about nine inches long and the male had the most vivid turquoise back feathers and light buff undercarriage; his girl friend was all buff with a few white and black markings. We waded through bird books and discarded mountain blue birds, lazuli buntings and blue grosbeaks and are still up in the air. Saw several cedar waxwings up Lakefield way. Of them I'm sure.

Four Caged Fishers On Mink Ranch

Rice Lake mink rancher Harold Bebee gave me an up-to-date report on his fisher family recently. Two years ago he purchased four kittens at Blind River, a male and three females, with high hopes of breeding them commercially. Harold says there should be some blessed-eventing shortly but explained that he is not impatient about it for, of all the beasts of the wilds, their gestation period is one of the longest, about 355 days. I am personally interested in these four fisher, having paid them a visit in their cage a couple of years ago. It was a case of "Fools rushing in . . " at the time, I feel, after reading up something about these beasts.

The fisher is a member of the weasel family, somewhat smaller than a fox, but with much short legs and less prominent ears. Colour varies from black to light grey and the feet are so adapted for climbing that it is said they kill their prey in tree tops and are known to be vicious enough to kill deer at times. Fox, skunk and porcupine makes up their main diet, however.

According to prices paid for female pelts a few years ago their fur is very highly prized with some selling in excess of $500. Today skins are worth little more than a good cross fox. Indians call them That-Cho, meaning big marten, but they are better known to trappers as fisher cat, black cat, fisher marten and pekan. To sum it up, they are very rare and interesting animals to watch, OUTSIDE the netting of their cage.

A Month To Rat-Trapping

Muskrat trapping opens on Monday, March 20 in the counties of Peterborough, Durham, Northumberland and Victoria and closes April 21st. Same opening date applies to Haliburton with an extension of the season to May 5th. Prospects for the fur harvest are problematical, according to wildlife experts and trappers. The rat population has been slightly decreased due to mid-winter high water flooding and ice conditions. This will not mean that the estimated fewer pelts to be taken will command higher prices because the rat pelt market is in one of its doldrums. Even the lordly beaver is taking a beating with blankets, large size, selling to fur buyers for $25 and smaller pelts from $10 to $12.

Kawartha Air Service From Malton?

An Examiner news item this week tells of the establishment of a charter air tourist service from Malton airport to the Kawarthas. This is a long-wanted need but it will be equally long before such as service will be established, thinks Jack Sanderson of Central Aircraft of Malton. He says his company have applied for a charter air service from Malton to Gore Bay airport on Manitoulin. If, as and when this is approved by the Air Board, additional applications for services, the Kawarthas among them, will be requested and that will be in the wild blue yonder.

Central Aircraft already have two American flying sportsmen who change over to floats at Malton and take off from there on air jaunts across the province. The matter of American land plane tourists storing floats and affecting change-overs in Canada was mooted in this column last summer after listening to their remarks of amazement over the number of natural seaplane "landing fields" that we have. We should tell them more about this sort of thing to enable them to make investments in float equipment and investigations about hangar services. Week-end air touring from the United States to the Kawarthas has already arrived.

Hooking Through The Ice—And Hooked!

Game Warden E. E. Harris of Gore's Landing was on his toes last Sunday when he apprehended seven people fishing through the ice between the mouth of the Otonabee River and Spook Island, two of them minors. He found their illegal fishing had produced a nice mess of pickerel and a small lunge. There will be more about this case later.

Big industry, even in Peterborough, is turning more and more to worthwhile conservation programs through newspaper and radio outlets. There is a Sunday night broadcast by a local sponsor about a rootin', shootin' pair of western do-gooders who round up western law breakers. Do we have to go THAT far afield? Why not change locale and plot to case histories of fish and game violators right here in the Kawarthas? Material right on their doorstep to draw from—fishing through the ice out of season—how these sports?men are apprehended—what settlement was made with the Crown? Suppose there is a chance of me working on scripts of this nature for the companies? No, not much.

Ladle In A Pot Of Gold

Out Of The Night

Out of the night that covers me,
Black as the pit from pole to pole,
I thank whatever gods may be
For my unconquerable soul.

In the fell clutch of circumstance
I have not winced or cried aloud.
Under the budgeonings of chance
My head is bloody but unbowed.

Beyond this place of wrath and tears
Looms but the Horror of the shade,
And yet the menace of the years
Finds, and shall find, me unafraid.

It matters not how strait the gate,
How charged with punishments the scroll
I am the master of my fate:
I am the captain of my soul.

Progress of Peterborough: XI

First Settlement of Percy and Asphodel

By HOWARD PAMMETT, M.A.

Percy Township, south of the upper Trent River, was surveyed in 1795-6 and was thrown open to settlement by United Empire Loyalists from the United States, including Benjamin Pickard, Abraham Cronkrite, Solomon Spafford, Giles, Stone, Abraham Winer, Aaron Holt, Solomon Huff, Johnson Merriam, Samuel Danforth, William Hare and Samuel Pitts. Others were the Huyckes, Wannamakers, Petersons, Tices, Kellys, Merriams, Brunsons, Grovers and Grahams, according to informative articles by Helen Marryat, historian of the Hastings district. Some of the UELs sold their lots as soon as they received their patents, but many others settled and raised families still represented in the district. Later after 1815 many Irish were settled in Percy by the Land Board. The Honourable James Crooks and the village of Crook's Rapids, later Hastings, will be mentioned later, in discussing the Peterborough district in the 1830s.

Settlement began in Asphodel Township soon after Richard Birdsall surveyed it in 1820, most of the pioneers either coming up the Trent River from the Bay of Quinte or coming overland from Cobourg. Richard Birdsall, born in Yorkshire in 1799, came to Canada in 1817, and soon after married the daughter of Hon. Zaccheus Burnham of Cobourg, who had the survey contract for the Newcastle District. Birdsall and his family in 1820 settled on lot 1, concession 1 of Asphodel; Burnham acquired the title to this lot on April 3, 1821, but either sold or gave it to Birdsall.

Later Birdsall obtained much of the land between Westwood and Rice Lake, presumably by purchase or exchange. He was later district and county councillor, and Justice of the Peace, beginning a tradition of community leadership and public service which has been carried on by the Birdsall family. His grandson, Col. Richard Birdsall, born in 1860, died as recently as 1945, but the homestead farm is being carried on by Col. F. E. Birdsall.

Unlike some of the district gentry, Birdsall was more interested in aiding the advancement of the entire district by his example and industry than in promoting his individual interests. His surveying instruments and other mementos are preserved in the homestead.

Other Early Families

A few families settled in Asphodel in 1820 with Birdsall, among the first being John Becket, who settled nearby with his wife and six children. A grandchild, Mrs. F. Tinker, described some of their difficulties in "Examiner" articles several years ago. Their baby girl, born soon after arrival, is said to have been the first child born in Asphodel, and has cradled in a sap-trough made out of a pine log. The Rice Lake Indians, who sometimes came to beg food from pioneer homes in "hungry" seasons at first terrified the women and children who were unused to backwoods habits. The large black bears were so common and unafraid that they often came into the pens and stables to seize pigs and calves, which they preferred to wild food. Every farm tool had to be handled carefully, as a broken saw or scythe meant a 30-mile trip by water and bush trail to Cobourg or Trenton for repairs or new tools, leaving the women and children alone in the dense bush for several days, far from neighbors.

In the early 1820s, however, Joseph Keeler erected small saw and grist mills on the site of the village of Norwood in northern Asphodel. Nathan Drury was miller, and the grist-mill had a single run of stones driven by a tub waterwheel and a muslin-covered bolt. These mills, though inadequate, served the district for 15 miles around in the first years. Keeler was given the patents for 500 acres, most of lots 18 and 19 in concessions 8 and 9, on May 23, 1825, for services in the militia in the War of 1812-14, and later bough another 1,500 acres in the section.

Asphodel Records

For some reason the Land Board did not settle anyone in Asphodel, so that we have few details of the early settlers. John Cameron, according to an "Examiner" article in 1936, came from Scotland with his wife and family at the age of 43 in 1820, and settled at Cameron's Point on the Otonabee-Asphodel boundary, first concession of Asphodel. He is said to have taken 100 acres for himself, and 100 acres for each of his six sons, John, James, Duncan, Peregrine (another claimant for the title of first child born in Asphodel), Ewen and Donald; however, the only land title issued to the Cameron family up to 1830 was 200 acres, lot 13, concession 1, issued to John Cameron on July 14, 1830. As there were four daughters also, the family has numerous descendant to the 6th and 7th generation, many of whom farm in the Otonabee-Asphodel area. The original Cameron house built in the early 1820s was still standing on the homestead in 1936, at which time Hugh Cameron, grandchild of John was farming the same fertile fields.

Robert Harrison, an Irishman who arrived in Asphodel in March 1825, lists the settlers in the township at that time: Richard Birdsall, John Cameron, Job Humphries, Robert Humphries, Captain Howson, William Fortune, Walter Scott, Hugh McColl, Peter Anderson, Alex McColl, Charles Parker, John Comstock, Nathan Drury (the miller), Mr. Micks and Mr. Johnston. Harrison, who in article in 1902 claimed he was 10 years old on coming to Asphodel, said that he got work with William Fortune who owned the only horse in Asphodel, "a sturdy pure-bred black French-Canadian horse named Dick." He claimed that the first white child born in Asphodel was the eldest child, a daughter of Richard Birdsall, who was later the mother of Lt.- Col. J. Z. Rogers of Ashburnham.

Land Grants

The first grant of land in Asphodel was 1,820 acres, carefully scattered in small lots, to Hon. Zaccheus Burnham, April 3, 1821. Other large grantees in the first decade were: Colley, Lyons, Lucas and Foster, 1,200 acres; John Johnson, 800 acres; Thomas Markland, 800 acres; Hon. George Markland, 600 acres; George White, 800 acres; James Rowe, 800 acres; Philip Hall, 800 acres; John McDonell, 1,000 acres; James and Rebecca Richardson, 700 acres; Edward Laws, 900 acres; Wm. and Thos. Owston, 700 acres; Oliver Church, 500 acres; Joseph Keeler, 500 acres; Major Charles Anderson, 600 acres; Alex McLean, 500 acres; Archbald McDonald, 700 acres; Robert Henry, 600 cares; King's College, 790 acres.

Among the smaller grants, the first recorded in Asphodel was 200 acres to Catherine LeFebvre, lot 8, concession 10, October 18, 1820. In 1821 there were two more: Allan McDougall, 200 acres, lot 12, concession 11, July 24; and Elizabeth Fisher, 200 acres, lot 13, concession 11, July 27.

In the following four years the patentees were: 1822: Elijah Birdsley, 100 acres; Obed Simson, 200 acres; Peter Perry, 200 acres; Mary Perry, 200 acres; David Walker, 50 acres; James Walker, 50 acres; Richard Thompson, 100 acres; 1823: Wm. Patterson, 50 acres; Roger Pigg, 50 acres; Jesse Goheen, 200 acres; Samuel Lapp, 200 acres; Jeremiah Lapp, 200 acres; John Brown, 100 acres, Caleb Tompkins, 100 acres; Benjamin Young, 200 acres; Samuel Sherwood, 100 acres; John Weaver, 100 acres; Peter Huffman, 100 acres; William McDonell, 100 acres; 1824: William Kirkpatrick, 50 acres; Robert Boyd, 100 acres; 1825: Jean Batiste Nadeau, 100 acres.

By comparing these people who were given land titles with the actual settlers listed by Harrison (above), it will be apparent that few of the early patentees were actual settlers; as in Percy and Otonabee townships, it is evident that most were Loyalists, militiamen and soldiers' widows who were given land scrip by the Upper Canada Government at York, which scrip they sold or exchanged in most cases without coming to the district. Such scrip was ordinary on sale in the larger towns at 4 to 6 shillings per acre, and was bought up by speculators and others who for one reason or another could not get land grants direct from the government. Needless to say, the practice was an obstacle to the development of the township, as these lots were not cleared and the road allowances in front of them uncut, and actual settlers were separated by miles of wilderness.

"BELLEVUE" BUILT IN 1827 by the late Lieut. Col. Richard Birdsall is still in good repair and being lived in by his great-grandson Col. F. Everett Birdsall. Situated on a bench of land at the east end of Rice Lake, it commands one of the finest views in this part of the province. (See today's "Progress of Peterborough").

A BILL OF SALE DATED 1820 to the late Lieut. Col Richard Birdsall for Lot 1, Concession L, Asphodel township, is being studied, Upper photo, by great-grandson Col. F. Everett Birdsall in the living room of the original home at the east end, north shore of Rice lake. Birdsall and other first land holders in Asphodel are discussed in the instalment of "Progress of Peterborough" on this page. Great-great-great-grandson John Birdsall Mood, Lower photo, finds his illustrious forebearer's surveying instruments attractive playthings, for the moment. Included in the collection are two rulers, a set of drafting instruments, compass, level and measuring chain. With these instruments Col. Birdsall surveyed the townships of Otonabee and Asphodel, a considerable portion of the county and the town of Peterborough. It is said that the late Sir Sandford Fleming was one of his original surveyor-clerks.

Canadian Has English Firm To Sew Machines Together

With strips of extra strong metal as his thread a Tynesider from South Shields has sewen his way twice around the world working for the company owned by Canadian Major E. C. Peckham, now in London, England. This type of sewing is far from the housewife's brand. Specializing in repairing breaks in heavy machinery by this new, revolutionary and spectacular method far-sighted Peckham formed his company three years ago.

American in origin the method involves strips of cold, ductile metal (35 percent nickel and 65 percent steel) pressure-forced into prepared slots across a break. When completed the job has the appearance of a surgeon's neat stitching of a wound.

Employing this method Peckham's company has saved mines, factories and ship companies thousands of pounds in Belgium, Canada, Trinidad, South Africa and many other countries.

Three years ago Peckham was trying to form such a company in London. A British tanker blew the top off a cylinder at Purfleet. Tackling this job with ease Peckham won the confidence of the third engineer who became his first empoyee.

Since that time the company has repaired such varied equipment at a heavy press in a steel plant, the cylinder liner of a ship, a hydraulic hoisting cylinder for the Port of London Authority and a hydraulic press for a plastics firm to a four-inch fracture in a steam jacket of a cooker used in a London department store canteen.

One of the largest contracts for the company was in Johannesburg, South Africa. There a giant drum in the Robinson Deep Gold Mine which had cracks totalling 828 inches was repaired. After 12 weeks the job was completed costing the mine management £4000, a fraction of the price of a new drum which would take two years to replace.

Another major operation performed by Peckham's doctors was the stitching of a five-foot gash in an important engine part of the cargo ship, Pencarrow. In 126 hours 45 stitches were sewn in the metal casting at the total cost of £2000 and at a saving to the owners of £23,000.

Peckham admits that one in every 10 breaks or cuts cannot be repaired. Once he sent his men to Trinidad to sew a 52-inch fracture in a generator. The break could be repaired but the alignment of the bearings could not be regained. They returned to England without opening a tool kit.

Recently a ship harboured in Belgium received attention for a 22-inch gash in the main frame of its generator. Three men worked from 3:30 p.m. until 5:30 a.m. so the ship could sail at 6:30 with the tide.

Paths and Wells of Capri Fascinate

(Editor's Note — Mrs. William Tinker and her husband, of Burnham Street, toured in Italy last summer.)

By A. F. TINKER.

I always like to think of Capri as an isle of cliffs associated with Tiberius, gardens of grape-vines, locust trees resounding with the shrill chorus of grasshoppers, women carrying tubs of water on their heads, and chapel bells (deliberately forgetting the discourtesy of the natives and lizards — almost).

As we left the port of Naples aboard a steamer for Capri a haze hid the horizon and the isle, but the form of Vesuvius on our left held our attention—a vast cone dominating the range. Within half an hour the courier called us to the prow and there we beheld what might be termed an ideal island—one of the cliffs rising from the sea, having a frontage of more than two miles with the quay in the middle among a cluster of white buildings. The quay is one of two landing places on the isle. Above it on the plateau white rectangles show houses dotted there. The isle is in the form of the figure eight and contains about twenty square miles.

What fascinated me most was the steep path leading from the quay to the top of the cliff to the right—a slender, grey line of steps cut in the rock, 552 of them, to the garden of Tiberius. (No, we did not check the count). But the cliff is higher than 552 feet, for, between steps, there is a steep grade of a few feet. I fancied Tiberius with his retinue toiling up that path so many centuries ago; if I may judge him across nineteen centuries, he was a man who delighted in beautiful views for he had a summer home at each end of the cliffs. That isle was a favorite resort of Augustus and Cicero also. That path—my eyes followed it up and down; I wanted to see it closer.

All things return to dust
Save beauty fashioned well;
The bust
Outlasts the citadel

(Tout passe. L'art robuste
Seul a l'éternité
Le buste
Survit à la cité.)

THEOPHILE GAUTIER (1811-72)

"Our hotel is up there on the cliffs," the courier broke in upon my ponderings; then I would see more of it.

Hair-pin Road Up

Not for us the long climb by the pathway to Anacapri on the cliffs, though it was more alluring; we followed a road the like of which we had seen only in pictures—one which zigzagged by angles so acute that the bus was compelled to stop and reverse as it turned the first two corners. (Hair-pin turns looked easy after those). The next five corners were turned slowly and with care to prevent scraping the stone walls, and then we swung around a curve onto the plateau above, following a long narrow road shaded with locust trees, to the village and hotel.

Wanting to impress us with the scarcity of water, the courier had stated there was no water in Capri, that it had to be brought from the mainland in tanks. Which was not absolutely true for beside the hotel door there was a well and another across the street. Not for foreigners were the waters of Capri. Every morning at nine the well head was unlocked for an hour, during which time women came carrying tubs, and hoisted buckets of water by rope, hand over hand, from below. To the disgust of the women some wag had made a nail-hole in the bucket. We hoped the leak was not blamed upon those English people.

As we watched those women of Greek type, swarthy, clad in black, I discovered they were not as clever as I had thought them from pictures of women carrying burdens on their heads. No wonder that I, as a child, had failed in attempts to carry a pail on my round head, for those women wore close-fitting caps with flat tops—small and round—like mortar-boards, on which to carry their tubs. That, then, was their secret of balance.

Women at wells, oxen, donkeys, we had always previously considered part of the Levant.

Oddfellows Leading Series With Victory Over Oshawa

Triple Links—a fighting hockey team—roared to victory 7-4 over Oshawa last night at Civic Arena in the third key game of a best of five final series for Junior B group honors while the largest crowd of the season cheered their favorites to victory. Inclement weather prevented hundreds from attending the great contest, delayed almost two hours by a blinding snowstorm but the 1,000 fans who braved the elements were rewarded with one of the finest displays of junior hockey seen here in years. Links now hold a one game edge in the series and a win to-day in Oshawa will give them group supremacy.

Come From Behind

Trailing 2-1 after a shaky start in the first when Myles and Wilson scored early, though Ron Mason potted one near period's end, Links came out fighting in the second to outplay their rivals in a furious session and draw up on even terms by virtue of three smart goals by Millar, Floyd and Desjardins, while Brabin and Myles potted two early in the stanza. The latter's counter at 7:04 marked the final Motor tally as Oddfellows, trailing 4-1, really began to fly at this point. They dominated play, skating their game rivals weary.

Despite three penalties in the third, Bun Kingdon's boys could not be held down and at the 8-minute mark Don Floyd broke the deadlock all alone on a beautiful drive from left wing that blazed past Claus. Seconds later, he fed Ben Mason a close-in pass which the latter rifled into the left side to put Links two up. Meanwhile, the entire squad checked like fiends coming and going to bewilder the Motor City lads, while Wasson proved invincible in the cage.

Up From Juves

Brian Robinson, who with Roy Armstrong came up for this one from Art Heal's juveniles, snared the final marker, following a smart all-out ganging attack on the rival cage from close in. Both boys played a fine game. Led by Jerry Desjardins, who skated miles, the Mason line stood out in the fast going, with four points among them. Each scored a goal with Ben Mason also assisting on Desjardins' tying marker in the second.

Don Floyd played his usual fine game and scored twice, while Milar proved a tower of strength on defence playing a smashing game. He also garnered two points on a goal and assist while Fennell and D. Wasson showed the same hard drive they have displayed all season. The Turner, Floyd, Wyatt trio again gave an outstanding display and sparked their mates to final victory in the third with Baker spectacular along with Birch, Robinson and Army Armstrong.

It was a great game. For Oshawa, Brabin, McAllister, Wilson, Attersley, Myles, Pollard and Deeth looked best in defeat.

Oshawa—Goal, Claus; defence, McAllister and Crust; centre, Myles; wings, Wilson and Brabin; alternates, Etcher, Bannon, Johnson, Attersley, Deeth, Weddup, Marshall, Pollard.

IOOF—Goal, R. Wasson; defence, Armstrong and D. Wasson; centre, Desjardins; wings, B. Mason and R. Mason; alternates, Turner, Floyd, Wyatt, Birch, Baker, Robinson, Millar, Fennell.

Referees—J. Crombie and L. Heffering.

The summary:

Confed. School Captures Hockey Trophy

Confederation edged King Edward 1-0 yesterday to capture the intermediate Public School Hockey League title and trophy held last year by King George. It was a grand game, going 36 minutes before Jimmy Brown smashed home a rebound shot for the lone marker of the game. Both goalies, Smillie and Halcrow were brilliant as these two top teams flashed fine drives throughout.

At no time did the terrific pace ease off as King Edward fought furiously in an effort to tie the score, and Confederation showed a slight edge with Jones and Goldie strong on defence. Brown, Floyd and Smillie starred for the champs, with Sutherland and Halcrow outstanding for the losers. Teams:

Confederation — Goal, Smillie; defence, Jones, Goldie, centre, Floyd; wings, Brown, Scharf; alternates, Kimball, Druery, Parnell, McArthur, Doleman, Chesney, Rose.

King Edward—Goal, Halcrow; defence, Keeting, Hunt; centre, Rusaw; wings, Sutherland, Beggs; alternates, Curtis, Simmonds, Ferguson, McArthur, Saunders, Mills, Rowe, Stevens.

Referee: J. McNeil.

FRED ATKINS, above, who meets Warren Bockwinkle in the feature match at the Brock next Thursday. Atkins is by far one of the best grapplers to perform here. He never turns in a dull performance and his bouts here with Yukon Eric were standouts. Bockwinkle is no stranger to local fans, having wrestled here on a number of occasions. His ability can be judged by the fact that he used to act as "policeman" for Wild Bill Longson when Longson was world's champion. Bockwinkle tested all opponents before Wild Bill would take them on. He's just about the best. Two other bouts will be announced later.

Pep Waltzes To Easy Win Over Famechon

NEW YORK, March 18 (AP)—As long as he doesn't have to fight Sandy Saddler again, Willie Pep will continue to reign over the featherweights for a long time to come.

The little 27-year-old 126-pound champion underscored that last night when he waltzed to an easy, 15-round title bout victory over Ray Famechon of France, the European featherweight king in Madison Square Garden.

It was a neat, if not gaudy, conquest for the fleet-footed boxing master from Hartford, Conn., even though many of the 12,106 cash customers let loose with a torrent of boos at the final bell. For Willy the Wisp'e clutching tactics as well as for the impotency of the foreign challenger's attack.

Don't get the idea, though, that Pep is ducking Saddler.

"We accepted an offer of a $100,000 guarantee plus the privilege of 40 per cent of the gate to fight Saddler again last June," said Lou Viscusi, Pep's manager. "Saddler was offered $25,000 but Charley Johnston (Saddler's manager) wanted $50,000. The match didn't come off. Well, that's not our fault. We're ready anytime that 100 grand gets posted."

All Willie says is that "I'm ready for him. But Lou does the business."

Saddler is the stiff-hitting New York youngster who knocked out Pep in four rounds in Oct. 1948 to win the title. Willie regained it by outpointing the skinny Negro in a torrid 15-rounder at the Garden Feb. 11, 1949.

Norwood Victorious

NORWOOD, March 18 (ENS)—A great game was played in the arena Wednesday night when the aggressive Circle "C" Marmora team played the local boys, the latter winning 7-6. Referees McInroy and Hamblin were kept busy sorting the boys out as four different scraps broke out, without damage to either side. Four major penalties were meted out. Marmora pulled goalie Maloney in the last few minutes when six forwards were put out. He returned to the ice however for a faceoff beside the goal, and made a nice save as Marmora failed to tie it up. All of the boys played well and made it an interesting game for the fair crowd of spectators on hand. Garden, Scott, Webb and Walden led the scorers.

Lineup:

Marmora: Goal, P. Maloney; defence, B. Doyle, J. Herman; centre, M. Forestell; wings, E. Nicholson, F. Leal; alternates, Hulsman, Grey, Walker, Hewitt, Shannon, J. Maloney.

Norwood: Goal, H. Stinson; defence, Bob Garden, C. Lobb; centre, A. Scott; wings, F. Walden, J. McMillan; alternates, H. Scott, A. Fairfield, W. Lobb, B. Wrightly, B. Webb, J. Robson, D. Andrews.

Referees: T. McInroy, J. Hamblin.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Lots of action in athletics, apart from hockey, here this weekend. Couple of keen cage contests in the YW last gloaming, and an important men's hoop fray tonight. It's at eight in the Collegiate, an OABA intermediate "A" playdown game between Hamilton Strands and Marines, first of a two-game series. Bound to be plenty of hustle shown in this one as each side strives to build up a lead. Then the ornamental swimmers and the "Y" boys resume their two-night show in the YMCA pool this evening, the girls preparing for the international meet next week in Chicago. Ski enthusiasts can wallow in a two-day zone championship meet at Armour Hill and Nassau today, and out at Bethany tomorrow.

Striving to obtain 10,000 members in his Safety Club, Whipper Bill Watson intends visiting Peterborough this spring to speak to school children. He devotes much of his spare time when he isn't on the pro wrestling circuit to this worthy cause, and has had the blessing of school boards, police and newspapers in a number of cities, notably Toronto. He was here the other night and asked us to mention that there is no charge for joining his club and that members receive buttons, and autographed pictures with health and athletic hints on the back. Just write to Whipper's Safety Club, Maple Leaf Gardens, Toronto.

Doing A Good Job

Motor accidents take a terrific toll of small children each year, and that's the idea of this club—to educate the kids to avoid accidents. Watson stresses, in all his speeches, the observance of traffic rules and the fact that policemen are friends of the children. Uniformed and trained men who are there to protect the youngsters. The big mat champ doesn't get any money out of his campaign, it's a hobby with him. He loves kids—has some of his own—and he hates to see them maimed through careless accidents. Hence, his active part in safety work. More power to him.

With spring officially here on Tuesday, it is nearly time for some of the summer sports to hold first meetings of the year. It often takes a loop several meetings to get properly organized. Then there's the matter of applying for grounds, raising funds, ordering equipment, etc. So, annual meetings might well be held early in April. Already, the men's softball circuit has started organizing, as has the cricket club. No doubt, the senior lacrossers and the PMLA will get going soon, and so should the girl softballers, the baseballers, soccer clubs, and so forth. After all, winter is really on the wane.

Markham And Legion

Glen Carson phoned this a.m. to say that Markham Millionaires would open their OHA senior "B" playdown round against Legion here on Monday eve at 8.30 in Civic Arena. A four-in-seven affair, and it might well be provincial semi-finals, though that's not for certain yet. It'll be the only senior "B" playoff here next week as Legion agreed to play Markham in Oshawa on Thursday and Saturday nights next week, those being the only evenings available for the Millionaires at the Motor City arena. Markham rubbed out the Stouffville Clippers in four straight and are rated plenty powerful. Likely another huge crowd at Civic Arena on Monday p.m.

About a thousand there last night—storm keeping others away—to see Bun Kingdon's scrappy young IOOF-ers take a 7-4 win over Oshawa Bees. Latter were late arriving, pulling in by bus at 9.55. Darn that weather! So, the Oddfellows now lead their best-of-five OHA junior "B" group finals two games to one, going right back to Oshawa tonight for the fourth. A fifth, if necessary, will be on Motor City ice some time next week. The Triple Links fought furiously last e'en to deserve their win with the whole crew clicking like castanets. The Masons and Desjardins were flying. Millar was a standout on defence, Wasson shone in goal—and every puckists looked extra good in this nifty victory. Swell stuff.

ANCIENT GAME

The game of checkers is thought to have been played many centuries ago, since checker sets have been found in tombs of the Pharaohs.

PCVS Midgets Wins Round From Regiopolis

KINGSTON, March 18 (Special)—Peterborough Midgets defeated Regiopolis College 30-25 Friday to win the OABA play-off series 85-46 on the round. Peterborough were without the playing services of Cunningham, Hempstead and Grafstein who play in the tournament in Toronto today.

Peterbordugh opened scoring as Johnson looped a two pointer play swung back and forth to give an 8-6 lead to PCVS at the quarter, Stewart netting 6 of 8 points.

Regiopolis gained a short lived lead as Ron Fraser scored two quick baskets. Johnson tied up the score and then scored again to put PCVS into a lead they did not relinquish. Half ended 14-12.

M. Martin opened scoring in the second half with a foul shot to pull Regiopolis within one point. Johnson and Martin traded hoops. Stewart for Peterborough hooped a one hander from Key and followed with a charity toss. Boorman connected on a foul shot and Pammett made it 24-17. Martin hit on a one hand push shot for Regi. as the quarter ended making the score 24-19.

Boorman clicked on a rebound shot and Demoreville evened up with a hook in the last quarter. Boorman again for two and Demoreville for two successive one handers to make the score 28-25. Fowler closed the scoring with a two hand set to make the final score Peterborough 30, Regiopolis 25.

Here And There In Sports . . .

By The Canadian Press

Eddie Dyer, keen-eyed skipper of St. Louis Cardinals, peered into the cracked mirror hanging on the wall of his office at Al Lang Field, St. Petersburg, Fla., halted in the process of combing his hair and said:

"No, I'm not making any predictions as to where we'll finish this year. I've never done that before and I'd be out of character if I did now.

"I'm leaving all the predicting to Brooklyn," he added with a smile. "I see where Burt Shotton and Branch Rickey (Dodger manager and president, respectively) are picking the Dodgers to win the next world series. It must be a relief not to have to play out the regular schedule.

"Who are they kidding, anyway? That's strictly the bunk for player and public consumption. They know darn well there is a little matter of 154 tough ball games to be played."

W. F. Morrissey, president of the Canadian section of the Horsemen's Benevolent Protective Association, said Friday night that announcement in the Ontario budget speech of establishment of an Ontario racing commission is "a step in the right direction."

Premier Frost in presenting the budget to the Ontario Legislature said that a racing commission would be appointed to control all horse racing in the province.

"The choosing of a commission should put an end to constant bickering and bartering between all concerned in horse racing," said Mr. Morrissey.

St. Patrick's College captured the City Juvenile A hockey championship tonight by defeating University of Ottawa 2-0 in the fifth game of a best-of-five series. Ed Long and Brian Cullen tallied for St. Pats. The club is expected to take part in a proposed all-Ontario juvenile round robin series at Toronto later this month.

At Aiken, S. C., Guillotine Greentree Stable's Kentucky Derby nominee, breezed home in record - breaking time Friday to defeat J. C. Brady's Starecase by 1½ lengths in the featured race of the annual Aiken trials. The big brown colt, piloted by Ted Atkinson, ran the wet half-mile track in 47 2-5 seconds to clip 3-5 of a second off the old record held by Devil Diver, another Greentree great of former years.

At Jacksonville, Fla., Jackson Bradley, young St. Charles, Ill., golfer didn't get far in the Jacksonville open that started Friday. After he played a few holes Bradley discovered he had 15 clubs in his bag. The limit is 14. Bradley sadly tore up his scorecard and withdrew from the tournament.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

Cambridge and Oxford University crews chalked up record times in their annual boat-race classis 16 years ago today. Cambridge stretched its winning streak to 11, finishing the 4¼-miles course in 18 minute, three seconds, just 15 seconds better than Oxford. The Light Blues lowered their own score in 1948, by covering the course in 17 minutes, 50 seconds.

Nurses Juniors Gain First Over Normals

Just one girls' basketball game was played on time at the YWCA last night the St. Catharines' team being hours late, owing to the storm. Nurses Jrs. edged out a 26-25 victory over Normals to open their best-of-three junior finals in the Girls' Basketball League.

It was a nifty encounter throughout, with Normals having a 13-12 margin at the half, but the young Nurses fighting back hard in the last two quarters to finally pull it out by the single point just before the finish. Real good cage work was dished up by both speedy squads, the passing and shooting generally being good and effective checking seen in every quarter by the rival crews.

Outstanding for the victors were Betty Sutton and Pat Martyn on the attack, though their mates all went well, too, and the guards played a bangup brand. Amy Curtis, Elma Scriver and Gladys Clarke shone for the losers, all of whom fought hard and came close to taking this first playoff game. Teams:

Normals: A. Curtis 11, E. Scriver 4, L. Cullis, S. McEwen 2, M. Kerr, G. Clarke 6, M. 2, M. Holroyd.

Nurses' Jrs.: P. Martyn 9, R. Green, S. Brooks 2, J. Brown, K. McElroy 1, V. Latondresse 2, B. Gamble, B. Sutton 9, B. Wiley, S. Langton 3.

Cumming Adds More To Record

TORONTO, March 18 (CP) — George Cumming, professional at the Toronto Golf Club, this Sunday will add another year to his record for continuous service to one golf club.

The veteran golfer, born in Bridge of Weir, Scotland, on May 20, 1879, will start his fifty-first year of service to Canadian golf and the Toronto club this Sunday.

At the age of 10, the dean of Canadian golf was a caddy at the Ranfurly Club and at 14 joined the staff of a Glasgow club-making firm to learn the rudiments and intricacies of the exacting trade. For many years he made all the clubs made in the Toronto pro shop and has been rated as perhaps the most foremost authority on clubs among Canadian pros.

When only 20, Cumming was informed the job of pro at his present club was his for the taking and he took little time in making his decision.

In 1905, the second year the Canadian open championship was held, he won the title with a score of 184. He was runner-up in 1907, 1909 and 1914. Better than winning championships himself though—he has also won the Canadian Professional Golfers championship—he likes to look back and see all his former assistants and pupils who have won golfing fame.

Togs Earn Win In LOBA Over St. Kitts

Last night and early this morning at the YWCA gym, the Towne Togs played and defeated St. Catherines Merry Macs 33-25 to open their two-game LOBA intermediate "B" semi-finals. They will carry an eight point lead back to St. Kitts on Tuesday. The game here didn't start until 11:45 p.m., the visitors having trouble getting through the storm on heavy roads.

St. Catharines started early but Togs soon got the range against their taller opponents, having more speed than the Saints. Jean Vass was the big gun in the first half to score 10 of the 14 points as they led 14-8. Marg Kennedy and Joan Dunk got two each. St. Kitts drove in the third to tie it at 20-all on fine passing plays but the locals clicked again in the fourth, led by Joan Dunk who got 11 of the 19 second half points. Jean Castle's basket broke the tie to start Togs rolling. Jean Vass, Dot Callan also collected a basket and four shot to end the scoring.

All the Togs went well with no individual stars, top scorers being Joan Dunk and Jean Vass. They lost Jean Castle and Dot Callan on fouls, as Joan Dunk, Jean Vass and Polly Stewart had four each. The Saints scored 11 of 32 foul shots as Togs got three of seven. V. Cole was the main shooter for the losers with 14 points as Helen Jenkinson got five. The teams:

St. Kitts: A. Cannon 3, A. Cole, S. Cooke, H. Jenkinson 5, M. O'Flaherty, V. Cole 14, H. Cooke 2, D. Gayder 1.

Togs: D. Callan 3, M. Kennedy 2, J. Dunk 13, J. Vass 13, D. Saunders, B. Stewart, J. Castle 2, P. Stewart.

Kingston Ponies Get New Negro Shortstop

KINGSTON, March 18.—Steve Martin, secretary-treasurer of the Kingston Ponies, announced Friday morning that James Hill, a Negro from Lake Charles, La., and a shortstop by trade, has been added to the roster. Hill, who also catches in emergencies, made a favorable impression on Brooklyn Dodger bosses while in training at Vero Beach, Fla., last season, but elected to complete his studies at college.

Stories From The Bible

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fourth in a series of studies from the Old Testament. The text is condensed from selections by Houston Harte for the new book, "In Our Image." Illustration by Guy Rowe is also from the book.)

And the Philistines had dominion over Israel. And Samson went and caught three hundred foxes, and took firebrands, and turned tail to tail, and put a firebrand in the midst between two tails. And when he had set the brands on fire, he let them go into the standing corn of the Philistines, and burnt up the shocks, and also the standing corn, with the vineyards and olives. Then the Philistines said, Who hath done this? And they answered, Samson.

Then the Philistines went up, and spread themselves in Lehi. And Samson came unto Lehi; and the Spirit of the Lord came mightily upon him, and he found a new jawbone of an ass, and put forth his hand, and took it, and slew a thousand men therewith.

And it came to pass afterward, that he loved a woman in Sorek, whose name was Delilah. And the lords of the Philistines came and said to her, Entice him, and see wherein his great strength lieth, and by what means we may prevail against him, that we may bind him to afflict him: and we will give thee every one of us eleven hundred pieces of silver.

Delilah said to Samson, Tell me, I pray thee, wherein thy great strength lieth, and wherewith thou mightest be bound to afflict thee. And Samson said, If they bind me with seven green withs that were never dried, then shall I be weak, as another man. Then the lords of the Philistines brought up to her seven green withs which had not been dried, and she bound him.

And she said, The Philistines be upon thee, Samson. And he brake the widths, so his strength was not known. And Delilah said unto Samson, thou has told me lies: now tell me, I pray thee wherewith thou mightest be bound. And he said, If they bind me fast with new ropes, then shall I be weak, and be as another man. Delilah therefore took new ropes, and bound him. And he brake them from off his arms like a thread.

And Delilah said, How canst thou say, I love thee, when thine heart is not with me? And she pressed him daily, and urged him, so that his soul was vexed unto death, that he told her all his heart, and said, There hath not come a razor upon mine head; if I be shaven, my strength will go from me.

And when Delilah saw that he had told her all his heart, she called for the lords of the Philistines. And she made him sleep upon her knees; and she called for a man to shave off the locks of his head; and his strength went from him.

And the Phillistines took him, and put out his eyes, and bound him with fetters of brass; and he did grind in prison. Howbeit the hair of his head began to grow again. Then the lords of the Philistines gathered together to rejoice. And when their hearts were merry, they said, Call for Samson, that he may make us sport. And they called for Samson out of the prison house, and he made them sport: and they set him between the pillars. And Samson said to the lad that held him by the hand, Suffer me that I may feel the pillars whereupon the house standeth, that I may lean upon them.

Now the house was full of men and women; and all the lords of the Philistines were there; and there were upon the roof about three thousand men and women. And Samson called unto the Lord, and said, O Lord God, strengthen me, I pray Thee, that I may be avenged of the Philistines for my two eyes.

And Samson took hold of the two pillars upon which the house stood, and he bowed himself with all his might; and the house fell upon the lords, and upon all the people that were therein. So the dead which he slew at his death were more than they which he slew in his life. Then his brethren and all the house of his father came down, and took him, and brought him up, and buried him in the burying place of his father.

God Gives Men A Tonic To Strengthen Hearts, Minds

Fear Thou Not For I Am With Thee: Be Not Dismayed For I Am Thy God. Isai 41: 10.

This is God's promise spoken nearly three thousand years ago to a depressed prophet in Babylon, the land of exile. It is also written for you and me in our days of anxiety. What were your thoughts when you saw a new babe in the arms of his happy mother. As a thinking man did you offer a silent prayer that the babe may be spared the horrors of another war, more fearful than the last. God has given us a tonic to strengthen our hearts and minds. "Fear thou not for I am with thee; be not dismayed for I am thy God".

The exile brought a special blessing to the Jewish believer in Jehovah. Up to then he thought of Jehovah as the God of Palestine; there were other gods. The exile pressed home the religious thought that Jehovah was not stronger than the other gods. It was a new revelation that Jehovah could speak to his prophet in far away Babylon. "fear not, I am with thee." It lifted up the heart of the lonely man that Jehovah was still greater than the gods of the victors. The faith of countless Jews was deepened by this new revelation of the presence of God in the land of the heathen. The Jews returned from the exile with this new revelation that Jehovah is the one living God. Knowledge through tribulation.

As Christians we have the fuller and more personal truth that God became Man in Jesus Christ that He might sympathise and understand the sufferings and anxieties of man "he was in all points tested and tempted as we are yet without sin." He is therefor able to draw near and comfort and uphold all in darkness and fear. God Himself whispers through His Holy Spirit to each onely heart. "Fear not for I am with thee; I am thy God and thy Saviour, bone of thy bone and flesh of thy flesh. Be not dismayed".

It is your privilege to realise that Real Presence in the quiet of your room. You will feel the sense of His nearness and His Presence will go with you as you go forth to face your problems.

You remember the tempest on the lake and the tired Master sound asleep in the stern. With "Why are ye afraid, O ye of little faith." This Scripture is written for the upbuilding of your faith. To another prophet God speaks similar encouragement: "Son of man, stand upon thy feet and I will speak unto thee". To stand implies courage to face the darkness. Such passages of Holy Scripture prove the inspiration of the Book. The Christ, Who is the Truth, says "Be of good courage, I have overcome the world."

The Lord Jesus Saith I Am With Thee All The Days: I Will Never Leave Thee Nor Forsake Thee. Thanks Be Unto Thee, O Lord.

Great Religious Revivals Sweeping Churches In U.S.

NEW YORK (NEA)—Religion is enjoying the biggest boom it has ever had in America.

Church membership is at an all-time peak and embraces a larger share of the population than ever before. It's still rising. And new churches are springing up all around the country to meet the swelling need.

Hundreds of newspapers have run serialized versions of religious books and played them up like spot news stories. Millions are gobbling up these same books at the bookstores. Some of these works have been printed twice in the same paper.

An evangelistic revivalist spirit has spread widely. Right now 38 Protestant denominations are engaged in a 15 months' drive to "win America for Chirst." Upwards of 1,000,000 church laymen are ringing doorbells in a down-to-earth effort to draw every good prospect into the fold. The target is big: 70,000,000 eligible non-churchgoers.

Last November 700 Methodist ministers from all areas joined 300 local preachers in Philadelphia for an intensive week of evangelism. Nearly 35,000 religious-minded folk crammed into the city's huge Convention Hall for a windup meeting.

VOL. C. No. 65 SATURDAY, MARCH 18, 1950

Four Accidents Reported During Storm

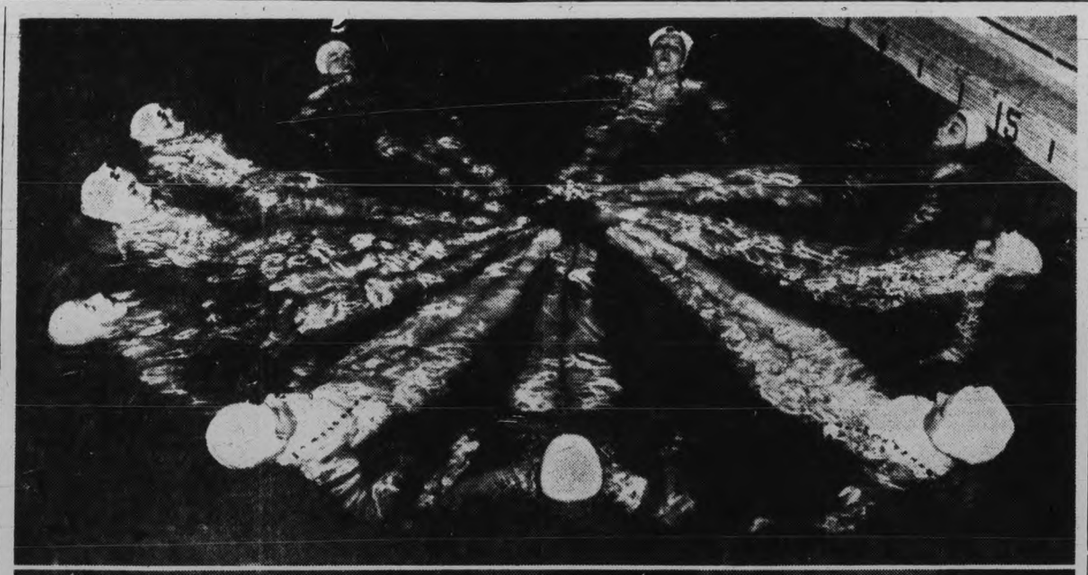
The heavy snow storm Friday evening played havoc with driving conditions on city streets. Several motorists braved the elements but at least eight who were involved in accidents, no doubt wish they had followed the example of those who decided to leave the car in the garage.

The 8 motorists were involved in four accidents. Two were cases of drivers being unable to pull up in time when vehicles in front of them stopped at intersections.

During the first hour of the storm, a truck driven by Philip Pecoskie, 668 Gilchrist St., and a car driven by Melville Foy, 427 George St., were involved in collisions at Charlotte and Park Sts.

Foy was proceeding east on Charlotte and stopped at Park St. The truck, also going east, hit the rear of the car, damaging the car's left rear fender, trunk door and bumper arm. Constable A. Edmison investigated.

A similar situation arose later in the evening on George St. near Lake St. and when approximately 100 feet south of Lake St., slowed down to park. As he slowed down his car was struck on the rear by a car driven by Austin B. Flagler, 894 Western Ave. Traffic Officer Claire McGillen investigated.



Within 10 minutes, at 6.10 and 6.20 p.m., similar accidents occurred at the Reid and McDonnel intersection and at Aylmer and Dublin Sts.

Joseph Marino, 657 Reid St., was driving north on Reid and while crossing the McDonnel St. intersection, the side of his car was struck by a car going west on McDonnel. Driver of the westbound car was Arnold Olmstead, 83 Benson Ave. Constables V. A. McConnell and A. Edmison investigated.

Almost simultaneously, William Towmey, 12 Bruce St. and Mark Glublick, 1271 Monaghan Rd., were in collision at Aylmer and Dublin Sts.

Towmey was driving east on Dublin and at Aylmer his car was hit on the right rear corner by Glublick's car proceeding north on Aylmer.

Towmey's car landed on the northeast boulevard facing south west and knocked down the stop sign. Glublick's car was on the northeast boulevard facing northeast. Constables A. Edmison and V. A. McConnell investigated.

Board Reopens Order Closing Port Hope Line

The Board of Transport Commissioners for Canada has given notice that it will re-open its order authorizing abandonment of the CNR line between Port Hope and Millbrook according to a letter received by H. L. Garner, chairman of the Peterborough Industrial Commission.

The previous order was made on October 30, 1941, and approved of the abandonment of the operation of the line and authorized discontinuance of passenger train service between Peterborough and Millbrook. Late last year the CNR, which during the war had continued the service, gave notice that it was going to carry out the order.

Since then many protests have been made and an application was sponsored by the council of the township of South Monaghan and others asking that the order be rescinded and the CNR required to continue service.

P. F. Baillergeon, secretary of the board, in his letter to Mr. Garner said that the application would be set down for hearing at a date to be fixed later by the board.

Ornamental Swimming Club Presents Eight Routines

Peterborough folk Friday night saw a preview of Canada's only entry in the international synchronized swimming meet to be held next week in Chicago. The Canadian standard bearers are the girls of Peterborough's famed Ornamental Swimming Club coached by Mrs. Pansy Forbes. As the girls went through their intricate routines in the YMCA pool a large crowd applauded enthusiastically.

"They'll have a good chance—they've practised hard and have some original routines," commented Cookson Munro, manager of the club, as he watched the girls go through their paces.

Tonight they will again show their championship style at the YMCA in conjunction with the 'Y' Swimming Club. Proceeds will go toward travelling expenses of the two clubs.

The Peterborough Ornamental Swimmers have now attained an international reputation for their aquatic feats. In 1948 they caught the judge's eye at Des Moines and in 1949 they placed well in competition with a host of United States clubs at Chicago, Cleveland and Detroit.

Friday night the girls showed the results of months of careful training by performing their complex formation work with the precision of water-borne Rockettes. The spectators saw eight routines, including those designed for the Chicago meet.

Club members were dressed in special costumes designed by Mrs. James Young and Mrs. Fred Gant. However to keep them fresh for the championship competition they were not used. The girls paraded in them so the spectators could see the handiwork of the two local lady designers, and then changed into other swimming costumes before going through their acts.

Five of the routines were duets and the three others on the program were formations involving six or more girls. The finale (not slated for Chicago) consisted of 15 club members in a formation number.

Their synchronized turns—underwater or on the surface—graceful dives and almost perfect timing drew spontaneous applause repeatedly. All numbers were performed to the accompaniment of suitable recorded music.

Mrs. Violet Heffernan is in charge of the music and will travel with the 17 club members to Chicago.

Two of the routines had scenery to help match the mood of the music.

In "Fantasia Mexicana", a duet with swimmers Jean Millard and Norma Gant, a cactus plant prop is placed beside the pool as a background for their interpretation of the music.

Another attractive number also involving scenery was "Fire Ritual," a duet by Isobel Crary and June Storey. The first movement begins as a conventional dance with the girls worshipping the fire. They then slip into the water, perform their synchronized routine and emerge from the water to complete their number, once again worshipping the fire.

For the number "Persian Market" the nine swimmers wore black bathing suits, white caps and bronze headbands, belts and handcuffs.

Chief worry of the club today is whether one of their star performers will be able to go to Chicago. Maureen Finn, who last year came 5th in the U.S. junior championship for duets, is ill and Friday night was not present. Miss Finn came 5th in a routine that had Mary Rutherford as her partner.

Those going to Chicago for the championships on March 24-25 are Norma Gant, June Storey, Mary Rutherford, Iris Rielly, Jean Millard, Betty Welch, Isobel Crary, Shirley Moldaver, Maureen Finn, Beverley Rumary, Norma Delaney Nanita Bogue, Mary Gordoniere, Mary Dorset, Joan Lynch, Joan Monk and Sally Hartman.

Other members of the club are Denise and Nancy Doubt, Anne Gray, Elaine Humphries, Margaret Lancaster, Peggy Bowen, Marie Stone, Betty Mather and Joan Coombs.

Boys from the YMCA swimming club completed the evening with several races.

Only 2 Minor Accidents

Two sideswipe collisions causing only minor damage and no injuries were reported Friday night to Provincial Police.

Cars driven by Mrs. D. Darling of Warsaw and Maurice O'Brien of Indian River collided near the junction of Leaghy's Lane and the Warsaw road.

Provincial Constable C. W. Tutton investigated.

George Palmateer of Norham was driving east on Highway 7, eight miles east of Peterborough when he had a sideswipe collision with another car driven west by A. H. Thompson of Hastings.

Provincial Constables Roy Feeley and F. G. Pollitt investigated.

UE Claims IUE Has Failed In Big Scoop

The battle of rival claims between the left wing UE and the right wing IUE continues.

Since the CIO convention in November approximately 25,000 Canadian workers under UE contract have remained within that union as have 520,000 in the United States. So say the UE.

Meanwhile James B. Carey, chairman of the IUE administrative committee, has challenged Albert J. Fitzgerald, UE president, to debate the union issues "in every city and town in the country (United States) where a Westinghouse or General Electric plant is located."

Carey claims that the UE is "Communist-dominated and Communist-controlled," and because of this "it has failed utterly as a trade union and has proved incapable of doing an effective job of improving the economic status of the half-million men and women in the industry."

The challenge to debate comes before National Labor Relations Board elections in the United States that will affect nearly 200,000 workers.

Sullivan Statement

Referring to the Canadian scene C. R. Sullivan, UE representative, said that the IUE has been successful "in only three small shops totalling less than 400 workers." In major industries in Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton, and Welland, the IUE has not been able to muster enough strength to issue a leaflet, Sullivan said.

In the past four months the UE has negotiated 250 contracts in the United States, said Sullivan, providing increases totalling $200 a year and other contract improvements.

Indicative of the UE organizing drive in both the United States and Canada is the present campaign in the Westclox and De Laval plants, he said.

OIL MAY FLOW FASTER

Alberta's oilfields have an average daily production of 62,000 barrels and a potential of 250,000 barrels daily by the end of 1950.

Two 15-Suite Apartment Plans Completed

Plans for two fifteen-suite apartment houses to be built this year in the Parkdale subdivision of Sands and Bateman are in the hands of local contractors.

Parkdale is east of Armour Road and south of Park Hill Road. It is in the Nicholls Oval locality.

Sands and Bateman also contemplate building thirty houses in that subdivision this season. They broke ground there a year ago for forty houses of which thirty are completed. Twenty-two of them are occupied, and ten more are ready for purchasers to move in as soon as the necessary service connections are laid.

When the two projects now in planning are finished, Sands and Bateman will have to the credit of their enterprise 100 dwelling units in that area.

Five contractors have been asked for bids on the two apartment houses. Together they will provide 30 suites, and the total number of houses will be seventy.

Winter is dilatory in its departure. The vernal equinox is Tuesday March 21, and on Sunday, just as a matter of seasonal record, the swallows are expected to arrive at San Juan Capistrano. Spring is due, and as one of the local building supply executives said this morning, a week of sunshine and blue skies with lustre and buoyancy in the air, would have a quickening effect on intentions for this year's building.

Active Season

Enquiries in the trade indicate another active season for Peterborough. Many people are thinking of building homes for themselves, and there may be some investment for rent. However general opinion in local trade circle is that, apart from the last project of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation which has been advancing throughout the winter, new rental accommodation is likely to be only a small fraction of the work that will be undertaken.

Lumber dealers say that as an effect of an adverse bush season and heavy demand for export to the United States their markets are strong. Consensus of their reports is that they are absorbing some advance in production and jobbing costs in their desire to keep prices to consumers at the level of 1949.

The tendency, it is said generally in the local building trade, is a sincere wish to give any possible concession to peple who desire to build this year.

Mr. Lorne Bateman and Mr. Albert Galoska of Sands and Bateman attended recently the convention in Chicago of the National Association of Home Builders. Of its 16,038 members, some 13,000 registered at the Stevens Hotel.

"One of the trends which we noticed is toward the small home that is designed for expansion at the same time retaining its overall unity," Mr. Bateman said. "Part of the dwelling can be built for

Lecture Series Big Success

Interest in the series of lectures and colored movies by top U.S. naturalists sponsored by Peterborough Nature Club has increased from comparatively limited support, when the series was a new venture in the city, until a full house at all lectures is now a regular occurrence.

The last of a series of five movie-illustrated talks Friday at Queen Mary school attracted an audience which filled the auditorium.

Encourage by the success of the venture, the Nature Club plans to hold another series next winter.

The series includes a panel of speakers who travel across Canada for the Audubon Society, an ornithological organization which specializes in the study and preservation of birds.

B. Harwell, a U.S. ornithologist, showed movies of Jasper and Banff Parks and the Canadian west coast. He prefaced his talk by imitating the songs of a great variety of birds and his pictures covered a wide field of wild animal and bird life.

The camera took the audience with Mr. Harwell as he climbed mountains and entered the wild regions of the west to watch patiently for many varieties of birds. The spectators saw birds hatching, the "domestic" habits of the different species, particularly at nesting time and interspersed with studies of birds, there were glimpses of plant life, the animal world, sea fish and geological structures.

The speaker was introduced by Lewis R. Bird and a vote of thanks was proposed by J. L. McKeever.

170 Accidents On Highways In Two Months

Motor accidents on local highways remain higher than usual, Provincial Police statistics reveal.

In the five counties included in District 8—Peterborough, Victoria, Haliburton, Durham and Northumberland—since January 1, there have been 123 accidents causing property damage; 46 in which people were injured, and one fatality.

While still higher than usual for this time of year the February figure is lower than the January. Of the 170 accidents investigated in District 8 since the new year 92 were in January and 78 in February.

Provincial Corporal Lloyd McClure who keeps a check by means of a large wall map (complete with stick pins) lays the principal blame on the weather. Ice and snow begin melting on the road surfaces during the day and then freezing sets in at night.

The result: dangerous driving conditions.

72 People Hurt

Seventy-two people were injured in 46 accidents—49 in January and 23 in February.

The fatality was on February 7 when six-year-old Margaret Mary Boulton of Murray township was killed by a transport truck on Highway 2, near Trenton.

Most of the motor mishaps were on Highway 2 in Northumberland county.

Here is a list showing the two-month total and the February figures: Highway 2, 51 and 15; No. 7, 27 and 14; No. 7a, 1 and nil; No. 28, 21 and 12; No. 30, 3 and 2; No. 35, 11 and 8; No. 36, 5 and 5; No. 45, 2 and 1; No. 46, 2 and 1; county roads, 35 and 15; township roads, 10 and 3.

Provincial Police also investigated an accident in Lindsay and another in Bobcaygeon.

Danger Spots

The three main danger spots, the police map shows, are all on Highway 2.

One is the six-mile stretch between Courtice and Bowmanville with 13 accidents, three of them involving injuries. The second is the 10-mile stretch between Bowmanville and Newtonville, also with 13 accidents during the

PRACTICAL PLANS FOR THE HOME YOU WANT AND HOW TO PLAN IT

Rugs And Carpets In Home Must Receive Proper Care

We don't seem ta realize the terrific wear and tear to which carpets and rugs are subjected, not now and then, but literally every day in the year. We walk on them with hard, soiled shoes, pull and push furniture over them without the slightest compunction, expose them to glaring sunlight, drop ashes and even food particles on their absorbing surfaces without a single care—and still expect them to last indefinitely and possess their pristine beauty and glory forever. Yes, indeed, carpets and rugs are the most abused of all home furnishings — and yet, like Mark Twain's weather, we generally do nothing about it.

Perhaps you can make practical use of these rules:

Most new rugs "shed." You'll find on almost any new rug a certain amount of woolly fuzz. These are merely the loose ends of the nap which have fallen back into the pile in the process of "sheering." As a rule, they disappear after a few weeks of use. If a broom is used in removing them, particularly on an Axminster or Wilton rug, one should not sweep hard, and never with a "digging" motion. New rugs should receive very little cleaning for two or three weeks.

All Rugs Shade

Practically all rugs "shade." The light or dark patches which appear on plain rugs are merely seeming differences in color due to unequal crushing of the nap.

Take special care in laying rugs. Neglect of this admonition causes untold trouble. Any bumps, ridges or unevenness in the floor are sure to cause worn spots. In any event, never place a rug on a bare floor; rather lay it over a good quality rug cushion, for this takes up the minor inequalities of the floor.

Do not beat or sweep rugs. Beating breaks threads and loosens the fabric, thus seriously damaging a rug. Sweeping with a corn broom is also dangerous, as the stiff fibres of the broom tear into the nap. When cleaning is necessary a carpet sweeper to remove the surface dust and dirt. If possible, use a vacuum cleaner at least once or twice a week.

Do not pull out knots or tufts. If they are objectionable, cut them off even with the surface. They are not defects in the weaving. When and if rugs rip, sew them immediately.

Always use a good quality of hair rug cushion. Every carpet and rug deserves an appropriate cushion or "lining," not only to increase its softness, but also to double its life. However, the cushion must be equal in quality to the quality of the rug. A poor cushion is hardly more valuable than no cushion at all.

Causes a Bulge

About lamp cords under rugs. The ordinary lamp cord causes a bulge under a rug that results in rapid wear. A special flat cord can be obtained to avoid this trouble.

Move the furniture occasionally. Such moving will prevent permanent indentations in a rug and will also distribute excessive wear.

Protect rugs from direct sunlight. Even the finest domestic rugs will tend to change colour if exposed to bright sunlight, and particularly is this true of the delicate shades so popular today.

Turn rugs around every few months. The heavy traffic will thus be more evenly distributed and there will be less likelihood of the formation of worn spots around doors and windows.

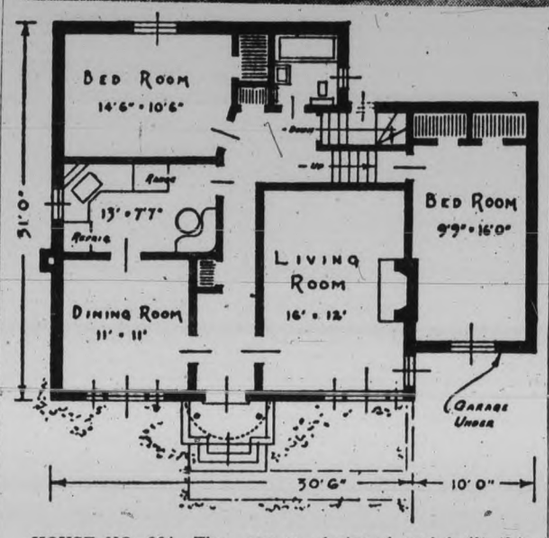
Dry air is harmful to rugs. Dry air in closed rooms causes rug fibres to dry out and become brittle and thereby the life of even the finest rug is considerably shortened. Ample humidifiers should be used on radiators especially in the hot air heated room.

Never pack away until clean. Soiled rugs are much more apt to attract moths than clean ones, and all rugs, therefore, should be carefully washed before being put into storage.

General cleaning with a carpet sweeper and vacuum cleaner will retard the gradual soiling of rugs but at intervals, preferably once a year, thorough cleaning by a responsible carpet cleaner is advisable.

Dirt spots. To remove ordinary soil marks go over the rug thoroughly with a soft brush. Then sponge with mild, warm soapsuds and rinse carefully with clean, warm water.

Grease spots. Such spots gradually rot the fabric of a rug and should be removed at once with carbon tetrachloride, which is sold under various trade names. The tetrachloride should be applied with a soft cloth, and the soil taken up as it dissolves with a clean cloth or blotter.



Chewing gum can be softened by pouring on a little carbon tetrachloride. Let the tetrachloride stand for a few minutes and then remove the gum.

Animal stains. Most stains of this nature cause a discoloration which cannot be completely removed. Clean at once. First sponge thoroughly with a strong salt solution (½ cup of salt in a quart of lukewarm water), and then follow with a weak ammonia solution (one part in 20 parts of water).

SARDINE CENTRE

Nearly all of Canada's sardine catch is taken in south-eastern New Brunswick waters.

HOUSE NO. 364—The owner designed and built this compact home himself. While its general lines are conventional, the unusual treatment of the facade has produced a five-room bungalow that is definitely refreshing in character. The five indented courses of dark brick tend to minimize the wall height, as do the horizontal white stripes across the maroon coloured doors of the entrance and garage. Although more than the usual amount of space is devoted to hall for a house of this size, because of this no room serves as a traffic artery. There is a handy coat closet in the front hall, and a linen closet in the back hall close to the bathroom. An interesting room is the kitchen. Here we find the increasingly popular "corner-wise" sink, and a breakfast nook in the French cafe style. Quite private and cosy is the living room, which measures 16' x 12'. Its fireplace is strategically centred on the wall opposite the only door into the room, giving it a friendly atmosphere. For further information write Home Building in Canada 372 Bay St., Toronto.

Brazil Has Offered 6-Month Scholarship

OTTAWA, March 18 (CP)—A six-month scholarship will be awarded to a Canadian citizen to study at a recognized Brazilian university.

Offer of the scholarship by the Brazilian government was announced Friday by the External Affairs Department.

The scholarship is open to any student who, by the end of the present academic year, will have received a degree higher than Bachelor of Arts.

The scholarship valued at $1,200, will run for six months from the date the winner arrives in Rio De Janeiro.

Secret Orders To Be Banned

OTTAWA, March 18 (CP) — Secret orders-in-council will be banned under a bill approved in principle in the Senate Thursday.

The bill now goes to the Senate on banking and commerce for detailed study. Sponsored by Senator A. K. Hugessen (L-Quebec) the legislation makes it mandatory for the government to make public all orders-in-council of a legislative character 15 days after they are passed.

Senator A. W. Roebuck, (L-Ontario) suggested that the measure be amended so no government order will be valid unless it goes through some system of public filing.

He gained support from Senator John T. Haig, Progressive Conservative leader, and Senator Hugessen said he would take the matter up with the government.

He disclosed that all orders-in-council of a legislative nature up to Dec. 31, 1949, will be made public in a book now being compiled by the government.

Senator Hugessen agreed with Senator Roebuck that the government should be prepared to take the responsibility of saying that all its orders are contained in the book and none omitted.

Has Shins Barked

TORONTO, March 18 (CP) — Murray Cotterill, Canadian Congress of Labor organizer, had his shins barked Friday when struck by an automobile at a picket line outside a downtown garage where mechanics have been on strike since last week. Mr. Cotterill was one of the pickets in front of the garage's doors and said he attempted to converse with the driver of a car awaiting entrance. "The driver gunned the car while I was still in front of it," Cotterill said. "I had to jump on the hood to avoid being run over. I was carried into the garage on the front of the car."

Won't Increase School Grant In Manitoba

By The Canadian Press.

The education issue was to the fore in the Manitoba Legislature yesterday, when Education Minister Smith announced that the Manitoba Government will not increase its basic school grant to municipalities.

The Manitoba provincial grant totals 25 per cent of education costs to municipalities. It meets 31 per cent of rural costs and between 6 and 7 per cent of school costs in Winnipeg.

The Nova Scotia Legislature will open Tuesday and Premier Macdonald said the legislative program will probably be heavier than usual. He declined to give details, apart from saying that the program includes a substantial highway program and the province's one-third share of a proposed bridge over the Canso Straits.

Warehouse Loans

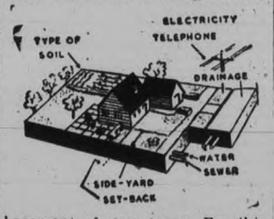
The Prince Edward Island Legislature saw introduction of a Bill providing for loans for building of potato warehouses.

The New Brunswick Legislature discussed possible establishment of a sugar beet industry and a sub-committee was appointed to study the matter.

The Quebec Legislature was told by Premier Duplessis that it was right for a growing province to have a Solicitor-General who would represent Quebec before the courts. He was speaking on the Bill creating the new post of Solicitor-General, adopted by the Lower House. Premier Duplessis said also that changes in name of some provincial departments would be in accord with the province's size and growth.

"Quebec is a sovereign state by virtue of its constitution and within its jurisdiction," said Premier Duplessis.

Conservation Report Goes To Legislature



TORONTO, March 18 (CP) — The Ontario Legislature's select committee on conservation will report Monday on its study of soil depletion, drainage, flood control, reforestation, local demonstration farms and soil analysis in Ontario.

Appointed at the last session of the Legislature, the committee held public hearings in all parts of the province. Its studies and findings are embodied in a report of some 65,000 words which the chairman, F. S. Thomas (PC-Elgin) will table Monday.

Next week, the Legislature is also expected to swing into debate on the budget, presented Friday by Premier Frost in his capacity of provincial treasurer.

Inspect Soil On Lot Before Planning To Build

Investigate the lot to see if it is in its original state or has been "filled in." If the latter is the case added precautions should be taken to prevent the founudation of the house from sinking. Avoid swamp-like land which might flood. Make sure that the lot is properly graded. You will not want want water running into the basement of your home. For this reason, a lot sloping gently down to the street is preferable to one which is level.

The lot should be large enough for the house and garage. It should also be able to accommodate gardening and clothes drying facilities. A pleasant view and a space of recreation make the house more attractive. The lots in the block should be wide enough to allow sunlight and air between the houses and provide for privacy. Check on local lot restrictions or covenants. There should be some regulation on the distance your house is set back from the street and from the lot lines.

The shape of the lot is an essential matter. Visualize your house built on it. If you are building a rambling ranch-style house, a long narrow lot would not be suitable.

Look at the condition of the soil. Is it suitable for seeding or sodding a lawn? Will it provide easy excavation for the basement?

Can you use the excavated material for grading purposes? Are there trees on the lot for adequate shade? The ground around your home deserves the same intelligent planning which your house receives.

Stock Markets Advance To High Ground

By The Canadian Press.

Stock markets this week broke out of the narrow price range of the last month to advance into new high ground in some of the busiest sessions of the year.

Industrial stocks held the limelight with heavy buying spurring Wall Street to a 3½-year high.

In recent weeks prices have moved narrowly and traders have been waiting to see which direction the market would take. Strong demand this week in market leaders pointed to a continuation of the nine-months-old bull market.

Much of the advance was in "blue-chip" stocks, that is the well - established companies. More speculative issues were largely ignored.

Downward Pressures

The advance came despite the downward pressures that usually appear in March when general audit of books of Stock Exchange member firms usually finds considerable selling and liquidation for income tax payment purposes also appears.

New York opened the week on a narrow price tone and then forged steadily higher Tuesday. The advance picked up steam on Wednesday when prices broke through to a 3½-year high and market value of listed stocks increased by about $1,000,000,000.

Profit-taking appeared Thursday and yesterday, checking the advance. The Associated Press closed the five days at 75, a gain of 1.7 from the previous Friday.

In Toronto, industrials boomed upwards for a gain of 3.22 on the Exchange's index of representative stocks. The index closed yesterday at the highest point since it was first compiled in 1934.

Paper, liquor, steel, construction and refining oil stocks highlighted the advance. Individual issues showed wide gains with better investment stocks like Walker's, Gooderham & Worts, Distiller's Seagram's, Abitibi Paper, and Consolidated Paper in the spotlight.

Gold mining stocks jumped into the spotlight. Generally ignored during rising industrial markets, the golds rose to the highest average price level since early January.

Senior Producers Active

Senior producers were especially active. Interest has been increasing in recent weeks as drilling and development news trickles out from the companies. The gold board showed a gain of 6.17 on the index from the previous Friday.

Base metals were mildly better for a gain of 1.45. A weakening lead market and decreased earnings in several annual reports kept buyers away.

The buying spread over into Western oils. Market leaders showed some good gains as the index advanced 2.36.

Volume for the five days was 5,659,000 shares, compared with 5,619,000 shares the previous week.

Equipment, Trained Seal Display Get Crowds At Sportsmen's Show

TORONTO, March 18 (CP) — A happy combination of attractions from the outdoors and the city is drawing thousands of persons to the third annual Canadian National Sportsmen's Show at the Coliseum here.

The show, sponsored by the conservation-conscious Toronto Anglers and Hunters Association was officially opened last night by Ontario's Premier Frost. The Premier said he considered it a privilege to have a part in helping to make citizens aware of the potentialities of the province's natural resources.

Officials of the show are hopeful that at least 200,000 persons from Canada and the United States will attend the show which closes March 25.

The attractions range from an Indian village through displays of wild animals to Miss Canada IV, the sleek speedboat in which Harold Wilson of Ingersoll, Ont., plans another attempt on the world speed record this year.

Only a stone's throw away from the latest model television sets and automobiles stands the Indian village with birch bark canoes, teepees and tribal ceremonial trappings. Displaying handicrafts are a group of braves led by Chief Howard Scott of the Six Nations Reserve near Brantford, wearing beads and buckskin.

Many Attractions

Exhibits include displays of the dressed pelts of Ontario wild animals, clothing wore by Canadian soldiers in the Yukon during the recent Exercise Sweetbriar, luminous fishing floats and aluminum canoes. New to some Canadian fishermen are the samples of English fishing tackle, with such items as Devon minnows and weighted spinning flies.

Sharkey, the trained seal, is back for his third year in the stage and tank exhibition. As a show stealer, he gets heavy competition, however, from dancing horse., performing dogs, log rollers, a girl fly-caster, table tennis players, swimmer Clif Lumsden who won last year's Canadian Exhibition marathon, acrobats and trick divers.

Proceeds will be used by the Toronto Anglers' and Hunters' Association to carry on an extensive conservation program.

C's Take First

CAMPBELLFORD, March 18— (ENS)—An accident involving one of the cars bearing players of the Elmira hockey team to Campbellford resulted in a two and a half hours delay in the first game of the final Ontario championship round on Friday night. Despite the long delay in starting, a crowd of 600 persons watched a fast game in which the Campbellford boys were able to eke out a 6-5 win over the holders of the Ontario championship for the past two years, Elmira. The next game will be played in Elmira, and Campbellford have a one goal lead on the round, goals to count. Wilson's timely goal with only seven seconds of play remaining in the last period sewed the game up for the home team. Martin, of Elmira, had tied the score only 45 seconds earlier. Ingram in the Campbellford net played a good game on the whole, making many tough stops, but he let in a couple of soft goals, much to the disappointment of the home fans.

More than a thousand fans entered the arena for the game, but many of them could not wait and had to leave during the long delay. The game finally got under way at 11.40 p.m. The first two periods were straight 20 minute frames, but the last period was played regulation style by the stop watch.

The lineup:

Ibey; goal, Dan Ingram; defence, Jim Baker and Paul Hendrick; centre, Doug Dooher, wings, Jason Field and Glen Wilson, alternates, Jack Garvey, Doug Seymour, Lyle Bland, Jack Holmes, Eddy Peake, Jack Petherick, Ross Hendricks; spare goal, Elmer Kelly.

Find Sports Writer's Lot Unhappy One At Tourney

By MICHAEL O'MARA

LONDON, March 18—(CP)—A sports writer's lot is not a happy one at a figure-skating tournament. He has to be a cross between a calculating machine and Emily Post.

The scoring of figure-skating is a highly-complex affairs — and to keep abreast of events the reporter has to keep his own scores. Judges' official point-totals aren't issued until long after the figure is skated, and by then a lot of deadlines may have gone by.

The poor tired sports writer is faced with a long series of sums, running into two or three decimal places, involving addition, division and multiplication—all to be worked out hastily while trying to keep one eye on the next skater's leaps and spins.

Extremely Trying

It would be easy for Einstein but for a bunch of hacks that normally count on their fingers its extremely trying.

The other big problem at a skating tournament is the social one. Skaters are high-strung, sensitive characters. So are their coaches. So are their fathers. So are their mothers. So are the innumerable badge-wearing officials that hang around the rink.

Oddly enough many of these sensitive, high-strung characters seem to dislike many other similar sensitive, high-strung characters.

The sport writer's difficulty is in trying to remember who dislikes whom. A word of polite praise to one competitor within earshot of another competitor can win such a dirty look that he wishes he'd drop dead.

The world tournament lasted three days. If it had gone on much longer, many of the local scribblers would have been measured for strait-jackets.

CGIT Doings

KNOX

Margaret Johnston reported the meeting this week, when June Drummond presided. The scripture was read by Shirley Killingbeck which was followed by the responsive reading. The flag salute, pledge and purpose were taken by Frances Clarke and Beverly McDougall, the password being taken by Shirley Killingbeck and Dorothy Drummond. In the absence of Joan Carveth, the secretary, Alice Frey called the roll. The members were reminded to bring in their wash cloths for the WMS bale and also the "All Nations Night" being held at George tSreet next Wednesday, was announced.

Plans were made for a hard-times party and it was decided to invite the members of George St. CGIT. The following girls were named as members of committees to plan this event, Dorothy Drummond, Beverly Reville and Miss Barrer are to look after the refreshments and Shirley Killingbeck and Joan Byers are to plan the games. The girls then divided into their groups and practiced their play.

MARK ST.

Ruth Hendren reported that Vesta Chute and Wanda Grills were in charge of the play period at this week's meeting. Marilyn Bentley presided when Mrs. Eason discussed the business and took the worship service, the scripture was read by Autumn Dubay. Patsy Beauchamp gave an interesting talk on India before the girls divided into their groups. The meeting closed with taps.

TRINITY

After a sing song, Edythe Nicholls gave the call to worship, the scripture was read by Caroline Morton and Dale Nichols led in prayer. A committee composed of Marilyn Windrim, Maisie Shearer and Joan Henry were named to purchase the towelling to make wash cloths for the WMS. The treasurer, Beth Davidson, gave a report showing a balance on hand of $25.91, this report was seconded by Judy Hardill. It was decided to cancel the meeting for next week as the group will be attending the "All Nations Night" on Wednesday evening.

The work of the marine missions of the United Church was illustrated by the showing of the slides "The Good Samaritan of the Sea", which showed the work done by the "Thomas Crosby" on the western coast.

The skit, "United Church Missions in Canada" was rehearsed in preparation for the "All Nations Night", the following girls taking part, Gail Patterson, Anne Lancaster, Janet Hughson, Marie Nesbitt, Carol Hughson, Anne Gordon, Joan Metcalfe, Anne Grant, Lola Jane Buckland, Joan White, JoAnne Watson, Hilary Powell and Barbara Woodcock as pianist.

GLAMOR FOR JUNIORS—Left, ivory and red brocaded bodice and a tiered skirt of red net over taffeta make this short-but-formal Junior evening dress with corsage of red roses caught at deep V-neckline. Centre, pale blue taffeta bodice sparkles with rhinestones, back-dipping skirt is of pale blue net over taffeta and narrow shoulder straps are all-over rhinestones. Right, winter's new evening length in cornflower blue nylon tulle over taffeta has matching velvet sash tying in back.

15 cards and one canasta to go out. In this manner they learn all the little points in the games—how to play the red treys and replace them with another card, how to use the black treys as stop cards, and how and when to freeze the pack with wild cards. Even though it is not too good a form of Canasta, it is the best way to learn the game.

When you first start to require 2 canastas to go out, I suggest that you deal 17 cards. It takes 14 cards to form 2 canastas, so with 17 cards, if you make the mistake of melding 3 cards that you cannot add to, you still can complete 2 canastas. This form of the game is very enjoyable, and after you have mastered it well, you then can start dealing only 15 cards and requiring 2 canastas to go out.

Q—In two-handed Canasta, how large should the discard pile be to be worth picking up?

A—You should pick up the discard pile any time that it will improve your hand and not reduce the number of cards you hold. Suppose that you hold 2 sevens in your hand, and there are 2 sevens in the discard pile. You also have 2 kings in your hand, and the top card of the discard pile is a king. You previously have made your initial meld.

I would seriously consider taking the discard pile in this situation because it will reduce your hand only one card but it will give you 4 sevens. The 4 sevens, by the way, should not be melded, as that might get your hand down to too few cards.

Any discard pile of 5 or more cards should be taken if it will not weaken your hand. However, if you do not have any deuces or jokers in your hand, you might want to waive taking a 5-card discard pile in favor of drawing from the stock pile in the hope of drawing a deuce or a joker.

Q—I understand that in two-handed Canasta, if the first player does not want the up-card of the discard pile, the other played has a right to take if he wishes; as in gin rummy. Is this correct?

A—No, that is wrong. If the first player does not want the up-card, he must draw from the stock pile. The other player has no choice in the matter, nor can the first player waive his right by asking the opponent if he wants the up-card.

Mr. McKenney is unable to answer individual questions on Canasta from readers. However, he will include the most frequently asked questions in in his column.

Trio Young Lindsay Artists Merit Praise for Songs

Just 30 members of the Women's Art Association attended the last studio meeting of the season on the afternoon of St. Patrick's Day, and heard an exceptionally fine musical program by such youthful artists. In this group were the members who have some ability in that line themselves and those most fond of music. All expressed much pleasure in hearing the singers.

Miss Joy Nesbitt, mezzo soprano, Miss Barbara Chase, soprano and Mr. John Moore, baritone, are all from Lindsay where they are studying under Mr. Rirchard Cutt. Both girls are still attending school.

Miss Chase 16 years old, has already been before 40 adjudicators and has been a winner in her class a number of times. This year she won two top awards at the Toronto Kiwanis Festival While her voice is very lovely her pleasing friendly personality is an asset.

She sang "Dedication" by Strauss in which she called attention to the beautiful accompaniment, played so well by Mrs. R. R. Baker of Peterborough, a member of the Association. Two of her songs were in French "Villanelle" and "Les Filles de Cadix", and her final number was Mendelssohn's "On Wings of Song."

Mr. Moore's selection covered a wide range and each of the six numbers was well handled. His remarks and manner betrayed a very likeable humor. A song of rustic nature "The old black mare" seemed to appeal most. In some seemingly difficult places he demonstrated the result of study and practice. Lively accompaniment for this number gave added effect.

In honor of Ireland's special day, he sang a typical ditty, "Little Irish girl." An Italian operatic song was "Nemico Delia Patria" and he sang the German words for Mozart's "When I survey the wondrous cross," "My abode" by Schubert and "I'm a roamer' 'by Mendelssohn were his other songs.

Gracefully poised Miss Nesbitt first displayed her truly delightful voice in a group of French songs "Si mes vers avaient des ailes," (If my song were only winged) by Victor Heigo. "Elegie" by Massenet, and "L'Amour est in Oiseau rebi''e "by Carmen.

Her second group, in English, included the catchy "Will o' the Wisp", also "Like to the Damask Rose" and "Twilight."

President Mrs. N. D. Seaton introduced the trio and extended the appreciation of the audience.

McKENNEY Answers Your CANASTA Questions

Two-handed Canasta is an enjoyable game, but if you deal 15 cards and require only one canasta to go out, it becomes a hit-and-miss game. Yet many players complain that it is too difficult with 15 cards if 2 canastas are required to go out. They are anxious to get their initial meld down. They may meld, for example, 2 aces and a joker, and now they never draw another ace. They may pick up several sevens and kings, and perhaps they cannot get hold of the pack to increase their holding. Thus they find they cannot go out.

I advise beginners at Canasta to play the two-handed game with

Mother-Son Combination Work for National Theatre

By JOHN PATERSON

TORONTO, March 18—(CP)—Two generations of a family dedicated to establishing a professional Canadian theatre are nearing the end of a successful five-year-plan. Now they are considering extending the venture.

Their project is Toronto's "New Play Society," which since its founding in 1946 has produced 30 plays, including many original Canadian works, employs 12 Canadians full-time, and was the first professional Canadian theatrical group to present a Canadian play in this country's largest legitimate theatre.

The latter achievement was the production of "To Tell The Truth" by Toronto playwright Morley Callaghan in the Royal Alexandra Theatre here.

The idea of a professional Canadian theatre was originally conceived by the late James Mavor, Professor of Economics at the University of Toronto. In a cluttered studio in midtown Toronto, it is being continued by his daughter, Mrs Dora Mavor-Moore, and her son, Mavor Moore.

Previous Experience

Mrs. Mavor-Moore has played opposite such stars as Sidney Greenstreet, toured with Sir Philip Ben Greet, and appeared in London's Old Vic Theatre before returning to Toronto in the early 1920s.

At 31, Mavor Moore is a playwright, composer, director, producer and actor, both on the stage and in radio.

The second five-year plan envisioned by the mother-son combination is even more ambitious. They would like to have a theatre of their own for plays written by Canadians and staged by an all-Canadian company. This, they feel, would be a truly national theatre.

Mavor has held various important writing, acting, directing and production posts with the CBC and for the last couple of years with the radio division of United Nations.

Poor Attitude

His comments on Canadian theatre after 25 years:

"Canadians are just unwilling to admit Canadian artists are any good until they achieve success abroad. Canadians should rid themselves of this condescending attitude . .

"Canadian audiences and critics are not aware how good many of the things being done in Canada really are. One play, 'Riel' by John Coulter was received coolly here, yet we already have offers from four big motion picture companies in Hollwood for the script. All of the people in the New Play Society have had offers from the U. S. they would prefer to stay in Canada, but it is difficult to refuse."

There's no question about this matter of leadership. FORD'S OUT FRONT! Look at the record . . . look at the leader . . . before you buy any new car.

LEADER in STYLE

Twice-in-a-row style winner—only Ford has ever won such honor! Again in '50, Ford has been awarded the Fashion Academy Gold Medal as "Fashion Car of the Year"—over all makes in all price classes!

Chrome wheel trim rings and white sidewall tires optional at extra cost.

No wonder the big swing is to the '50 FORD

Here, we believe, is proof far more convincing than any mere "claim" of QUALITY in the field of low-priced cars. It is Ford's two-way leadership . . . leadership in sales, awarded to Ford by the buying preference of Canadian motorists . . . leadership in style and beauty, confirmed by the Gold Medal Award of the "last word" in fashion authority, the Fashion Academy of New York.

Ford leadership plainly underlines the fact that buyers who want the best are swinging their choice to the '50 Ford . . . 50 WAYS NEW . . . the One Fine Car in the Low-Price Field!

That's why we say it's wise for you to see and "Test-Drive" the '50 Ford before you accept less than the Leader offers!

50 ways new!

STRESS CHARM OF 1950—A costume of unusual charm is the flowing skirted frock (left) with brief bolero. Important news is the fabric, a featherweight wool with rich allover Paisley design. At right, is this versatile frock dear to the heart of fashionable women. A slender strapless frock topped with daytime bolero, it is in deep navy with Swiss lace of lovely design outlining bodice of dress and forming cuffs on the bolero.

Queen Mary School Assoc. Serves More Than 500 At Annual March 17 Tea

The Queen Mary Home and School Association again on Friday surpassed the previous year's record of the St. Patrick's Day Tea. Many more than 500 guests made up the steadily moving stream of women that caused afternoon motorists in the west end of the city to comment.

Having become famous for long queues, the conveners decided to remedy the situation this year having two tea rooms, still there were times when line-ups formed, but at such an event no hardship is involved—in fact it promotes the sociability.

Traditional decorations of March 17th, gay and attractive on the walls of the rotunda, tea rooms and the home bakery shop, were mostly the work of pupils in the senior grades who took pleasure in aiding their mothers on this auspicious occasion.

Irish potatoes planted with tiny shamrock and white and green real clay pipes formed the unique table layout, with a setting of white linen and festooning of green streamers. Charmingly arranged flowers in the centrepieces were carnations, white snapdragon, double yellow tulips and green-dyed calla lilies.

Mrs. C. G. Collins, president, and Mrs. W. J. Hardill, vice president, were receiving the guests, Mrs. R. Everett was taking tickets, assisted by the treasurer Mrs. R. Cole and Mrs. R. J Davies Mrs. H. Tudhope and secretary Mrs. J. Comstock were in the rotunda to guide them to the specialty sale tables and tea rooms.

Assist in Tea Room

Hostesses in the tea rooms were Mrs. L. W. Thompson, Mrs. W. M Gemmell, Mrs. G. Reader and Mrs. W. G. Ovens. The assistants were Mrs. J. R. Stewart, Mrs. H. MacDonald, Miss M. Munro, Mrs. A Rutter, Mrs. W. E. Kibblewhite, Mrs. Dalyrmple, Miss Chalk, Miss G. Caddy, Mrs. H. B. McGinness, Mrs. F. Buckland, Mrs. B. Myers, Mrs. A. Winslow, Mrs. J. Mayer, Mrs. H. Bradburn, Miss McNabb Mrs. Jas. McLeod, Mrs. C. Millen, Mrs. Thurston.

Tea pourers were Mrs. O. M. Steer, Miss Clara Doughty Mrs F. Jobbitt, Miss Esther Deyell Mrs. W. L. McNeil Miss Marjorie Stenton, Mrs. Percy Windrim and Miss Dorothy Hooey.

Plates and tea pots were replenished by Mrs. E Westbye Mrs. C. H. Spearin, Mrs. C. Huffman, Mrs. J. Baird, Mrs. R. McWilliams, Mrs. N. Elliott, Mrs David White, Mrs. J Marshall Mrs. A. Moldaver, Mrs. M. Middleton, Mrs. B. K. Scarlett, Mrs F. W. Thirnbeck.

Sale tabes popular

Such a quantity of home cooking was supplied that a classroom was taken over for this and a rushing business went on. Mrs. H. G. Hartle was in charge, assisted by Mrs. Wm. Jones, Mrs S. S. Atkinson, Mrs. H. Wells, Miss J. Comstock and Mrs. R K. McKee.

Popular for sale on this as on no other day were the small pots of shamrock, decorated with green and silver paper. This table was attended by Mrs. H. B. Cowan and Mrs. H. Chown.

Supper dish recipes had been collected and printed in booklet form and these were sold by Mrs Ross Matthews, Mrs. Geo. Rishor and Mrs. Jos. Dawson.

Home made candy in attractive containers was dispensed by Mrs I. Moldaver, Mrs. M. Wesley Mrs Jas. Clark and Mrs. Chas. McIntyre.

In charge of all arrangements for this large scale event were Ms. R. J. Allen, Mrs. H. H. Dinsdale and Mrs. R. Shaw, assisted by Mrs. Geo. Batley, member of the executive.

DOROTHY DIX

Petty Annoyance Worst Cause of Upset Marriage

The old maximum of thrift, "take care of the pence and the pounds will take care of themselves," is equally good as a domestic slogan, for, if we take care of the little things in marriage, the big things will take care of themselves. When we hear of a home being destroyed by some great natural force that could not be controlled, but the almost invisible termite gnaws away the foundations of a thousand houses where one is swept away by a cyclone. So with marriage. When we hear of a married couple separating we think of it in terms of tragedy, some unforgivable wrong that husbands or wives have done their mates. But in reality the road to the divorce court is oftener paved with faults than it is with villainy.

Dorothy Dix

More love is slain by pinpricks than by dagger thrusts. The unforgivable sins that our husbands and wives commit against us are not great crimes, but the little daily irritations that get on our nerves and become unendurable.

If the true cause for divorce was cited, in most cases it would not be adultery, nor cruelty, nor any other crime. It would be for some mean little thing like nagging or petty tyranny or stinginess or slovenliness or boredom For before a man is unfaithful to his wife she has done those things that have disenchanted him and killed his affection for her, and before a woman asks for a decree absolute her husband has made marriage cinders, ashes and dust to her.

Obvious Reasons

We can all understand why a marriage goes on the rocks if the husband is a philanderer or a drunkard or a rogue or just a plain no-account, or if the wife is flirtatious and frivolous or extravagant lazy or shiftless. The thing that is a matter of perpetual wonderment to us is why so many marriages are failures in which both the husband and wife are upright and honorable and conscientious and strive to do their duty by each other.

The explanation is simple enough. They looked after the big things in marriage and neglect the little things. They practiced all the virtues but none of the amenities toward each other. The men fed his wife on filet mignon, but starved her soul for tenderness. The wife kept her husband's heartstone swept and clean, but lit no fire of affection and appreciation on it by which he could warm himself.

Men always cite as proof of the unreason and unaccountability of women that you will see a wife break her heart over the loss of a husband who was a wastrel, while she will be the most reconciled of widows when Providence removes from her side one who was an austere saint and a shining example in the community.

And it is a standing grievance among women that the most cherished wives are the easy-going, laughter-loving women who spend more time in the beauty shops than they do in their kitchens, and not the frugal, industrious wives who work themselves into nervous prostration pinching the pennies, and whose houses are so clean you could eat off the floor.

Yet in both cases it was just the little things that weighted heavier than the big things in the matrimonial scale. The thing that endears husbands and wives to each other is not so much a matter of morals as manners. A woman will be blind to a lot of weaknesses in her husband as long as he will kiss her eyes shut, and a man will put up with many a fault in his wife if only she is pleasant to live with.

Diplomacy Needed

No man ever gets disillusioned with the wife until she throws away the bait with which she caught him. He never gets tired of the wife who is gay and jolly company, who uses diplomacy in handling him, who makes him feel that she considers him the most wonderful creature in the world and that Lady Luck was working overtime in her behalf when she got him for a husband

And, on the contrary, it is cold cream and soiled kimonos; it is whining and fretting and complaining; it is jabbing little criticisms that deflate a man's vanity and self-esteem that slay romance and kill love and drive husbands to other women. And not all the big virtues a woman can possess can atone for the little ones she lacks.

Same thing with wives. It is the little compliments, the little noticing of what the wife has on, the remembering of anniversaries, the gallant little gestures, the generosity, the understanding and sympathy that her husband gives her that makes marriage a success for a woman.

It doesn't matter much to a wife if her husband never looks at another woman if he never looks at her, either. Nor is she grateful for the gift of a palace if he never helps her make a home of it. Nor can any string of matched pearls make up to her for his never putting his arms about her in a spontaneous gesture of love.

So the best advice that any one can give a bridal couple is: Take care of the little things, then the big ones will take care of themselves.

What's Right

A friend who likes to sew proudly shows you something she has made.

WRONG WAY: Explain that you never do any dress-making, because you dont think it is worth the effort.

RIGHT WAY: Admire the garment and your friend's cleverness in making it herself. (It is always bad manners to belittle the accomplishments of others.)

Plan Output Diesel A Day

The manufacture by Montreal Locomotive Works, Canadian General Electric Company and Dominion Engineering Works of the diesel-electric locomotives was planned prior to the construction of the big machine shop which A. W. Robertson Co. completed some weeks ago at Peterborough works of C.G.E.

These three firms are reported by a Toronto newspaper to be using 500,000 sq. ft. of floor space in their combined manfuacture of these electric locomotives.

The Montreal Locomotive shop is 700 ft. long, including a paint shop big enough to take three locomotives at once.

When the electrical equipment made in Peterborough is ready with Diesel engines turned out at Lachine, they are mounted on a chassis made by Montreal Locomotive Co. and housed in cabs made by the same firm. Many of the fittings are obtained from Canadian manufacturers "and there is a definite program of encouraging an increase in this supply trade".

Potential output is rated at one locomotive a day. The three participating companies who are combining their capacities, skills and finance. Their investment so far is around $15,000,000.

Players Traffic Snarl By Delaying Accident

CAMPBELLFORD, March 18—(ENS)—Treacherous driving conditions resulted in an accident on No. 2 highway at Oshawa Friday night, when a car carrying players of the Elmira Bantam hockey team was in collision with a vehicle driven by an American visitor. A number of cars were proceeding through the storm at a slow pace due to very poor visibility when one of the cars started to skid. The car behind applied the brakes, and it too started to skid over to the centre of the highway, where it was rammed in the side by an American car. No one was injured in the mishap but a two and a half hour delay in a game scheduled between Elmira and Campbellford in the latter town resulted.

14 Tables Of Cards Aid Health Group

CAMPBELLFORD, March 18—(ENS)—The Cancer, Polio and Tuberculosis Committee of the I.O.O.F. and Rebekah Lodge held a euchre and cribbage party in the I.O.O.F. Rooms in the Burgis block on Wednesday evening. Fourteen tables were required to accommodate the large turnout.

The players passed a very pleasant evening, some of them winning good prizes. Lunch was served by the committee sponsoring the games.

A number of these parties have been held recently, the proceeds going to the C. P. and T. Fund, to further the work of that organization.

two months, nine of them involving injuries. And the third is the 14 miles between Brighton and Trenton, with 11 accidents, two involving injuries and one death.

Eighteen were reported on the Port Hope highway, five of them on the two mile stretch between Springville hill and the junction with 7A.

Four accidents, two of them involving injuries, occured on the Chemong Road south of the junction with the Fourth line.

Now that spring is approaching motorists should be particularly careful of their driving, Corporal McClure advises. There will be pot holes in the roads and heaving of the road surfaces because of frost coming out of the ground.

Highway maintenance crews find it impossible to keep all roads in top shape during this period and the motorist must take precautions himself.

There was a second death reported near Alderville but Provincial Police are still investigating the circumstances and it has not yet been classified as a traffic fatality.

The heavy weight of snow broke the awning in front of Morris Duke's photograph studio George St., Friday night. Constable G. J. Gillespie discovered it while on his night beat between 2 and 2:30 a.m. today.

immediate need and occupation but is laid out for enlargement as additional space becomes necessary for the family.

Expandable Home

It is called an expandable type Even the wiring is put in with an eye to future enlargement, and the heating unit can be added to whenever its capacity would have to be increased.

Another trend is further toward semi-prefabrication, that is making up walls, floors and roofs in sections for assembly on the job. We saw a lot of attractive new ideas, with some minor new methods of finance. But, in financing there is not a great deal of latitude for development."

Mr. Bateman said it was recognized everywhere that the planned project provided the salient channel of economy in building houses.

The dining room appears to be disappearing in the average house of today. The snack-bar method of serving the briefer meals is becoming a part of many a kitchen, and the dining room is relegated to part of the living room. Another definite trend is more generally toward automatic heating, with no hand-firing.

"The man who is looking forward today to building a house for himself can do best by the project plan," Mr. Bateman said. "One proof of that is that the mortgagee is more ready to lend money on the planned site method."

The Chicago convention feature was an area of seventeen acres of exhibits in the Stevens Hotel.

Although Sands and Bateman are now working on the largest project that is in sight here at present for the coming season there are other experienced builders who are looking in the same direction. Rows of houses which they have erected in recent years are likely to be duplicated in a general way, and probably to the same extent. A Cobourg housing firm is reported interested in a local project.

These are some of the promises for spring, but there is no major industrial expansion mentioned in the trade.

Russian Zone's Currency Plunges To All-Time Low

BERLIN, March 18 (AP)—The Russian zone's currency plunged today to an all-time low value, gripping holders of the East mark in a near panic of selling to unload.

The crisis started Friday, spurred by reports of a possible sudden currency reform in East Germany.

Money exchanges in West Berlin were besieged at opening time this morning by Berliners seeking to dump millions of Soviet-backed East marks for the more solid West mark, supported by American credits.

Following secret crisis meetings Friday night, Western Exchange offices opened the market today at the lowest rate it's been since it was established in the summer of 1948—nine East marks to one West mark.

The black market rated the East mark even cheaper, at one-tenth the value of the West mark. But East German officials continued to maintain that the East mark actually is worth one West mark.

In actual exchanges between the two zones, however, the eastern currency never has been worth more than one-fourth the West mark.

The East mark began sliding in value immediately after Moscow announced the revaluation of the Russian ruble on a gold basis. Reports then began to circulate that the Soviet Union was bent on creating a ruble bloc of her satellites, including Eastern Germany.

Money-wise Germans, acting on some kind of a tip, started dumping East marks a week ago. Money dealers apparently were convinced that the Russians plan to revalue the East mark on the basis of the ruble.

Coon Coat Sold $22.50 In 1887

Does anyone want to buy a coon coat for $22.50? If you do turn back the pages of time to January, 1887, and go to the Montreal House in Trenton. There John A. Clune is selling during his "Sweeping Sacrifice Sale" three coon coats worth $35 for $22.50 each.

Clune's ad appears in an 1887 copy of the Trenton Courier which somehow found its way into the floor above Herb's Men's Wear store. The old paper was found by carpenters doing some repair work on the second floor. At the same time they found a magazine advertising carpenter's tools.

Other items offered by Clune were: seven all wool overcoats worth $9 at $4.75 each; four black bound worsted overcoats worth $13 at $7 each; nine tweed overcoats worth $7 at $4 each; two ladies' seal muffs worth $14 at $7 each and two best quality No. 1 Persian lamb caps worth $9 for $6.50 each.

Mr. Clune prided himself in the fact that the store was known as a "noted cheap store." He added at the bottom of his ad this postscript, "Electric light in the Montreal House every evening."

Coon skin coats today are worth about $300 for the men's best variety. Overcoats now range from $24.50 upwards.

The old carpenter's magazine offers saws and iron planes well below the selling price of 1950. Saws made by Richardson Bros. of Newark were advertised at $2 for 26-inch cutoff or rip saws, $2.25 for 28-inch saws; $2.50 for 30-inch saws and $2.75 for 32-inch saws. Iron planes made by Tower and Lyon of New York sold from $3 to $5 for the best makes.

Irish Tea Held By Omemee Girls

OMEMEE, March 18—(ENS)—The girls of Omemee High School and their teachers, Miss M. Dunn and Miss M. Bair were at home to their friends from 3 to 5 Thursday afternoon on the occasion of their St. Patrick's tea.

About 40 guests attended. They were welcomed at the door by Phyllis Nelson and Ruth McGuire and received by Miss Dunn and Miss Baird as the assembly entrance. During the reception piano music was provided by Margaret Graham and Joan Whitmore.

Dorothy Connell, as mistress of ceremonies extended a welcome on behalf of the students and announced the program numbers which includes a rhythm dance in Irish dress, several Irish two-part songs by all the girls, a reading on St. Patrick by Margaret Graham, and a piano duet by Joan Whitmore and Marion Zufelt.

Tea was served in the commercial room which was appropriately decorated. Mrs. J. B. Hough, wife of the principal and Mrs. G. N. Earle, member of the Board of Education poured tea. Serving were Joan Saulter, Beverly Deyell, Joan Whitmore, France McPhee, Margaret Sandy and Joyce Shaughnessy.

2 Buses Take Lodge

CAMPBELLFORD, March 18—(ENS)—Two buses were required to carry the many members of the Loch Lomond Rebekah Lodge No. 248, when they travelled to Trenton on Thursday evening. There they exemplified the initial degree on two candidates of the Trenton Rebekah Lodge. After the business part of the meeting, a social period was enjoyed, at the close of which the members were treated to a dainty lunch served by members of the Trenton Lodge. The group returned to Campbellford at about 1 a.m.

Considers Coverage

OTTAWA, March 18 (CP) — Senator Wishart Robertson, government leader in the Senate, said Friday in the Senate he will reply in a few days to the question of whether he considers the news coverage of the Senate and its committees satisfactory. Senator Dennis said some senators who had been in the House for years never had seen their names mentioned in newspapers in their own constituencies.

Denies Lack Of Water Hampered Firemen

CHENEVILLE, Que., March 18—(CP). — Mayor William Gagnon said Friday there was no lack of water in fighting a fire which last Wednesday night destroyed two dwellings, a general store, and a hardware store in this village.

The Mayor made his statement to The Canadian Press in denying reports carried by them that lack of water hampered the volunteer Fire Brigade and that the firemen shovelled snow to check the flames.

Mayor Gagnon, who is also chief of the Fire Brigade, said Cheneville is equipped with a 250,000-gallon reservoir from which water was pumped to extinguish the flames.

Cheneville has a population of about 600 and is about 75 miles north-east of Ottawa.

Recover Body

RENFREW, March 18 (CP) — The body of Albert Aleck, 24 of Madawaska Ont., was recovered late Thursday night from the bottom of a deep muskeg into which he punged with a 20-ton bulldozer Thursday. Aleck was clearing brush for a hydro power line about 10 miles north of here when his bulldozer broke through the frozen surface of the muskeg and fell into 30 feet of water.

Will Remain Loyal Citizen Dr Infeld Reply To Drew

By GEORGE RONALD.

TORONTO, March 18 (CP).—Dr. Leopold Infeld said Friday night that doubt as to his loyalty to Canada has been created by George Drew's "not-too-subtle innuendos."

"I am and intend to remain a loyal citizen of Canada," the Polish-born, 52-year-old mathematics professor said in an interview.

Dr. Infeld, who fled from his native land to escape pre-war persecution of the Jews and was a co-worker of Dr. Albert Einstein before coming to the University of Toronto, referred to statements made in the Commons Thursday by the Progressive Conservative Leader.

(Mr. Drew said he believes "appropriate steps should be taken to ascertain the circumstances under which Dr. Infeld plans to return" to Russian-dominated Poland "armed with certain atomic knowledge." Mr. Drew said he had evidence that Dr. Infeld made a "strangely accurate prediction" in 1946 that Russia would have the atomic bomb within three years.)

No Secret Work

"Mr. Drew's source," said Dr. Infeld, "is The Ensign, a Roman Catholic weekly newspaper which printed this information under the headline, 'Poland Recalls Toronto Atomist.'

"The Ensign and Mr. Drew claim that I am an atomic scientist. This statement is utterly false. It is equally false to suggest that I am being 'recalled.' If Mr. Drew were more interested in the truth or falsehood of his statement, he would have found out easily that I never did any secret—or non-secret—work in atomic energy."

At Ottawa Mr. Drew commented in a statement:

"It is difficult to tell exactly what Dr. Infeld claims to be false in The Ensign article which I brought to the attention of the House of Commons yesterday.

"He confirms the fact that he was in Poland last summer and that he has indicated his desire to have a year's leave of absence from Toronto University, so that among other things, he can return to Poland again to give graduate lectures at the University of Warsaw and work with those who are interested in the same field of research.

"Those who teach in countries with Communist governments are ordinarily acceptable to the Communist authorities on more than academic grounds. It is certain that anyone who is opposed to Communism would not be permitted to teach in a Polish university today. Dr. Infeld's statement alone is sufficient reason to inquire why he is so acceptable to the Communist education authorities in Poland."

Longer Trout Season

QUEBEC March 18 (CP)—The trout-fishing season will be lengthened this year, it was announced Friday by the department of fish and game. Trout fishing for most species opens April 19 until Sept. 30. Last year's season was May 1-Sept. 30.

Make Appeal Decision

QUEBEC, March 18 (CP) — A decision will be made late next week on a possible appeal by J Albert Guay against his conviction and death sentence for murder in the time-bomb destruction of an airliner, his counsel said Friday.

St. James' Class Presents Comedy

A comedy, The Little Clodhopper, was presented by the Senior Ladies' Class of St. James United Church Sunday school in a filled Wesley Hall Friday night.

Under the direction of James Burnett the cast presented the farce comedy which revolved around a "lost heiress," Judy (Mrs. Ethel Monks) was brought up in a Missouri poor house. Most of the comedy arose from the unsuccessful efforts of a scheming mother (Mrs. Ruth Hutchinson) to have her unwilling milk-sop son marry the heiress who is ignorant of her inheritance.

By the time it was all sorted out and there had been a couple of marriages, the cast and the audience had had a lot of fun. The biggest laugh came when a bench collapsed suddenly under the weight of the son played by Roy Heard, a bit of humor that was not in the script.

Other featured players were Mrs. Anne MacMurchy, Tom Busby, Miss Daisy Bailey, and Clare Jones. They had the enthusiastic support of Mrs. Greta Maudsley, Mrs. Katherine Dewar, Mrs. Marie Clements, Mrs. Verda Fry, Miss Gwen Murphy, Clark Haig, James Kelly and Norman MacMurchy.

Mrs. Marion Parker sang two or three songs during the second intermission and Jack Bailey with his own guitar accompaniment sang several cowboy songs during the first intermission.

With their first try at dramatics the women's Sunday school group is hoping to raise money to help with Sunday school expenses. The Friday night performance was the second time the group presented the play and four more performances are scheduled in district and city churches.

Claxton Believes

Gen. Pearkes said information reaching him indicated the American F-86 is inferior to new fighters which Canada might have to compete against in an air war. It was "sluggish" in climbing, unsuitable for bomber interception, had a heavy fuel consumption and its engines did not operate efficiently at high altitudes.

He wondered whether "political considerations" had not entered into the decision to use American fighters rather than the United Kingdom's Vampire Fighter. This might enable the U. S. to unload surplus fighters in Canada.

May Be Obsolete

The F-86 now in construction in Canada, he felt, may be obsolete before it comes off the production line. The United States had cancelled orders for an improved type—the F-93 — because it already was considered obsolete.

W. J. Henderson (L-Kingston) reviewed the activities of Royal Military College while Jean Francoise Pouliot (L-Temiscouata) reported the case of a discharged veteran who had been refused re-establishment in the services because he lacked educational qualifications.

J. M. Macdonnell (PC-Toronto Greenwood) carried the chamber into a recorded vote when he called for a committee to study the defence estimates. Chairman J. A. Dion (L-Roberval) ruled the house had decided that question when it voted earlier this week against the Progressive Conservative motion for a defence committee.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, called for a ruling, and the chairman was upheld by a vote of 84 to 27.

Mr. Claxton, in his statement, said arrangements already exist with Britain, the United States and France for the training of officers in this country. The other treaty powers are Belgium, Holland, Portugal, Iceland, Italy, Norway, Luxembourg and Denmark.

Will Bear Cost

Canada would bear the cost of training the officers invited and it was possible Canadians may be sent later to those countries under similar circumstances and for similar purposes.

He said he had discussed the question with European defence ministers last December and was struck with the fact that most of them "recognized it would have a very considerable psychological force in bringing home to us all the unity of purpose and the necessity of working together that we must all have if the full strength of the Atlantic powers is to be fully developed."

He reported that the department has "completed the stage of planning civil defence at the federal level," a statement which was interpreted as meaning a master plan has been worked out to cope with effects of air attacks on Canadian cities.

Again on the question of air power, he said this country is spending more—44.8 per cent—of her defence dollar on that force than any other western power. She will put an 11th Reserve Squadron into activity this year.

Industry Integration

Canada also had worked out temporary arrangements for the purchase of military equipment from the United States, but what she really wants—and has asked for—is an "effective" revival of the wartime Hyde Park agreement for the integration of the North American defence industry.

The Canadian forces were seeking to become "more and more operational" and now have a total of 47,163 men. There should be a waiting list of applicants within "a matter of months."

Turning to the recent Sweetbriar exercises in the north, He said that further developments in new equipment and greater use of tracked vehicles such as bulldozers will emerge from that scheme. At the same time, the basic U.S. and Canadian concept of Arctic warfare remains unchanged.

Great Religious

national radio networks were enlisted to help. The highly expert Advertising Council lent a hand for the first time, and 5,000 religious posters sprouted on billboards across the land.

A special fervor sometimes seizes particular places or groups. Milwaukee people, troubled over what they thought was the "excessive commercializing" of Christmas, plunged eagerly into a pre-holiday campaign to "Put Christ Back in Christmas."

With 200 merchants co-operating, they pasted up 1,200 posters bearing the slogan. It was carried on hotel and theatre marquees, 160 billboards, auto stickers. Pictures of the Nativity appeared in 275 broadcasts entered into the unprecedented drive.

In the last month or so, some American colleges have been caught up in the rolling tide. Marathon campus revival meetings—one carrying on nearly a week—have occurred here and there. Though exhibitionism may have played a part, most of the youthful soul-baring in these long sessions seem sincere.

The growth of U.S. population coupled with this general upsurge of religious interest actually has put church building programs far in arrears. Dr. Truman B. Douglass, of Congregational Christian Churches, says millions of Christians have no church to attend. There's not a single church in any of some 700 new communities with 2,500 or more people.

Yet this is one of the great building periods in U.S. church history. Protestant denominations alone have $1,000,000,000 in new construction planned or under way. The Catholics' backlog also is big. In fast-growing Houston, Tex., you can count 515 churches today. The total was 335 in 1936.

ERP Budget Cut Billion By Committee

Plan To Substitute Equal Amount Of Agricultural Goods

WASHINGTON, March 20—(AP)—The House of Representatives Foreign Affairs Committee today voted to cut $1,000,000,000 cash from the 1951 European recovery spending and substitute an equivalent amount of surplus farm commodities.

The committee overrode administration objections in accepting an amendment by representative objections in accepting an amendment by representative John Worys (rep. O.) at a closed-door committee session. Worys' amendment slashed the 1951 cash spending authority of the economic co-operation administration to $1,950,000,000, a flat $1,000,000,000 less than provided in the Administration Bill.

In lieu of the money, the Commodity Credit Corporation would make available surplus agricultural commodities having a value of $1,000,000,000 based on open market prices.

How much of each surplus commodity would go to each participating country would be determined by actual requirements.

The amendment, opposed by ECA, represents the first major change in the 1951 foreign spending bill now being worked up by the foreign affairs committee for submission to the House.

Germans Seek Fascist State

NEW YORK, March 20 (CP)—The goal of the Socialist Reich party is "an elite" German state under Prussian leadership modelled after Mussolini's corporate state, the New York Times says today.

In a Bonn dispatch, the newspaper quotes Dr. Fritz Doris, leader of the party, as saying that his party would attain such a Fascist state through war if necessary.

The Times says Doris' slogans and philosophy "represent the inherent threat of German nationalism predicted in a recent United States high commission report. There are many who see the shape of things to come in what Dr. Doris and those like him have to say."

Doris, 40, was a member of the Bundestag and was a non-commissioned officer in the Wehrmacht.

"I was a Nazi party member from 1929 to the very end—to the very end," Doris is quoted as saying.

Blessed Event Upsets Monkeys In Pet Shop

TAMPA, Fla., March 20—(AP)—An eight-foot boa constrictor gave birth to 30 wriggling snakes at a pet shop Sunday night to the amazement of monkeys inside and spectators outside the store.

The mother had just arrived the day before from South America for deliver to a snake collector.

The proprietor, James M. Coker, said it was the first time he had heard of a boa constrictor having young in captivity.

The store was closed at the time, but startled passers-by told police of the blessed event. Coker was called from church to take over.

He found the 18-inch youngsters crawling all over his shop and that two excited monkeys had turned over their cage.

Ask Detroit Police For Information

Windsor Corruption Inquiry Adjourned For At Least One Week

WINDSOR, March 20 (CP)—The Windsor police commission's public inquiry into "allegations of corruption" will remain adjourned for at least a week, it was indicated today, while information is sought from Detroit police officials.

The three-man commission called adjournment Saturday after sitting for three half-day sessions and hearing some 20 witnesses. The inquiry, called under provisions of the Ontario Police Act, was ordered by the commission following hints of police laxity made two weeks ago in a judgment by County Magistrate J. A. Hanrahan.

Commission counsel, Crown Attorney A. Douglas Bell of Chatham, was directed Saturday by the commission to approach Detroit officials and seek access to their files for "anything that might be of assistance to this inquiry." Mayor Arthur J. Reaume, one of the commissioners, made the suggestion after observing that "much has been said in the press about asking for police information from Detroit."

Arranges Interview

Mayor Reaume told The Canadian Press Sunday night that Mr. Bell, who now has returned to Chatham, is arranging for an interview with the Detroit Police Commissioner and also may "seek interviews with Detroit characters" named in various reports as having information about Windsor's crime and vice picture.

Mayor Reaume indicated that reports from Mr. Bell would not likely be available for at least a week. The inquiry will be recalled by the chairman of the Police Commission, Magistrate Angus W. MacMillan, after the Commission has reviewed the reports. The third member of the Commission is County Judge Albert J. Gordon.

Morality Sgt. George Browne of the Windsor Police has already interviewed two Detroit informants, it was also learned. The sergeant was directed by the inquiry to aid Counsel Bell and is understood to have had week-end interviews with two Detroit men, Christ Scroy and Stan Baron.

Scroy now is in jail at Detroit awaiting trial on a charge of attempted murder of Maxie Stern, alleged gangster. He told reporters previously that his brother and a cousin were victims of a gangland slaying because of an attempt to "muscle in" on a gambling syndicate in Windsor. The two persons he mentioned, Sam Scroy and Pete Licidio, have been missing for some months.

Attlee Denies Canada Gave Warning

LONDON, March 20—(CP)—Prime Minister Attlee said today the British government had not received any warning from the Canadian government regarding the case of Dr. Klaus Fuchs at the time of the Canadian Royal Commission on Espionage in 1946.

He was replying in the House of Commons to a question by Henry Strauss, Conservative member for Norwich South.

Fuchs, German-born British atomic scientist, recently was sentenced to 14 years imprisonment for betraying western atomic secrets to Russia.

There have been reports that United States authorities, who first discovered that Fuchs was giving secrets to Russia, received their first tip from the notebook of a Soviet agent who was investigated in connection with the Canadian spy ring.

Edmonton Mercurys Crush Norway 11-1

LONDON, March 20 (CP) — Canada's Edmonton Mercurys today coasted past Norway 11-1 for their third straight victory in the round-robin finals of the world amateur hockey tournament.

The Canadians took things easily during most of the game played on slushy ice in almost-empty Empress Hall.

The Mercurys, favored to bring the championship home to Canada, kept the play in the Norwegian end for most of the game but seldom extended themselves to pile up a score against the outclassed Scandinavians.

Centre Doug MacAuley was the individual star for the Canadians. He notched one goal in each period.

10 Killed In Panic

ATHENS, March 20 —(Reuters) Ten persons were killed and 30 injured Sunday night when a panic-stricken crowd fought to get out of a cinema after fire had broken out.

British Officials Deny Two A-Scientists Missing

LONDON, March 20—(Reuters)—A Supply Ministry spokesman today denied that two atom scientists were missing from Harwell Atomic Energy Research Establishment. He was commenting on a report in the Daily Graphic which said two top-level American-born atom scientists "have suddenly disappeared from Britain."

Scotland Yard also denied the report. A Yard spokesman said "we have no knowledge here regarding any story of the disappearance of two American-born atom bomb scientists."

He added that "furthermore there have been no special branch conferences on the subject over the week-end."

The Daily Graphic said that the two missing men were believed to have gone to the United States and Scotland Yard special branch had asked the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Washington to find them.

Access to Secret Work

The paper said that "both men, scientists in the highest category in atomic research, have been in Britain for some months and had access to much of the secret work carried on at Harwell."

Harwell was the atomic station at which Dr. Klaus Fuchs, convicted for passing atomic secrets to Russia, did his research.

The paper said a long code message about the missing men went from Britain to the United States Security Headquarters in Washington Sunday containing a statement of all their activities since they came to Britain.

"In the United States and Canada agents are waiting at every port and airfield to interview them," the paper said.

The Supply Ministry spokesman said "we know nothing that could justify such a report."

2nd Monoxide Victim Dies In Belleville

TRENTON, March 20—(CP)—Helen Yateman, 27, overcome by carbon monoxide in a parked automobile a week ago, died Sunday night in Belleville Hospital.

A companion, Raymond Rose, 26, died earlier.

Police said a plugged exhaust pipe permitted gas from the running motor to seep into the car.

Jury Considers Kilbon Charge

COBOURG, March 20 (CP) — A grand jury today will study an indictment charging a 56-year-old retired mining engineer with the "mercy killing" murder of his mentally-ill wife.

Ralph Kilbon is alleged to have shot his wife with a .22-calibre rifle to end the suffering she inflicted on herself by trying to commit suicide with the same weapon.

The trial will go ahead Tuesday if the jury brings in a true bill. The Crown has subpoenaed 11 witnesses.

Irene Kilbon, one bullet in her stomach, another in her head, died Nov. 1 in a rocking chair in the kitchen of the Kilbon's farmhouse at Bailieboro.

At Kilbon's preliminary hearing four weeks later, witnesses quoted him as saying he "finished her off to end her misery" after she shot herself in the stomach.

Wolfe Laughs At Sentence

NEW YORK, March 20 (CP)—Lewis Wolfe, convicted of murdering his actress wife in 1944, broke into gales of laughter today when he was sentenced to die in the electric chair the week of April 23. The wealthy 42-year-old former Montreal contractor was sentenced by Judge Louis Goldstein, who had adjudged him sane.

Permitted to address the court before sentencing, Wolfe spoke incoherently of his "beautiful love" for his slain wife and of voices that "whispered" to him on the night she was bludgeoned to death with a steel-tipped shoe.

"No jury in the world would call me insane," Wolfe said, agreeing with the sanity finding of Judge oldstein.

Gold Fever Hits Town Even Dig Up Streets

SYDNEY, Australia, March 20—(AP)—The gold fever has hit again at Wedderburn, a tiny town 150 miles northwest of Melbourne.

The hamlet's permanent population of 1,100 has been swelled by hundreds of new arrivals since vegetable merchant Bert Smith found a 75-ounce nugget worth £1,100 ($2,695).

It's almost like the old days, 50 years ago, when Wedderburn was a rich gold town.

The hopeful arrivals, armed with pick and shovel, are pegging out claims and digging all day long.

The local prospectors are digging up their front and back lawns and even main street.

The local pub keeper, Ray Baker, has dug an eight-foot hole in his back yard.

Nurses Hatred Long Time Girl 14, Murders Twin

FRESNO, Calif., March 20 (AP)—A 14-year-old girl, yielding to long-smouldering hatred, calmly killed her sleeping twin sister Sunday.

Then said Dan B. Eymann, assistant district attorney, Alice Richard "almost defiantly" told him:

"I hated her. I don't feel bad because my sister is dead, but I feel bad for my folks. This'll hurt them. I'd kill Sally again if I had the chance."

Sally Richard was killed by a single .22-calibre rifle slug into her brain as she lay sleeping about 3 a.m. She was one of eight sons and daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Edgard V. Richard. None of the family heard the shot.

Eymann said a murder charge would be filed against Alice today.

The killing was an apparent case of what psychologists call sibling rivalry—rivalry between offspring of the same parents—said Sheriff J. W. Ripperdan. The twins were not identical.

Eymann quoted Alice as saying:

"I hated her because she was stupid and loud and always acting like a nut. I learned to hate her when we were in the sixth grade and ever since then this has built up."

A quarrel Saturday evening over use of a telephone brought her antagonism to a boil.

The girls got home about 2 a.m. from a baby-sitting job. Wally went to sleep. Alice lay awake brooding.

She arose, went through the darkened house, groped until she found her father's rifle and cartridges—and shot Sally.

Then she telephoned the sheriff's office and told them "there's been a murder."

Report Row Over $500 Responsible

Ends His Own Life With Shot At Rodney Town Hall

RODNEY, March 20—(CP)—A 50-year-old tobacco farmer murdered his wife and stepson today in a quarrel over money, then committed suicide in an automobile outside the town hall of this Elgin County community 30 miles southwest of St. Thomas.

Police said Hungarian-born Lewis Sumegi felled Mary Sumegi, 46, and her son, Louis Nagy, 26, with blasts from a shotgun. Dropping the shotgun and picking up a .22-calibre rifle, he drove the one mile into town and shot himself to death as a policeman approached.

The row which led up to the triple slaying started at the breakfast table, police said. Sumegi demanded $500 of the proceeds of last year's crop of tobacco grown on the farm, which was owned by Mrs. Sumeki. She refused.

Tony Sago, a neighbor, said Mrs. Sumegi ran from her house, entered the rear of his home and screamed: "He's going to shoot me!" Mrs. Sumegi seized a broom.

Fires At Wife

Seconds later, Sabo told police Sumegi walked into the kitchen. Once again he demanded $500. Mrs. Sumegi again refused. With that, Sabo said, Sumegi raised the shotgun, and, from a distance of three feet, fired at his wife.

Sumegi was calm, Sabo said.

"'Excuse me, Tony," he quoted Sumegi as saying. "'Good-bye."

Sumegi put his hands on Sabo's shoulders, kissed him on the right cheek, and stepped past Mrs. Sumegi's body and out the back door.

Sabo said he looked out a window and saw Nagy running toward the house. Nagy, apparently spotting his stepfather, stopped in his tracks, spake briefly to the older man, turned and tried to flee.

Walks Calmly Away

Sumegi fired again, hitting Nagy in the back of the neck at the base of the skull. Nagy's body slithered into a puddle of water. Sumegi walked calmly back to his own house, Sabo said.

Sabo ran to the home of Hazen Campbell and told what had happened. Campbell started for Rodney, made it in siz or seven minutes and reported to Chief Constable Walter Person. The Chief telephoned Provincial Constable Ray Macdonald and Coroner Dr. M. G. Graham at Dutton, 13 miles east of here.

Meanwhile, Sumegi had discarded the shotgun in favor of the rifle. Sabo said he saw Sumegi drive past his house toward Rodney.

Gubitchev Sails Back To Russia

NEW YORK, March 20 (AP)—Valentine A. Gubitchev sails home to his native Russia today, freed from serving 15 years in an American prison as a spy.

The convicted Russian was called before Federal Judge Sylvester J. Ryan this morning to have his prison sentence supended.

Then Gubitchev will be placed on the Gdynia-America liner Batory, bound for Gdynia, Poland.

Gubitchev, under federal government orders "never to return" to the United States, will be accompanied by his wife.

The suspended United Nations engineer will be taken in a prison van from jail to court, and then to the ship. He will be kept under guard in his stateroom until border patrol officers leave the Batory at Ambrose lightship off New York Harbor.

The United Nations will pay Gubitchev's fare home, because he was a UN employee before his arrest here a year ago with Judith Coplon.

HALIFAX, March 20 (CP) — Royal Canadian Navy divers today began searching the bottom of Halifax harbor for the bodies of seven fishermen drowned Saturday when their schooner Gertrude De Costa collided with the freighter island Connector. The bodies of four others of the schooner's crew which were recovered during the week-end have been identified.

Czech Skater Granted Refuge In U.K.

LONDON, March 20—(CP)—Aja Vrzanova, of Czechoslovakia, who succeeded Barbara Ann Scott of Ottawa as the world's woman figure-skating champion, is the latest athlete from Communist-dominated countries to seek haven in a western land.

The 18-year-old Prague girl, who won the figure skating crown here March 8, for the second straight year, decided Sunday not to return to Czechoslovakia. She was granted permission by the Home Office to remain in Britain as an exile.

In Prague, Miss Vrzanova's decision to become an exile had been pretty much expected since she retained her title as world's woman figure skating champion in London two weeks ago.

Miss Vrzanova is the third famous skater to receive asylum in Britain within the past few weeks. The Hungarian, Edi Kiraly, runner-up to Dick Button of the United States in the Wembley competitions, received permission to remain, and so did Nekolova, another Czech girl.

Tarzan Author Burroughs Dies

ENCINO, Calif., March 20 (AP) Edgar Rice Burroughs, 74, creator of the fictional Tarzan, died at his home Sunday.

His physician, Dr. Herman Seal, said death resulted from a heart condition. He said Burroughs had been ill about three months. His daughter Joan and his two sons, John and Hulbert, were at the bedside.

The prolific writer of fiction that featured the tree-swinging Tarzan of the jungles, was born in Chicago, Sept. 1, 1875. For more than 36 years he wrote the stories of his fabulous apeman that brought such returns from books and films that he was rated a multi-millionaire.

Until his recent illness, Burroughs was still busy writing more adventures about his strong-limbed hero and the jungles of Africa, a continent he had never seen.

For more than a quarter of a century the adventures of Tarzan held the fancy of the public. More than 36,000,000 copies of Burroughs' books have been sold. It is estimated that Burroughs earned almost $5,000,000 from Tarzan pictures, although he did not write the screen plays.

75 Bombers Leaving U.S. For Great Britain In First Arms Shipment

Will Add Considerable Striking Power To RAF Officials Say; France Likely Will Get More Fighter Planes

WASHINGTON, March 20—(AP)—The first batch of about 75 American B-28s takes off for Britain today under the $1,000,000,000 Arms Aid program to strengthen Western Europe's defences. Four of the reconditioned bombers, manned by American crews, leave nearby Andrews Field this afternoon bound for a British airbase.

The seven-year-old planes, once the heaviest the American Air Force could send aloft, now are classed as "medium bombers." The giant B-36 is alone in the heavy bomber class now.

But the 2,000-mile combat range and 10-ton bomb load of the B-29 are expected to add considerable striking power to the R.A.F. Britain, in line with Allied defence plans, has concentrated on building speedy jet fighters, leaving bomber production to the United States.

The four-engine planes, now powered by modernized motors, are the first American arms to be handed over to Britain under the arms program approved by Congress last October. They will also be the first to reach their European destination.

Fighters For France

Forty-eight American Hellcat fighters and Helldiver bombers were loaded aboard the French aircraft carrier Dixmude at Norfolk, Va., March 3. These were the first American weapons actually given to an Atlantic Pact country but they are not expected to arrive at Bizerte, the French naval base in North Africa, for some time.

Additional carloads of American military equipment are now piling up at least coast ports for shipment to other Western European countries aboard regular commercial vessels.

Most of the supplies will go to the French under the Allied plan to bolster those countries having the greatest available manpower. French defence officials have put the value of American arms they are to receive at $454,000,000.

Delegation Presses To Keep Mill Open

TORONTO, March 20—(CP)—An eight-man delegation arrived here today to press a campaign for assurance that the Kalamazoo Vegetable Parchment Company mill at Espanalo will not be closed. Espanola is 40 miles west of Sudbury.

A spokesman said the delegation hopes to meet with Premier Frost and other government officials. Seven members of the delegation, headed by W. J. McLaughlin, represent the citizens committee of Espanola. The eighth is W. J. Patterson, representing the Chamber of Commerce of Little Current, another Sudbury district community.

Espanola townspeople claim a shutdown of the mill would wreck the town's economy. A majority of the working force in the community of 4,000 is employed by K.V.P.

Great Famine Stalks China Starving Thousands Flee

HONG KONG, March 20 (Reuters)—A new army was on the march in China today—civilians fleeing from famine - stricken areas in which between one-third and one-half of the country's population live.

The Chinese press here quoted a Communist admission that "large numbers of people are fleeing" in Shantung which, with a population of 38,000,000 is China's second most populous province.

A top Chinese Communist official—Kuo Tse-Hea, vice-chairman of the people's provincial government of Shantung—blamed the "poor leadership of responsible officials and their failure to cope with the emergency situation."

Reports reaching here earlier this month said thousands of people had perished in the famine, and millions more were living on leaves, roots, grass and clay.

In Anhwei province, described as the worst hit, 9,000,000 of the 22,000,000 inhabitants were said to be starving. The situation also was reported serious in Kiangsu.

The official Communist news agency announced today that the Peiping government ministry of health was organizing seven anti-epidemic corps to tour the famine-stricken areas.

Serious anti-Communist guerrilla activities meanwhile, were reported today from three parts of Kwantung province, in the south-east.

Usually reliable sources here attributed this activity partly to the increasing food shortage.

Kwantung, with 32,000,000 inhabitants, is the fourth most populous province and a region of seasonal shortage.

In one case 600 armed guerrillas ambushed a river convoy and seized two boatloads of rice as well as machine guns and rifles.

376 Arrested In Raid On Banquet Hall

MONTREAL, March 20 (CP)—Squads of provincial and city police broke up a party in a mid-town Ontario St. banquet hall on Saturday night and arrested a total of 376 persons, including 131 women and 37 men wearing women's clothing.

Inspector General Norbert Labbe of the Quebec Liquor Police, who directed the raid by more than 60 officers, said two men, Bernard Guay, alias Don Bernardo, and Paul Laliberte, will be arraigned today on charges of operating an unlicensed establishment where liquor was served. A total of 826 bottles of beer was seized in the raid.

Labbe said the number arrested was the largest in any one liquor-police raid in 14 years. He said the party was an "engagement party" and was held in a hall which lost its liquor license several years ago.

The found-ins will face charges under provincial liquor laws covering "blind pigs."

Labbe said that the 37 men dressed as women were fingerprinted and may face other charges following police investigation.

Labbe said seizure of beer and the arrests followed a lengthy investigation into alleged "lewd activities" by a group of people. Saturday morning the Quebec Liquor Commission had turned down an application for a banquet permit to celebrate an engagement party for "Pauline."

Fear Tong War May Be Renewed

NEW YORK, March 20—(AP)—Police forces were increased in Chinatown Sunday night after a Brooklyn Chinese murder-suicide, but authorities refused to connect the two events.

However, a source at police headquarters said the strengthening of police in the lower Manhattan area might indicate fears that the killing would endanger a truce between rival tongs in Chinatown.

"It's a little too quiet for a normal Sunday night," one officer said of the Chinatown district, "and there's a lot of new faces among the Chinese."

The tongs, whose wars brought scores of killings during the 1920s and early 1930s, have been orderly for many years since leaders of the rival Hip Sing and On Leong tongs agreed on a truce.

Charge Bank Manager Steals $120,000

ST. JEROME, Que., March 20 (CP)—Romeo Monty, 54, was arraigned in court Saturday on charges that he stole $120,000 from the Bank of Nova Scotia branch at Grenville, Que., where he was manager for 21 years. Further action in the case was postponed until April 14.

Monty, suspended several weeks ago when the bank's Toronto headquarters ordered an investigation of the books in the branch, was released on $5,000 bail.

Investigation began a month ago after alleged discrepancies in the branch's books were noticed by an inspector.

Monty joined the bank in 1912 and worked in other branches before going to Grenville in 1929.

Foreign Oils Flooding Land—Charge

Duplan And Dairymen Hope To Forge Margarine Weapon

SEIGNIORY CLUB, Que., March 20—(CP)—J. H. Duplan today renewed the dairy industry's fight against margarine with the charge that the "inspired campaign" of some profit-making and subversive groups has resulted in Canada being "literally flooded with foreign oils."

The President of the National Dairy Council told its annual meeting that unless this "flood" of foreign oils—required to manufacture margarine—is controlled by tariffs and other means, the butter industry and the Canadian economy as a whole may face "economic chaos."

Some 200 delegates, representing more than 600 dairy plants and 23 dairy associations, gathered to hear Mr. Duplan's report and to attend the three day conference that will try to forge some formidable weapon against the effects of margarine and of declining foreign markets for Canadian dairy products.

Mr. Duplan disclosed to the representatives of dairy manufacturers, processors and distributors that this weapon may be found in a high-powered $500,000-a-year publicity campaign to spread the merits of Canada's dairy products before the Caandian public.

Can't Sit Back

"Our industry cannot afford to sit back and see its markets undermined," Mr. Duplan said, "and I suggest to you that sales promotion activities on our domestic market should represent the No. 1 project of every dairyman in Canada in the years ahead."

The welfare of 17 per cent of the Canadian population, which directly and indirectly derived its livelihood from the $6,000,000,000 dairy industry, was at stake, he said.

People who argued in favor of bringing margarine to Canadians "unwittingly played into the hands of those groups who were carrying on an inspired campaign for the introduction of substitutes."

"These groups comprised in part of those who stood to gain financially by the sale of a product manufactured from foreign oils, and, in part, by that small but extremely vocal section of our population who thrive on destructive agitation of any kind."

Cuts Buying Power

Introduction of the imitation butter product in the space of one year caused:

1. A reduction of $50,000,000 in the purchasing power of Canadian farmers.

2. A 20,000,000-pound surplus of butter in the hands of the government, reflecting an investment of $10,000,000 of the taxpayer's money.

3. An expenditure of $10,000,000 in "badly-needed United States funds" for foreign oils used in the manufacture of 98 per cent of the margarine consumed in Canada.

If present price differentials between butter and margarine prevail, Mr. Duplan said, "margarine will result in an even greater surplus of butter than last year and an even greater drop in farm purchasing power."

"A reduction in this purchasing power of $10,000,000 can have but one result—reduced out of manufactured goods and services which farmers and their families require, and a consequent increase in unemployment in such manufacturing and service industries."

Mr. Duplan said "the surplus of butter now on hand is directly and solely attributable to its replacement by margarine. In Ontario alone butter consumption dropped 25,000,000 pounds in 1949."

EXPORT INDUSTRY

Agriculture in normal times provides roughly 40 per cent of Canada's total export trade.

CHEERING THE KIDDIES — Everybody thinks hockey players are tough, but there were tears in the eyes of "Butch" Bouchard and Rocket Richard, as they visited St. Justine Hospital in Montreal recently, where children, some legless, are treated. Bouchard, left, Richard, next, talked to the youngsters, signed dozens of autographs, wheeled the youngsters around the corridors.

Canada Will Purchase Secret U.S. Equipment

OTTAWA, March 20 — (CP)— Canada will purchase a quantity of United States arms and equipment still on the secret list in that country, Charles M. Drury, Deputy Minister of National Defence said Sunday night.

Mr. Drury, who returned Sunday night from a conference with high United States defence officials at Washington, said arrangements for the purchases are being worked out under the Mutual Defence assistance pact and that Canada will pay cash for the equipment.

Although giving no inkling of the value of the equipment involved, he said the material will include some special equipment for an order of 100 F-86 fighters now being built by Canadair Limited in Montreal and radio and radar apparatus.

The arms purchase is a part of a program of continental defence worked out with the permanent joint board of defence and is connected with the $1,000,000,000 U.S. military assistance program for Atlantic pact powers. Under the program European countries are receiving armaments free. Canada, however, is paying cash for her equipment.

Hawkesbury Group Wins Drama Trophy

HULL, Que., March 20. (CP)— Le Cercle Gascon, an eight-year-old drama group from Hawkesbury, Ont., Saturday night won the Le Droit Trophy, awarded by Ottawa's French-language newspaper for the best production in the Eastern Ontario French Drama Festival.

The group's production of "Le Chant du Berceau" (Cradle Song) was declared the best in the two-day competition. Adjudicator Maxwell Wray said that while the acting in this translation of a poem by Martinez-Sierra had technical faults, the players had sincerity.

Despite their youth and inexperience, the players had portrayed with great beauty the humor and pathos of life in a cloister. It was a performance which "touche le coeur" (touches the heart).

Mr. Wray said the Hawkesbury troupe was "on the right road to success," and a lot of credit should go to the excellent director, Gerard Chenier. The company was lucky to have a man who knew the art of theatre.

Urge 3 Colleges Merged Make Guelph Farm Capital

TORONTO, March 20—(CP)—The Ontario Legislature's Committee on Conservation today put forward recommendations which would make Guelph the agricultural capital of the province. In its report to the Legislature, it proposed federation into one educational institution of three colleges now operating as separate entities at Quelph and transfer to that city from Toronto of all officials of the Department of Agriculture except those engaged in administration of legislation or in inspection.

The recommendations were aimed at co-ordinating all services rendered to farmers by the Department of Agriculture.

The Ontario Agricultural College and the Ontario Veterinary College at Guelph were qualified to become the base or headquarters for all conservation work in agriculture in Ontario. The committee proposed that they be merged, along with the Macdonald Institute of Home Economics, into one institution as a first step in preparing them to assume greater stature.

Have President

The federated school would be administered by a president and three deans—one for agriculture, one for veterinary science and one for home economics. The report proposed a 12-member board of regents to study and make recommendations on matters of policy, administration and finance.

Regents would be selected from a panel submitted by five organizations: Ontario Federation of Agriculture, five members; OAC alumni, three; OVC alumni, two; Macdonald Institute Alumni, one; Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario, one.

Although the report proposed that the director of agricultural extension and his staff move to Guelph, it suggested he remain directly responsible to the Deputy Minister of Agriculture in Toronto. It recommended that the extension director have supervision of all county officers of the department and that all extension work in counties or directly on farms be co-ordinated through the county offices.

Value of Radio

Impressed by the value of radio and films in carrying the conservation message, the report urged training in radio—and eventually television—for extension workers and wider use of films.

The report said that although experimental farms served a useful purpose, demonstration or model farms operated at government expense did not satisfactorily meet the need.

"What is needed is demonstration of what the average farmer can do in the average farmer's circumstances, which of course are quite different from those of the subsidized farm."

County crop improvement associations could provide the right kind of demonstration and some had embarked on ambitious and constructive schemes.

OTTAWA, March 20 (CP)—A probing film on cancer, jointly produced by Canadian and United States authorities, was given its Canadian premiere Sunday before an invited audience.

The film "Challenge: Science Against Cancer," was produced by the National Film Board and the Medical Film Institute of the Association of American Medical Colleges.

Those attending the premiere included Health Ministry Martin and Dr. N. H. Topping, assistant surgeon general, United States public health service.

In addresses preceding the showing, Mr. Martin and Dr. Topping both noted that this is the first time Canada and the United States have combined efforts to sponsor a cancer education program.

Both the English and French versions of the film were previewed in a downtown theatre. It will be shown later in all the provincial capitals under the auspieces of the Canadian Cancer Society.

Orders New Vote On CP Union

OTTAWA, March 20 —(CP)— The Canada Labor Relations Board today declined immediate certification of the American Newspaper Guild (C.I.O.) as bargaining agent for editorial employees of the Canadian Press and ordered a vote of employees of the National News Service on the question..

The decision means that a government- supervised secret ballot will be taken among eligible employees — those designated by the board as forming the bargaining unit—in the editorial department. To be certified, the union must get 51 per cent of the votes of those eligible.

Each party in the contested application for certification—the CP management and the Guild—won and lost points in the board decision. The outcome of major points:

1. The board ordered the vote because of "some uncertainty or confusion over whether the union had followed procedure under its constitution. The union filed cards from well over half the eligible employees.

Ruled Employees

2. The Board denied the CP claim it has no jurisdiction over CP editorial employees. The Board ruled these workers were "employees" under the meaning of the industrial relations and disputes investigation act.

3. Canadian Press was upheld in its contention that the CP bargaining unit could not include Press News, Ltd., a subsidiary which buys news from CP, processes it and sells it to radio stations. The Board ruled Press News was under separate management and ordered the vote restricted to employees of CP only. (The Guild could file a new application covering PN employees.)

4. The Guild and CP each won and lost on the question of who should be included in the bargaining unit. The Board decided against the CP claim that office boys should be excluded. But it upheld the News Service in excluding news editors, the No. 2 men in bureaux across the country.

Inclusion of office boys was decided on a 5-4 split of the board. Otherwise, no dissent was reported in the judgment.

On a fifth issue, the board declined to give effect to the contention of CP that its news-handling employees should not be subject to "external influences" that might arise from American control of the Guild and from union activities in the field of politics.

Dock Hands Strike Against King

Back Up Socialists In Battle Against Leopold

BRUSSELS, March 20 (AP) —Belgians opposed to the return of King Leopold III began a round of work stoppages today, calling out 30,000 men to underscore determined Socialist opposition to the pro-Leopold forces.

Tramway and foundry workers walked off the job in widely-scattered parts of the country, but the hardest hit city was Antwerp, where 128 ships were immobilized.

The entire port administrative staff, including 126 pilots, joined with 11,000 dock and shipyard workers in a 24-hour strike.

In Brussels, Premier Gaston Eyskens began negotiations seeking a solution to the political crisis precipitated when his coalition cabinet of Social Christians and Liberals resigned Saturday.

Political observers believed the premier sought to form another coalition of his own Social Christians and the previously-allied Liberals. Eyskens seeks a new coalition which will call a joint session of parliament to vote Leopold's return from exile.

But Leopold's chief opponents former premier Paul-Henri Spaak's Socialists, announced on Sunday they would call waves of strikes until Leopold abdicates in favor of his son, 19-year-old Prince Bauduoin. Socialists criticize Leopold's surrender to the Germans in 1940.

24-Hour Walkout

Like strikes in the industrial south and east of Belgium last Friday, today's work stoppage in Antwerp was to last 24 hours. The Antwerp strike involved 7,000 dock workers and about 4,000 shipyard workers.

The strike wave, spreading into Brussels, today closed four large plants and several small plants in the capital. In Verviers east Belgium, streetcar workers went on strike.

Armed clashes between partisans and opponents of the exiled King were reported from Leuden and Erps-Que. State police forces stopped the fights and no casualties were reported.

The Liberals brought on the cabinet's fall when they refused to join the Social Christians in sponsoring a parliamentary session to invite Leopold back to his throne.

Library Staffs Want Pensions

LONDON, Ont., March 20 (CP) —A dominion-wide pension plan for library employees was urged here over the weekend by Western Ontario trustees of the Ontario Library Association.

The matter will be brought before the association convention in Windsor in May, and it is hoped to draft a detailed plan to present to the Canadian Association.

Seventy-five delegates attended the weekend conference of trustees, with Mrs. Gordon Kerr, of Windsor, as chairman.

Problems of financing libraries was dealt with by George Hamilton, of Niagara Falls. He claimed that the provincial government was not paying the full amounts of expected subsidies to match increased grants by municipal council.

George Birch, of Prescott, told the results of a survey made during the last year of 28 Ontario libraries to determine the extent of "special services" being maintained.

He said that 24 libraries reported film services, 12 recorded music, 16 art exhibits, seven lending paintings and that there were 17 film councils in the communities. Only a few libraries were prepared to extend services, mainly because of building problems.

Glens' Historian Visits Europe

The historian of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders, Lt.-Col. W. Boss, is at present in Europe gathering material of the achievements of the Regiment in the war of 1939-45. Recent letters from his record his gratification at the boundless admiration for the Canadian army displayed by the people of France, Belgium, Holland and Italy, where the production of a Canadian passport is an assurance of friendliness that is almost incredible. Good progress is being made in the writing of the history, which covers the period from 1783 to the end of the last war, the final phases of which now occupy the historian's attention.

The Regiment is anxious to obtain suitable authenticated anecdotes for inclusion in the history from those who served with the 1st Battalion overseas. There are many incidents that are not mentioned in the War Diaries and of which there is at present no written record; incidents that are humorous, dramatic, tragic, and that exist only in the memories of those who served with the Regiment. Some, possibly, may be found in the letters written to relatives at home by men of the Battalion. For instance, in his last letter, the historian asks, "What was the name of the colored boy who joined the Battalion as a reinforcement about D-Day plus eight, and what eventually happened to him?" It is the intention that the regimental history shall be strongly personalized.

Anyone who knows of a story that would be suitable for the regimental history of the Glens should forward it as soon as possible to the commanding officer at the Armouries, Cornwall, Ontario, or direct to the historian, Lieut.-Colonel W. Boss, c-o Canadian Press, 85 Fleet St., London EC 4. Care should be taken to give the approximate date, the name of the nearest town or village where the incident occurred, the ranks and names of those concerned, and if possible the name of someone who can verify the accuracy of the story.

Peterborough And Civic Architecture

We have been much impressed by the Exhibition of Contemporary Canadian Arts which is now on view at the Art Gallery of Toronto. An important contribution to this exhibition has been made by the Royal Architectural Institute of Canada, which is showing models, plans and designs representing the best that has been done in the field of architecture in this country during the past two or three years. Prominent in this exhibition is a picture of the new section of Queen Mary School.

* * *

The presence of this picture in the exhibition is, we feel, a matter for civic pride. It means that Peterborough has a building which ranks with the finest erected in this country since the war. It means that Peterborough is conscious of new methods in building and new trends in design, and has taken advantage of its knowledge. As many citizens of the city are aware, the addition to Queen Mary School has been studied by other cities as a model of what a modern school should be. It has been widely discussed both by school authorities and by architects in all parts of Canada. It has been looked upon, we may say, with admiration and envy. And in this way it has attracted flattering attention to our city, and has given the impression to great numbers of people everywhere that we are somewhat more progressive in matters of architecture than most cities of our size.

* * *

This makes it a matter for regret that the design chosen for the new City Hall is out of the trend of the best modern building in Canada. There is nothing wrong with the design; it is pleasant and workable. But it is a combination of several styles, none of which have any special relevance to this country, and it suggests a timidity of approach to the problems which a city hall brings up. Visitors to the city will be puzzled, we feel, that two new buildings so unlike in all that they reveal about the city's attitude toward architecture as the Queen Mary addition and the new City Hall, should have been built in the same city.

* * *

Architecture is an art of incalculable importance in what it tells about the people responsible for it. In the Queen Mary addition and also in the new Civic Hospital our city has two buildings which will stand comparison with the best in the country in matters of design and in what they signify. The new City Hall, though nothing to be ashamed of, can scarcely be regarded as a forward step in this important direction. Nothing is gained by grieving about it now, but in the course of time other buildings will be needed in the city, and it is to be hoped that a more progressive spirit will prevail.

It's The People Who Sit Still Who Rake In The Money

One of the healthier disillusionments of maturity is that Aesop fables aren't all true. There is, for instance, that story about the big frog which sat on a rock with its mouth open waiting for a fly to pop in. The story goes that no fly ever was trapped into its maw, and the moral is that the up-and-doing are the ones who get earthly and even heavenly rewards. Three fallacies in that nursery story are never pointed out to children. One is that the frog is big and fat. How did it get that way if no flies went down its gullet? Another is that the society of frogs and the society of humans are not necessarily operated on the same patterns. Because a frog did not flourish from sitting still is no reason to believe that a human would fare likewise.

The third fallacy, and it is the point that specially interests us, is that the facts of life do show that the sitter-stillers manage very nicely, and even prosper. Many of the rich men, powerful men, important men we read about in picture magazines are paunchy. They do not grow rotund by rushing hither-and-yon. They sit, sit, mind you, — behind big desks and administer, and in the moments when they are not administering they drowse and do nothing (though pretending to be busily thoughtful)—just like the big frog.

Croupiers at chemin-de-fer gambling tables do not agitate themselves and grasp for this world's goods. They let the gamblers do it, and calmly rake in the stakes over the green baize cloth. The Bible tells us that the lilies of the field do not toil or spin. Last Wednesday all the local Anglican clergy sat—SAT—in their churches from morn 'til eve to await contributions for the church's work. It is reported that the monetary response was very satisfactory.

The people who do things in this world are sitters. Parliament sits. Judges sit. Committees sit. Sittings are held on labour disputes. It is a chair-man, not a standman who runs (no, that word runs is a bit off our colour—who presides over) meetings. Even editors and kings sit. It is when the court rises, Parliament rises and justice and scientists and philosophers and students and typists and bar-flies and writers get off their elbows, that the constructive, beneficial results are ended and their world's work is suspended.

Activity gets one nowhere. Consider this earth of ours which has been whizzing around on its axis through 7,000 miles every 24 hours for God knows how long, and has been running around the sun every year for the same length of time. And where has that got it? Why, until only recently, in fact until Galileo, everybody gave the sun, not the earth, the credit for all the movement.

The Lady Called Him A Liar

While we dislike Communism and Communists generally, we are invariably amused when an over-zealous hunter of Communists is rudely jolted. That happened to Wisconsin's Senator McCarthy in Washington this week. Senator McCarthy is currently conducting a loud-voiced campaign against the State Department, charging that there are a number of Communists or fellow travellers employed there. The number has dwindled from his original claim of 108 to fifty-seven, but he has only named three names to date, and he probably wishes now he had never mentioned one of them.

The first name Senator McCarthy mention was that of Dorothy Kennan, whom he accused of having belonged to "at least twenty-eight Communist-front organizations. After the name had been published, several developments occurred. It was learned that Miss Kenyon was not an employee of the State Department, and that she never had been. Then Miss Kenyon flatly declared that the Senator was an "unmitigated liar", and requested permission of the Senate committee concerned to appear before it to prove her statement.

The committee readily granted her request and, according to Washington reports, Miss Kenyon proved she had never belonged to a Communist-front organization. Unfortunately, Senator McCarthy was not present, but Miss Kenyon is reported to have used some rather pungent language in telling the only Republican present what she thought of his fellow party-member's witch hunting tactics. Senator McCarthy's fine war record is proof that he is normally courageous, but we can readily understand his feelings if his absence was due to reluctance to face the angry woman who called him a liar—and apparently proved it.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The hydrogen bomb, we read, contains no actual hydrogen. A pity this isn't the only deceitful thing about it.

During the St. Patrick's day celebrations a number of Irishmen expressed resentment at the popular belief that their ancestors lived with pigs. Most of us, however, are becoming broken to the idea that our ancestors lived with monkeys.

During Exercise Sweetbriar it was discovered that when the temperature was low, efficiency was low, too. But of course the temperature would be just as low for the enemy, and we might see a battle fought in slow motion.

A controversy is raging in the columns of a contemporary as to whether the horse or the dog is man's best friend. Nobody has thought to say that both are useless when compared with the cow, who provides man with butter, milk, cheese, shoes, briefcases and luggage, and who rarely gets a kind word.

Scientists say that the surface of the moon is covered with dust a foot deep. As lunar explorers in the forthcoming visits to the moon, therefore, we suggest a high proportion of lawyers and newspaper editors, who are accustomed to working in offices similarly submerged.

Musical Notes

By PETER PIPER

ANOTHER anniversary this week. John Sebastian Bach was born on March 21, 1685, of a family of professional musicians. If there was ever any doubt about the influence of heredity Bach's family tree is ample proof that musical ability runs in families. John Sebastian himself was the father of twenty children (by two wives) and, of these, three became internationally famous while their father's name suffered a temporary eclipse. In his music John Sebastian Bach summed up the achievements of former ages and pointed the way prophetically to later developments. His skill as a contrapuntist has never been surpassed, from the little two-part inventions to the ordered complexity of the Art of Fugue. And yet he seldom allows himself to become the victim of his own cleverness; there is an undercurrent of deep feeling, running throughout his works. He covered every field of music except opera, but it is perhaps in the music that he wrote for the Lutheran church that we find the essence of the man. In an Age of Reason Bach was a man of strong religious conviction who himself offered his gifts to the service of God. The monolithic statement of belief in the "Credo", the mystic and awful agony of the "Crucifixus", the tender cradle song of the Blessed Virgin Mary in the Christmas Oratorio, the haunting loveliness of the Chorale Prelude "Come now, Saviour of the Gentiles" — these are some of the highest expressions of his universal genius. This year we are celebrating the Bicentenary of his death. The CBC has already put on some interesting programmes of his works. So far there appear to be no signs of commemorating the occasion in Peterborough.

✧ ✧ ✧

IT is not within my province to include criticisms of local concerts in this column, but I cannot refrain from mentioning the recent recital of Miss Kathleen Ferrier, contralto. It was indeed a memorable occasion. We were privileged to hear a great artist and a great singer at the very peak of her powers. If this was not perfection it was certainly not far short; and yet the prevailing impression afterwards was not "What clever singing" but "What lovely music". The truly great artist always turns the attention of the audience to the music rather than to himself; instead of using the music as a vehicle for the exploitation of his "personality" he sinks his personality in the music and identifies himself with the thought of the composer.

✧ ✧ ✧

DURING the past fifty years the art of teaching the piano to the young has been revolutionized. The same thing has happened in the study of other subjects, and even adult education has been modified as a result of the researches into the workings of the human mind. The main thing to remember is that the child's mind is incapable of thinking in abstract and general terms except to a very limited degree. The old system was to teach the child the notes of the great stave and the time values and time signatures at the outset. Now this is not too difficult for the adult mind to take in, but to the child it is positively bewildering. The modern "direct" method (as opposed to the old "systematic" method) is to teach the child to play a few very simple tunes parrot-fashion before teaching him how to read them from the book. He is then given as much information as he can digest at a time. Thus from the very outset he is playing the piano with ease and confidence. He gets the "feel" of the keyboard at the start. Later on the knowledge he has gained can be systematized. This is the same process whereby a child learns its mother tongue, and if music is to be its mother tongue too it would seem to be the most logical way of learning it.

✧ ✧ ✧

PROGRAMME building is an art in itself. Organizations like the B.B.C. employ a staff of experts with a wide range of knowledge of different types of music. The two main principles of programme building are unity and variety, and everything else follows from them. The difficulty lies in finding a mean between these two opposing ideas. A concert must have a degree of unity: that is to say that the listener must not be allowed to go away with a feeling that he has been offered a series of snippets like a dog's dinner! In fact the concert as a whole should have some sort of a shape. This may be done with the aid of the "historical" method, starting with (shall we say?) Bach, and working through to Beethoven, Brahms, Bartok and Britten in that order. This method is well proven, but it is by no means fool-proof: I sometimes feel that it smacks of the lecture room. A subtler way of achieving unity is to disregard chronological sequence and group together works that have some emotional or formal affinity. Unity must not, however, lead to monotony. A typical error is to have two pieces in the same group in the same key. The second piece nearly always comes as an anticlimax: it is better to choose pieces in distant keys next to each other. On the other hand variety should not be overdone: Palestrina and Offenbach do not mix! It is probably wisest to put the "heaviest" items early on in the programme while the listener is still fairly fresh. The concert should end on a strong note and not be allowed to tail off. Encores, when given, should be brief and not too heavy. The next time you go to a concert why not try and rearrange the items on the programme and see whether you could do better yourself?

Enterprise For Local Industry

Local industry is the fruit of local enterprise—in other words, the people of a district must have enough faith in the community to invest their money in it, enough gumption to work for it and enough imagination to visualize opportunities. Certainly the government can help with advice, expert guidance and publicity. Various government bureaus can help supply the climate that will encourage the growth of local industries. But the actual planting of the seed and the growth of an industry can spring only from local effort.—Winnipeg Tribune.

U.S. Plans Stronger Foreign Policy

From NORA BELOFF in Washington

GROWING disgruntled at home and abroad that United States foreign policy is nothing but an ineffectual and uninspiring series of stop-gap measures to halt Communism has induced the State Department basically to revise American aims in the cold war.

From now on the United States is in the diplomatic world contest not to avoid defeat but to obtain positive success. Two highly important speeches delivered by the Secretary of State, Mr. Dean Acheson, on the West Coast this week should be regarded as the first stage in popularizing the "new look" in American foreign policy, with details to be filled in later.

Meanwhile, the Planning Division of the State Department is intensively studying various plans for consolidating Western Union, strengthening the machinery for economic and military co-ordination, harmonizing the Far Eastern policies of the Western democracies and the measures required for stabilizing the Western economy and maintaining full employment after the ending of the Marshall Plan. One member of the policy planning staff laughed off complaints by a veteran diplomatic correspondent that there was a dearth of news in Washington just now. On the contrary, he said, he could not remember a time when the Department had been so busy re-examining the entire foreign policy field and working out positive new proposals which will be submitted to Congress and the public in the months ahead.

Officials conceded that for the first time in their memory the State Department, instead of being dragged back, is being prodded and encouraged by Congress and influential sectors of the American Press into taking bolder international initiatives and engaging in heavier international commitments. It would seem that over the country as a whole the shocks of the lost atomic bomb monopoly, the Chinese disaster, and the discovery that economic disequilibrium is worse and of longer term than had previously been believed, have gradually sunk into the public mind and their grave implications are for the first time fully realized. There is still widespread uncertainty as to what should be done, but astonishing unanimity on the need to do something.

This is the moment chosen by Mr. Acheson to launch a nation-wide appeal for "total diplomacy" of which the positive object will be the construction of a free world, "strong in its faith and its material progress"—strong enough to exercise greater powers of attraction than Soviet Russia.

"The American people have been leaders in a revolution that has been going on for a century and a half, a revolution by the common people", said Mr. Acheson, contrasting the United States record of liberating colonial peoples with Soviet "imperialism".

Addressing himself to the peoples of Asia, Mr. Acheson told them that the United States rather than Soviet Russia was the appropriate champion of freedom from colonialism and freedom from want, which he linked as the two fundamental motive forces in the Far East today.

For the first time, an American leader, speaking with the full asset of the President, warned the Communists of Russia and China that adventures in South-East China might bring them into conflict with the United States. He went further than ever before in promising military or economic assistance to countries "whose tragedy it is to find themselves in the path of the main thrust of Soviet subversion and expansion", wherever this assistance was an essential missing component in effective resistance.

SPEAKING the day afterwards on the whole problem of the cold war, Mr. Acheson pointed to the areas of international tension where the action of the Russians belied their peace-loving speeches. Reverting to a popular colloquialism, Mr. Acheson declared "We are loath to play the role of an international sucker". He warned the American public: "We must not slacken, rather must we reinvigorate our democratic efforts".

Among the efforts which required "reinvigorating", the Secretary of State listed the European Recovery Programme, the Atlantic and Rio Pacts, the Point Four programme (to provide technical assistance to backward territories) and measures to create prosperous and expanding world trade.

"Our efforts", he concluded, "cannot merely be reactions to the latest move by the Kremlin. We must, in co-operation with others, build the kind of world in which freedom and justice can flourish".

The American public and the outside world will soon be hearing more about the ways and means by which the American Government believes this co-operative task can be accomplished.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

I waited patiently for the Lord; and he inclined unto me, and heard my cry . . . And he hath put a new song in my mouth, even praise unto our God: many shall see it, and fear, and shall trust in the Lord. . . .

Many, O Lord my God, are thy wonderful works which thou hast done, and thy thoughts which are to us-ward: they cannot be reckoned up in order unto thee: if I would declare and speak of them, they are more than can be numbered. . . .

Let us all those that seek thee rejoice and be glad in thee: let such as love thy salvation say continually, The Lord be magnified. But I am poor and needy; yet the Lord thinketh upon me: thou art my help and my deliverer; make no tarrying, O my God. (Ps. 40: 1, 3, 5, 16, 17.)

✧ ✧ ✧

God hath spoken once; twice have I heard this; that power belongeth unto God. (Ps. 62: 11.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Because thou hast made the Lord, which is my refuge, even the most High, thy habitation; there shall no evil befall thee, neither shall any plague come nigh thy dwelling.

For he shall give his angels charge over thee, to keep thee in all thy ways. (Ps. 91: 9-11.)

Canada's Population Outlook

Canada's population is increasing at the rate of about 1,000 a day. It should reach approximately 14,000,000 by the end of the present year. But if we depend on natural increase we are pretty close to the peak. The Bureau of Statistics figures that we shall touch the 15,000,000 mark by 1990 and then decline slowly. We shall not continue to grow unless we do something about immigration, and, at present, we are doing very little about it.—Vancouver Province.

ENRICHING SOIL — One method of enriching soil suggested by a special Ontario Legislature committee which studied conservation was plowing under green fodder. In this photo a tractor is shown turning over the green plants which provide an abundant source of organic matter for the soil.

SOIL STRUCTURE—The effect of organic matter on soil structure is shown in this photo. A special Ontario Legislature committee on conservation submitted these examples of soil. On the left is virgin soil with 106 tons of organic matter an acre. On the right is cultivated soil taken from Essex County with only 49 tons of organic matter an acre.

PREVENTS EROSION — A special Ontario Legislature Committee which studied soil convervation in the province recommended certain types of reforestation. Trees planted in such a project are a primary method of preventing erosion such as shown in the above photo of reforestation just under way.

Chief Conservation Officer Suggested For Ontario

TORONTO, March 20—(CP)—Ontario today got a down-to-earth blue print for tackling its conservation problems. A nine-man committee of the Ontario Legislature tabled its 65,000-word report on a year-long study of soil depletion, drainage, flood control, reforestation, demonstration farms and soil analysis. It saw as the measure of its success the "condition of Ontario and its natural resources 50 or 100 years hence." Among its chief recommendations were these:

1. Appointment of a chief Conservation Officer under the Provincial Premier and with the status of a Deputy Minister to co-ordinate conservation work of all government departments, particularly three—agriculture, lands and forests, and planning and development;

2. Study of a system of piping water from the Great Lakes to communities in southwestern Ontario where potential or actual scarcity limits growth and industrial expansion.

The committee gathered the material for its 185-page report, couched in practical language, from visits to 50 Ontario cities, town and villages where it held public hearings. It received 111 submissions—83 from county and district organizations, 16 from provincial organizations and universities and 12 from individuals. It also studied on the spot a settlement scheme at La Sarre in northwestern Quebec and conservation practices in Ohio, notably Author Louis Bromfield's Malabar farm.

Drastic Wastage

The report warned emphatically that wastage and depletion of Ontario resources had occurred on a large and significant scale.

"The very fact that they proceed in a more subtle and less spectacular way than in other areas tends to make them the more dangerous—there is the danger that we might be lulled into complacency. He who loses six inches of topsoil in 35 years has lost it—and he is no better off than he who lost it in three years. One may proceed more slowly than the other—but the result in the end is the same.

"The hope of this committee is that Ontario will accept a conservation program worthy of the name while yet there is time, and that we may show our intelligence and vision by taking action before, rather than after, the event, so that desperate emergency measures of reclamation and rehabilitation will never become necessary in this province."

Four Requirements

It laid down four prime requirements to avoid wastage of soil and forests and wildlife and other resources.

The first was a change in the individual's attitude toward natural environment. The time was gone for the pioneer's attitude of conflict and "we have now to learn that co-operation with nature will yield far greater rewards than ruthless exploitation."

A new individual attitude was not enough. Ontario had changed from a scattering of agricultural and logging communities into a great economic complex in which laws and regulations were often more powerful than personal preferences. "Therefore . . the law should adjust itself to achieve greater harmony with natural processes."

The third need was that activities of government—"at all levels"—should promote and assist conservation practices of individuals. "Government itself must accept responsibility for enterprises like the reforestation of large areas which are beyond the capacity of any individual" and there was need "for an over-all policy and for its execution in an integrated and co-ordinated way."

Voluntary Work

"Finally, in this highly organized society, great importance must be accorded to the voluntary association—to those who act together in their own township, village or city, in their own watershed or their own producers' group. In Ontario the role of these voluntary organizations is already significant, and they can undoubtedly make or break any conservation program."

The intensely practical nature of the report reflected the committee's makeup. Eight of its members are farmers, the other a lawyer who lives on a farm. All nine—five Progressive Conservatives, two CCF and two Liberals—gave unanimous approval.

The chairman, F. S. Thomas, Progressive Conservative member for Elgin, practical farmer and former and Ontario district agricultural representatives when his job was to give farmers expert advice on their problems.

Other Members

The other Progressive Conservative members are: T. R. Dent of Oxford, internationally-known breeder of Holstein-Friesian cattle; S. J. Hunt, Renfrew North farmer; C. E. Janes, Lambton East farmer; O. F. Villeneuve, Glengarry cattle dealer and farmer.

CCF members are Provincial Leader E. B. Jolliffe, a lawyer who lives on a farm at Rockwood near Guelph, and T. H. Isley Waterloo South framer. The Liberals are Farquhar Oliver, Provincial House Leader for his party and a farmer in Grey County, and E. B. McMillan, Kent East farmer.

The committee summarized its recommendations under 10 main headings: Soil, water, forestry, fish and wildlife, recreation, education, conservation authorities, Dominion-Provincial responsibilities, provincial administration and miscellaneous.

Recreation

The province should acquire suitable property for recreational use and formulate definite policy on public recreation areas in southern Ontario. It should also acquire lands fronting reservoirs on the proposed St. Lawrence Seaway and power development for public recreation.

Education

Publication and distribution of educational literature for children and adults should be continued aud more use should be made of radio and motion pictures to tell the story of conservation. The Department of Lands and Forests—with help from departments of hgihways, education and travel—should intensify its campaign against carelessness with fire in the woods. Greater emphasis should be given to teaching conservation in rural and urban elementary and secondary schools. Ontario normal schools and universities should consider whether their courses pay enough attention to conservation, both as a science and in its bearing on other subjects.

Conservation Authorities

Work of conservation authorities — actually commissions or boards set up to carry out specific conservation projects—should be broadened by appointment of co-ordinating officers to integrate the plans and to serve as liaison officer between the authority and government departments.

The conservation authorities act of Ontario should be amended to: 1. Provide for raising of money from municipalities which receive either direct or indirect benefit; 2. Permit a municipality to raise money from that part of its area benefitting from a conservation project.

The Ontario Government in financing work of authorities should allow larger grants for flood control where municipalities are mainly rural and for substantial grants for engineering to help build up a backlog of public works in case of need.

Dominion-Provincial Rresponsibilities

The Federal and provincial governments should reach agreements on financing and participation in such projects as state forests, flood control reservoirs and lakeshore erosion.

Provincial Administration

The prime minister's department should have responsibility for the province's conservation policy and program. Administration should be under a chief of conservation, with the status of deputy minister, to co-ordinate conservation work of all government departments. Estimates for conservation worked should be handled under the prime minister's department even when spent by others. The legislature should have a standing committee on conservation to review the program and work each year.

Speed County Soil Surveys Legislature Now Advised

TORONTO, March 20—(CP)—The province, in co-operation with the dominion, should speed up county soil surveys already under way so they can be completed and reports published in the near future, the Ontario Legislature's committee has recommended.

Government grants to county crop improvement associations should be increased so they may undertake an extended demonstration program to show the value of grassland improvements. Assistance should be given in promotion demonstration plots and "pilot farms," operated by practising farmers, to apply research findings in a practical way.

To combat erosion, research should be undertaken in intensity and frequency of rainfall and ability of different soil types to absorb water; use of fall and winter crops; effectiveness of fall versus spring plowing; width of crop strips in relation to control of water and wind erosion.

For farm under drainage, planning and inspection services of the OAC and the Kemptville Agricultural School should be expanded. Research should be conducted on Ontario's major soil types to determine best drainage methods. Closer inspection of tile drainage projects and of tile manufacture was urged.

The provincial government should recognize the responsibility of providing long term credit through some agency to assist young farmers in getting established on their own farms.

Prince Back Home

AMSTERDAM, March 20 (AP)—Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands returned home Sunday after a 12-week trip to North and South America. Prince Bernhard visited Ottawa and Quebec city during his travels. He was greeted at the airport by his wife, Queen Juliana, who lived in Ottawa during part of the second world war, and by their four daughters.

Dies From Burns

KINGSTON, March 20—(CP)—Mrs. Peter McNeely, 79, died in hospital Saturday of burns suffered when her clothing caught fire in her home last Monday.

Ask 2 Governments Finance Reforestation Plan

TORONTO, March 20—(CP)—A reforestation program, financed jointly by the provincial and federal governments, was proposed today by the Ontario Legislature's Committee on Conservation.

Its report, tabled in the legislature, urged that the reforestation be carried out in the pre-Cambrian Shield area which lies south of the French and Mattawa rivers and extends west from Georgian Bay to the St. Lawrence river near Brockville and to the Upper Ottawa river.

It suggested that 3,600 square miles of the 23,000 square miles in the Shield be reforested in the next 25 years. The provincial government's present tree nursery production should be stepped up to meet the demands of the program and areas should be set aside for public recreational use.

Stress Private Forestry

The report emphasized the value of private and municipal as well as public forestry. A well-managed forest became a self-perpetuating crop. Unlike minerals which became exhausted, wood was a renewable resource and it was becoming more important all the time from an industrial standpoint.

Federal income tax regulations handicapped proper development of farm woodlots. A farmer who tended his woodlot and cropped it carefully had to pay income tax on the revenue it brought him. But the farmer who sold his entire woodlot for complete cutting could class the income as capital gain and it was free from tax. The federal government should be asked to change the regulation so the cropping farmer would not be penalized.

Seek Fire Protection

There should be provision for fire protection for woodlots in Southern Ontario, the report said. And it wanted the Ontario Trees Conservation Act of 1946—which empowered counties to pass by-laws restricting cutting of trees—repealed and replaced by law compulsory in all areas.

The report favored municipal forests. It asked that urban municipalities be empowered to purchase lands beyond their limits for reforestation purposes and that provision be made for taxation on a fixed assessment basis of reforested areas.

As to private reforestation, the report said there was a tendency to handle trees carelessly when they cost nothing. So it suggested the Department of Lands and Forests make a nominal charge for the nursery stock it now distributed free. It also proposed use of lands and forests tree-planting machinery and men for reforestation of plots of five acres or more—the owner to pay part of the cost if he entered into an agreement for forest management; all the cost if there were no agreement.

It estimated that its reforestation proposals called for 4,000,000,000 trees. The number planted to date was 221,196,0400 leaving 3,778,804,000 to come.

KEEP CHIMNEYS AND STOVE PIPES CLEAN

Dirty chimneys cut the proper flow of draft and increase fuel consumption. Sooty stove pipes are sure to rust and will have to be replaced. More important still, such conditions increase the fire hazard in your home! So to get the utmost in performance, safety and economy from your heating system, have chimney flues and stove pipes regularly cleaned and inspected. Such forethought is one of the little things that make up "Good Citizenship".

Oshawa Bees Sew Up Junior Series

Oshawa Bees fought back hard Saturday to win at home 4-2, to tie their best of five series with Triple Links at two wins apiece and force a fifth and deciding struggle this week, for junior "B" group hockey honors. It will be played in Oshawa.

Victory came to the Bees after a hard two way struggle in the dying seconds of the final period when Attersley laced a slithering 20 foot ice-cutter under legs past Wasson to the right corner, at 19:30. Peterborough had tied the score early in the session on Benny Mason's brilliant marker from brother Ross and Desjardins with a perfect passing play.

Nine panelties, to IOOF as referees Crombie and Heffering proved unduly severe, to most spectators, drew heavily on Oddfellows' reserve power but nevertheless they played their finest hockey with the pressure on and held a fair territorial edge in play over Bees must of the route, despite the result. Oshawa proved good opportunists when fortune beckoned however, capitalized on what chances came and must receive full credit for a hard-earned triumph.

Into Empty Net

Gord Myles' final tally at 19:45 came on a long shot into the empty cage from Bees' red circle after a face-off as IOOF used six forwards in a desperate but futile effort to tie the score. It was 1-1 to end the first with Wilson's tally giving Bees a 2-1 edge to finish the second chapter when IOOF tied it in the third it became apparent the breaks would decide the issue as both squads fought on fairly even terms, at this point. For Oshawa the Myles, Wilson, Brabin line proved most effective with Myles the individual star. McAllister, Atterley, Etcher, Weddup, and Pollard also shone while Claus had a good night in goal.

For Oddfellows, the entire team performed in fine style, leaving little to be desired. Defeat was hard but they gave their best all the way and deserved a better fate.

I.O.O.F.—Goal, R. Wasson; defence, Millar and Fennell; centre, Turner; wings, Floyd and Wyatt; alternates, Desjardins, B. Mason, R. Mason, Birch, Baker, Robinson, D. Wasson, Richlark.

Oshawa—Goal, Claus; defence, McAllister and Crust; centre, Myles; wings, Brabin and Wilson; alternates, Etcher, Bannon, Johnson, Attersley, Deeth, Weddup, Marshall, Pollard.

Here And There In Sports . . .

By The Canadian Press

The great Babe Didrickson Zaharias, wearing her "killer clothes," Sunday killed off any ideas that she is finished with championship golf. She won the women's titleholders tournament with a record-breaking 298 strokes.

Her final round in the 72-hole tournament was done in 75 and followed others of 72, 78 and 73.

Besides setting a record the Babe won her second titleholders'. She was the victor in 1947 with 303 strokes, which stood as a record until Peggy Kirk of Findlay, Ohio, won on 299 last year.

At Hollywood, Fla., Phil Marchildon, Philadelphia Athletics' hurler from Penetanguishene who is trying to make a comeback, gave up three runs in the first inning Sunday as the A's bowed 7-4 to Baltimore Orioles of the International League in an exhibition baseball game.

Marchildon, out most of the last season with a sore arm, was the starting pitcher. After the three-run splurge he held the Orioles hitless until relieved in the fourth.

The Canadian Press Toronto Bureau's hockey team Saturday defeated the Montreal Bureau 3-1. The Toronto victory broke Montreal's 14-year stranglehold on the "E. J. Challenge Trophy" donated in 1936 by E. S. Johnson, now chief of the CP's London Bureau, for the annual inter-office match.

A hard driving basketball team from the Tri-Bell Athletic Club of Toronto won the senior men's Ontario basketball crown at London Saturday when they downed Windsor Sterlings 65-57 in the third game of their best-of-three series.

Wisconsin's Don Gehrmann soundly drubbed Fred Wilt in the Bankers' mile at the Chicago relays at the Chicago Stadium Saturday night. Gehrmann unleashed a sizzling stretch drive, passing Wilt on the final turn, to win by 10 yards in 4:09.5.

At Ste. Marguerite, Que., a Canadian girls' team defeated United States contestants to win the annual women's international ski-team races at Mount Baldy during the week-end. The Canadians' combined time for the slalom and downhill events was two minutes and 42 9-10 seconds better than the U. S. team.

At Lincoln, England, Gordon Richards Saturday got a good start in his bid to remain Britain's top jockey for another year by steering more heavily-backed Dramatic in the one-mile Lincolnshire handicap, first of the big British flat races.

PCVS Hoopsters Turned Back In COSSA Finals

Niagara Falls and Belleville Collegiates swept the COSSA boys' senior and junior basketball titles from the hands of the PCVS boys Saturday night in Toronto at Hart House. In the final junior game the Niagara Falls cagers took the PCI'ers into camp to the tune of 52-27, while the senior lads absorbed a 45-20 crack on the knuckles from Belleville Collegiate.

In the afternoon games PCVS took Orillia in the first junior fray 27-19 and the Niagara Falls juniors shot Belleville Collegiate juniors out of the final game 30-22. Coach Bev Goulding's seniors edged Owen Sound in the first senior game in overtime 40-39, while Belleville downed a smooth-working Niagara Falls senior quintet 42-36.

The top game of the tournament was the Owen Sound-PCVS afternoon game. The Goulding boys ripped into the Georgian Bay winners 15-2 in the first quarter and went on to take a 21-5 lead midway through the second. Owen Sound started to climb and were down seven points at the half 24-17. PCVS faded in the third only scoring one point while Owen Sound whipped in seven. Neil Thompson went out in the third with five personals.

Into Overtime

Owen Sound led 32-31 with seconds left to play and Al Northcott flipped in a foul shot to force the game into overtime. Owen Sound started hot with three baskets, but PCVS began to climb up slowly. With a minute left two breakaways by Young and Northcott gave them the lead 40-38. With five seconds left Owen Sound was awarded two foul shots. The first one was made and the other missed to make the final 40-39. Georges led the scoring for Owen Sound with 19, while Thompson had 15 and Northcott 16 for PCVS. Lemon of OSC had 14.

PCVS showed a complete reversal of form in the final game in the evening with Belleville. They were off in their shooting, snaring rebounds and passing. Belleville pulled the PCI'ers out of their zone defence time and time again in the last quarter.

Up to the last session PCVS had kept close to Belleville. The score at the end of the first was only 13-8 for Belleville and in the second both teams added four points in the close-checking. In the third, the Bay of Quinte boys again had an edge on the play and scoring 10-6, to lead 27-20. In the fatal fourth the PCI'ers failed to get the Belleville rebounds and the Johnny-on-the-spot boys from Belleville whipped home the championship with 18 straight points without a reply. Summers for Belleville was tops with 19 points while teammates Faulkner and Buchanan each had eight. Thompson with eight and northcott with six were the leading scorers for PCVS.

Strange Floor

Orillia and Peterborough were bothered by the strangeness of the new floor in the first junior game. Orillia took a 4-2 lead in the first quarter as both teams were off in shooting. A foul shot by Ash and baskets by Stewart and McIlraith put PCVS ahead early in the second 7-6. Ash and Langhorne added two baskets to Orillia's one to have an 11-8 score at the half. Stewart, Cunningham and Ash whipped home baskets in the third as PCVS went up 23-12. Orillia started a comeback late in the fourth, but too late to do any good. Cunningham was tops with 10 points, while Ash had seven and Hempstead three. Wilde with nine and Ferguson with six led the Orillia juniors.

In the evening the Niagara Falls juniors, a well-drilled squad, mixed their plays well to slip through the PCVS zone defence to lead 11-1 in the first quarter. PCVS continued to be off in the second quarter, not getting the rebounds and not shooting well. Niagara took full advantage of this to send in 23 joints to PCVS' five. The locals settled down in the third and held the Niagara winners to a 10-all score on the strength of baskets by Cunningham, McIlraith and Doughty. Still climbing the PCI'ers managed to outscore the Niagara squad 11-8. Triano with 18 and Howse with 17 led all scorers while Janvary and McKenzie each had six. Hempstead and McInraith each scored five, while Ash and Johnston had four each for PCVS.

Marmora Victors

MARMORA, March 20 (ENS)—The 6 R. D., RCAF, hockey team of Trenton played Marmora Trent Valley League team in the latter's rink on Saturday and after having the better of play for two periods, finally lost a clean and penaltyless game by the score of 8-5. The homesters had the services of a former player Wayne (Weiner) Brown of St. Catharines who, in addition to scoring once, assisted Loveless to register and executed some fine bursts of play. Likewise Schmidt of Frankford's TVL team was in the visiting lineup to score once and materially help the RD's throughout the game. Loveless and Lavender beat Thomasini twice while Kerr got two assists in addition to registering once. Four of Marmora's goals were obtained in the last half of the third period—that stage of the game when the local puck shooters so many times this season have been at their deadliest. About 400 fans turned out for the fixture which was arranged at shortest notice.

Teams:

6 RD, RCAF, Trenton—Goal, Thomasini; defence, Schmidt and Garrett; centre, Christie; wings, Twigg, Koch; alternates, Fillion, Forget, McConkey, Attrell, Spence, Lalonde, Zinck, spare goaile, Todd.

Marmora—Goal, Borland; defence, E. Leonard, Kerr; centre, Stewart; wings, Lavender, K. Trumble; alternates, Goodchild, McInroy, Loveless, Brown, Darrah, Gray, Nayler. Spare goalie, Sweet.

Referee—T. Cousins, Deloro.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

All roads lead to Civic Arena tonight as OHA provincial senior "B" playdowns open at 8.30. It's Markham Millionaires vs the local Legionnaires, opening their best-of-seven series, which may turn out to be the Ontario semi-finals. If not, then it is a quarter-final for sure. In other words, Legion are back on the trail toward an Ontario title and have not more than three teams—and maybe just two—to eliminate in the process. Sounds simple, huh? But it is far from that, as the teams the Ellis outfit meet from now on are the best in their particular part of the province. They've all survived tough playoffs in groups or playdowns and are all shooting for the championship.

* * * * * *

History of the Millionaires of Markham the past two seasons is interesting. The team was entered last winter as an OHA intermediate "A" club. It was packed to the gunwales with topnotch Toronto players, and coached by a former NHL-er. Well, they took Legion a couple of times in exhibitions, and Legion later won the senior "B" championship of Ontario. Everyone figured Markham would cakewalk to the intermediate "A" title. But Stouffville protested 'em in playoffs, and Markham promptly protested the Stouffville squad, each claiming the other was packed with ineligible players. Result? Both were chucked out.

* * * * * *

And Still They Roll

This year, both teams went legitimate, gaining pre-season OHA permission to draw upon a certain Toronto suburban area and stepping up to senior "B". And the Millionaires again breezed through their grouping, knocking Stouffville off in four straight. Yes, they're powerful and, if Legion can hurdle this strong threat, we think the local team will roll right through again to the championship. A big "if", but we'll have a better idea after tonight's tilt of how they stack up against each other. Next two games are in Oshawa, on Thursday and Saturday, when Oshawa ice is available, and then back here next Monday. The big opener tonight no doubt will jam the place again.

* * * * * *

Kingston Nylons and the Legion a few weeks ago drew the record hockey crowd for Peterborough, the all-time record. A paid attendance of 2,636, with nearly 2,700 in there counting passes, officials, press, police, etc. Some 500 more than ever witnessed any one game in this borough down the years. However, the arena management decided to whittle that down in future—to some 2,300 or a bit more—in order that stairways could be kept clear. For safety reasons, and that's a wise decision. As we said before, a Memorial Centre with a capacity of at least 4,000 would be filled in playoff time, as many more fans would attend if they were assured of seats.

* * * * * *

Bees Sew Up Series

That's quite a junior "B" group final series Oshawa Bees and Oddfellows are staging. Bees buzzed to a 4-2 win Saturday in the Motor City to tie up the best-of-five sawoffs at two wins each. Next one is in Oshawa, too, but we haven't the date at this writing. IOOFers had an edge on play and should have won, but Oshawa fluked one on a screened shot just before the finish, and then got a soft one when Oddfellows yanked their goalie in a furious try to tie it up. A real toughie to drop, and we think Bun Kingdon's Triple Links can still take the decider this week and wrap up group laurels, though it may be a tight fit.

* * * * * *

Three PCVS cage squads reached trail's end Saturday in Toronto, the senior girls from here falling to Owen Sound 39-25 in COSSA semi-finals, while the senior boys and junior "A" lads got as far as COSSA finals ere bowing. Juniors took Orillia in the aft but lost in the eve to Niagara Falls 52-27. Senior chaps erased Owen Sound after lunch but fell before Belleville Collegiate in the twilight by a 45-20 count. Tough luck on these good teams, but you can't expect to capture those COSSA crowns every year. Marines did better here to beat Hamilton Strands 47-35 to open their OABA intermediate "A" semi-finals in a neat showing. They go back to Hamilton on Saturday, the winner then meeting the Soo in finals.
